LEAFS CONSISTENT BASEBALL WINNERS

Tightest Pennant Race in International League History This Year.

TORONTO, Aug. 10—Outside of the youngsters who have been sent out and returned and then sent out again, the Toronto Leafs have made few changes in the progress of the tightest race the International League has ever had.

In the middle of the season the Leafs sold Merwin Jacobson, outfielder, to Newark, and got from Detroit Paul Easterling to play the outfield. The two other gardeners, Clayton Sheedy in left and Joe Rabbitt in right, have been in their jobs all season with Sexton as relief man.

The infield started out with Alexander at first, and he is still there. Leslie Burke at second, Warren Cote at short, and Billy Webb at third, have been on their jobs most of the year. Fred Bedore, a classy youngster, has subbed for some one of the infield or the outfield, and has now earned a steady job at third.

The catching staff is the same and the pitching mainstays the same. Phillips and Styles have done the catching, with Freitag added last week because of Phillips' injury and Styles' illness.

Jess Doyle, Rip Collines, Clarence Fisher, Johnny Prudhomme, Don. Hankins and Walter Leverenz have done most of the pitching, and are still doing it.

While Bill O'Hara has stood pat the other managers have made wholesale changes in an effort to catch and pass him.

What They Have Done

When the Toronto Leafs left home the night of August 6 to make their third and last round of the southerns half of the circuit they were four full games ahead of Montreal in second place and at the tip with a percentage of .566.

They had a record of 30 wins and 26 losses, for a percentage of .535. They had a home record of 34 wins and 23 losses for a mark of .596.

Dale Alexander had the home run lead of the league with 22 circuit blows; Joe Rabbitt was leading all men on base with 35 stolen bags; Rip Collins was one of the leading pitchers with a winning percentage of .733, and Prudhomme was pressing the leaders.

The Leafs have beaten every club in the league excepting the lowly Skeeters, who had won nine games from the Leafs and lost but seven.

The Leafs had beaten Newark 11 to 6 games Reading 9 to 6, Baltimore 9 to 7, Montreal 9 to 6, Rochester 9 to 6, and Buffalo 10 to 9.

At home, the Leafs beat Newark six to two; Jersey City won three and lost five; Reading was beaten five to three. Baltimore five to two, Montreal five to three, Rochester six to two, and Buffalo won from Newark five to four, Reading four to three, Montreal four to three, and Buffalo six to three. Jersey City held the Leafs even, four to four. The Leafs lost to Baltimore four to five and Rochester three to four.

Most Consistent

The Leafs have played the most consistent ball in the league. After the first few series the Leafs went into first place, and only for a few days in two stretches, have the Leafs been out of first. In both instances Rochester was at the top or tied with the Leafs.

At the end of the first month of play the Leafs were leading by one and a half games. They had gone into first place May 3 at home and had remained in first.

At the end of the second month the Leafs were in second with a percentage of .560 while Rochester was leading with .568. But on the 21st of June the Leafs were back in first to remain until the 15th of July, when Rochester again took the top with a mark of .566 while the Leafs had .564.

Toronto and Rochester see-sawed back and forth with the Red Wings tied part of the time for first and again leading. It was late in the month when the deadlock was broken and the Leafs again took top position to keep it up to date.

During most of the time since the end of the first month, when the clubs settled down, the Leafs have been up near the .600 mark. The range has been from .554 to .643.

Since the Fourth of July, the halfway mark in the pennant race, the Leafs have ranged from .554 to .574. That is very consistent baseball.

Wright is Defeated in Golf Tournament

SOUTHAMPTON, N.Y., Aug. 10 (Canadian Press).—Harry O. Hopman of Australia was the only one of the foreign players left in the singles at the end of play yesterday in the invitation tournament of the Meadow Club. Jack Wright, Montreal, was defeated by Berkely Bell of Austin, Texas, 4—6, 6—4, 6—2. Sadakazu Onda, Japan, lost to Dr. George King, New York, 6—4, 6—1, and Jack Crawford was beaten by his Australian teammate, Hopman, 6—4, 7—5. Hopman won a match from Dr. Carl Fischer, 6—3, 6—4, and Bell played a second match and defeated Herbert Bowman, New York, 11—9, 7—5.

In the doubles, Howard Voshell, New York, and Jack Wright, Montreal, won from Samuel Gilpin and Joseph Olhausen, Philadelphia, 6—4, 6—4, and then defeated the Mexican team of Ricardo Tapia and Jose Llano.

ADAMS WINS CLOSING FEATURE

Captures $1,500 Champlain Handicap on Last Day's Program.

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 10.—(Canadian Press.) — Adamas, four year old son of Wigstone-Finery, and coupled with Boom as the Bell Farm Stable entry, yesterday won the $1,500 Champlain handicap, the feature event of the closing day's racing of the second meeting of the Montreal Jockey Club's Blue Bonnets course. The winner, which was a less than even money shot in the wagering, negotiated the mile journey in 1.46 2-5 over a heavy track.

The Bell candidate jumped to the front right from the break and was never threatened, finishing with a margin of four lengths over the second horse, Sun De Meur. Seth's Hope finished third. The Vercheres handicap, fashioned for horses foaled in the Dominion and over the seven furlong route was won by Meeran, owned by J. E. Smallman. Periapides finished second and Nonnington which ran with Listerine as the Hatch-Comie entry, got the show portion of the purse. Meeran was second choice in the wagering paid off at better than two to one.

The disappointment in the race was the Seagram entry of Evermore and Ferry of Fate, which finished out of the money. The latter took the lead at the break, but faded to nothing in the stretch..

Eight races were run to-day, with Provincial Nursery a betless affair. The Nursery was won by D. A. O'Meara's Migtoi.

High Life no Place for Girl Swimmer

WINNIPEG, Man., Aug. 10.—(Canadian Press).—Late hours, cigarettes and the mischievous cocktail have no place in the life of the girl who would swim far and often, declares Miss Olive Gatterdam, Seattle mermaid who was here yesterday on her way to Toronto where she will compete in the Canadian National Exhibition marathon swim, Aug. 29.

A swim a day keeps obesity away, according to the Seattle girl, who is slim, supple and much sunburned. She is but 16 years old, but is tall for her age.

Miss Gatterdam is confident of making a strong showing in the 10-mile swim in Lake Ontario.

"I train hard," she said "keep good hours and am used to cold water."

'BABE' VINCENT WINS HER GAME

Pitches Belleville Beavers To Victory Over Oshawa Chevrolet.

ALLOWS SIX HITS.

"Babe" Vincent accomplished what was expected of her in Belleville when she went there to play softball for the Beavers last Monday to stop the Chevrolets of Oshawa. In the first game Oshawa won 11-9 but Babe was not on the mound. In the second game Babe was on the mound and Belleville won 5-4. The The Daily Ontario says: "In the evening game the crowd was drawn by the presence of Babe Vincent who brought along her usual sunny smile. She unfurled her usual pep which was lacking when she played for the Beavers against Brockville in the earlier part of the season. She had eleven strikeouts and held Oshawa to six scattered hits."

FIVE DROWN IN LAKE

SAND STONE, Minn., Aug. 10. — Five persons were drowned in Grindstone Lake, near here yesterday, when they stepped into a pitch-off where the water is 185 feet deep. Mrs. Charles Linden and her father, William Lundon, and John Nesa, drowned while trying to save Mrs. Lindeen's children, Irene, aged 14, and Hillard, aged 10. They lived at Cloquet.

THEATRES

AT THE REGENT.

Buck Jones has completed "The Branded Sombrero," for Fox Films, under direction of Lambert Hillyer. The story is by Cherry Wilson and was adapted by Lambert Hillyer. Leila Hyams plays opposite the Western star.

Jack Baston is cast as the heavy. He will be remembered for his fine work in "Chain Lightning," a Fox Films production recently made by Jones. Others in the cast include Francis Ford, Josephine Borio and Leo Kelley. This picture is now at the Regent for Friday and Saturday.

Jack Baston, cast as Charles Maggert, the meanest of heavies, meets his Waterloo in "The Branded Sombrero." Maggert has his own way in the early scenes but the entrance of Buck gives him a severe setback.

Maggert's actions in trying to instill some of his underhand methods in Lane, Buck's brother, arouses the protective instinct in Buck, who gives Maggert a terrific threshing.

Determined on revenge, Maggert schemes to throw suspicion on Buck, and almost succeeds. But Buck, in his dashing and tearing manner, is instrumental in defeating his every purpose.

Literally speaking, some of the scenic effects are gorgeous. They were filmed near Newhall, California.

FACE ARREST AS COUNTERFEITERS

Woman and Four Men Held as Plotters Are Questioned For Seven Hours.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.— Four men nd a woman arrested late Tuesday ight in a raid in which 700 counter- eit $20 gold certificates were seized, ere questioned for seven hours yesterday by Joseph A. Palma(agent in charge of the United States Secret Service operatives in New York, in his office in the Coustoms House. As a result additional arrests are expected within forty-eight hours.

Every cent the five had, according to the Secret Service men, was put into counterfeiting equipment. When searched the men and the woman had only nine cents among them. None had had the opportunity to cash a single counterfeit note.

For more than eight months, night and day, the agents trailed the five. The operatives obtained information last December that Maslik, an expert engraver, and Opilich, who is said to have admitted having served in prison in Illinois, would try their hand at counterfeiting. A boastful remark by Obradovich that "money is easy to make" started the investigation. At the outset the operatives said they found purchases of the kind of materials used in counterfeiting were being made by the group.

Not until Tuesday was the rack on which to dry the counterfeit notes bought and Mr. Palma decided the time was ripe to make the arrests. Operatives Gabriel di Fiore, Alfred Hall, Bernard Connolly and William F. Morris blocked all exits and entrances to the house and Palma and his assistant, Peter A. Rubano, entered the Martin flat. There was no resistance.

In addition to the 700 gold certificates, the secret service men found plates and a bleaching plant. The counterfeits were said to be of unusually fine workmanship. Mr. Palma said the group expected to dispose of more than $6,000 worth before Sunday.

The Martin children, two boys and a girl, ranging in age from 6 to 10 years, were turned over to Mrs. Martin's relatives. She told Mr. Palma she and her husband separated several years ago.

It was stated by the raiders that while Maslik and Opilich conceived the idea of making the bogus notes, they interested Obradovitch in the scheme, as the latter's wife conducts a beauty parlor in the Bronx. Mrs. Martin turned over the use of her flat to the counterfeiters, it is charged.

Bridgenorth

(Examiner Correspondence)

BRIDGENORTH, August 10.—A very pleasant week-end was spent at the "Parkdale", Chemong Park, the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Redman of Toronto. Among the guests were the following: Misses Vera and Reta Martin and Miss Dorothy Ivens of Toronto, Robert Brown and Lloyd Goodhand, also of Toronto.

The attendance of the Bridgenorth United Church was considerably swelled by the gathering of young people. A good sermon was indeed enjoyed by all.

The following day Miss Dorothy Ivens, Martin and Stanley Redman of the "Parkdale" swam across the Chemong Lake. Despite unfavorable water conditions, the ardour of the young marathoners was undampened. Stanley Redman cross the lake in thirty minutes. The others reached shore ten minutes later. The rest of the party in the boat, the Parkdalian" followed them across.

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Luffman and son, Scott, of Toronto, left on Saturday to spend the month of August in Eastern Ontario after a pleasant holiday with Mrs Pope at Chemong Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Strayan Leith and family are in Mrs. Brennan's cottage at Chemong Park.

FIREMEN CALLED TO FIRE IN SHOP

Lakefield Brigade Speedily Extinguishes Blazing Oil Stove.

(Examiner Correspondence)

LAKEFIELD, August 10.—At four o'clock on Wednesday afternoon the siren called out the fire brigade in response to a call from Mr. Holland's store. A coal oil stove in the hallway at the back of the shop had caught fire and was blazing merrily and threatening serious damage. The pumper was put in position and two lines were laid but in the few seconds required for this process the chemical section of the brigade had extinguished the blaze with comparatively small damage. The sensation roused the whole street and many citizens witnessed the prompt response and effective action of the brigade.

Toronto Market Dull With Changes Small

TORONTO, Aug. 10 (Canadian Press).—With the exception of a few of the leading issues, trading was dull and most changes in prices were of a fractional nature at the morning session of the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day. International Nickel was rather weak, opening at 98⅛, it slumped to 96¼ and finally closed at noon with a net gain of ⅜, selling at 97. Brazilian Light and Power, with a fairly good turnover, advanced 1⅛ to 54. Massey Harris was one point higher at 40, and Page Hersey ¾ at 92. Loblaw, with very light trading, experienced a net loss of two points at 80½, while Cosmos Imperial, and Canadian General Electric Preferre were each a half lower at 20 and 62 respectively. Walkers occupied the larger part of the morning's transactions of the curb section, closing with a gain of one at 51. British American Oil with little less activity was ½ lower at 37¼.

U. S. Government Report Causes Selling Of Wheat

WINNIPEG, Aug. 10 (Canadian Press).—Repercussions of the United States Government crop report, which was released yesterday, brought about a severe collapse of wheat prices on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange as panicky holders flooded the market with offerings in an effort to check their losses. Within an hour from the opening, prices had declined as much as 5½ cents.

Wheat Prices Crash When Surplus Shown

CHICAGO, Augus 10 (Canadian Press).—With official figures at hand showing a liberal surplus in domestic wheat production over 1927 instead of a shortage, wheat values took a decided tumble to-day. In the general rush of selling, prices early dropped 5¾ cents a bushel, wheat carrying all other grain as well sharply lower. Opening 3¾ cents to 5¾ cents off, wheat prices fluctuated violently, but later scored a material rally. Corn started 1⅞ cents to 3½ cents off, and afterward recovered somewhat. Oats held relatively firm.

Opening prices were: Wheat, September 108½, December 112½. Corn, September 92¼, December 72. Oats, September 37, December 48⅛.

Mine Trade Slackens As Prices Go Down

TORONTO, Aug. 10 (Canadian Press).—With prices continuing on the downward trend, the morning session of the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange was rather featureless and trading pressure eased off considerably. Amulet opened at 3.65 but at the close registered a gain of five to sell at 3.75. Crown Reserve was included in the upward movement experienced by a few issues, making a substantial increase of 5¼, closing at 40. Lake Shore, with minor trading, was twenty higher at 21.20, and Towagmac ten higher at 3.85.

Noranda, manifesting a variety of fluctuation, closed with a loss of 1.25 at 49.00. Sudbury Basin was off thirty at 6.35, Teck Hughes sixteen at 9.06, and Sherritt Gordon fifteen at 6.15.

(Unofficial Opinions on the Markets

MONTREAL, Aug. 9. — After opening strong yesterday, the local market sold off somewhat in the late trading, due to large measure to the easiness that prevailed in New York. The raising of call money rates to 7% and rumours that the New York Rediscount rate might be increased to 5½% brought about considerable selling in Wall Street with its resultant effect locally.

It is practically an impossibility to forecast day to day fluctuations, but the general opinion prevails that stocks picked up around the low points touched Monday and early Tuesday are bound to show the purchaser a nice profit if held for a few months.

In conversation with a prominent local broker, the writer was informed that the speculating public is now using considerable caution and discrimination in making commitments even at prevailing low levels. The majority are following closely the trend of the money situation, and it is this broker's opinion that as soon as credit conditions become normal, a wave of buying will ensue which will carry the good stocks to unprecedented high levels. When asked as to when, in his opinion, money as to when, in his opinion, that better things can be looked for some time this Fall.

There is an extensive following in Canada of Bethlehem Steel. The company had a poor first quarter, reporting a balance of only 94 cents a common share for that period. But earnings to $1.57 a share in the second quarter, and trade interests expect the gain to be progressive through the balance of the year. If this proves to be the case there is no reason why Bethlehem cannot pay a common dividend early in 1929. It has completed its construction program and is now able to devote profits to dividends. Management has already voiced its recognition of the fact that stockholders have had a long wait. Incidentally, well-informed people say that when Bethlehem does resume payments the rate will be at least $4 annually, and quite likely $5.00.

Canadian Bronze has not been in the limelight of late and the stock yesterday eased off 2 points to 88, a new low for some time. The writer has had it on good authority that the company is doing well, and in all likelihood, earnings this year will approximate about $8, a share on the common, as against dividend payment of $4. The stock is only a newcomer to the local board and therefore is not a favorite with the trading public. This should be rectified once the company illustrates its ability to maintain favorable earnings over a period of time.

Hollinger's break carried the stock down to virtually the same level as Dome Mines, and some look for the two stocks to run neck and neck for a while. There appears to be very steady demand for Dome around the $8. mark and those who know the property are distinctly optimistic minewise. As regards Hollinger there seems little doubt but that the backfilling situation shows no improvement. The present cableway which used to bring sand for backfilling is so over-taxed, it is stated, that a duplicate line is being strung right now. Gossip has it that Holly is unable to draw much ore from depth until old stopes are filled and consequently is having to scurry around nearer the surface for the time being.

Power Corporation's year ended June 30th, last, and it is understood that earnings on the common were equivalent to around 66. a share. The outlook for the current year is even more promising and shareholders can look forward with confidence to the future. Bulls on the stock maintain that the directors will place the common stock on a dividend basis in 1929 and the rate mentioned is $3.00.

Mining Briefs

A Special Service to The Examiner

TORONTO, Aug. 10.—Each day is adding to the dimensions of the high grade ore bodies at Noranda at the lower levels. The "B" body has been drifted on at the 400 foot level for 110 feet and continues to assay 12 to 15 per cent copper. Work is now nearly under this ore body at the 500 foot level. At 400feet this body averages in value of copper alone $33.60 to $42.00. It looks nearly as good as the "H" ore body at lewer levels.

Noranda's production in the first six months of 1928 was $2,500,000, one-quarter of which was gold. It is estimated that the second half of the year's output should be at least $3,500,000.

A length of 51 feet has been opened up in "H" ore body at the 600 foot horizon, assaying 14 per cent copper, with splendid gold values.

If the 71 foot wide ore body at the Malartic at 375 foot depth holds for a good length, the company will make a big tonnage. Such a width of ore averaging $8.00 per ton is something about which to write home. In this body a 14½ foot section is high grade running over $16.00 per ton. The face of the crosscut indicates a greater width. Malartic's northeast ore body has also improved in value at the 375 foot level, showing $5 to $6 per ton.

A diamond drilling outfit has arrived at the Potter Doal Camp and will be set up immediately. Five holes are to be put down from the 225 foot level.

Rich ore is said to have been encountered on the 1,500 foot level of Sylvanite.

According to reports Tough Oakes has struck rich ore with the diamond drill.

It is reported that Tough-Oakes-Burnside are getting $100,000 from the English directors for the purpose of carrying forward deep development work.

At the Eldorado property on the 500 foot level, 390 feet southeast values as high as $20.40 per ton are reported to have been encountered and on the northwest at 125 feet are reported to be drifting in $10 ore. About 20 feet of drifting per day is being done. The above information was given by officials to the Financial News Bureau.

Over 96% of Canada Dry Rights Subscribed

Canada Dry Ginger Ale Inc., announced that the purchase of all the outstanding capital stock of Seely's Son, Inc., has been consummated and possession taken by the Canada Dry organization. More than 96 per cent of the stock offered by Canada Dry in the form of rights to stockholders of record July 5 has been subscribed.

Rich Ore Reported on Castle-Trethewey

Castle-Trethewey Silver Mines, in Gowganda, is reported reliably to have encountered some exceptionally high grade ore. Further details of this find will probably be available in a day or so.

The earnings of the company last year were impaired by the low prices prevailing for bar silver, but improvement has been shown this year and this should have a favorable effect on profits. To-day bar silver is quoted in New York at 59¼ cents per ounce.

Amulet's Drilling Results

Amulet continues the work of test-drilling and checking former drilling ing favorable showings by diamond results. A drill is going down on No. 3 showing, which is claimed to be high in silver and zinc, while another drill is being sunk on No. 1 showing for checking purposes. Former results showed 4 per cent copper over a width of 7 feet. It is reported to-day that zinc is showing at a depth of 60 feet.

Reported Lost

Volcanic Oil and Gas Co., No. C.515, 97 shares in the name of G. A. Wanless.

Towagmac Find in Goudreau

Towagmac Exploration Co, is reported to have made a gold find in Goudreau. Beyond the fact that three feet of width runs $44, officials are making no statements until they secure some information. The find is understood to be free gold in quartz and was made on the Michael Boyle group on the Algoma Central during the course of Towagmac's prospecting program, which this season has taken them into several fields.

Twenty New Stores To Be Opened by Loblaw's

At a special general meeting in connection with the annual meeting held Wednesday, shareholders of Loblaw Groceterias Limited approved of the increase in the common capital stock, details of which were published on August 1st.

President T. B. Loblaw, in his remarks to the shareholders, contained in the printed report for the year ended May 31, 1928, stated the authorized common shares were 200,000 and since the recent offering of rights there are outstanding 191,650 common shares, leaving only 8,350 unissued shares. The sale of the shares realized $1,044,960, which was not quite enough to meet the cost of the new warehouse and its equipment, the balance being paid out of earnings. It is expected that at least twenty stores will be opened during the current fiscal year and the increasing business also necessitates the carrying of larger stocks of merchandise. The investment in connection with these matters should be provided for out of capital, and to provide the necessary capital the number of authorized common shares must be increased.

Sudbury.—Two crews totalling 25 men are engaged in surface exploratory work on the properties of the Sudbury Fairbank Mines, Limited, adjoining Sudbury Contact Mines, south of Vermillion Lake, in the Sudbury Basin. According to R. W. Norrington, who is in Sudbury this week, it is the intention to prospect the properties thoroughly before commencing the proposed diamond drill program.

News From the Mines

Through
Solloway, Mills & Company

Hollinger.

TORONTO, August 9. — Production to date together with the present ore reserves at Hollinger Consolidated, aggregate about $200,000,000. Having produced over $140,000,000, the company has paid about $68,000,000 in dividends, and has a surplus of around $12,000,000. Although Hollinger continues as a great gold mine the adverse conditions encountered during past year or two have introduced some element of speculation. In view of the recent statement made by Mr. Timmins it may be expected that Hollinger's costs instead of being reduced will be increased, due to extended exploration work. Possibilities of further important development in the deeper work are believed favorable.

Dome.

Although the output from Dome mines during the current year has been somewhat lower as compared with the first six months of 1927 present indications point to Dome adding about $400,000 cash to surplus after paying the regular $1 dividend per share together with writing off a considerable allowance for plant depreciation. Exploration continues in an effort to locate new ore, and in the meantime the company is doing every thing possible to locate new and promising properties.

Mohawk.

The Federal Mining and Smelting Company have taken several months' supplies to the Mohawk property on Four Mile Mountain, near New Hazelton, B. C. A tunnel is being driven on the 125 foot level, which it is expected, will cut their vein in a few weeks. In the upper tunnel the drift has been run for 195 feet on a 4½ ft. vein which is said to average for the full length 60 ounces of silver a ton, 16 per cent. lead and 14 per cent. zinc.

Fabyan.

Fabyan Petroleums Ltd., was listed on the Vancouver Stock Exchange yesterday. Capitalization $1,000,000, $1 par value. Shares issued 750,000.

Golconda.

The following telegram has been received from the Northwest Mines Investment Company, Spokane: — "Concentrate operation Golconda mill assaying 34 ounces silver, 60 per cent. lead, zinc concentrate 58 per cent. Recovery 97 per cent. lead, 85 per cent. zinc, establishing a remarkable record for milling efficiency."

Turner Valley.

Total production from Turner Valley for July was 44,806 barrels. Crude oil, 7612 barrels. Naptha 36,994 barrels. Production always decreases during the summer months, and in addition shrinkage is to some extent caused by some producing wells drilling deeper and not taking production.

PETES HAVE TO WIN TO STICK IN THE BATTLE

Must Grab Off Victory From League Leaders To-morrow.

VISITORS STRONG.

Belleville Nationals Have Won Eleven Straight Games.

There should be plenty of activity in to-morrow's Central Ontario League battle at James Stevenson Park, when Walter Gerow's Belleville Nationals play the Petes.

The home talent must grab this fixture to keep in the running, while the Belleville crew have won eleven straight games and expect to go right through the play-offs without any further defeats. The leaders were beaten here the morning of July 2nd, but since then have won eleven games in a row and are at the top of their form.

However, the Petes are full of fight and confident that the spurt commenced several weeks ago will carry them through to the play-offs. They know they have to beat their old rivals here to-morrow and are ready for the battle.

It will be called at 3 o'clock sharp and should be full of excitement and good baseball. The season's largest crowd will be on hand to see the tussle.

Premier Tanaka today declared that Japan would not necessarily oppose an agreement between Nanking and Mukden provided Japan's rights and interests in Manchuria were not endangered.

Shield Defends Ontario Wheat Pool

Hundreds Support Move

ANSWERS CRITICISM.

That there are two sides to every question became evident when The Examiner asked W. R. Shield for his opinion of the news despatch recently sent out from Toronto, and published in The Examiner, containing criticisms by John Kennedy, chairman of the Grain Section of the Toronto Board of Trade, of the operations of the wheat pool in Ontario last year. Mr. Shield has been in charge of the organization activities of the wheat pool in Peterborough County this year. It is largely due to his activity that nearly 300 farmers have joined the pool recently.

"The criticisms against the wheat pool by Mr. Kennedy," said Mr. Shield, "are typical of similar statements that have been broadcasted, particularly in Western Canada, ever since the pool movement started, by grain operators like Mr. Kennedy. Many grain dealers make their money out of speculating in the grain of the farmers. It is through their efforts that speculation in grain has run riot at times, causing the loss of millions of dollars to farmers. No wonder, therefore, that grain dealers are becoming alarmed as they see the pooling movement spreading through Ontario. They know that it will greatly reduce speculation in grain and that it will be more difficult for them to make money out of largely fictitious purchases and sales of the farmers' product. In Western Canada farmers have become so accustomed, and I might add the public as well, to statements by grain dealers knocking the pool movement that little or no attention is paid to them, as it has been discovered that practically all are written with selfish purposes in view and that they are on that account unreliable and one-sided."

Criticisms Examined.

When asked for some definite criticism of Mr. Kennedy's statements Mr. Shield replied that he expected they would be answererd in detail within a few days by the head office of the Grain Pool in Toronto. For this reason he thought that the public would be justified in delaying any conclusions they might otherwise reach until they have had an opportunity to read the official statement by the pool. "Just as a sample," said Mr. Shield, "of the misleading nature of Mr. Kennedy's statements I would point out that he intimates, without actually saying it, that farmers outside of the pool sold a large part of their grain at the comparatively high prices that prevailed during the past six months and that only a few sold at the low prices that he admits prevailed last fall when the price was down to $1.20 a bushel. We know that the price was lower than that at many centres. The fact is that probably 75 per cent. of the farmers, because they needed the cash, sold their grain last fall. One of the great advantages of the Wheat Pool is that it enables farmers who need the money in the fall to finance without sacrificing their wheat. It pays them a substantial initial payment and by keeping the grain off the market at that time helps to maintain prices, and later gives the Wheat Pool member the benefit of the average price over the whole season which as a rule is very much higher than they would receive if he sacrificed his grain by selling it in the fall.

Grading Is Benefit.

"Any one reading Mr. Kennedy's statement would conclude that pool members lost money through having their grain graded by the pool and sold according to grade. If this is the case, it is hard to understand why the Ontario and Dominion Gov-

Outflies Fast Train To Hand Keys To Wife

CHICAGO, Aug. 11.—Malcolm McCartney is a lawyer and a husband. Some husband, too. The action he performed to-day will probably be calendared in women's clubs.

Mr. McCartney put his wife and three small children on the fast Wolverine train for Boston and Cape Cod. There were seven pieces of luggage and the baby's feed bag. On the way back to his office he discovered that he was carrying the keys to all the luggage and the baby's food supply.

Calling up the air transport he learned that Kalamazoo was the first stop of the train. He engaged a plane. In 30 minutes he was at the flying field. Pilot Knoop was waiting warming up the motor. Loading himself and the keys in the plane they were off. In one hour and seventeen minutes they were in Kalamazoo.

At the field McCartney found a farmer's truck which carried him to the station just four minutes ahead of the train. Mrs. McCartney was bewildered. She had not missed the keys. McCartney fled back.

PREMIER OPENS PRINCE ALBERT NATIONAL PARK

FINE TRAIL NORTH.

Mr. King Urges Cultivation of Appreciation of Beauties of Environment.

PRINCE ALBERT NATIONAL PARK, Aug. 11.—(Canadian Press.)—Premier Mackenzie King opened another of Canada's park playgrounds here on Friday. Standing on the shore of Lake Waskeiu, where thousands of people had gathered in the summer sunshine, the Prime Minister dedicated the 1,377 square miles of forest, lake and river, which is Prince Albert National Park. From the city of Prince Albert, the trail to the park wound 72 miles northward. On it a procession of motor cars moved swiftly to country where once canoe was the great vehicle of summer travel.

"In the building of Canadian national life and the moulding of our national character, it is of the utmost importance that we should cultivate appreciation of all that is beautiful in our physical environment," said Premier King in his speech opening the park. "In a young country so amply endowed with material resources there is always the danger that we may turn to the gods of the market place. To be aware of the danger is a long step toward the application of a remedy. It is indeed a cause for deep satisfaction that Canada in her youth has learned the wisdom of conservation."

SHOCK CAUSED DEATH.

Lindsay Jury Finds Thomas Choate Died of Heart Failure.

LINDSAY, August 11.—The coroner's jury empanelled to inquire into the death of Thomas Choate of Woodville, a former Peterborough County resident, found on Thursday night that the deceased had met his death from heart failure caused from the shock from being hit with the fender of a car driven by Edward Dummon of Toronto. No evidence of negligence on the part of Mr. Dumman was found. Mr. Choate died on Monday last after being hit by the car when he was opening a gate.

this city, is alive and uninjured to-day is due largely to his presence of mind. Brown's automobile was struck by a Wabash freight engine on a crossing the other night and was carried some distance on the front of the locomotive.

Realizing that he would probably be crushed to death if he remained in the automobile, young Brown crawled out of the driver's seat and leaped on the front of the locomotive. When the train was stopped and the crew rushed around to the front of the engine, they found young Brown calmly seated on the cowcatcher while his wrecked car was dragging on the side.

DRAYTON ISSUES WARRANTS

FLYING IN ONTARIO IS DANGEROUS

Small Lakes and Rocks Create Uncertain Air Conditions.

BUMPS AND POCKETS.

B. A. Moore Tells How Aviation Accidents Often Happen.

TORONTO, Aug. 11.—Ontario is one of the most dangerous parts of the settled portion of North American for enterprises in aviation, according to B. A. Moore, of the Ontario Flying Club and recently of Camp Borden and the Canadian Air Service of Peterborough. In an interview with the Examiner, Mr. Moore said that from all reports the topographical formation of the country around Gravenhurst, where one of the most serious crashes in the history of aviation in Ontario occurred Thursday was typical of those conditions which create unusual flying hazards in Ontario.

"When you have a country broken up with small lakes and bare rock surfaces" Mr. Moore said, "you immediately have uncertain air conditions. Instead of the even condition which prevail, for example over the prairie country, there are 'bumps' and 'pockets' created by the changing land topography.

The sun's rays striking the hard rock are reflected into the air, making it more buoyant. A 'bump' is thus created. On the other hand, the suns' rays are absorbed by the small lakes and a "pocket" results over the water surfaces. When a plane is caught with one wing over a "bump" and the other over a "pocket" the plane is very likely to go into a tail spin. Many accidents are caused this way. In some cases the controls will become jammed when the plane goes into the spin, and the pilot is rendered powerless to control his machine."

NO MORE LOST GOLF BALLS?

Golf balls that figuratively call "Yoo-hoo, here I am!" when they get lost in the "rough" are promised by a New York inventor. They depend on the player's sense of smell, hearing, and sight to help him discover them.

One plan is to coat the balls with the fireworks composition commonly called "spit devil." When the club strikes the ball the explosions begin, says Popular Science Monthly. They continue for some time after the ball has come to rest, so that the golfer can hear the sputtering of his ball in the grass.

Another suggestion is the application of a solution of phosporous and carbon bisulphide. In the grass, the ball would have a glow that would attract attention. Various aromatic liquids may be used to soak the balls so when they get lost golfers can find them by sniffing the air near the ball's supposed location.

Forty Charges Made Against the Exporters Along Windsor Border

Huge Stocks of Liquor Held By Police Awaiting Disposition On Court Order Following Trial On Illegal Possession Charge.

DRAYTON TELLS DIFFICULTIES OF BOARD IN PROTECTING PROVINCE'S INTERESTS

Conflicting Interests of Dominion and Province Cause Trouble For Liquor Controllers—Further Developments Are Hinted By Sir Henry in Statement.

(Special to The Examiner)

TORONTO, Aug. 11.—Large stocks of liquor are held up at Windsor following yesterday's raid on export docks by Provincial police on instruction from the Ontario Liquor Control Board. Police court prosecutions will follow and final disposition of the immense quantities seized awaits the result of those proceedings. The owners of the liquor will face forty charges according to the Attorney General.

Sir Henry Drayton in a statement issued last night explained the action taken and the law on which it is based. His statement reads: "Since the original seizures made of the Nathanson dock and the C.P.R. dock at Windsor the Ontario Provincial police, assisted by accountants, have proceeded with their investigations into the liquor business as carried on in Windsor and in its neighborhood.

"These investigations have gone as far now as is practicable. The results indicate, in the opinion of the board, that the action taken was well founded. As a result, the police have been requested to issue summonses against docks carrying on ostensibly the business of exporting intoxicating liquors from Windsor and adjacent territory into the United States. These summonses will charge the having of liquor in an illegal place.

"The mere prosecutions and the seizures of liquor by themselves, however do not carry this question to a satisfactory conclusion. Provincial laws may well again be broken under different conditions under which it would be extremely difficult for the board to obtain the necessary evidence which it now has in connection with past practices.

"The real practical difficulty results from the fact that the movement of liquor into Ontario is made under Dominion authority and the different operations at the border are justified as necessary for the export business.

"The Province has the undoubted right to do everything that is can to secure the observance of its laws. On the other hand, export trade is International trade. International trade, controlled as it is by customs and export laws, is, I admit, a question entirely for the Dominion. Under Dominion Legislation, before any export can be made by water, a clearance has to be granted. The master of the boat has to give certain particulars, and these clearances are provided for by Dominion Legislation, R.S.C. chapter 42, section 91 to 99. The act is definite and specific, and is administered by the customs officials of the Dominion, over whom the Province naturally has no control. The shipper of the goods outward-bound is obliged to make out the appropriate B. 13 form which is checked by customs officials at the port of exit. Section 96 deals with the obligations incurred by shippers who make the entry for export. It also provides for the taking of a bond in the case of wines spirituous and fermented malt liquors in a sum double the import duties to prevent re-importation. Section 96 corresponds to section 10 of the previous revision, 1906."

SIGN ON ROOF GUIDES PLANES

Airmen Will Be Able To Get Their Bearings Easily Here.

NINE-FOOT LETTERS.

Airplanes should find no trouble in getting their bearings when they pass over Peterborough. There is painted in huge letters on the roof of the Imperial Oil Companl's roof at Park and Romaine streets the word "Peterboro" which makes a sign sixty feet in length. On the other side of the roof is an arrow the entire length of the roof, pointing north. Airplanes should find it easy to find theire direction when they locate this arrow and to know where they are when the spot the name of the city.

A. Blade of the Imperial Oil Company, told The Examiner that the company is placing such signs on all the largest buildings it possesses in all the big centres across the country for the benefit of aviators to facilitate them in getting their location. The names of the cities are placed in as large letters as possible and an arrow pointing due north is painted on the roofs.

Peterborough is one of the first cities in Canada to have this work done. The signs are painted by two men of the Imperial Oil Company's outdoor advertising staff, who are going from coast to coast doing this work.

There is also stored in each warehouse, wherever located, a barrel of airplane spirits which will be held for the convenience of aviators in the case of a forced landing for the lack of fuel. The first call on this emergency ration for Peterborough came the other day when a rush call from Stoney Lake came for such fuel which was needed for Colonel Charles Ackerman's new moth plane, which arrived recently.

The painting work in Peterborough was completed as far as the name of the city is concerned a few days ago, but the arrow is still to be finished.

"On the whole," says the report, "condition of the crops throughout Canada is excellent."

Around the City

Early last evening the fire department received a pulmotor call sent in by the police station for the drowning at Bethany. Chief Gimblett believed it too far to send a car of the fire department, but Dr. Hamilton of Bethany, who was in the city took the apparatus and a man to the came from Bethany for grappling irons and these were sent from the scene of the accident. Later a call fire department. The body was located with these irons about 10.30 p.m.

ARMED POSSE IN PURSUIT OF CONVICTS

GUARD SLAIN

Orders Given Searchers to Shoot to Kill If Necessary.

HOUSTON, Tex., Aug. 11.—Scores of armed men trailed 35 bloodhounds through marshes adjoining Richmond, 20 miles south of here, early to-day in pursuit of five convicts who bolted the Imperial State Prison Farm No. 1, late yesterday, after killing a guard and wounding two deputies in an ensuing gun battle.

A "shoot to kill" order if the convicts showed signs of fight was given by R. J. Flanagan, manager of the three prison farms in this section. Some of the men were known to be armed with guns taken from Henry Ward, guard, who was killed, and Jim Jeeter, guard who was disarmed and slightly wounded.

Eight convicts, who had been cultivating cotton, joined the break, killing Henry Ward, prison sergeant in charge of bloodhounds. One was recaptured shortly afterward near the farm, while later two were retaken following a running gun fight with officers, in which two deputies were wounded, one perhaps fatally. Both the latter convicts were wounded.

Tom Davis, Richmond deputy, was shot through one lung with buckshot charge from a shot gun, while Frank T. Bell, also of Richmond, was wounded in the shoulder.

The break began when the convicts pulled Jim Jeeter, their guard, off his horse and disarmed him. Jeeter was ordered to remount and flee for his life, but when he did, R. H. Tucker, a convict, who was later recaptured, fired a charge of buckshot at him. According to prison officials.

Guard Escapes With Life.

A few of the shot grazed Jeeter's arm, but he escaped and spread the alarm. Ward, who was guarding nearby, galloped to Jeeter's aid, and was killed by a buckshot charge. A coroner's inquest revealed the officer had been shot through the neck with a revolver after he fell from his horse.

The party divided, and four of the men commandeered a passing automobile, nine miles away, continuing toward Richmond. Just outside the town they were met by Davis, Bell and another deputy.

Using the driver and occupants of the commandeered car as a shield, the convicts pretended surrender, and then fired on the officers, who were outlined in the headlights of two cars.

Two Convicts Wounded.

The officers returned the fire, and two convicts, one shot through the shoulder, the other through the wrist, surrendered, while their mates fled across the field.

Prison officials said the convicts still at large, who had divided into two parties, included Fred Burkett, serving ten years, and Johnny Collins, serving two years.

R. B. Carter, serving 99 years, and Alvin Ireland, serving 20 years, were announced as the two convicts wounded and captured.

J. R. Jordan, manager of the Texas prison system, ordered an immediate investigation. The break was described as the worst in the history of the penitentiary farm system in south Texas.

Two Oarsmen Start to Row 500 Miles

BOSTON, Mass., August 11. — Canadian Press. — Veterans of many a long row, Dr. T. H. Richards, Harvard Athletic Association surgeon, and Lothrop Withington, attorney, and former Harvard football and crew star, pulled away from the union boat club float this morning on a 500 mile trip to St. John, N.B.

Although the trip may be the longest of its kind on record, neither of the men contemplate any record breaking performances. They intend to take things easy if they should feel like doing so and may not even reach St. John, they said.

CONWAY, Ark., Aug. 11 (A.P.). —Miss Vera Key, resident nurse at Hendrix College, has ample reason to remember gratefully the rest of her life one man whom she nursed. That man, the late Tom P. Morgan, nationally known humorist, bequeathed her $25,000, including his home at Rogers, Ark.

Five years ago Miss Kay entered the Morgan home as nurse to the humorist, who was then in ill health. She brought him back to strength and then followed her duties elsewhere. Later she was called to Hendrix College to assume charge of the student hospital.

Mr. Morgan did not forget his cheerful nurse, and when his will was probated recently, it was disclosed that Miss Kay was named as chief of the eight beneficiaries among whom the humorist's estate was divided.

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., August 11. Canadian Press. — A new pathway, at the end of which may stand the White House, was opened to-day to Herbert Hoover.

From the far corners of the nation, men and women of great and small degree came to bid him God speed upon the journey routed for him by the Republican party.

The setting for the official notification of his nomination was laid in a vast bowl erected long after he had completed his own school days at this picturesque university.

The official message itself was brought by Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire, permanent chairman of the convention, which nominated him at Kansas City two months ago, and chairman of the notification committee made up of representatives of every state in the union.

In his speech the nominee was expected to outline his views on what he regards as the major issues of the campaign and interpret the chief planks of the party, those dealing with prohibition enforcement and farm relief.

Work Is Going On Rapidly On Citizens' War Memorial.

G. H. Thompson has received word that the bronze figures for the War Memorial are now at the station and that as soon as the granite work is finished the figures will be placed in position.

Those of the city intending sending in a subscription would oblige the committee to a great extent if the subscriptions were mailed in at once.

Rescuers' Efforts Fail

BODY RECOVERED.

(Special to The Examiner.)

BETHANY, August 11. — Heroic endeavors by Miss Dorothy Sisson and Vincent Jackson failed last night to save the life of Nelson Whiteside, 27, who stepped out of his depth into deep water in McKinnon's pond, 3 miles from Bethany, where he had been swimming. Miss Sisson was so near to rescuing the unfortunate young man that she had actually grasped the strap of his bathing suit, but his frantic struggles twisted him from her grasp.

The young man had been sitting on the bank of the pond and had just entered the water when the tragedy occurred. The point where he entered the water is about three feet deep, but the bottom of the pool slopes off to a depth of about sixteen feet a few yards from the shore. He walked out and turned to face the shore, when as far as can be ascertained, he overbalanced. Miss Sisson and Jackson succeeded in getting a grip on his bathing suit despite his violent struggles. Jackson, still a youth in his early teens, cautioned him repeatedly, saying: "Don't struggle! Don't struggle!" but without avail. His struggles carried the trio out into the deeper water farther from the shore where he pulled Miss Sisson and Jackson beneath the surface. They succeeded after a struggle in breaking his grip. Miss Sisson in particular having a hard time to evade him as he grasped her around but he did not come to the surface.

There was no lack of willing helpers, who although handicapped by the lack of boats and grappling irons, quickly improvised some and strove to bring the body to the surface.

Swimming suits were requisitioned and Bruce Ryley, Sid Armstrong, Walter Price, H. Hutchinson and J. Turnbull entered the water. An old punt was brought into use and the rescuers operated from it, experiencing considerable difficulty owing to the boat sinking under them every few minutes, leaving them to swim for shore.

Dr. Hamilton of Bethany, was in Peterborough, when he was notified of the accident. He immediately proceeded to the fire station, and left for Bethany accompanied by fireman Frank Degan, the pulmotor, and a set of grappling irons. They arrived at the scene at 9.10, a little over an hour from the time the tragedy occurred.

Frank Jeimson and J. Turnbull dragged for over an hour and finally located the body of the victim about where he had been last seen.

The body was taken to shore where Jemison and Turnbull applied artificial respiration for nearly an hour, although from the first it was thought that there was no hope of reviving the victim. Dr. Young of Millbrook, finally pronounced Whiteside dead. Dr. H. A. Turner investigated later and gave permission for burial.

The pond where the tragedy occurred is a favorite rendezvous for the young people of the district, and this was the first drowning that had ever taken place in it. It is comparatively shallow except for a stretch out towards the centre, and is an ideal place for swimming.

The young man resided in the village with his parents and was employed as night telephone operator with the Manvers telephone system.

The funeral will be held on Sunday afternoon at two o'clock.

Porcupine; Man; Woman in Car Strange Chase in Warsaw

A chase by night occurred recently in Warsaw. The chase was between a man and a porcupine, followed by the man's wife in a car. Through the yard and over fields the man chased the prickly animal while the wife was not far behind in the car following the same route. It must have been a queer sight—porcupine, man, car and wife—all chasing through fields at midnight, one after the other. However the poor animal was soon caught and dispatched. The man was lucky as he received no quills from the little porcupine.

Dr. H. E. McDonald, of California was not so lucky. He received forty nine or fifty quills in his legs while after such an animal. Scientests said that the little things did not throw their quills like arrows, but Dr. McDonald knows differently. While on a professional call up a canyon in California he saw something on four legs huddled in a heap alongside the highway.

"Ah," remarked the doctor, "a coon, a most interesting animal and rare in California. I will catch him." Now the doctor knows that scientists may be wrong and that porcupines do shoot quills like arrows. "They do," was his comment, as he removed the fiftieth quill.

So the Warsaw party was lucky, or Warsaw porcupines have lost their marksmanship.

Toronto Horse Buyer Is Fined At Millbrook

Crowded Animals In Car

Duncan Logie, of Toronto, To Pay $25.00 and Costs of Court.

THREE DIE FROM INJURIES.

Horses Had Been Shipped To Cavan With Attendant.

(By Staff Reporter)

MILLBROOK, Aug. 11.—For the crowding of 16 brood mares and 16 foals into one railway car on a hot July night, without the proper attendant, and which resulted in the deaths of three of the animals; Duncan Logie of Toronto was found guilty here in police court yesterday by Magistrate Floyd and fined $25.00 and costs. The costs amounted to $37.20.

The information was laid by R. C. Smith, Inspector of the local Humane Society and J. A. O'Brien conducted the case for the plaintiff. Duncan Logie is a horse buyer who imports horses from Saskatchewan and sells them on the Ontario market. This particular carload was brought from near Maple Creek, Saskatchewan, early in July and unloaded in Toronto. On the evening of July 18 the horses were re-loaded and dispatched by C.P.R. to Cavan station where they arrived in the early hours of the morning of the 19th. The station agent when he came on duty in the morning could not find anyone that was accompanying the horses and on inspecting the car found one of the colts being trampled.

He immediately got in touch with his authorities and was ordered to get a veterinary surgeon. Dr. Ellis was called and found that one of the small colts had died of a broken neck, another had died after it had been unloaded and a brood mare had died when it was about to be taken off the car.

Could Not Trust Employee

The defendant did not have a lawyer and failed to submit any other evidence but his own. Mr. O'Brien called the defendant as the first witness. He told of loading the horses in Toronto about 8.30 on July 18. The coldts which were from one month to two months old were partitioned off from their mothers in the car. Mr. Logie claimed he was unable to go with the horses himself and from past experience he could not trust an employee to give the horses the proper care.

"The 32 I put in the car that night came all the way from Saskatchewan in the same car. I intended to sell them the following Wednesday but on account of the condition of the animals I had to postpone the sale. The mares were thin and the grey colt is lame."

Witness also told the court that when the horses were loaded in Toronto they were in first class condition except for a little swelling on the hocks. He estimated the average weight of the horses to be from 1,100 to 1,300 pounds and he claimed that 32 was not too many for the car.

Wellington Card the station agent at Cavan was the second witness called. He sadi that when he inspected the car he found one colt down and after getting into conversation with the company he was ordered to get a veterinary surgeon, so he called Dr. Ellis of Millbrook.

Chief Witness

Dr. Ellis proved to be the star witness for the prosecution as he

NEW RECORDS SET IN SWIM MEETS

Competition For Remaining Olympic Championships Limited to Elimination Heats.

AMSTERDAM, Holland, Aug. 11.—(Canadian Press).—Competition for the remaining Olympic swimming championships was limited yesterday to elimination and semi-final trial heats to determine finalists in the men's and women's 100 metre free style, the women's 100 metres backstroke, and the woman's high diving.

Among the most remarkable performances was the speed of Miss King of Great Britain in winning her heat in the semi-final of the back stroke event in 1:21 flat. This bettered the new Olympic record which had been set up by Miss Marie Braun of Holland who stroked the distance in 1.21 3-5.

Johnny Weissmuller of the United States, in his favorite event, the 100 metres free style, swam to a new Olympic record in winning his semi-final heat in 58 3-5 seconds. Zorilla, the Argentine who won the 400 metres in spectacular style will be a contender.

Miss McDowell of Great Britain easily won her heat in the women's free style, and will be opposed in the final by Miss Russel of South Africa, two girls from the United States, one from Germany and one from Denmark.

Mrs. Betty Pinkston of Detroit led the qualifiers in the high diving with 32.6 points.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Aug. 11.—The first "Household Judging Competition," under the auspices of the Department of Agriculture, was held here in the Town Hall on Thursday, August 9, forty-three girls from East and West Durham taking part in the contest.

Miss Hopkins, of Lindsay, was the instructuress of the coaching classes held at Cavan and other points in recent weeks, the heads under which judging took place being:

Class A, Nutrition: (1) School Lunches, (2) Family Menus).

(C) Clothing, (1) Dress Parade, (2) Country Girls' Wardrobe.

The competition began at 9 a.m., and was continued after the dinner hour, closing about 4 o'clock. The judges were: Miss Edith Elliott, of Toronto, who had the first section; Miss Powell, of Whitby, who had Class C, and Miss Allely, of Lindsay, who judged under the headings of Class B. The interest shown by the girls, and the large class of entrants for this the initial effort of its kind in this county, were very gratifying features in connection with the event.

The four girls who acted as models for the judging in the Dress Parade were: Jean Stinson, Anna Hawthorne, Kathleen Donnelly and Ruth Thorndyke. Four school lunches were placed on the table for judging under this head.

Four large, colored charts were used depicting the essentials for as many separate wardrobes, and four others showing living room interiors, and these the girls were to use their judgment in placing in correct order of merit; while family menus, and interiors of farm kitchens, were passed on individual sheets of paper for decision in placing.

The Winners.

The list of those with highest standing was read by J. Y. Kellough, Agricultural Representative for Durham, after the judges had given their reasons for placing the charts, etc., in the order which was announced as correct. The three girls who had the highest number of points to their credit will compose the Durham team in the Girls' Judging Contest at the Canadian National Exhibition, the names being Helen Lewis of Welcome, 549 points out of a possible 600; Ada Allen of Bowmanville, 545 points, and Helen McLean, of Mount Pleasant, 530 points. The 'spares' are Ruth McKessock, of Hampton, and Myrtle Hooton of Mount Pleasant, each of whom made 526 points. Marian Allen of Newcastle, had the highest score of all, 567 points, but because of being on the C.N.E. team last year, was not eligible for it again this season. Farmers Expect to Garner Biggest Crop in History of the Dominion

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., Aug. 11.—(Canadian Press).—Granted favorable weather until harvesting is well under way, probably in two weeks, Canadian farmers will garner the biggest crop in the history of the Dominion This is the opinion explained by E. A. Ursell, statistician to the Board of Grain Commissioners, in his monthly report on crop movement.

There is still time for damage to develop, the report adds, but the present outlook is regarded as extremently favourable.

Mr. Ursell notes with satisfaction the comparatively small carry-over, contrasted with the situation a month ago. His summary for the wheat movement for the crop year just ended, follows:—

Shipments from Fort William-Port Arthur, Vancouver, Prince Rupert, Duluth-Superior, 347,458,370 bushels; stocks in store: Western grain inspection division, 35,061,250; Middle West grain inspection division, 43,500,000 bushels; seed requirements, 41,000,000; in transit on July 1, 3,173,350; deduct stocks in store and in transit July 31, 1927, 30,618,000; net total of 1927 wheat crop marketed, 439,574,870.

The report continues: "As a result of a very substantial export demand from European importers, the movement of Canadian wheat was heavier in July than in any other month of the year. Stocks were moved out of Western inspection division so rapidly that the total remaining in store in elevators or in transit was little more than 38,224,000 bushels as compared with 30,618,000 bushels a year ago at this time.

"In view of the fact that the net out-turn of the 1927 wheat crop exceeded the final estimate by 50,000,000 bushels, the comparatively small carry-over is an extremely satisfactory condition and not only makes way for new crop arrivals but inspires confidence as to the possibility of marketing an even larger crop."

SUNDAY SCHOOL PICNIC SUCCESS

Old and Young People From St. Andrew's Church Enjoy Outing.

MANY CONTESTS.

(Examiner Staff Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, August 11. — There was only one fly in the ointment yesterday afternoon when the people of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church and Sunday School migrated to Percy Boom for their annual outing. The main trouble was to get there but once safely landed on the grounds there was every assurance of a good time. Old and young members of the church united harmoniously for a most enjoyable afternoon both in the water and on the shore.

During the afternoon the younger picnicers ran races and staged contests that made the older generation more or less envious. The clown band was right on deck to salute the winners of each event as they breasted the tape. About the only thing that was not in order was the sign on the clown band cars. The letters were in their proper sequence but were hind side foremast. There were no prizes for aquatic sports. These were taken as a form of entertainment rather than a contest.

The supper hour was a modern version of the feeding of the multitude. When the mothers and wives opened their baskets the members of the various families and groups were astounded that one small basket could carry such a store of tempting food.

Sundown saw the end of a very enjoyable afternoon and the drivers of the various cars spent considerable time locating the scattered members of their parties before starting on their return journey to town.

MISSION CIRCLE HEARS OF ANGOLA

Rev. Joseph Wilks Tells Girls of Missionary Work There.

(Examiner Correspondence)

MILLBROOK, August 11.—Mr. V. C. Lambert, Princess street, was hostess for the August meeting of the Golden Links Mission Circle, which was held on Tuesday evening with over twenty in attendance.

The president, Miss Jean L. Burnham, was in the chair, and the scriptural lesson was taken up under the heading, 'How New Testament Women Helped," the various passages being read by Misses Elsie Spence, Frances and Beatrice Jones, Martha and Marian Earle, Sadie Rowland, and Wilma Fallis.

A reading, "A Call to Prayer," was given by Miss Flossie McMahon, and Rev. Joseph Wilks gave the address of the evening, continuing his series of talks on the work of the United Church mission in the province of Angora, Portugese West Africa. Of this section of Africa, where Mr. Wilks spent four years in active missionary work, the Portugese have been in control since before Columbus discovered America; it has an area of 484,000 square miles and a population of 4,119,000.

Some of the difficulties which the missionary work, the Portuguese have dealt with in detail, and the amazing manner in which the work has grown, as evidenced by more than 5,000 converts gathering to welcome Rev. Dr. Endicott, Moderator of the United Church of Canada, on his recent visit to this section of the vast missionary field territory, gratefully noted. Dr. Endicott baptized 106 converts on the occasion mentioned.

Mrs. Lambert, assisted by some of the girls, served ice-cream and cake at the conclusion of the meeting, when a social time was enjoyed.

Linen Shower Given.

A linen shower for Miss Kathleen Fowler was held by about thirty of her friends at the home of Miss Ella Grandy, Anne street, immediately prior to her marriage which took place on Monday of this week, music and other entertainment preceding the feature of the evening.

Throlgh a clever arrangement, while games were being played, the guest of honor was seated in a prominent position, when two girl friends, Misses Marguerite Lang and Mary Cathcart (Peterborough), carried in a large basket, piled high with parcels, and daintily trimmed with pink and white in lovers' knots design, and placed it before her.

The surprise of the occasion for the bride-to-be, added to the pleasure felt by the other guests as the boxes and parcels were unwrapped and the many good wishes on the accompanying card were read. Miss Fowler expressed her thanks suitably and briefly and shortly afterward a dainty lunch was served, Miss Grandy being assisted in this by Miss Mary Pitt and Mrs. L. H. Morton, who were associated with her in planning and carrying out the entire evening's proceedings.

The gifts received in the 'shower' included fine table linens, serviettes, beautifully-embroidered centre pieces, towels, tea cloths, and many other

THRESHING STARTS IN DISTRICT SOON

(Examiner Correspondence)

HASTINGS, August 11.—The sound of the threshing machines will soon be heard again. The Messrs. Lamoy are repairing their machine to commence threshing next week if possible throughout this district. Some wheat has been cut and drawn in before the recent rains while the greater part of it is still out in the stooks and from reports obtained from different prominent farmers the condition of the grain varies. Some of the wheat growing in the sheaves while one lot of spring barley is growing in the head, while yet uncut.

Others report their grain, which is still in the stooks, to be in fair condition, showing no signs of growth. A great deal of hay has been harvested, while the amount which it yet out is practically spoiled. The last few days the farmers have been doing their utmost to garner their crops. The potatoes are of good size while some are showing signs of rot in the lower grounds.

GENE TUNNEY FIRST PUGILIST TO BREAK INTO N.Y. "400"

NEW YORK, August 11. — Gene Tunney will be the first pugilist to break into the New York social register.

A man connected with the organization which dictates who shall be included in the register and who must be excluded, was quoted as saying there was no doubt that Tunney would be included after his marriage to Mary Josephine Lauder.

He added that Tunney not only will be acceptable because of his marriage, but because of his other attainmens, including his ring prowess and conduct while champion, as well.

These words revived memories of some who have failed to get into the register: Irving Berlin, for instance, was excluded after his marriage with Ellin MacKay. Berlin to-day said he was glad Tunney would have better luck than he had.

Herbert M. Harriman, a brother of Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, was dropped from the register when he married Sally Hunter, a nuns.

Steamers Collide In Fog

Freighters Were Loaded With Wheat For European Points —Damage Unknown.

INQUIRY IS STARTED.

Shipping in St. Lawrence River Temporarily Held Up By Accident.

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 11.—(Canadian Press.)— Shipping in the St. Lawrence river was temporarily held up for several hours yesterday when three down-bound, grain-laden freighters met with accidents near Varennes. Last night two of the steamers had been released but the third was still hard aground on soft bottion Passenger liner sailings from Montreal were delayed from 11 o'clock in the morning until 3 p.m. as a precautionary measure. Contrary to early reports, it was determined last night that the channal had at no time been blocked by the mishaps to the freighters but that liner sailings had been delayed purely as a measure of caution.

The three freighters consernad in the accidents were the Illingworth, Innerton and Alderbaran. The first two named went ashore and the cable of the third was fouled in such a manner that the ship could not get away. Tugs were sent to the assistance of the three vessels and the Illingworth was released and continued on her voyage at 5.30 p.m. The Alderbaran was released at the same time and returned to Longue Pointe for repairs to her anchor equipment. The Innerton, aground on Isle Ste. Therese, was reported in no danger.

Fog Given As Cause.

Fog was given as the primary cause of the accidents. The Alderbaran had anchored and while she was swinging in the current the Illingworth approached and also anchored in close proximity to the first ship and swinging with the current fouled the cable of the Alderbaran. The Illingworth ran ashore and several plates of No. 7 hold were dented, but no leaks were reported. The Innerton went aground in the mud about a mile and a half above the place where the others were detained. No explanation has been given for this grounding. It is possible that the Innerton may have to be lightered before being refloated.

GREAT SERMONS
BY GREAT MEN

Our Secret Faults

By REV. ALFRED BRIGHT, B.A., B.D.,
Minister of Riverdale Presbyterian Church, Toronto, Ontario.

"Cleanse me from secret sins."—Psalm 19:12.

This prayer of the Psalmist is one that is frequently made throughout the psalms. "Purge me with hyssop and I shall be clean; wash me, and I shall be whiter than the snow. Create in me a clean heart, O God." This is the prayer of every true man in the most elevated moods of his life. In the thoughtful hours of life, every true man prays the psalmist's prayer that he might have a pure heart, free from every secret sin.

"One thing I of the Lord desire,
For all my way hath miry been;
Be it by water or by fire,
O make me clean!"

The secret faults referred to by the psalmist are those of which he himself is unconscious. They are the faults which others may or may not see in him but which are always before God. We see them in others. We see these secret faults in our friends and in the members of the family circle. Often they appear to us as cynical, selfish deceitful or unforgiving. They are totally ignorant that they possess these faults. It is so easy to see the sins of other folks, while the growth of our secret faults are unobserved. Our hidden fault has lived with us in the same home, in the same place of toil, until we are living such a life as God knows we never meant to live, and tampering with conscience and trifling with purity. The most deadly perils of my heart creep upon me. "Grey hairs are here and there upon him, yet he knoweth not."

Rev. Albert Bright, B.A., B.D.

Thus it is logical to conclude that if we can see faults in neighbors, in friends, and in our nearest relatives of which they are unconscious that we too must have faults which we do not suspect. These are the secret faults from which the Psalmist prays to be delivered. Secret faults of which he is not conscious but God knows about them and his friends note them. May our secret sins and not our conscious ones be our chief concern and then we shall pray with the Psalmist that God will cleanse us from every fault.

Let me mention some evil effects which secret faults have upon life and character.

(I) Our Secret Faults Weaken Our Ability to Make a Decision for the Right.

Where is there a better illustration of how secret faults leave us powerless to make a decision for the right than in the case of Pilate, the man who was responsible for the crucifixion of Jesus. We read the narrative about our Lord's death and we see how anxious Pilate was to liberate Jesus. Pilate sends Jesus to Herod; then he offers Barabbas as a substitute for the condemned Prisoner; next he enters into controversy with the priests: then in a dramatic way he calls for a basin of water so that in the presence of the assembled multitude he might wash his hands as a protestation of his innocence: as a final appeal to the pity of the mob he has Jesus publicly scourged so that the sight of Jesus, pale and physically exhausted, might excite the pity of the Jews. Why could not Pilate follow his better judgment and that of his wife? All the power of the greatest earthly power of that day was invested in his hands. He was the Roman Governor. The answer is not far to seek. His own past secret conduct had forged chains about him and crippled him in a decision for the right. He had done things in his own private life which would not bear the light of public scrutiny. The Jewish leaders knew this and threatened exposure to Roman Emperor and that meant deposition, exile, or possibly death. Thus Pilate stood before the mob clamoring for the blood of Jesus the very picture of irresolution and moral weakness, owing to the secret sins of his life. Against his own better judgment he handed Jesus over to the enemy. Pilate's secret faults so weakened him morally that he found it doubly hard to make a right decision.

It is always true that a clean heart gives the courage to make a great decision for the right. Lorenzo the magnificent and Savonarola, the prophet of Florence, had had many a dispute with reference to the affairs of the city of Florence. They had quarreled frequently. Savonarola would not bow to Lorenzo and Lorenzo would not submit to the demands of Savonarola. But Lorenzo, in his dying hour, sent for the faithful prophet of Florence, saying: "He was the only priest who ever dared to differ with me." Here was a leader of men, because his heart was pure, never feared the threats of his enemies and never yielded to the pressure of circumstances. It is not the man who has scarred body and soul with the deeds of evil who can be counted upon to do the right when a principle of righteousness is at stake. It is rather one like Sir Galaha I whose heart is pure:

"My good blade carves the casques of men,
My tough lance thrusteth sure,
My strength is as the strength of ten
Because my heart is pure."

(II) Our Secret Faults Weaken Our Ability to Resist a Great Temptation.

What makes this prayer of the Psalmist so urgent is the fact that our secret sins are preparing us for our open falls. Our great sins are not momentary overthrows. A man cherishes some hidden sham of which his dearest friends are blissfully ignorant; finally, one day like a thunderbolt from a clear sky the secret is out and the loved ones are shocked beyond expression. Do not imagine this man was carried off his feet by some gust of passion or sudden impulse. For years he had been secretly gloating over the unclean thing, finding a secret pleasure in it, rehearsing the unholy thing, and one day under the pressure of temptation he unexpectedly gives way. The soil was silently prepared for this rank weed. So our sudden moral collapse, when character was forfeited, was not as sudden as we first thought.

Builders of houses in tropical countries are often plagued by the pest of white ants, who work invisibly and secretly. The presence of these insects is not suspected. The owner sitting in his home imagines his house as strong as the day he built it. He suddenly discovers the white ants have been eating out the very heart of the timbers and the whole superstructure collapses about his head. He thought himself secure but all the time he was housed in an empty shell. No one had heard or seen or even detected the presence of the enemy. The secret ravages stand revealed in some moment of testing, when a windstorm sweeps over the house. If that is a picture of my sinful heart, then let me cry from the depths of my being with the Psalmist:

"Cleanse me from secret faults, O God."

We have often admired a stalwart tree, the tree was covered with luxuriant foliage giving every evidence of vigorous life. One day to our amazement we saw this stately tree leveled to the ground by some wind-storm. Upon examination we discovered that some insect or some flaw had found its way to the heart of the tree, and for years had been gnawing at its vitals sapping the very life of this tree. When some sudden onslaught of the wind blew upon the tree, it fell. The storm revealed the strength and the weakness of the tree. The day is coming far sooner than we think, when the secret carelessness or the buried sin shall not be a secret any longer. In that day of testing our naked weakness will stand revealed. A sudden temptation, a change of circumstances, a crisis, or a call from eternity, and then all the sappings of principle we smothered in the common days will be written on our brow. "Samson arose and shook himself as on former occasions, and he wished not that his strength was gone from him; but 'the Philistines are upon the, Samson'," and he discovered that his secret sins had robbed him of the ability to resist a great temptation.

(III) The Sins That Bring Men to Open Shame Were Once Upon a Time Secret Faults.

There is no wiser prayer in the Bible that the one of our meditation, "Cleanse thou me from secret faults." For all the open exposure of sin, which cover us with confusion and shame, was once upon a time the secret faults of our sinful hearts. Our habitual thoughts reveal themselves in daily conduct. Sooner or later the things which a man cherishes in his heart appear in his life. Our desires and thoughts write themselves on our life as the tippler's habits declare themselves in his flushed face and bleary eyes or as the saint's prayers refine the face. Change a man's heart and you will begin to change his face.

There is a sense in which there is really no such a thing as a secret fault. Sin is always coming to the surface. The hidden conflicts of the heart which we imagine so unobserved become written in character and finally clothe us as a garment. Our speech betrays us. Our look is a tell-tale look. The hidden sins of my heart to-day will be the visible robe I shall wear to-morrow.

Let us remember this when we are alone with our hidden shame or secret lust. A man who has lived purely for many years will come to find purity on every hand. When a man becomes cynical and sneering of sacred things he is only registering openly the secret condition of his heart. A pure heart means a pure life, a foul heart means a foul life. The late Minister of Barony parish, Glasgow, Norman MacLeod, tells how once in Skye he watched an eagle rise with a calm sweep of its mighty wings and proud in its strength. All of a sudden in mid-air, it paused and fluttered and fell with a thud on the hillside. He went to see the cause of the eagle's sudden fall and found the dead bird with a torn and mangled weasel in its talons and with the weasel's tiny teeth fast in the noble bird's heart. The eagle had picked up this creature and soared away to its nest with it and had forgotten the nature of this creeping creature. The weasel had wriggled its way through the talons of the eagle and had fastened on its heart. The bird discovered its danger too late for its grip was the grip of death. Think of these two creatures. One is an ugly, creeping beast of the field. The other is the king of birds, sweeping the air as on the wings of some strong angel. Beware of secret faults for they will not lie quiet in our hand, but will cling and will be always working their way to our very heart. We may rise high but if there is a secret sin rising with us, it will bring us very low. "Be sure your sin will find you out."

(IV) Our Secret Faults Become the Fixed Habits of Life.

People who live near a great cataract such as Niagara never hear the sound of the rushing waters. Men who live near a railway junction are not startled by the screeching sounds of the locomotive in the night.

We possibly remember the act which once disturbed us now gives us no feeling of shame because it has become a habit, and habit often conceals our faults from us. We let slip our good-night prayer to Christ one night. It disturbed us. The next night it troubled us less. Then when we need to pray, the power is gone. Our secret fault is now a prayerless habit. The big sins scare us, and if we sin by them we feel sorely ashamed; but the little sins we never notice or feel. They fray our heart until its love wears thin, and God's merciful kindness, and our parents' love, and the trust of our friends, fall away and are forgotten. So the sins which once shocked us and brought the blush of shame to our cheeks have with the passing years become our secret faults.

All this teaches us to pray with the Psalmist "cleanse thou me from secret faults." We must ask God for His Holy Spirit to aid us in the painful work of exploring the dark passages and the dusty corners of our heart to see what destructive ravages secret sin is working there. Our hearts may be stained by secret faults, but Jesus makes the foulest clean. Far away in the Arctic Seas is a solitary grave on the brow of a hill covered with snow. There lies one of the crew of the "Alert," the ship in which Sir George Nares explored the Arctic regions. A large stone covers the dead, and on a copper tablet at the head the words are engraved: "Wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow." How fitting were the words inscribed on that grave amid the eternal snows! But the prayer is one for all to use; and who ever shall offer it from the heart shall receive the gracious promise, "I will; be thou clean."

"Yea, only as the heart is clean
May larger vision yet be mine,
For mirrored in its depths are seen
The things divine."

STORIES FOR LITTLE PEOPLE

SAUL, OR THE KING.
"(By M.B.)"

I. Sam. ix; x. 1, 17 to end.

There was a young man whose father had some fields, and sheep, and cows, and asses. One day three asses were lost; so the young man went to look for them among the hills and fields. The young man's name was Saul. He took a servant with him and he looked for the asses a long while, but he could not find them. At last Saul came near the city where Samuel lived.

The servant said to Saul, 'I have heard that there is a man in that city who is a prophet; all he says comes true. Let us ask him where the asses are.' Then Saul said to his servant, 'Come, let us go.' So Saul and the servant went into the city, and as they went along they met Samuel. Saul and the servant had never seen Samuel before: so they did not know who he was. Samuel was an old man, and his hair was long, and he used to wear a cloak.

Saul spoke to this old man, and said, 'Can you tell me where the prophet's house is?'

Samuel answered, 'I am the prophet.' Did Samuel know who Saul was? Yes, he did: for though Samuel had never seen him before, God has told Samuel that he would meet a man just at that time, who was to be the king of Israel. Samuel knew who Saul was, and he knew that Saul wanted to ask him where the asses were.

Before Saul had told him that he had lost some asses, Samuel said, 'The asses that you lost three days ago are found.' And Samuel told Saul, that he had a great deal to say to him, and that he must come home with him that evening, and that he would let him go away the next morning.

So Saul and the servant went to Samuel's house, and Samuel took Saul to the top of his house, and talked to him alone: but I do not know what he said to him.

The next morning they all got up very early, as soon as it was light, and Samuel walked with Saul and the servant through the city. When they were come to the outside of the city, Samuel said to Saul, 'Bid the servant pass on before.' So the servant passed on before; and Samuel and Saul stood still together quite alone.

Then Samuel took a bottle of oil, that he had brought with him, and poured it on Saul's head, and said to him, 'God had chosen thee to be king over Israel.'

Why did Samuel pour the oil upon Saul's head? It was a sign that he was to be the king. Pouring oil upon a person is called 'anointing.'

After Samuel had anointed Saul, they parted from each other. Saul went on his way, and returned to his friends: but he did not tell any one that he was to be king of Israel.

Soon afterwards Samuel called all the Israelites together, to tell them who was to be the king.

Samuel first told them it was very wicked not to like to have God for their king, and then he showed them the man who was to be the king. When the people saw Saul they were very much pleased, for he was taller than any of the Israelites; no one else reacher higher than his shoulder. The Israelites wished to have a king that would be very grand when he went out to battle.

The Israelites shouted when they saw him, and cried out, 'God save the king!'

When the people had seen the king they went home to their houses.

You will soon hear what sort of a king Saul was, whether he loved God, or whether he did not.

Did the Israelites deserve to have a good king? No. How ungratefully they had behaved to God, who had been so kind to them! How ungrateful they were to Samuel, who had been their judge! But Samuel was not angry with them, he was only sorry that they were wicked.

Are foolish Israel weary grown
Of their great king above—
Of him who chose them for his own,
And bless'd them with his love?
Oh, where can they another find,
So wise, so powerful, or so kind?

But foolish Israel longs to be Like heathen nations round;
To have a king whom they can see,
With earthly splendour crown'd;
Who in the battle shall appear,
And fill their enemies with fear.

Child.
Oh, may I never weary grow
Of those sweet pleasant ways,
In which I have been taught to go,
Ev'n since my infant days!
And may I never wish to be Like those who care not, Lord, for thee.

—Some people seem to think that horse sense consists of being able to say "neigh, neigh."

A PRAYER

A Prayer for Humility

Almighty God, Who resistest the proud, and givest grace to the humble; Mercifully grant that we may follow the example of the great humility of Thy blessed Son, Who did humble Himself to take upon Him our flesh and to suffer death upon the Cross, and now liveth and reigneth with Thee and the Holy Ghost, ever one God, world without end. Amen.

Confession Of Sin

"(By Robert C. Chapman)"

Soon as the word is uttered, "I have sinned," that very moment flies the seraph. (Isa. vi). God "is faithful and just to forgive our sins." When we confess them in the name of Jesus, justice, having been satisfied by the blood of Christ, is swift to pardon.

God cannot seal a pardon in the soul without confession. (Ps. xxxii, 3, 5).

As we practise confession, so will our happiness and joy; for all true confession is followed by the spirit of praise.

If in coming to God we complain against ourselves, let us thank Him that we have a heart to complain.

The Spirit of God never heals save as He wounds, and if those seeking Christ have not peace, it is because there is still in them some remnant of fancied goodness. Tell out the whole heart to God, and the conscience will be cleansed by confessing sin over the head of the scapegoat.

There is a counterfeit Confession of Sin, let us beware of this counterfeit. We may be sure the sorrow is not deep if the sin be not subdued.

If so be we are ready in the confession of our faults, and have faith in the blood of sprinkling, those very faults will serve our growth in grace: they will be like manure to the field or garden.

God kills to make alive. He smites men's consciences to make them judge themselves. The first great step when a man desires to be saved is unqualified self-condemnation. Sin unconfessed is imputed, but sin confessed is blotted out by God. The sinner, coming in the name of Jesus, has a title to life: the ground of that title is the very name and justice of God.

We should confess to God every inward evil as soon as it is discovered to us: and if we have trespassed against our brother, to Him also we should speedily make confession. By so doing we shall keep up the communion of love with God and with each other.

It was the imputation of our sins to Christ that hid from Him the face of God the Father. It is our unconfessed disobedience that brings a cloud between Christ and us.

When on entering a house I see a child in disgrace for disobedience, although I tenderly consider the erring child, I especially feel with the grieved, sorrowing parent. When we sin, and are chastened of God, we should rather consider how the heart of our heavenly Father has by us been grieved, than be taken up with the smart of our stripes by His rod of correction.

If we practise the true Confession of Sin, and so cease to grieve the Holy Spirit of God, we shall have the testimony of the Spirit that the ear, thumb, and toe, are tipped with blood and oil.

Keep no secrets from God. Confession of Sin to Him in all detail will greatly help us in the subduing of it.

The sinful thought of the heart is, in the sight of God, the act: evils in life always proceed from evils nourished in the heart.

Do we think that God is pleased with shallow confessions of deep sin? Compare Job xi:4 with xlii:2-6.

After we have been able, by the grace of God, to subdue any besetting sin, and it seems to be dead, let us still be confessing to God that it is within us. By thus doing we shall show that we are not living on the victory but on God Himself. Indwelling sin will be thus regarded by the eye of our Father rather as our sickness than our fault.

All unconfessed sin has power over us; but all confessed sin God helps us to subdue: He will never blame us for sins confessed.

The speediest confession is the easiest and the best.

ADDITION

People often tell boys that if they seek the kingdom of God, everything else is going to be subtracted from them. They tell them that they are going to become gloomy, miserable, and will lose everything that makes a boy's life worth living—that they will have to stop baseball and story-books, and become little old men, and spend all their time going to meetings and in singing hymns. Now, that is not true. Christ never said anything like that. Christ says we are to "Seek first the kingdom of God," and everything else worth having is to be added unto us.

Come now, and let us reason together, saith the Lord: though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool.—Is. i, 18.

For as many as are of the works of the law are under the curse: for it is written, Cursed is every one that continueth not in all things which are written in the book of the law to do them —Gal. iii, 10.

Saturday Sermonette

Psalm xxxi:15: "My times are in Thy hand."

"My times are in Thy hand." The Lord God knoweth the truth,
Whether my times be those of mercy, or times of ruth.
Sickness, and sorrow, and suffering, all in Thy hand do lie,
Yet though the rod is deserved, He useth it sparingly.
Joy, and gladness, and comfort, sunshine and tender rain,
Till the wilted flowers that bloom in our lives take heart and bloom again.
The times when we meet with others for our mutual harm or good,
The times when, with face averted, by God alone understood.
The times when, with face averted, by God alone understood.
The times when the poignant beauty of nature pierces the heart,
When the night, and the stars, and the silence, make thee draw to God apart.
The times of love, and marriage and birth, and the ordained ways of life,
Till the time when God's great Death angel calls the soul to peace from strife.

FIRE HAZARDS.

Although a police court charge against a local citizen was withdrawn because he had complied with the orders of the Fire Chief in the meantime and the Provincial Deputy Fire Marshal was satisfied to drop the case, the incident will serve to indicate that orders from the Fire Chief and from the Fire Marshal's Department must be obeyed.

In the public interest nothing else could be justified.

It is the duty of the fire chief, backed by the authority of the Fire Marshal to see that conditions that are dangerous from a fire standpoint are eliminated and it is equally the duty of the community to co-operate with the officials in the removal of fire hazards.

There is nothing personal in the carrying out of these duties, the officials must deal with conditions as they find them and whenever a threat of danger to the public safety is indicated there can be no other choice than to order the elimination of the danger.

A CANADIAN SETBACK.

The defeat of Joe Wright and Jack Guest, the Toronto oarsmen in the doubles event at the Olympic games, by Costello and McIlvaine, the United States representatives, has caused a pang of regret throughout Canada.

It was confidently hoped that the Toronto pair, in spite of the heavy task Wright has had to undertake in competing both in the singles and doubles would be able to prove their superiority in the finals but fate has decided otherwise and nothing remains for Canadians to do but accept the result philosophically and extend congratulations to the successful Americans who have triumphed over a pair of crack oarsmen.

Undoubtedly a mistake was made in calling upon Joe Wright for too much, but that error in judgment should not be allowed to conceal the fact that the new doubles champions have given a consistently good performance throughout the whole competition and that their victory in the finals was clean cut and convincing.

The Canadian pair have brought the name of their home land prominently to the fore even although they were not successful in the final test.

SHOULD SET THE PACE.

Local property owners have been warned during the past week to rid their property of noxious weeds, a very excellent piece of advice and one that should be generally observed.

At the same time the thought arises that the city authorities should set the pace in this weed-elimination campaign by removing weeds from public places.

The strip of land along the Goose Pond, for example, which apparently is a sort of no man's land, at present contains a beautiful crop of many kinds of weeds, none of them beautiful and probably none of them useful.

While technically this disreputable looking section may not be City property its area is being increased by use as a civic dumping ground and there would be no action for trespass on anybody's part were the Board of Works Department to send in a weed-cutting expedition.

There are other places that require attention but that particular locality is an eye sore at present and might be placed first on the list for treatment.

THE AEROPLANE TRAGEDY.

A government investigation of the aeroplane accident at Beaumaris, Muskoka, in which two people were killed and five others were injured has been ordered and rightly so.

It is clearly desirable that there should be a rigid inquiry as to whether all conditions looking to the safety of the passengers were complied with.

At the same time the accident is not to be regarded as a proof that flying is unsafe any more than the death toll on the highways is conclusive evidence that motoring cannot be made safe.

Aeroplane fatalities are more spectacular, more sensational than automobile accidents yet there is not much reason in the face of daily motor killings to declare that one form of transportation is any more dangerous than the other.

The human factor enters into both.

Given a plane in good mechanical condition and a careful experienced pilot the chance of accident is reduced to a minimum just as given a car in good condition and a steady and reliable driver the accident hazard is small.

Recklessness, whether in the air or on the highway, invites disaster.

UNWISE, AT LEAST.

"Over-capitalization," says the radical Western Producer, "is simply a refined form of piracy and none too refined at that." It proceeds further to say:

"The business of selling shares valued far in excess of the realizable assets of the company in which the shares are sold, has been and is being carried on in England, the United States and Canada, without the slightest molestation, and yet it is as fundamentally dishonest as the practise of tampering with scales and measures, and the industry of adulterating pure products."

Of course, we can not agree that the capitalization of a company should be confined to the value of its realizable assets. One has to consider what are the realizable assets of a company only when it is to be put on the auction block. Then they will usually be found to be small. But a company that has a good trade, good management, and an established reputation has in these factors assets that cannot be measured accurately by any yardstick, and those who buy or sell companies have a right to make their own judicious estimates as to the value of these assets. They also have a right to pay a price that discounts the future of a company to a certain degree if they find it advisable to do so.

Nevertheless, with these reservations, we feel that there is a point for our financiers to observe in the current criticism of over-capitalization, a point quite distinct from the interests of investors who are often asked to hazard too much in order that promoters may profit. It is simply the possible attitude of Parliament, the press and the public toward any requests for tariff adjustments or other governmental concessions that the company may in the future consider necessary. Once the public gets the idea that the concession desired is needed only because of the company's desire to pay dividends on an excessive capitalization the chances of getting what is wanted will be slim indeed.

Our financiers will show themselves as short-sighted if they proceed to capitalize corporations on a basis of expected tariff changes, increase in price of products, lowering of service or other benefits to be obtained at the expense of the consumer.—Financial Post.

CONTRADICTORY CRITICS.

Some of the perplexities and difficulties of the immigration problem are being illustrated by events.

Confronted by the task of making provision for workless coal miners, the British Government proposes to send 10,000 of them to the Canadian harvest fields in the hope that they will find permanent employment here when the crop has been garnered. The announcement to this effect has been immediately followed by protests from various quarters in this country. Tom Moore, president of the Dominion Trades and Labor Congress, calls it a dangerous experiment. "These men," he says, "cannot earn enough in the brief period to justify them coming here. If they remain they must be a charge during the winter on various municipalities, or displace domestic labor, making it a charge." The views expressed by Mr. Moore have been embodied in a letter to Premier King on behalf of the Dominion Trades and Labor Council, and a statement of the Dominion Government's position is asked.

From the Prairie Provinces come demands that there shall be no recurrence of the situation of two years ago, when the Western cities were besieged by British harvesters after the crop had been handled. These representations have been the subject of telephone communications between the Canadian Immigration Department and the Overseas Settlement Board in Great Britain with the object of providing financial guarantees that overseas harvesters who do not find work in Canada after the crop season shall be returned to their homes.

And now comes a distinguished visitor, Rt. Hon. J. Ramsay MacDonald, former Labor Premier of Great Britain, whose first words on reaching Canada are those of reproach.

"The trouble with Canada is that she wants nothing but the cream. Her attitude is that she is willing to leave the Mother Country with the derelicts, the old people, the diseased; she wants nothing but the best. And that is liable to leave families in Britain much more likely to be a public charge there than they would be in a country where their chances are greater.

"The principle of selective immigration, as Canada calls it, is very good. The idea of sifting may be fine, but it seems to me that your sieve is somewhat small of mesh."

So there you are. The official spokesmen of organized labor do not want British harvesters at all. The Governments of the Prairie Provinces demand guarantees that they shall be carried back to Great Britain after the harvest. The leader of the British Labor party thinks Canada is altogether too strict in her tests of British immigrants, and Bishop Lloyd of Saskatchewan cries aloud that there is a conspiracy to keep Britons out of the country. Is it any wonder that the Canadian Immigration Department has a hard time in such a welter of conflicting criticism, and that the parliamentary committee of inquiry, composed of members of all parties, could furnish no solution, or at any rate could bring forward no scheme as an alternative to the methods employed by the department now and for years past?—London Advertiser.

OUT OF TURN.

Ontario's liquor control policy may not be ideal. There are those who say it is an improvement upon anything the other Provinces have to offer and those who believe that a composite plan, embracing the best features of the control policies of all the Provinces, should be considered. But we know that what we have is better than what Chicago has and, if it wasn't amusing, the excoriation Canada has received at the hands of the W.C.T.U., in "Big Bill" Thompson's bailiwick, would provoke us to indignation. The W.C.T.U. members, individually and as an organization, have many splendid achievements to their credit. If the temperance union in the United States wants to bring about the defeat of Governor Al Smith, candidate for President, believing that his election would give their cause a setback, that is all right with us. But Canadians should insist that when they refer to Canada they stick to facts. It is reported that one of the bulletins circulated by the national office of the union in Chicago sets forth that "in Canada, where the liquor men promised the sale of booze without the saloon, liquor laws are growing more liberal and the saloon is coming back in various forms, in clubs, restaurants and wine rooms. We venture to say there is less illegal saloon selling in the whole of Ontario on any given day than there is in the city of Chicago. There is no legal saloon trade at All the old saloon evils are reappearing in Canada." all in Ontario, and the suspicion persists that the saloon business in Chicago and other big cities of the United States, if it is not being legalized, is at least enjoying a certain measure of official protection. Hon. Charles McCrea, acting Attorney-General of Ontario, is to be commended for his quick defense of the provincial policy, and he is expressing public sentiment when he says there is no intention on the part of Canadians or any Canadian Government to have the saloon returned. The saloon and all its evils, as far as Canada is concerned, are relegated to the past, Mr. McCrea lets it be known. It is to be expected that our liquor control legislation will be amended from time to time. And each of the changes, we may take it for granted, will be designed to tighten, rather than loosen, the liquor regulations.—Hamilton Spectator.

A Thought

HE WILL CATCH ON

How prone people are to give advice even before it is asked for.

If these free counselors would only recall that unasked for advice is always unwelcome—that giving generously a lot of advice is like pouring soup in a sink—if more people would remember this, fewer people would wait before telling us what to do.

Unwelcome, unwanted advice goes in at one ear and out at the opening of the other acoustic organ, and lends about as much light as a firefly with his wings still.

If you really feel that you want to advise a friend, just tactfully tell that friend of some of your own foolish mistakes—some of your own blunders—blunders that just fit his case, and he will catch on.

A sudden turn in the market puts some store in a position to offer you goods of the highest repute and quality at a bargain price. Read the advertisements and save money.

FROM AN OLD BANDSMAN

To the Editor:

Some two or three years ago one of our prominent business men of this city suggested the organization of a citizens' band. I have been looking forward to see this development take place, and like many other musical friends of mine, we have failed up to now to see where any gestion. Myself for one, and I am sure, hundreds of others who are notice was ever taken of this suglovers of good music would gladly like to see this citizens' band materialize. I am sure if the city fathers and all business men of this progressive city of Peterborough would only get behind it, I feel sure, without a doubt, it would go with a "bang."

We have some of the finest musicians in Ontario and the nucleus of a splendid band. We also have the talent for leaders for such a band, and I feel sure, if given the support and the backing, would soon develop into one of the finest bands in Ontario. Then, again, what better advertisement could Peterborough have in a band of this calibre, especially if they went in for contesting. As I say, it is not for the want of musicians or instruments, so I think the suggestion is a very good one.

I intend to write further articles on this subject in a later issue, but in the meantime, I should like to know what happened to the suggested organization of a citizens' band?

Our God and Father, we give Thee thanks, that there is One who knows us and cares, and daily calls us to higher and better things. We humbly confess our short-comings and pray for Thy forgiveness wherein we have hesitated in the face of duty, or have been half-hearted in the pursuit of our tasks, or wilful in our own conceits. We thank Thee for another day in which we may make amends for our failures and meet the responsibilities of the new hour with fresh inspiration and courage. We pray for the blessing of Thy presence through all the tangled pathway of years to come. Help us to commit ourselves afresh to Thy love and leading in the home, in our business, in our church and in all those relations which involve the happiness and well-being of others as well as the peace of our own hearts. Give us the courage to take our stand on the side of integrity and justice, of mercy and sacrifice in all of the righteous struggles of our day. May we never settle down to tasks below our abilities and be satisfied. Thou hast called us to greater things; may we not disappoint Thee, but press toward the mark of highest calling. We offer this petition in Jesus' name. Amen.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 11 (Canadian Press).—The foreign demand for Canadian grain here yesterday was extremely quiet. The domestic trade in Canadian Western oats was also of a limited character and prices were reduced one cent per bushel.

A moderate amount of business was done in all lines of millfeed with local buyers and prices were firm. Standard grades of rolled oats were steady under a fair demand.

Little business was done in Spring and Winter wheat flour, but values were firmly maintained.

The demand for all grades of eggs continued active and prices ruled firm. The receipts were 1,775 cases.

Further weakness developed in the cheese market and prices were reduced another fraction, which was attributed to the limited demand of late. The receipts were 12,470 boxes.

A feature of the butter trade was the easier feeling that developed and values were marked down a fraction of a cent. The receipts were 2,207 packages.

The market for imported beans continued active and firm. Hand-picked lots for immediate delivery were quoted at $4.10 per bushel, ex-store, and car lots at $3.90 per bushel. New crop October and November qualities were quoted at $2.40 to $2.50 per bushel for car lots to arrive, ex-track.

Ernest Vierkoetter, champion swimmer of the world at five miles, is best known in Canada as winner of the Canadian National Exhibition Marathon last summer where he won against 350 other contestants. The first thing he did after winning this event was to ask for a Buckingham Cigarette. His trophy is on exhibition at the King Edward Hotel in Toronto. Among his many other achievements, Vierkoetter swam the English Channel from France to England in 13.45 hours.

CHAPTER XXXVIII

BUDDY'S STORY

"Gaunt!" he said again, incredulously. He laughed.

"That won't do, Buddy," he told her. "You'll have to find a better story than that. Jennifer never met Gaunt in her life till they were introduced a few weeks ago at the Bohemian Club. I was there, and I know."

Buddy started up, her cheeks flaming, her eyes wild. "That's what she would like you to believe," she almost screamed at him. "That's where she's been so clever with us all, lying and pretending to be so good and so different to the rest of us. But it's true, I tell you. She stayed there with Nicholas Gaunt; Mrs. Jilly knows all about it. We let her go on talking purposely, and she said . . ."

"You little devil!" he said savagely. "If you think I believe one word . . ."

"Ask her, then, ask her!" she spat at him.

"I wouldn't insult her," Chesney said. He flung her from him so that she nearly fell, and she began to sob, tearless sobs of sheer anger and hysteria.

"It's true, it's true! And you know it is, that's why you daren't ask her. Nicholas never has cared for his wife, and there was trouble between them last year, I know. And the trouble was about Jennifer. I always hated her, I always knew she wasn't what she pretended to be. She stayed in Cornwall with Nicholas as his wife, and last night he was with her at her flat—half the night about—I saw them."

Chesney strode forward, his eyes blazing, his fists clenched. "My God, if you say another word I'll throw you downstairs," he said hoarsely.

Buddy cowered away.

Her hat had fallen off and her yellow hair was ruffled like a child's. But she still persisted obstinately: "It's true, it's true. Ask Edith Gaunt. I've told her, and she believes me. She knows it's true."

"That's a lie. You've not seen Gaunt's wife. She's in Paris."

Buddy laughed.

"She isn't. I wired and stopped her going. I saw her last night and told her what I knew, and she's going to see Jennifer this morning."

"You little hell cat!"

Buddy flopped down on the floor, sobbing. She dragged herself closer to him and tried to take his hand.

"I love you better than she ever did," she wailed. "You've broken my heart. I've always been straight with you, anyway, Malcolm."

"Straight! You! You don't know the meaning of the word."

He passed her as if she had not existed and flung open the door. Although he had sworn he did not believe it his heart was shaken with fear. Supposing it were true! He took up his hat and called to Symon: "I'm going out."

He was gone with a bang of the door.

In the street he hailed the first taxicab he saw and gave Jennifer's address. The blood was hammering in his temples and he found it difficult to collect his thoughts.

Buddy was mad, of course, mad with jealousy. She was a lying little devil, and he would pay her out for this. Then all at once he remembered the night when he and Jennifer dined at the Gaunts' house. He remembered Jennifer's agitation and her plea of a headache. Was it the truth or had there been some other reason for her distress? He clenched his hands. Supposing Buddy's story was true after all!

He let the window down and shouted to the driver: "Can't you go more quickly?"

It seemed an endless distance to Jennifer's flat. When they reached it he flung the man some silver and, without waiting for the change, raced upstairs.

It was quite early, not more than half-past eleven, and Jennifer's little daily maid stared as she opened the door.

"Is Miss Fry in?"

"Oh, yes, sir."

Chesney passed her and went into the sitting-room. Jennifer had heard his voice and came forward to meet him.

"Malcolm!" Then she fell back a step, her face paling. She had been so sure of this man, and she knew directly she saw him that he was going to fail her too.

He shut the door and came forward uncompromisingly.

"Buddy Vasher has just been to my rooms."

Jennifer's eyes wavered. "Yes."

"You knew she was back in London?"

"I know it now."

"Well . . ." He was breathing so hard that words were difficult. "She's just been to my flat," he said again.

"Yes."

He caught her suddenly by the arms. "Is it true, Jennifer, is it true?"

She tried to free herself, for his grasp hurt. "You're so rough, Malcolm, you hurt me."

"I'm sorry." But he did not free her; he only asked again: "Is it true, what she says . . . about you and Gaunt?"

"How do I know unless you tell me what she says?"

His face crimsoned. "You're splitting straws. You know what she said, that you and Gaunt have known one another for years. That you . . . you . . . oh, my God! . . . that you and he . . ." He almost broke down.

Jennifer stood very still; she felt cold from head to foot, not with fear, but with a dreadful sense of helplessness, of being caught in a trap.

And presently Chesney went on, almost sobbing; "Try and forgive me if it's not true . . . but she was so sure. The little devil, I'll make her suffer if she's lied to me, but she said . . . that Gaunt was here last night, half the night . . . that she saw him . . ." and now he almost shook her in his passionate grief. "Is it true, Jennifer . . . is it true?"

Jennifer spoke then, very coldly. "You hurt me. Please let me go."

When he released her she went over to the window and stood looking out at the sunshine with unseeing eyes.

The rain of last night had cleared away and the sky was cloudless. Behind her she heard Chesney's stumbling voice again.

"I think so much of you. I've always put you miles above me . . . I've always believed myself unworthy of you. If this is true what Buddy says . . ." She heard him catch his voice. "But it can't be, you never knew Gaunt till that night at the Club, did you, Jennifer? It's just Buddy's infernal jealousy . . . she . . ." Jennifer turned round.

"I knew Nicholas Gaunt six years ago," she said very quietly. "I'll tell you the whole truth, if you like, only of course you won't believe me."

Chesney laughed.

"Won't believe you! That's what Buddy said. It's what all you women say when you're found out."

"I'm not found out. There's nothing to find out about me, nothing that I'm ashamed of, at least."

"Women have no shame," Chesney answered savagely.

Jennifer's face quivered. "You can't love me very much if you are willing to believe the first word you hear against me," she said painfully.

For a moment he wavered, then he moved farther from her.

"Well, go on."

Jennifer's eyes blazed. "If that is how you are going to speak to me, you can leave my flat at once and never come back," she said passionately.

He stood irresolute, his face working, then he caught her hand. "Forgive me. I don't know what I am saying. But tell me, just tell me the truth. I swear I'll believe you, whatever it is."

LYRICS OF LIFE

THE DAY TOO FAST

It often seems to me the sun
Lingers a little at the last,
As though it thought, when day was done,
Today it lived the day too fast.
Perhaps a little flow'r it passed
That asked for warmth, and gave it none,
Perhaps a ray it might have cast
Through bars to cheer some lonely one

So we shall linger at the end,
And, if our hearts regret the day,
'Twill not be wealth we wished to spend
Nor wisdom that we wished to say.
But, oh, the sadness to grow gray
And only borrow, never lend,
To go ourselves the evening way
And know today we failed a friend.

UNCLE WIGGILY

By HOWARD R. GARIS

Today's Bedtime Story

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE FENCE HOLE.

(Copyright, 1928, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Uncle Wiggily, do you want to see something funny?" asked Jackie Bow Wow, the puppy dog boy, one day.

"Is it very funny, Jackie?" asked the rabbit gentleman.

"Oh, very!" barked Peetie, who was with Jackie, sort of holding his paws behind his back. "You should hear us laugh!"

"Ah, yes, but will it be funny enough to make me laugh?" Mr. Longears wanted to know.

Jackie and Peetie looked at each other sort of queer like, and then Peetie barked:

"Well, you come and look, Uncle Wiggily and if you laugh it will be funny."

"Where do you want me to come?" the rabbit gentleman asked.

"Just up to this hole in the fence," answered Jackie, leading the rabbit toward it. Uncle Wiggily noticed that Peetie slipped around behind the fence, one end of which was near the hole toward which Jackie was leading Mr. Longears.

"Do you see that fence hole, Uncle Wiggily?" asked Jackie.

"Yes, I see it," the bunny replied. "It is a hole where a knot has fallen out. I have often seen knot holes in fences."

"Well, there's something funny back of this hole," went on Jackie. "Put your eye close and look in and see what it is."

"I hope it is very funny," Uncle Wiggily said. "For I need a good laugh to cheer me up." He put his eye close to the knot hole in the fence and then, all of a sudden, Peetie, who was behind the fence, squirted water from a rubber ball right in Uncle Wiggily's eye!

"Wowch! Ow! Wow!" howled the rabbit gentleman dancing around on one paw. "Oh, I got an eye full of water! Oh, zowie!"

"Ha! Ha!" laughed Jackie in front of the fence.

"Do you think that was funny?" asked Uncle Wiggily as he wiped the water out of his eye. "Do you?"

"It was funny for us," answered Jackie.

"It was funny when you yelled and danced around," said Peetie.

"Well, if you say it was funny then it must be so," spoke the rabbit. "I must remember where this fence hole is when I want to laugh." Though he had done no laughing as yet.

But as it was a hot day and as he hadn't gotten very wet, Uncle Wiggily didn't much mind the joke that had been played on him. And after that Jackie and Peetie ran off to play tag with Billie Wagtail, the goat, leaving the squirty rubber ball on the ground.

"I'll fill this ball with water and squirt it in the eye of any of my friends who may come along to look through the fence hole," said Uncle Wiggily. Soon he was ready to play his trick.

But instead of any of the rabbit's friends coming along, the first one to pass was the Bob Cat. This bad chap was just going to bite Uncle Wiggily when the rabbit said:

"Wait a minute! Do you want to see something funny?"

"Yes," growled the Bob Cat, "I do."

"Put your eye close to this fence hole," said the rabbit. And when the Bob Cat had done this, Uncle Wiggily squeezed the rubber ball. Only, instead of aiming it to send the stream of water through the hole and into the Bob Cat's eye, Mr. Longears turned the ball the wrong way and——

"Swish!" all the water went in the bunny's face.

"Ha! Ha!" laughed the Bob Cat, doubling up with laughter. "That's certainly funny! Thank you for letting me look at you douse yourself! Ha! Ha!"

"Hey! Wait a minute! That isn't what I wanted to show you!" cried the rabbit. "Put your eye to the fence hole again. This will be funnier than at first!" And when the Bob Cat's eye was at the hole, Mr. Longears pressed the ball again, but now there was no water left in it.

"Well, I don't see anything funny!" growled the Bob Cat, waiting a moment. "Come, hurry up!"

"Oh, everything has gone wrong today!" said poor Uncle Wiggily and away he hopped before the Bob Cat had a chance to bite him. Which perhaps was just as well.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

Sunday, August 12, 1928.

Benefic aspects rule to-day, according to astrology, which reads in the horoscope much of promise.

It is a first-rate day for making plans since the powers of perception are supposed to be quickened and foresight is likely to be comprehensive.

There is a good sign for beginning ocean voyages or journeys of any sort that promise to bring financial profits.

Under this sway the mind may be inclined toward the emotional rather than the mental, but the trend may be more trustworthy than in other rules since one's inclinations may be trusted.

This is read as a favorable day for weddings or entertainments of any sort and it is lucky for engagements to marry.

There is a sway supposed to affect the feminine mind, making for increase of interest in domestic affairs.

Renewed interest in all forms of expression is foretold and this will lead to much study of diction and the desire to speak pure English, astrologers prophesy

There is a fair chance of success today in enterprises that are constructive and promise material profits.

All the signs seem to encourage thrift and a return to standards of careful living.

Money is to be much discussed at this time when there will be a decided trend toward economy. Merchants should be careful.

The planetary direction may cause much house- and flat-hunting and the aspect is fairly favorable for landlords.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of much pleasure in the coming year which should bring association with friends old and new. The subjects of this sign belong to the fire triplicity and have many advantages.

Children born on this day should have versatile talents. As they belong to Leo they have large possibilities of success, but they must be leaders and not servers.

Although the planetary government for to-day is read as rather unimportant, there may be disappointments, astrologers warn.

The early hours of the day should be favorable for pushing all one's affairs, whether they be in the line of business or concern pleasure.

Merchants and manufacturers should benefit, for there will be large demand for certain products not always needed it is foretold.

Under this direction of the stars, women may be expected to be critical and difficult to please, whether they have domestic interests or public concerns.

This is not an auspicious wedding date, for the horoscope is read as threatening to harmony and inclining toward quarrels and dissensions.

The stars supposed to encourage gossip are in aspects that bode ill for all who are subjected to public scrutiny, for they will be frequently maligned, astrologers prophesy.

The planetary sway may cause restlessness and dissatisfaction which will disturb persons in all walks of life.

The importance of avoiding slander or the repetition of evil report is stressed by the seers.

According to ancient lore those who choose wearing apparel under this rule should be exceedingly wise and should keep in mind that high prices may be real economy.

For more than a year astrologers have prognosticated definite reactionary influences which will be manifested in conduct as well as fashions and now they announce that simplicity and lack of artificiality will be prevalent in the coming year.

Persons whose birthdate it is probably will have a serene, uneventful year. These subjects of Leo may be extremely successful if they are nearing forty and they should take care to avoid selfishness and arrogance.

Children born on this day have the augury of happiness and great prosperity. They may be intense in their emotions, intuitive and high-strung. For this reason they must be wisely educated and guided.

Some of the early Greek stamps had numbers printed on the back, the figure denoting the denomination, which was not too clearly indicated on the front. There are some scarce errors of these, records the Postage Stamp, in which the wrong denomination is shown on the back.

WOMEN HOLD STOCKS

Small Investors Steady Market —Vote Encourages Study of Business.

MONTREAL, Que., August 11.—(Canadian Press).—In an editorial on "Woman as Investors" the Gazette says: "It is well known that the longer a stockholder holds a good stock the more reluctant he is to sell, and recent investigations show that women are less likely to sell their stock than men. It may be that men are mores peculative and more eager to make a "quick turn", but the fact remains that women, especially small shareholders, hold their investments for a longer period and thus exert a steadier influence on the market. From another point of view these investments by women will have a good effect. Having secured the right to vote it is but reasonable that they should make themselves acquainted with industrial and financial enterprise because these are so largely influenced by the general policy of the country."

TORONTO, Ont., August 11.—(Canadian Press).—Presenting a petition with the names of 150 residents living in a thickly populated area two women appeared before the York Township Council and made strong objection to the presence of a carnival in a vacant lot near the intersection of the two streets. "There is a big tent against the back door of my neighbor's house. Almost on the back steps of another neighbor there is a merry-go-round, and near my front door there is a ferris wheel," one of the women complained.

THE MIRROR OF THE MODE

By Mary Marshall.

Here is one of the new fitted smocks. It is made of figured cotton print, and is seamed to outline the figure.

Have you seen the new more trimly fitted smocks?

They have made their appearance in one or two of the shops and though I suppose they don't look so studio-esque or so arty as did their loose predecessors, they do look more up-to-date and I should think they would be much better for wear in office hours. But of course they aren't precisely smocks at all, though they will probably continue to be called by that name.

The fact that the smock silhouette that seemed perfectly satisfactory two or three years ago when the smock fashion for office hours first began, now seems so loose and baggy is a very good proof that gradually but surely a more closely molded silhouette is coming into fashion. It has come so gradually that we are not aware of it until reminded in some such way as this.

In many offices the smock has been more than a fad. Most employers liked it because it gave a fairly uniform, impersonal aspect to women workers. And the girls liked it because it saved their frocks. If you ever imagined that the girls you saw tripping off to their work in the morning in all their chiffon and georgette finery were doing so for the benefit of their office-hour associates—vamping their employers or anything of that sort—you would only have to see with what willingness they hid the light of this finery under the bushel of an office smock to change your mind. And to begin with, of course, smocks were a fad—and that helped to spread the fashion.

There is no reason why in one form or another the smock for office hours should not remain with us. Thrifty French workers have always worn some sort of overall garment for working hours. But they were black sateen—eminently practical and endlessly durable. That was not one of the French fashions that American girls would have cared to follow.

ENTERTAINING GUESTS

A Series Giving Hints on Arranging Parties.
By LAURA.

OUTDOOR WEDDINGS

September and October weddings are always popular, partly because of the decorating possibilities of the autumn.

There is no wedding quite so picturesque as an outdoor one. An orchard wedding need not be only a poetic scene—it is entirely practical if you have a small house. Mark out the path beforehand by mowing the grass, if not already done, to the chosen place. Choose plenty of ushers to conduct the guests to the spot, and provide garden benches or settees for the older folk, who might find it tiring to stand until the wedding party arrives.

There need be no decorations except the natural ones of the orchard. An orchestra to provide the wedding music would be lovely in the open air, if not, a friend may be found to play the violin. The simpler the pageant, the more effective it would be. First may come the tiny flower girl in a white or colored frock, swinging a cretonne flowered sunbonnet from which she tosses petals. If there are bridesmaids, they should be dressed in simple gowns and in colors to match the outdoor scenes. Pink would make a pretty setting in the garden, with large leghorn hats. The maid of honor might give a contrast of color by wearing forget-me-not blue.

Last of all appears the bride and bridegroom—together, for it is less awkward than for the bridegroom to appear from a different direction. The bride should wear a simple white gown—anything too fussy would be out of place.

The luncheon may be served buffet style, from the bride's table set elsewhere. Strawberry punch used for the toasts would add more coloring to the scene.

Another interesting wedding party commenced with a flock of tiny children scattering petals from high-handled baskets swinging from their chubby hands. Last of all, four abreast, came the bride and bridegroom, with the bride's mother, who gave her away, on the right of the bride, and the best man on the left of the bridegroom. The ribbon girls had accompanied the procession at proper intervals, holding the aisle ribbon. The last two winding up the ribbon as they came.

The reception was held immediately afterward on the lawn; the guests being served wherever they chanced to be, by the ribbon girls.

Autumn weddings also offer colorful decoration for the house wedding. In October the colored maple leaves make a lovely background for the wonderful color of flowers to be had. Asters in almost every hue can be had at that time.

TRAVEL-LOG.

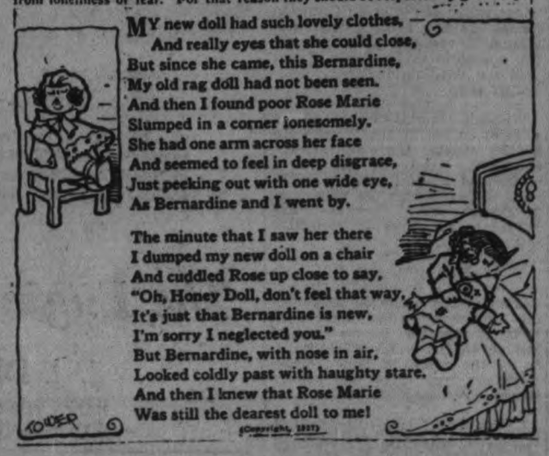
HALSINBORG AS A TOURIST CENTER

You can see Halsingborg—or at least I first did—from Elsinore in Denmark. It is a Swedish town whose history goes back a thousand years. On the bosom of its Sound float the vessels of every nation, and from the heights within the town, the sunsets of Denmark are one beautiful glory. The guide books will tell you about rubber and copper industries, and its shipbuilding. They will tell you of its Ramlosa and Halsan Springs which have diffused health to the sick for two hundred years, they will point out the summer palace of the Crown Prince, and advise you to visit the old castle, whose elevator rises from Market Square, and the ancient Church of St. Maria may attract you; but for me Halsingborg is the place where I find a good hotel from which to range forth into Scania. By motor car and steamer I set forth day after day to such spots as Krapperup Castle at the foot of Kullaberg, to the Island of Ven off Landskrona, to Landskrona Castle and its old moat, to Rosendal and Trolleholm Castles and the beautiful estates about them. And when I grow tired of the city, I move to Molle, to let the sea wash my castle memories into dreamland.

Rose Marie

By SHIRLEY RODMAN WILLIAMS.

"OLD loves are best," even in childhood. We wonder at the loyalty and devotion a little child shows toward an old toy or doll. No matter how soiled or worn they may be, something about them endears them to the child heart in a marked way. Gwen has a cuddle blanket which is so old it's positively ragged, but she won't go to sleep without it. Tommy has a rubber washer he has carried for months. Nobody else knows why it's so precious to him but if it is mislaid he is desolate till it is found. As for Joan, new dollies come and go, but it is Sally who always goes to bed with her although Sally is really in a bad way with one foot gone, a cracked head and almost no expression left on her face. These attachments are prompted by pleasant associations and often give great comfort from loneliness or fear. For that reason they should be respected by grown-ups.



MY new doll had such lovely clothes,
And really eyes that she could close,
But since she came, this Bernardine,
My old rag doll had not been seen.
And then I found poor Rose Marie
Slumped in a corner lonesomely.
She had one arm across her face
And seemed to feel in deep disgrace,
Just peeking out with one wide eye,
As Bernardine and I went by.

The minute that I saw her there
I dumped my new doll on a chair
And cuddled Rose up close to say,
"Oh, Honey Doll, don't feel that way,
It's just that Bernardine is new,
I'm sorry I neglected you."
But Bernardine, with nose in air,
Looked coldly past with haughty stare.
And then I knew that Rose Marie
Was still the dearest doll to me!

MARION AT The Examiner.

THE OLD, OLD WAY.

By Clarissa Mackie.

"Mother," said Eve Leslie a little impatiently, as she swung to and fro in the couch hammock on the broad piazza at the Leslie house, "I am afraid that I am a failure!"

Mrs. Leslie lifted her eyes from her sewing and smiled at her charming daughter, her brows lifted in mock wonder. "A failure? A girl who has been a leader in her classes ever since she went to school—who carried off honors at high school graduation, and brought home honors from college—my dear little girl, you are not a failure in that way! And as a daughter—you have always been most loving, willing, helpful."

Eve blushed and looked ashamed. "It is lovely of you to say all that, mother, dear, because I know you really believe it," said the girl quickly, "but in spite of all that, don't you really think that to be truly successful, a girl should attract the love of some nice man?"

"Yes, indeed," said Mrs. Leslie, cheerily. "I thought you had, Evie. How about Jim Field?"

"Oh—Jim!" exclaimed Eve rather vaguely. "Somehow, he didn't mean anything to me, mother. Why, he didn't even have a car!"

"I know you are fond of a car," admitted Mrs. Leslie, "but I always understood that when a girl loved a man—his possessions did not count so very much."

"I never cared for Jim, anyway—he was a very nice boy, but he could not dance and I did tire of him—so when he became angry because I would not have him here at the house once or twice a week, it was a great relief to me. And then of course, Phil Briggs came along with his snappy roadster, and we had such lots of fun going about, but——"

"But what?"

"Nothing, mother, not much, only he became such a bore after awhile! Instead of driving over to the hotel for a beach dance or a moonlight swim or something, he took it into his head that he must come to see me every week at the house here—not go anywhere at all! And there was that lovely roadster at the gate—it just made me wild!"

"I see," murmured Mrs. Leslie. "And I suppose it was the same way with John Bliss and Frank Clark and the Kittredge boy—they all wanted to come to the house here—they wanted to see you in your own home—among your own people."

"But I do love to drive," sighed Eve.

"Then, my dear, take the money that Great Aunt Beulah left to you, and buy a car and get your pleasure in that way when you feel like it."

So Eve followed her mother's advice and bought a car in which Eve and her parents or her friends rode and enjoyed themselves very much, and more of the young men who had admired Eve because she was the prettiest girl in the village, dropped off, and Eve began to take a different view of love and marriage.

It was about this time that Peter Allen came to Rosedale to work in his uncle's bank. He lived at Judge Allen's house, for the Judge was his grandfather. Peter was a fine young man—college bred, as all the Allens of Rosedale had been, he was very clever, and a splendid business man. People said that the Allen bank would eventually come to young Peter. He was a tall, good-looking fellow of five and twenty, with charming manners. The second time that he met Eve Leslie he asked permission to come and see her.

"Your house is such a homey place," he confessed. "I am hoping that you will let me come and see you."

"Of course," Eve found herself saying. "You will like my mother and father—really, I can vouch for both of them!"

"Peter Allen?" asked Mrs. Leslie. "Why he must be Polly Allen's son. We were great friends, as girls."

"What shall I do with him?" begged Eve forlornly. "You know I hate to entertain them."

Mrs. Leslie smiled. "Most girls are born with the instinctive knowledge of how to treat a young man when he comes to see them. I believe I was born with a sort of intuition, what do you think, Ned?"

Mr. Leslie grinned, and lighted his pipe. "Well, I never remember having a better time than when I came to the Tyrells house, and I thought Evelyn, your mother here, Eve, was the sweetest, prettiest girl I ever saw! I'm mighty glad that I didn't do my courting in those days, and have to put my girl into the seat of a swift car and then go galloping all over the county looking for something to do! There was always something to do at the Tyrells, eh, Evelyn?"

So that night when Peter Allen paid his first visit to the Leslie's old-fashioned place, he found the great living-room bathed in soft light from shaded lamps, and with a bright fire on the hospitable hearth. They played cards, they talked and told stories, and the time passed like magic. Then, Mr. Leslie, coming home from his lodge, brought a box of ice-cream, and Mrs. Leslie had "happened" to make a delicious layer-cake that day, and after they had eaten, Eve played the piano, and they sang together.

"I hope you will invite me again," said Peter, "I'd like to bring my violin over——"

"Oh, you must come," cried Eve swiftly, happier than she had ever been before. So, in the old, old way of a man wooing a maid, Eve Leslie was wooed and won by Peter Allen, but the amusing item to Mrs. Leslie was the fact that Peter Allen did not own an automobile, until his grandfather gave him one for a wedding gift!

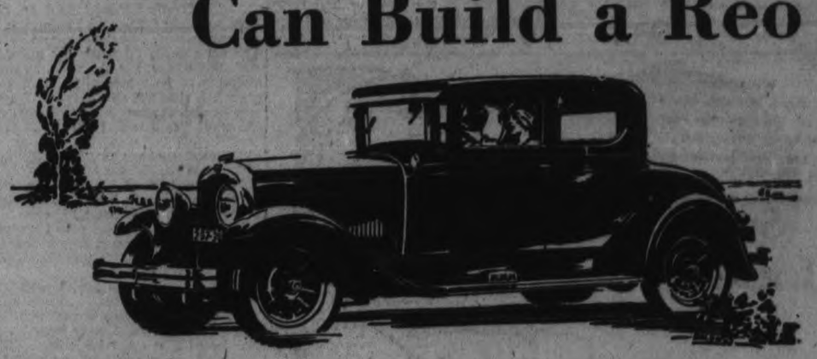
Why Only Reo
Can Build a Reo



WHEREVER superior quality is a guarantee of finer performance, greater comfort, surer economy for the Reo owner, Reo builds of the best that money can buy. There has been no compromise with price.

No other car in or near Reo's price classes is so universally constructed of the finest that money can purchase.

And no other car, regardless of price, has built into it the faultlessness of design and the engineering excellence that are peculiarly Reo's own. Brains are, of course, no company's monopoly, but the brains that developed the 1929 Reo Flying Cloud so far in advance of its time were inevitably attracted to Reo—a place where honesty of purpose and engineering farsightedness are sure to bear fruit.

For Reo engineers are unhampered by the restrictions of a vast, immobile plant; Reo plans are carried out as projected without the restrictions imposed by indebtedness, and Reo products are honestly built in a plant noted for having the lowest rate of labor turnover in the industry.

These are the conditions which have made possible Reo's advanced engineering—which have attracted the best brains in the industry, brains that money alone could never buy.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE WEEKLY COLUMN

A goodly thing it is to meet
In Friendship's circle bright,
Where nothing stains the pleasure sweets
Or dims the radiant light.
No unkind word our lips shall pass,
No envy sour the mind,
But each shall seek the common weal,
The good of all mankind.

THE INSTITUTE ODE.

A goodly thing it is to meet
In friendship's circle bright,
Where nothing stains the pleasure sweet,
Nor dims the radiant light.

No unkind words our lips shall pass,
No envy sour the mind,
But each shall seek the common meal
The good of all mankind.

For home and country is the Woman's Institute motto.

The ode at the head of this is simply an enlargement of the motto. It is used at practically all special Institute gatherings, and very frequently at the ordinary meetings. Just look into it and think about it.

The Institute is non-sectarian, non-partisan. Sects and parties must not be discussed, but this is as far as east from west, from saying the Institute is not religious, and has no interest in politics. The home and through the home, the country, the people of the country must observe not merely the ethics of religion, but absolute religion, else the very foundation is sand.

Politics enter so largely into national life every home should understand about them, know what is going on, decide on right and grong. In the great moral questions of the day the Institute should and does take great interest. But that does does not mean the parties may be discussed. The reason is that religion and partisanship produce the bitterest quarrels.

The members, or others "meet in friendship's circle bright." One aim of the Institute is to foster a friendship and find out and cultivate the good in those who would not likely meet in any other way.

A fundamental idea is that matters shall be discussed in a friendly spirit, so that there is pleasure and beenfit without pain. Unkind words are not encouraged. Envy has no place but that the world through our country, through our community, through the Institute, through each member may be better. The Institute recognizes neither sects nor party, nor group, nor class.

Naturally no human being lives up to this, but it is an ideal, and people who strive for an ideal are apt to come nearer that ideal than those who never think of it.

At Lakefield.

The month of September opens the fall season for schools, business, and also the Woman's Institute, and the programme for the season is a matter of discussion. As the Lakefield branch is still a very young branch, quite an infant in fact, no program was laid down along hard and fast lines during the past year, but as the infant is fairly lusty and beginning to sit up and take notice it has been deemed advisable to adopt a regular schedule for the next season and there is no doubt that the matter will be thoroughly gone into as to a seasonable, practical and helpful branch.

When Mrs. Yates of Athens visited the branch in June she stressed the inestimable value of the printed program and urged strongly that the same should be strictly adhered to. The preparation of a program will be a responsible undertaking which will require the co-operation of officers and members.

At Cavan.

Cavan Women's Institute will hold its August meeting at Mrs. C. Carr's home on Thursday afternoon, August 16th.

The Mount Pleasant Institute will be present by invitation and take charge of the meeting.

A gift of half a dozen stainless steel knives and forks has been sent to Mrs. Bertha Howson, Toronto, from the Institute.

Mrs. Howson, while residing in Cavan, was a member of the Institute.

She has gone to Toronto to make a home for her family, Irene, Muriel and Earl, who all have good positions there.

AT MARMORA.

Before the organization of the present Marmora Women's Institute an effort was made to establish an Institute in the village upon action taken by interested folk in Tweed. Mrs. Silas Pearce was president and Mrs. M. Carscallen the secretary. This organization survived for one season but soon there came into existence the present W.I. whose first president was Mrs. V. Pringle with Miss Bessie Pearce as secretary. Though meeting generally in the homes of members, the Dunlay store then vacant, served in the second year of the War as a good place for the holding of teas and like events which aided the Red Cross activities.

FAVORITE RECIPE.

FRUIT CAKE.

Recipe from Mrs. Jones, England of an exceptionally good fruit cake. A large sample was sent to her son in Canada and proved to be delicious.

1 pound currants
¼ pound candied peel.
6 ounces cherries.
¾ pound buttes
1 tablespoon molasses.
8 eggs.
A little milk if necessary.
1 pound fine brown sugar.
Bake in a moderate oven.
Let cake stand a day before covering with almond paste.

ALMOND PASTE.

Ingredients:
½ pound ground almonds.
3 eggs.
Methods:
Mix ground almonds and sugar in mixing bowl. Add egg yolks (keeping whites for icing) and mix thoroughly. Flour baking board and roll out almond paste until it is the size of the cake. Cover top of cake with white of egg and set in warm oven for twenty minutes before applying almond paste. (This makes the paste stay in place on the cake).

ICING FOR FRUIT CAKE:

1 pound icing sugar worked free of all lumps. Mix thoroughly with remaining egg whites until of the consistency of cream. Spread over cake and allow to set.

had absorbed the best Canada has to offer.

On the arrival of the wedding party they were met at the door of the home by the bride's parents who performed the ancient ceremony of blessing with bread. Old world customs were also followed in the songs and blessing bestowed upon the young couple at the wedding dinner.

ALBERTA WOMEN SELF GOVERNING

Development in Experiment of Women's Institute Watched With Interest.

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 10 (CP).—The editor of the Women's Page of the Mail and Empire comments in this way on the new self governing status of the Alberta Women's Institutes:

"To many, this is merely an indication of what will eventually take place in all the other provinces in regard to this great rural society, the branches of which have spread from Canada and girdled the civilized world. Though organized under the Department of Agriculture, in Ontario, and directed through it, the Institutes in the province where the Institute idea was born—of masculine, as well as feminine foresight and brains—have never been really controlled by the department. Each branch has been allowed to work out its own salvation pretty much on the lines that its officers saw fit, the department coming in with aids of all kinds and supplying certain regular funds.

"In the other provinces it has been much the same—the women have initiated movements, the Governments or the Provincial universities have backed them up with assistance. Probably this freedom for self-determination has been one of the reasons for the growth and the strength of the Institute movement.

"But the thought of any real separation from the Gornment throughout the Dominion will come with rather a shock to those who feel a sense of security, as well as very natural pride, in the knowledge that this organization for the benefit of rural women has been, to a certain extent, a real Government activity. But should other provinces decide to follow the lead of Alberta and separate into an entirely self-governing organization, with women in command, they need have no fear for the future. The Institutes in England came out from under the Government aegis and set up on their own and the movement has not lost; but, many say, has gained, by the renewed sense of responsibility thrown upon the women officers and members.

"Alberta and her Institute women will be carefully watched by Institutes all over the country. They have started out bravely, by agreeing to pay a secretary, and courage brings its own reward."

THE WHATNOT

A Place for Little Bits of Everything of Local Interest

EDITH M. BURTIS, lecturer and feature writer, remarks in a recent article, "In a voiceless language, flowers speak of hope, of joy, of beauty, for flowers are words from God, inaudible, but potent." I wonder if she has seen a city like Peterborough, where every street is bright with flowers that are born of sunshine and showers to make the earth glad!

* * * *

Do you remember when you used to wander out Sherbrooke street, or along the C.P.R. track to the swamp, or over to the pretty little road that runs south east of Little Lake, to gather wild flowers in Spring?

* * * *

Few of us stop to appreciate the flowers—and yet what would the old world be like without them? No Spring! No June with singing birds and hustling bees! No youth and maid awakening to a realization of love and mating! None of that Springtime encouragement for old hearts that now take on new courage through remembrance of bygone days when life was full of promise.

* * * *

Flowers belong to fairyland, and I think we would be the better for cultivating more our remembrance of fairyland and our love of flowers.

* * * *

What do you think, you wives?

* * * *

And, talking of fairland, I know a girl—you know one too—who refers so proudly to her 'boy friend." They are youngsters, really, in spite of their self-reliant air and their fast-vanishing teens. The girl is slim and clear-eyed, merry; the boy—flippant, a bit arrogant, full of secret, earnest plans for success.

They like each other. They go to the movies together, dance, quarrel a bit. They don't believe in early marriages. But her eyes shine when she speaks of him, her "boy friend."

* * * * * *

One of these days, suddenly, they'll be grown up. Man and wife, those fearless youngsters. Another home will be planned in Peterborough, and they will face life togerher. They will have a budget, a savings account, economies.

* * * * * *

They'll make mistakes, but they'll learn quickly. She'll probably have to be canny in the spending of money; she'll become a capable housewife. He wil seek new ways to better his position; he will endeavour to broaden his horizon and to develop his talents for her sake.

* * * * * *

That is their future, and a happy future it will be. But now, when he is her "boy friend" and she is his 'girl friend," life is a fairyland, and the flowers are all blooming just for them.

* * * * * *

There is no reason why that fairyland should not extend along into married life, too. There is no reason why the "boy friend" and "girl friend" ideas should not last throughout married life. Try it, you boy and girl.

* * * * * *

In this city there is a street—I won't even name the district—on which lives a family where there is a spoiled boy. He bullies the neighbors' children, and worries everyone with his stone-throwing and door-bell ringing.

When WILL parents realize that indulging such a boy is not for his own good?

* * * * * *

They are lulled, of course, by the failure of the neighbors to protest. Good neighbors feel they cannot; poor neighbors don't care. They may judge, if they care to, by the attitude of other and younger children towards this terrible infant. And improvement may be looked for hereafter.

* * * * * *

There has been a revival of interest this year in home-trimmed hats, and I have arranged for an aid in the shape of printed instructions (with sketches) for trimming. All that is necessary is to fill in the coupon and send it to me.

LITTLE SONGS OF LOVE

TO HIM.

He came out of the untrammelled blue,
With a lilt in his laugh and a glint in his eye.
This boy . . . he came.
They laughed, these scoffers, with a jeer or two,
But the boy—he smiled, as boys are apt to do,
And he sailed away, with scarce adieu
O the spirit of the boy!
O the glory of the boy!
O the mystery of the boy!
If knew . . .
He knew . . .

Dietitic Dissertations

(Specially Written for The Examiner.)

The importance of a correct and adequate diet is, fortunately, being more fully appreciated. A knowledge of the necessity of God, of course, we have always had—even long before the time when Owen Meredith sang:

'He may live without books—what is knowledge but grieving?
He may live without hope—what is hope but deceiving?
He may live without love—what is passion but pining?
But where is the man who can live without dining?

But in what this 'dining' must consist is a more modern knowledge, and on it, more than on any other single known factor, our physical well-being depends. It eclipses even such potent agencies as sleep, fresh air, and exercise.

What is food? We know it by its work. To be so called the substance of which we partake must do at least one of the following.

1. Build the body.
2. Supply heat and energy.
3 Regulate the body.

The factors which thus vindicate their presence in our diet are:

1 Water.
2. Protein.
3. Fat.
4. Carbohydrate (sugars and starches).
5. Mineral salts.
6. Vitamins.
7. Roughage.

Not only must those principles find place in correct dietaries, but they must be there in correct proportion. Though in our choice of food we cannot invariably accept the ruling of our inclinations, the unconscious wisdom with which we usually combine foods would be very creditable if only it were conscious and voluntary. Fat, for instance, on top of our one-and-one-quarter per cent fat bread we spread eight-five per cent fat butter; we dress our one per cent fat vegtables and one-half per cent fat fruits with one hundred per cent fat olive and salad oils; our sixty-four per cent fat bacon we serve with the starchy potato or toast and our fifty-four per cent fat chocolate goes into a cake of which the other main ingredients are sugar and flour. Here is a recipe in which it does so in a very toothsome manner:

1 cup brown sugar.
½ cup sweet milk.
Cook to thin paste.
1 cup brown sugar.
½ cup butter.
3 egg yolks.
¼ cup sour milk.
2 cups flour.
½ teaspoon soda.
¼ teaspoon salt.
2 teaspoons baking powder.
1 egg white.

1. Cream butter of (2), add brown sugar, cream.
2. Add beaten yolks, add (1) cooled.
3. Add flour (mixed and sifted with soda salt and baking powder) and sour milk alternately.
4. Cut and fold into stiffly beaten egg white.
5. Bake about 45 minutes.

Temperature 300 degrees to 350 degrees F.

No. 18.

Try always to be cheerful. A man, and anyone else, for that matter, has little use for the grumpy or irritating woman. But the ability to be able to weep easily is also an addition to one's weapons. To have a tender heart that is easily moved to compassion over the misfortunes of one's fellow creatures or a wounded animal, for instance, often plays havoc with a man's sensibilities. And they like to listen to a woman's conversation, as long as they have a chance occasionally to get a word is about their own affairs. You don't have to be widely read or up on every conceivable subject, to enchain a man's attention. The less you know about the Einstein Theory of Relativity or the intricacies of Differential Calculus, the better for you, as far as this game of love is concerned. But you should know somewhat of modern music, of modern plays and movies and of the latest doings in the sport world. "Not to know is to argue oneself unknown," is the idea. Tell him about your latest dress and the funny thing your little brother said at the table at dinner time and the way your girl friend is treating her best beau. He will find it interesting.

GREEK WEDDING IS PICTURESQUE

Bride and Groom Will Attend Agricultural College This Winter.

EDMONTON, Alta., August 11.—(Canadian Press).—When, by the rites of the Greek orthodox church two well-known young people were recently married, the occasion was notable for several things: The bride and groom will both attend agricultural college this winter, after which they will farm on the acres of the bridegroom, Petar Figol, in Edmonton, Alta. Hon. Perren Baker, Minister of Agriculture proposed a toast at the wedding to the bride's parents Mr. and Mrs. Prokop Magera, of Bon Accord, Alta., expressing his appreciation of the service they have rendered in the cause of education, stressing the fact that they have prepared each member of a large family for higher education and, while retaining all that was finest in the culture of their own land,

WHO OWNS VEIL? COURT DECIDES

Witness Argued It Was a Wedding—Not a Funeral Scene.

MONTREAL, Que., August 11.—(Canadian Press).—The question as to possession of the veil worn by a bride after she had left on her wedding journey culminated in a highly exciting court scene lasting an hour before the case was dismissed by the Police Court Judge.

A feminine witness stated that she saw the complainant in the case attacking the accused with her shoe. "She was pelting him on the head with the heel of her shoe. It was too bad there was trouble before they left the hall. There was an argument between the bride and her sister over the veil, and I said, "Don't argue; this is a wedding, not a funeral."

The lawyer for the complainant aroused the ire of this witness when he commented on the fact that she raised her right hand high in the air and repeated her oath when he cross-examined her as to some of her statements. "My experience teaches me that oaths that are made with such force are not usually very important," he commented casually to the judge in discussing the evidence.

There was an angry cry from the rear of the court and, as he continued, the woman, scarlet and with her fist closed, marched towards the Bench. "Oh Oh, Oh" she cried through clenched teeth. "My word, Sir," she began, trembling with rage "my word is the truth, sir." She continued her progress towards the lawyer with fist closed and court attendants came forward and forced her back to the spectators' seats as she waved her arms menacingly towards the lawyer.

. . due to greatly increased power and vital engineering advancements adding new brilliancy to McLaughlin Buick's VALVE-IN-HEAD Engine!

A THRILL with energy—like a spirited thoroughbred that will let no other pass—the 1929 McLaughlin-Buick ushers in new and unrivalled power of acceleration.

Never was there an automobile so responsive, so mobile, so sensitively flexible. Never an automobile with such dash and spirit. Never an automobile so thrillingly alive to every desire and demand of the driver!

Increased bore and stroke in the world-famous valve-in-head engine—a tremendous increase in power—new and advanced carburetion—high pressure gas pump—all combine to produce accelerating abilities which will be the envy of other motorists.

Pick-up, getaway and top speed—a greater top speed than ever before—all are attained in the fewest possible seconds in the new, 1929 McLaughlin-Buick.

If you want the feeling of dash, power, swiftness—just look out over the mighty hood; and if you want to experience traffic mastery—just press the accelerator.

Drive it and you'll say, there never was a car like this great, new McLaughlin-Buick. It provides acceleration like a shot from a gun!

The G.M.A.C. Deferred Payment Plan offers many advantages to buyers of McLaughlin-Buick cars.

WORRY CAUSES MISHAPS

A workman at a cutting machine was disturbed over a quarrel with his wife. In a moment of distraction he forgot the knives and a serious accident resulted. Another man, operating a huge press, was worrying over a mortgage on his home. Failure, for an instant to attend to his job, nearly cost him his life. Looking out the window at a girl who was passing on the street caused a mechanic in an automobile factory to make a costly error which lost him his job.

An analysis of 75,000 industrial accidents, recently completed by H. W. Heinrich of the Travelers Insurance Company revealed. he says in Popular Science Monthly, that a workman who is metnally disturbed is as much of a danger to himself and his fellow workmen as if he were physically disabled.

MANY MOTHERS RECOMMEND THEM

From Canada the fame of Baby's Own Tablets is spreading over the world. Mothers recommend them to other mothers and wherever they are tried nothing but words of praise are heard for these pleasant tasting little tablets that promptly relieve the minor ailments of young children.

"Baby's Own Tablets are one of the best remedies for children's ailments I have ever used," says Mrs. Arthur T. Allen, of Auburn, Me. "My little girl was nervous and could not sleep. I tried the Tablets and she was relieved at once. She was also troubled with constipation and nothing seemed to help her. I had used the Tablets but a short time before her bowels were regular. All mothers should keep Baby's Own Tablets in the house, for they are a valuable remedy."

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by all druggists or will be mailed on receipt of price, 25 cents per box, by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Next add a half cup of seedless raisins which have been slightly floured. Mix thoroughly and bake in muffin tins in a moderately hot oven until brown. The quantity makes about eight muffins.

Questions and Answers.

Question: X.Y.Z. asks: "Will you kindly state through the column whether or not you approve of sulphur for blood purification? Also, whether there is any cure for pinguecula or pterygium."

Answer: No to the question on sulphur. It is much better to fast and diet scientifically to bring about blood purification. The diseases you have named mean formations on the corner of the eye which are due to irritations from some cause such as outside infection through dust or bacteria or from an over-acid secretion of the eye lubricants. This trouble can be checked and even cured by proper dieting and the use of a simple eye wash applied several times daily.

Question: Mrs. J.M.B. writes: "You say when making Melba toast to use white bread and cut all the crust away. Why not use wholewheat, and leave crust on the slices?"

Answer: I suggest cutting away the crust as it has already been "toasted" in the original baking of the loaf, and will burn before the inside of the slice is sufficiently dextrinized. The average wholewheat bread, which is made partly of white flour, may be used in making Melba toast, but the real wholewheat bread, if toasted through, develops a bitter taste because of the burning of the protein and bran elements. Wholewheat bread only partially toasted makes an excellent food if there is no reason why you should not use the starch which it contains.

Question: K.L. asks: "What is arthritis—what are its causes? Everyone seems to have a different definition of it."

Answer: Arthritis simply means rheumatism in the joints. Acute inflammatory rheumatism is sometimes found in the muscles, but most rheumatism, including arthritis, comes from a deposit of rheumatic toxins in the joints.

DOMINION LIFE AGENTS CONFER

GENERAL MANAGER HERE.

Members of the Dominion Life Assurance Company held a conference in Peterborough yesterday. Representatives from all the towns in the district were present. The meeting took the form of a business meeting combined with a get together rally as a sign of Manager I. P. McNabb's appreciation of the splendid showing the men made during his four weeks' absence in Seattle.

A banquet was held at noon in the Paragon Tea Rooms, where all enjoyed the fine spread and the singsong led by George Henderson at the piano. After the banquet a short business meeting was held when Ford S. Kumph, managing director of the Dominion Life at Waterloo, and A. N. MacTavish, head actuary of the company, addressed the meeting along general business topics.

There were also some presentations. During Mr. McNabb's absence there was a special effort organized by W. Mason of Lindsay to secure the most business per man. A fifty dollar purse, divided into twenty, fifteen, ten and five dollar prizes, was the reward for the highest men. William Taylor of Bowmanville won the $20.00 prize; M. Wright of Bethany won the $15.00 prize, R. S. Mason of Lindsay won the $10.00 prize, and A. T. Jones of Peterborough won the $5.00.

In appreciation to Mr. Mason who organized the contest which proved so successful, Mr. Kumpf presented him with a beautiful Parker desk set.

A CORRECTION.

Mrs. Sweeney, of Toronto, whose children were reported in yesterday's paper as having been pulled out from the Little Lake and near death, wishes to state that the item was exaggerated, as both herself and a nursemaid were on the shore looking after the children at the time, and that the danger was not anything like reported.

Stomach Trouble

People who have never had Stomach Trouble seem to think it nothing serious. They say, "Oh it's just a touch of Indigestion." But you can't get rid of serious Stomach Trouble that easily. It is a very, very serious condition and causes an enormous amount of suffering. Mr. Alex. Krentzenk, of Dundurn, Sask., knows this very well. "For the past year," he writes, "my stomach has caused me a great deal of trouble. Constant indigestion made me feel as if there was a lump of lead right in the pit of my stomach, and cramps just about doubled me up. I lost weight and my nerves were all on edge. I felt tired all the time and had not the strength to do a decent day's work."

"One of my friends told me to try Tanlac and I want to say that it was just what I needed. I am now on my third bottle and feel my old healthy, vigorous self again. My appetite is fine and I digest my meals without the slightest trace of indigestion—the heavy lump and cramps are gone for good—and I sleep fine. Tanlac did me so much good that it is a pleasure to recommend it." Tanlac is Nature's roots, herbs and barks, blended into one big, bracing tonic. It costs less than 2c a dose—and your money refunded if it does not give perfect satisfaction. Get a bottle at your druggist's today.

McCOLL-FRONTENAC

In Our Care

The world's greatest engineering achievement—

The Modern Motor Car

Red Indian Service men admire beautiful, smooth-running cars. We accept the task of guarding their wonderful motors—those masterpieces of mechanical engineering; of protecting what we honestly believe to be the greatest of all engineering achievements, from carelessness, neglect and abuse.

We know these motors. We have watched them develop from the early sputtering engines of a few short years ago to the silent harmonious motors of to-day.

We know—and refine oils and fuels that such motors must have if they are to continue as smooth-running efficient machines.

The men in charge of Red Indian Service Stations love to hear a sweet-tuned motor hum. They naturally prescribe the oil and fuel that will keep each motor sweet.

That's McColl-Frontenac Service

Smooth-running due to its uniform cleanliness.

Every drop crowded with steady, dependable power and mileage.

Cyclo
MOTOR FUEL

Cyclo is high compression fuel, yes. But it improves the performance of any motor, old or new. It cleans the motor of carbon, cleans the fuel tank and feed lines. Result — a knockless, smooth-running motor that delivers its full quota of power from this powerful fuel. It turns a sluggish motor into a hill-climber. It keeps a new motor sweet and full of pep. Cyclo is power, Cyclo is SPEED.

RED INDIAN MOTOR OIL

Most popular Canadian Oil, because it is made right in Canada to meet the extremes of heat and cold of this climate. It will pump and splash at low temperatures — and even in summer an engine is "cold" when you start it. It will stand intense heat without breaking down. With the correct grade of Red Indian in your crank-case your motor receives the most thorough lubrication that science can give it.

CADET SUPPLIES ARE CHECKED UP

Capt. V. W. S. Heron Visits City in Connection With His Work.

LIKES PETERBOROUGH.

An interesting visitor to the city during the past day or so has been Captain V. W. S. Heron, perhaps most favorably known to military men and cadets of the entire district as an inspecting officer of Cadet Corps, who combines military exactness with a tactful, and always cheerful, personality. Captain Heron, attired not in the customary dress of the soldier, but in comfortable flannels, proved an interesting conversationalist when interviewed by an Examiner reporter. He is here, acting in conjunction with Captain C. E. Jamieson, in the checking over of equipment held by Cadet Corps in the city, which it was the pleasure of Captain Heron to inspect earlier in the year.

Commenting on the city of Peterborough, the captain declared "that you have one of the most prorgessive cities in the province, and a newspaper for which I would sell my coat any time. Industrially, you are ahead of my home city, Kingston, which, of course, is more of an educational centre, and which, I believe, is visited by more tourists during the summer."

His reminiscences of past cadet inspections are unexpectedly accurate, considering that he inspects scores of cadet units annually. Somehow, he has never quite forgotten the banquet which followed an inspection in a certain town, at which one of the speakers, in replying to a toast to "Canada" required some fifty-five minutes to "run down," much to the unrest of the suffering young soldiers. Captain Heron's address was cut short by an understanding mind, entirely in sympathy with the lads whom he had that afternoon inspected.

Canada has the largest continuous wheat field in the world.

A tail-spin and a nose-dive in rapid succession caused the airplane accident at Beaumaris which took two lives and injured five other people. These pictures show some of the people who figured in the accident. (1) is Miss Molly Spaulding of Buffalo, whose condition is critical; (2) George Goodhead, farmer, who heard the plane crash and was one of the first at the scene. The accident took place near his farm; (3) a view of the plane taken before the accident, with Capt. Charles Haines, the pilot, in the cockpit; () Miss Lucy Hill of Cape Cod, Mass., who suffered a broken arm and back injuries; (5) Miss Betty McKay of Pittsburg, who is suffering from shock. Wooler

WOOLER, Aug. 11.— On Wednesday afternoon the town hall was cool and airy, and a large number gathered to the regular meeting of the Wooler branch of East Northumberland's Women's Institute. The president, Mrs. Orvis, presided, and the secretary-treasurer, Mrs. J. J. Way distributed the programs for the balance of the year.

The first speaker of the afternoon to be introduced was Mrs. (Dr.) McMullen, of Frankford, who interested the mothers by talking on the subject, "Parents' Responsibility to the Coming Generation," and then she talked to the children, most interestingly, until every child's attention was drawn strongly to her.

The roll call was hints on child training. The children then were treated to an ice cream cone, this being children's day.

The next speaker was Miss Cleland, who has completed a year's teaching abroad, and just returned home the night previous to this meeting. Miss Cleland visited England, Scotland, Wales, Italy and the wonderful Flanders Fields. At this period in her address Lulu McColl recited "In Flanders Fields Where Poppies Grow." Miss Cleland and her party visited the Vatican, the Pope's home, in Rome. This is a privilege and honor that many do not have when touring Europe.

Miss Cleland will furnish pictures and give a lecture on Italy at the W.M.S. meeting on Tuesday next in United church parlors.

Lulu McColl recited two more numbers and the August hostesses served sandwiches, cake and lemonade. The meeting adjourned to meet in September at the home of Mrs. W. Orvis.

CROWDED ANIMALS

inspected the horses after they had been unloaded and carried out a postmortem on two that died. "I was called to Cavan station on the morning of July 19 and the C.P.R. agent there put me in charge of the car load of horses, of recent shipment, with instructions to see that they were fed, watered and their injuries attended to. Arriving at the stock yards I found that the section gang had unloaded all but two of the shipment. I gave the animals a rough inspection and asked how many cars conveyed the shipment and was told that the 32 head, 16 colts and 16 brood mares, had come in the one car. I then asked for the man passed in charge and was told he could not be found. At the station I saw a letter from the accused saying that he would not be there until about the 22nd.

"The shipment showed distinct evidences of having undergone a severe journey. The colts were badly bruised and scraped about the knees and hocks. One colt died in the yard shortly after I arrived, another was found dead in the car and also a three-year-old brood mare was dead. One grey colt was found with a fractured or dislocated joint. I would say the injuries were extraordinary and I believe the car was overcrowded especially with the hot weather. I performed a post mortem on the two colts by request of the humane society inspector and found that one colt had died of a broken neck and had suffered internal injuries while the other colt had suffered internal injuries and the left front leg was almost torn from the ligament attachments. I saw that the head of the brood mare was badly crushed and she was bleeding from the mouth and nostrils."

Mr. O'Brien in closing his case said he did not ask for a heavy penalty but that the Humane Society wanted to stop this practise of shipping animals without the proper attendant. He also stressed the need of taking greater care of animals than of human beings for the later can speak for themselves.

Magistrate Floyd in finding the defendant guilty was inclined to impose the maximum fine but he took into account the age of the accused and the large amount of costs and passed the sentence at $25 and costs.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Aug. 11 (Canadian Press).—Every kind of grain crashed down yesterday to below any price level heretofore touched this year, with wheat becoming the cheapest known since 1924. Excited selling accompanied the general break in prices, which came as a direct result of the United States government crop report showing an unexpected big increase of 91,000,000 bushels over last month's official estimate of probable domestic wheat yield this season.

After a maximum setback of 5¾c a bushel, wheat closed unsettled 3½c to 4c net lower; corn 1¾c to 2¾c off; oats ¼c to ¾c down, and provisions ranging from 5c decline to 17c advance.

Effects of surprise here over the government crop figures, which were much larger than most traders had looked for, was intensified by news that the Liverpool wheat market had become demoralized owing to the American official report. Violent fluctuations characterized the Chicago market for considerable time after the opening, and there was evidence of extreme nervousness throughout the day, but buying on the part of speculators who were in a position to collect profits served to steady prices somewhat in the later dealings.

Much of yesterday's sensational selling of grain took place on standing orders to let go of holdings at various set limits, and thus put a stop to losses. Bearish sentiment meanwhile as to wheat was given special impetus by word received yesterday from Washington that Kansas in particular had a huge yield, 179,044,000 bushels of wheat for that state alone. Explanations by crop experts here said the big gains in the volume of wheat raised throughout the country as a whole had been due to ideal conditions which have prevailed for a heavy yield per acre, namely moderate temperatures during the growth and filling period, with ample recurring moisture.

With the exception of September, all deliveries of corn established new low price record for the season. Heavy selling was induced by the government report which indicated $12,000,000 bushels greater production of corn than was looked for a month ago. On the other hand, dispatches received late in the day told of the new corn crop firing because of excessive heat in South Dakota, Nebraska and Iowa. A feature in the oats market was steady buying on the part of a house having connections with Omaha.

Provisions were affected on the one hand by sympathy with grain weakness and on the other hand by upturns in the value of hogs.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, August 11.—Due to the double market on Tuesday trade on the cattle market at the Union Stock Yards opened rather slow this week and held this tone throughout the session. Reports from some dealers indicated that a clean-up was expected, but in spite of this nearly 1,000 cattle remained unsold at the end of the week. Choice to good cattle were in demand and brought good prices, but this class of stock was in the minority. Most of the offerings were of lower quality and buyers refused to do any brisk trading in this line.

Springers and milkers — A few young springers of fancy quality sold as high as $130; choice, $90 to $120; good, $65 to $85; medium, $50 to $60; milkers are not in very good demand; medium, $40 to $50, and poorer grades at corresponding lower prices.

Stockers and feeders — One load of Western Polled Angus steers sold at 10c, weighing an average of $25 lbs.; another load of Durham steers sold at $9.75. Yearling steers, $9.50 to $9.75; western heifers, $8.25 to $8.50. Most of the loads were of inferior quality and of the dairy type, selling from $7.25 to $7.60.

Calves — Vhoice veal calves showed strong demand at 16c to 16½c; fancy calves, 15c; good, 12c to 13½c; medium, 9c to 12c; grassers, 6c to 7c.

Sheep and lambs — Choice lambs, 16c to 16½c; good, 15c to 15½c; cull lambs, 11c to 13c; yearling sheep, 8c to 9c; choice light butchers, 6c to 6½c; heavy sheep and aged bucks, 4c to 5c; cull sheep, 2c to 3c.

BUTTER AND EGGS

TORONTO, Aug. 11.—The general trend of egg markets continue firm during the week and price advances have been more or less general. There has been a particularly good demand for extras and the advancing market has been well supported by consumers who have shown a willingness to pay a considerable margin for extras over firsts. This has resulted in an exceptionally good demand for the grade of extras and the supply on the whole has not been sufficient to take care of requirements for this grade.

There has also been a steady demand for seconds, especially at Montreal, which is the result of many eggs of this grade being taken off the market for breaking for canned eggs. In view of the recent change in the tariff on this product, dealers state that it is a question whether the demand for seconds for breaking will be so keen in the future, and it is expected that shortly more seconds will be offering on the open market. The outward movement of storage eggs, which will commence in the next few weeks, will also result in the appearance of some seconds on the market. In grading eggs out of storage there is always a certain quantity that will not pass as firsts, although they went in under that grade.

The Twins' Adventure

THE TWINS IN TROUBLE

We boys left Seven Willows Island last Sunday morning and came home. It made us feel pretty blue when we started to take down our tents, but there was nothing else to do, because every boy's mother sent word to Doc Waters to see that we came home at once. They had heard about the terrible wild man who had been caught on the island, and I guess it was what the wild man did to poor old Ham Gardner, one of the Pelham fellows, that scared our mothers. Most likely they figured out that the island wasn't a very safe place for a bunch of boys this year. And so we had to come home. The Skinny Guy and his pop brought us up in their nice big boat, but they went right back to the island to stay for a while, where they expect to catch a lot of fish.

Doc Water's felt pretty blue himself, and as soon as we got back, he chased us all up to church, it being a Sunday, and then we all went home and told our mothers here we were, so they wouldn't worry any more. Then we went back down to the river bank, and believe me, we got a good and happy surprise, too, for there was our biggest tent set up on the river bank, right near where the old stranded houseboat stands. Doc Waters and the Sheriff were standing there, smiling as we came down.

"Well," says Doc, "how do you like it?"

"Fine!" we all yelled. "You sure are a prince, Doc."

"Better than no camp at all," says Doc, as he started to walk away; it's a shame there had to be any trouble on the island—but anyway, just think you are on an island, and you'll have plenty of fun camping here."

I told him I thought so, too. Then he and the Sheriff went away. We surely had a fine time in the tent. And I thought it was a good thing we did come back here, because the Pelham boys being on the island and claiming it for their camping ground, we were always likely to get in trouble. And anyway, there's no place around here as pretty as our old river bank, with its tall trees and green bushes all around. Bill Darby is outside now putting up a swing in one of the highest trees. We won't miss the old island, much. It's a good thing for a fellow to get used to being satisfied with what he's got, and not wishing for things he can't have.

* * *

It looks like the twins are going to get us in trouble yet. Harold is a sport, and thinks he knows more than all the rest of us. Oliver is just different; he is nice as pie. He said to me this morning: "Hawkins, that brother Harold of mine thinks you are the only fellow in our club who has any sense." I laughed and said: "If that's what he thinks, he isn't as smart as I thought he was."

And just a while ago Harold came in as I began to write this in my big book.

"Well, Seck, old socks!" he sang out, you'll have something interesting to write in that old book before long."

"Yeah?" I said, looking up. "Just what kind of scheme are you thinking up now?"

"I don't have to think up any," he answered, "but the Pelham fellows are spying around here—"

"What!" I exclaimed. "I thought they wanted the island all to themselves? Now that we have left it, they came up here—"

"They are always looking for trouble," broke in Harold. "That's why I brought this." He held up a water gun—a little thing that looked like a sure-enough-shooter, but I had seen one before; it was only loaded with water. "Look at it! A peach, isn't it? I bought it when I was at school. I kind o' thought I might need it for the Pelhams, some day. It shoots five shots of water."

"Yeah," I said, nodding, "but water won't stop a Pelham from coming at you."

Harold gave me a look of pity, and then smiled scornfully. "Poor old Hawkins!" he says, "you never had any sense and you'll never get any—you don't think I'm goin' to shoot water at those Pelhams, do you?"

"What else can you shoot in that thing?" I demanded.

"Listen," says Harold, "I'm going to get some red pepper all ground up and mix it with water, and I ask you, won't that hurt your face?"

I looked at him for a few moments, and it seemed to me he intended to do what he said. So I said to him: "Harold, you'd better throw that water pistol in the river—it's goin' to get you in bad some day."

"What!" he yelled. "Throw this in the river? Why, it cost me half a dollar."

I shook my head and turned back to my book and continued to write this down. And I made up my mind I would do my best to keep our boys away from the Pelhams, so they would have no reason to fight. Harold went out—most likely he is going to the drug store up town to get that red pepper. I told our captain, Dick Ferris, about it, but he only got sore at Harold and said he didn't care what the kid did. If he gets in trouble, it's his own fault. Gee, it's too hot to write more in this book today—Bill Darby just finished putting up the big swing, and I'm going out and take a ride in it to cool off.

* * *

Later. Well, those Pelham fellows are about the cheapest bunch I ever saw. We helped 'em out last week when they lost Ham Gardner. It was us boys who found Ham, tied up in a tree by that wild man on the island. He got sun struck and was in bed two days. Just as soon as he gets all right again, doggone if he doesn't start right out to do some more mean tricks. Briggen is the one to blame—he and Dave Burns, they are the leaders of the Pelhams, and whatever they tell the others to do, it's done. We were swimming today, and when we came out of the river to puton our clothes, both of the twins couldn't find their shoes. They have very fine new shoes, the twins have, and of course the Pelhams had to steal the best. When we saw the Pelhams on the other side of the river, Dave Burns and Ham Gardner were wearing the twins' shoes. Harold wanted us to go right over and get them back, but our captain said we'd better go slow, there were so many against us, and we'd better make a plan. "Plan nothing!" says Harold, "if you fellows are afraid to go after something that belongs to me, I'll go myself."

"Hard or not," I says, "he's goin' to get it cracked some day if he doesn't stay away from those Pelhams.

* * *

On Thursday morning Oliver came up to me and I could see by his face that there was something wrong. We walked away from the other boys, and sat down near a bunch of bushes. "Now, then "I said, "what's on your mind, Ollie?"

"I'm worried about Harold," he said; "he went away early this morning. Ma was scolding us for losing our new shoes, and Harold doesn't like scolding. He went away right after breakfast, without saying a word to anyone."

"Oh, he'll come back, all right," I said. Oliver didn't say anything for a while. I kept silent, too, for I knew something else was on his mind. And then he began:

"Harold might run away from home. He's been talking about it ever since we came home from our school."

"What!" I exclaimed. "You don't mean it?"

"Just what I mean, Hawkins," he said nodding. "I don't think he will ever come back."

For a long time we sat there in the shade of the bushes and neither one of us said a word. I was thinking how I would feel if I had a brother like that. Then I got up quickly. "Come on, Oliver," I said, it looks like we've got a little work to do, you and me."

Oliver made no remark, but got up and we slipped away without the other boys knowing. Down by Hobbs Ferry we crossed the river. Oliver saw some orange peelings on the road. "We're on his track, all right," he says; "I saw him stick two oranges in his pocket before he left home." And so we pushed on, but oh, boy! the sun was hot and we got so thirsty. I saw Oliver needed a drink about as badly as I did, but we didn't stop. Finally Oliver had to stop. "Gee, Seck," he says, "let's go into that house up yonder and get a drink of water."

We walked up to the house, but I saw a bunch of boys in the yard. "No, Ollie," I said, "we'd better not go in there—those are the Pelham fellows." We stood behind a tree and watched, and soon all the Pelhams came out and walked down the road. When they were all gone, Oliver said: "Now we can get that drink." So we went up and knocked on the door. And who should open it but—Ham Gardner himself, and right behind him, looking over his shoulder, was Briggen, and behind Briggen there was a man.

"Here he is!" yelled Briggen. And out he came, Ham following, and together they grabbed Oliver and pulled him inside. I went in, too.

"What's the idea?" I said, looking from one to another. But it was the man who spoke.

"You boys have got yourself in a nice mess," he says. And then he opened a door to another room and in it we saw Dave Burns sitting on a chair, with his eyes blindfolded, and his Ma was standing by his side, crying soft like. "Look what you've done!" says the man to Oliver, pointing at Dave Burns; "you haven't got any hart to throw pepper in a fellow's eyes—poor Dave, most likely he will be blind."

Oliver stood still, and stared. I could see at once that he had been mistaken for Harold—it is hard to tell the twins apart, not even the Pelhams can do it. I'm sorry," says Oliver, "honest I am so sorry."

The man made a sour face. "You'll get a chance to be sorry," he says; "I sent for the Sheriff—he will 'tend to you, all right."

I was going to say something— to explain—but Oliver jerked my arm. "Be still, Hawkins," he whispered. I saw it all now; Harold had used his water pistol with red pepper water in it, and had shot some in Dave Burn's eyes. And these people had mistaken Oliver for Harold.

There was some noise outside, and the next moment the whole Pelham bunch came in. "The Sheriff has gone to Watertown today," says Lannigan, who was next leader to Briggen and Dave. "Well," says Briggen, "we've got this twin fellow here now, and we can take him out and give him enough punishment ourselves, I guess. Come on, fellows, bring him out."

Dave's daddy didn't say anything. The Pelhams grabbed Oliver and pulled him out the door. I made a move forward, but they grabbed me and jerked me back.

"We'll give him the worst lickin' he's ever had," sang out Briggen, as they all shoved Oliver along the walk in the yard. But just then another thing happened. A boy stepped out of the bushes along the walk.

It was Harold. He held his water pistol in his hand.

"Who's goin' to do all that?" he asked. His voice was very low and steady. "Who's goin' to give my brother a lickin' while I'm around?"

Briggen stepped out of the crowd. "We are," he says, "and we'll give it to you, too, if you say any more about it."

Harold lifted his water pistol. "Go ahead," he says in a low voice, "go ahead, if you're really set on doing it, but I've got a couple more shots in this water gun for fellows like you, Briggen. Take your hands off my brother this minute, or you'll get what Dave Burns got for stealing my shoes."

The Pelhams all fell back, at this. They let Oliver go, and I took his arm and we walked over to where Harold stood. Dave Burn's daddy came out of the house. "What's this talk about stealing shoes?" he asked.

I walked up to Mr. Burns and told him about the Pelhams stealing the twins' shoes while we were in swimming. "Why, Ham Gardner's wearing a pair of 'em this very minute," I added.

Mr. Burns looked at Ham's feet. There they were, the brand new shoes. Mr. Burns shook his head. "I'm sorry my boy was mixed up in it," he says; "I noticed Dave had on new shoes, but I thought his mammy had bought 'em for him." His face wrinkled up, as he turned and walked into the house. We didn't say any more to the Pelhams. Harold put his arm around Oliver's and said: "Come on, Ollie, let's get away from here." And he linked his arm in mine, and together we walked back down the road.

* * *

Oliver didn't say a word to Harold, but there was a sad look in his eyes. When we came to Hobbs Ferry, Harold stopped. "Hawkins," he says, "you take care of Oliver—I'm not going home any more."

"What th: dickens you mean?" I asked.

"I'm going to run away," he said; "I would have been far away by now, if I hadn't seen you and Ollie go into that house. I came back because I knew the Pelhams would get you and mistake Oliver for me."

Oliver began to cry. None of us knew what to say next. I felt a big lump in my throat. At last I got my voice back and said: "Listen, Harold, you can't run away, from home like this. You'll get in all kinds of trouble."

Harold turned his back to us and stood still. Oliver rubbed his eyes with his sleeve and said: "Hawkins knows best, Harold. And we aren't going to make Mother unhappy over us any more, are we?"

That got him, I think. Reminding him of his mother. Boys can't think of their mothers being unhappy or sad. Harold turned around quick. "I guess I'll go back," he says; "we're not going to let her worry about us any more, Oliver. Now you mind that."

"If you only would," said Oliver, sniffing.

We went back. None of us said a word until "goodbye" at my gate. I watched the twins walk home together, and say! you know how happy it makes a fellow feel when he sees two brothers make up and forget things. I knew those twins were all right.

* * *

This is Saturday—first chance I had to write in this book for two days. I was down at our big tent early yesterday morning, and Harold was the only one who had arrived. "I'm glad I have a chance to talk to you alone, Hawkins," he says, "I'm worrying about Dave Burns—his eyes, you know. If he is hurt bad it wasn't my fault—"

"We will get Doc Waters to go and look at him," I said, "and then we'll know what to do."

Doc Waters was glad to go with us. We got in his automobile and drove to Hobbs Ferry and crossed the river. When we drove up the road to Burns' house, Dave's daddy was on the porch. "How's Dave?" called out Harold. The man smiled. "He's pretty much better—won't you all come in?"

We walked in and Doc went right over to where Dave sat in his big chair. He quickly took the bandage off Dave's eyes. Dave says "Hello, Doc, what you doin' here?"

Doc laughed. "Why did you have this bandage on your eyes?" he asked.

"Briggen and Ham Gardner says I must wear 'em," says Dave.

"Why, there's nothing the matter with your eyes," said Doc.

Dave jumped out of his chair. "By golly!" he yelled. "I didn't think so, either—"

"Briggen swiped 'em, pop," said Dave. "But Briggen's feet was too big for 'em, so he said he would give 'em to me, if I let on like my eyes hurt—"

Harold broke into a loud laugh. "It doesn't matter much, Dave," says Harold, "I've got plenty other shoes—all I wanted was to find out about your eyes, because I knew if they were hurt it wasn't my fault."

"You come pretty near hurting my eyes, all right," says Dave, "that water hit me right on the forehead—"

"It wouldn't have hurt you," says Harold. Dave winked one eye and said: "Who says red pepper water wouldn't hurt?"

* * *

"Well," says Harold, "there wasn't any pepper in it. I only SAID there was, and you Pelham fellows believed it."

We all had a good laugh, then, and got in the machine and went back home.

* * *

And this morning the twins called for me and we walked down to the camp together. None of the others had arrived, and I saw something fluttering on the tent flap—it was a piece of paper. Below it on the ground were the twins' shoes, all polished up and nice, and on the paper was this note in a scribbling hand writing:

"Much obliged for the loan of the shoes, but I would rather go barefoot anyhow. How much do you want for your water pistol?

"Dave Burns."

Harold laughed when he read it, and Oliver said: "It's pretty nice of him to shine our shoes and send 'em back, Harold—you ought to give him that water pistol for nothing." But Harold is a smart duck. He shook his head and tore up the piece of paper.

"No," he says to Oliver, "I don't think that would be the thing to do—they know they can shoot pepper water with this old gun, and they might try it on us some time—I guess the best thing to do is to take it down to the river and drop it where the water is deep."

Which we did.

day's paper there were not as many entries as I would have liked. However, you have had the coupon now three days, and memberships are beginning to pour in, so I expect that a lot of girls and boys will send in letters, stories, poems, or drawings on this week's subject, which is

"PLAYMATES."

Every boy and girl has any number of playmates, and I am sure each of us has his favorite. All of the members of our club would like to know about your favorite. So sit down and write a story or verse or letter, or make a drawing of your playmates. You never can tell your name might be the one that will head the list like Abou Ben Adhem. Don't forget to write on only one side of the paper, sign your name, address, and age, and get your entry into the office before next Saturday night. The prize winner will be announced on the following Saturday, and a fine book telling the adventures of Seckatary Hawkins will be sent the lucky boy or girl.

This week I am going to ask each member to get a new member. Our club is a great one even now, but there are always girls and boys coming into the neighborhood who for one reason or another have not yet heard of our club. They will be thankful to you if you will tell them about it. Every member who gets another member before next Saturday will be given my picture. If you are not a member now, send in your membership at once, then get another member and you will be sent my picture so you will know what I look like.

I am starting another new plan this week, too. I know the birthdays of some boys and girls, and I want to know all of them. Those that I do know, that fall in the next week, I am printing on this page to-day. If any of your friends are among them, don't forget to call them up and wish them many happy returns.

Now, get busy at once and get in those extra members, and send in your entry. If you haven't yet joined the club, send in your application form with your competition entry and your name will be entered in my club book. Then I will send you a nice blue and white badge and a membership card.

OUR WEEKLY MEETING.

Seeing that our members are not yet properly organized, we can't have a real weekly meeting, but I have some letters from boys and girls who are members of other branches of our club, just to show you the nice letters we can have from you to print on our page. Here they are:

Dear Seck:

I am going to be a member of your club at last. I enclose a membership blank for myself. I hope I can win one of the prizes, as I would like very well to have one of your books. Your stories are fine. You haven't any idea how proud I will be of your button. I think the stories for this month are good.

Yours fair and square,

ROY VAN NOTE, 12,
200 Platt Ave., Mattoon, Ill.

Next on the program is the cheerful little message from one of our Ohio members, who has some very interesting things to tell about a pet crow that can talk:

Hello, Seck:

How are you geting along after your excitement? I will tell you a true crow story about our pet crow that talks. It has said many things such as "I want outside I want a bath—Hello, Donald come here" (Donald is my brother). He does say it as plain as you or I would, but it is plain enough. Perhaps not many of our club members know a crow has a bath each day if possible. Last winter our crow took a bath in the snow, if we did not give him the water.

Hoping you enjoyed my crow story, I will close,

Yours, fair and square,

ELOISE SIDLE, 11,
Nashport, O.

Down in the beautiful mountains of old Kentucky lives one of our most enthusiastic members who has just written us as follows:

Dear Seckatary Hawkins:

I've been wanting to join your club for a long time, but I just never did write. My friend is a member, and I was all excited over the idea of being a member. She has a "Seckatary Hawkins" game, and I've played with her lots. I would like to have a pin so I could show my friends that I was a member of your club. Can you enter in the contest when you are just joining? I am going to try. I would like to know some of the members. I enjoy your stories awfully much. I will encourage my friends and get them to joint. I enjoy the meetings every week, and I try to save the papers. We have a radio, and I try to get your programs. We have only got it once, but it was good. Yours, fair and square,

LYDIA GILBERT,
Pineville, Ky.

Now, aren't those nice letters? And can't you write one just as nice? Send it in this week and have it printed.

The meeting will now be adjourned, and next week when we have lots more members we will gather around this page again. You will notice the nice things these boys and girls write about the books I give as prizes. Why don't you try to get one?

I want just lots of new members this week, and I want them all to get new members so I can send my picture.

Bye till next week.

Yours fair and square,

Seckatary Hawkins

COGS WILL MEET RAYBESTOS IN THE FINALS

VANNEST HOLDS CRESCENTS TO 5-0 DECISION

Strikes Out Ten of Twenty-three Batsmen to Face Him.

ALLOWS TWO HITS.

First Game of Play-offs Will Be Staged On Monday Night.

Vannest was too good for Crescents last night, and Cognawagas with a 5 to 0 score, qualified to meet Raybestos in the E.P.L. playoffs, the first game of which will be played on Monday evening. Vannest with a world of speed whiffed ten of the twenty-three batsmen to face him and he allowed but two hits, Joe Jones doing all the clouting for his team when he doubled in the first frame and singled in the seventh. Vannest retired the side on strike-outs twice, and only in the first and fourth saw four Crescents step to the plate. And he issued but one pass.

Bun Frost went along fine until the fifth which he opened with a pass to Billingsley, who stole second on a nice slice. The runner also slid into third when a fielder's choice to Heard was turned on the big fellow at the bag. Crary in the meantime had fanned, but Delahaye started a batting rally, and assisted by a wild peg over third by the catcher, the Cogs proceeded to get four runs. They got a gift run in the sixth.

Freddy Jones, Williams and Billingsley, each nabbed a hard fly and the Crescents had two double plays. Cogs finished the Crescents in the seventh with a double killing that looked good.

Crescents won the toss, and Cogs opened by going out in a row, Wilson on a fly to F. Jones, Corbett on a drive to L. LeBarr, while Vannest was thrown out by the pitcher.

Cogs failed to make headway in the second going out in order, and Crescents fared no better.

Delahaye's weak effort from third was a break for Crescents in the third With one gone, Delahaye's grounder went through Williams. Cripps sizzled one into middle, sending Delahaye to third. Cripps went to second and a run looked promising. Wilson grounded down third, and when Delahaye delayed his start for home as the ball was shot over to first to get Wilson, he was doubled easily at the plate.

There was nothing doing for Crescents against the dazzling speed of the Cogs' heaver. Ted LeBarr and Heard were struck out and F. Jones was pegged out at first by Wilson.

The fourth saw Cogs quickly disposed of on a fly to Heard, a grounder to Williams and a strikeout.

With two gone, Vannest issued his only pass of the game to Bob Ross. Ted LeBarr did the running and stole second where he watched brother Lew miss three.

In the fifth, the Cogs' hooters had a field day. Billingsley walked and stole second. Crary fanned. Baker grounded to Heard who threw to third but failed to get Billingsley. Delahaye singled out to Joe Jones, Billingsley scoring. Baker reached third on the throw-in and was homeward bound when he decided to retire to third. An accurate throw by the catcher might have caught the runner, but the ball went over Williams' head, allowing Baker to amble in. Then Cripps came along with a single into left to score Delahaye. Cripps took second on a passed ball and after Wilson had fanned, was hit home by Corbett's single into left. F. Jones ended the uproar with a fine running catch of Vannest's foul fly.

Vannest without a sign of a let-up burned the ball through Williams, Frost and Ted LeBarr for three strikeouts, making it ten in the five frames.

The sixth brought a cheap run to the Cogs. Rooke was safe when his drive was deflected off Frost to Ross who just missed getting the runner. Then a funny play happened. Billingsley popped the ball, and Brioux fell missing the catch. Rooke hesitated until the ball dropped and then tore for second. Frost hurried in to retrieve the spalding. His throw to second went through Heard and out to J. Jones. Rooke did some fast sprinting and scored. Crary hit into a double play and Baker grounded out.

Johnny Wilson started the Crescents twice in their half but both runners were stopped. The Cogs' shortstop fumbled Heard's grounder, but on an attempted steal the runner was sandwiched and finally tagged by Wilson. On Jones' grounder, Wilson relieved himself of a low throw, after which he took a peg from Delahaye to get the runner going into second. Next he took a hard drive from Brioux and threw him out at first.

The seventh showed a stonewall defence by Lew LeBarr, when his shins knocked down a drive from Delahaye to hold the runner at first. Cripps who brought grief in the sixth struckout, followed by Wilson, and Corbett lined out to first, giving LeBarr his tenth putout in as many chances.

There was just the suspicion that the seventh would bring Crescents some luck, when Joe Jones looped one between Wilson and Billingsley for a base Billingsley, however, put a damper on the proceedings by spearing a hard fly from Ross. Jones was still on first when Lew LeBarr hit to the pitcher,. Vannest shot the ball to Crary and it travelled fast to Rooke for a double play, to end the game.

VIEWS ON SPORT

Errors proved costly for the Teco Storemen last night when they lost a 13-5 decision to the North-Enders last night in a City Softball League fixture.

* * * * * * *

Dundas started the fireworks for Harrison's, being the first man up to bat he clouted a homer far over centre field. Encouraged by this the victors scored five runs in this frame.

* * * * * * *

The worst play the Teco crew pulled was in the ninth inning, when three men went after a fly, and all collided, letting the ball take its own course. The Storemen will have to tighten up if they wish to be in the play-offs at the end of the schedule, as they were lacking in scoring and fielding last night.

* * * * * * *

The spectators believed that Tommy Holyman, umpire-in-chief at the plate, was terrible, and did not mind telling him so; but this did not cut any ice with Tommy, as he caused disaster to fall on the weakening Teco boys when he put Max Board out of the game in the seventh for talking back to him.

* * * * * * *

Cognawagas qualified to meet the Raybestos in the city section of the E.P.L. when they defeated the Crescents by a 5-0 count in a sudden death game to break the tie for second place last night. The first game of the play-offs will be played on Monday night.

* * * * * * *

Vannest did stellar work on the mound for the victors, allowing but two hits and fanning ten out of twenty-three batsmen that faced him. Both teams played good ball up until the fifth inning, when Delahaye, for the Cogs, started a batting rally that netted them four runs before the close of the frame. They scored their final run in the sixth.

C.G.E. and Harrison play on Monday night to open the softball league program, while Teco and K. of C. are slated for Tuesday. Wednesday is left off the calendar. Teco and C.G.E. meet on Thursday, with Lock Works and Harrison on Friday.

North-Enders Defeat Teco 13-5

HARRISON'S PILE UP LEAD IN 1ST FRAME

Storemen Play Loose Ball Both at Bat and in the Field.

ERRORS COSTLY.

The North-Enders were not in the last bit superstitious in the softball fixture last night in Confederation Park, when they stopped at the number 13. The number 13 was, however, on the heavy end of the score, which was a winner's figure instead of the usual loser's figure and which was eight counters ahead of the Teco Stores, who couldn't break past five.

For the Storemen, errors were costly. In the first frame they played in a daze. Dundas, the Harrison pitcher, probably was the chief course of their stage fright, as he was the first man up and drove a long homer past centre field, while for a length of time too long for a baseball game the Teco fielders stood and marvelled. Everyone was hitting them in the first frame, and Dormer was given poor support. Four men had a trip to the plate, and three runs were scored before the first putout of the game, while two more runs crossed later in the innings. But before there were three put-outs, there were five counters chalked up, which was a decided handicap for Max Board's crew to handle.

The second was scoreless for both teams, while in the Teco half of the third the Storekeepers broke loose, got the breaks while the Harrison field weakened for a brief space of time and scored four runs, which made things look more like a ball game for a while, as the Northerners were leading now by only one run. But this did not last long, and the Harrison crew scored three counters as a comeback and to put them four in the lead in the fourth innings.

The fifth was scoreless, while Harrisons scored one in the sixth, and in the last half of the seventh Teco scored their last counter, while the Harrison gang were not content to be idle they piled up their lead to thirteen in the ninth.

Teco changed their team around; first in the fifth, Maher replaced Sexsmith in centre field, and when they got the bad break in the seventh Forsythe went on second, and Miller covered first. The changes were not at all effective, as the Eaton crew simply seemed to have an off night and couldn't do anything right, while the other team couldn't do anything wrong, except in the third when everything went wrong for them.

Both third baggers turned in a wonderful card, each making numerous assists. Bradshaw, a newcomer to Teco, and Dallin to Harrison's covered the third base. The rookies showed up well. Fred Scates, after looking bad on one fly, redeemed himself with a couple of lovely catches, while Montgomery, in centre field for Harrison's, had five putouts to his credit.

Board, before his elimination, was going real good, and Saunders in left field was not to be forgotten. Dundas, for Harrison's, found himself in his old stand again on top of the mound and pitched a nice game, having two strikeouts to his credit, beside the assists with which he was credited.

E. Vinnette in the fourth pulled a pretty steal. He was trapped between second and third when the ball reached third before him and so he started back to second while Bradshaw began to close in on him and when Bradshaw threw to second Vinette was off in a cloud of dust for third and reached there safely.

GIANTS ROUT PHILLIES 8-4

TIGHT CONTESTS.

NEW YORK Aug. 11.—(Canadian Press.) — The Giants rallied in the seventh yesterday to rout the Phillies by 8 to 4 in the opener of a two-game series and so kept pace with the Cardinals, who defeated the Pirates, 2 to 1. St. Louis remains four games ahead of New York.

Fred Lindstrom drove in five of the New York runs, three in the first with his eleventh homer and two more in the seventh with a single after Reese had been passed intentionally to fill the bases. Bill Terry topped off his rally with his eleventh homer with two on, and the Giants had enough markers to win with room to spare.

St. Louis defeated Pittsburgh 2 to 1 in a twelve inning pitchiers' battle, Fussell and Mitchell, both southpaws, tying up in one of the best games played here in several seasons.

Fussell allowed only five hits up until the twelfth, when he weakened and Mitchell was taken out in the final inning to allow High to bat for him. The Cards won out when Hafey doubled and scored on Wilson's single.

Dazzy Vance was at his best yesterday and the Robins had little trouble in subduing the Braves, 5 to 1, in the opener of a three-game series at Brooklyn, once they got their sights trained upon the offerings of Ed. Brandt. Del Bissonette opened the scoring in the fourth with his nineteenth home run, but the Braves tied this in the sixth. In the home half of the same round, the Robins bunched hits for three runs and never thereafter were headed. A fifth run was added in the eighth after Ben Cantwell had relieved Brandt.

Vance allowed the Braves just five singles and struck out seven. He gave three free passes.

Inside Sportin' Dope—By a Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, the local ball team hasn't moved a wheel since the last time I wrote you, yet they win a game just the same. It all come about because the Kingston Ponies is bankrupt, and Joe Daley and his merry men have dropped outa the race. Ain't it a shame they didn't drop out before they started? They went long enough to make the Petes' battle for a place in the play-offs about as tough a fight as Mister Joe Wright has had over there in the Olympic skulls. Just 5 times in the same place them Ponies kicked us, and if it wasn't for them we would be sitting pretty and all set for the play-offs.

Kingston never did bring us any luck any time, and if they never reappear in the Central loop that will be quite soon enough so far as the Petes is concerned. Them Ponies got a bad habit of quitting when the going is none too good, and 1 time after winning the league championship they left the Central without a representative in the Ont. play-offs by dropping outa the final serious. So next time the Ponies wants to get into this league the Central moguls oughta do a lotta thinking before they extend a welcome mit to the Easterners.

The Petes was all primed last Sat. to take a fall outa their chief opposition, Oshawa, but Old Man Thunderstorm got to the park before Oshawa did, and when he got through with his performance, they was nothing left of the diamond but a wading pool. And the Petes, humming "Only Another Day Wasted Away," gathered in the dressing-room and said things about the weather that your paper, going into the best homes, wouldn't dare repeat, even if I could remember it all. Just when this postponed fixture will be played ain't known yet, but the Petes play Belleville here Sat. and in Oshawa next Wed., and they pretty near gotta cop 'em both to figger in the play-offs, while Deloro can help a whole lot by taking a game or 2 outa the Motorists. Oshawa hadn't played a game in Deloro this summer up to Sat., getting rained out every time they started for Bob Elliott's bailiewick.

Well, the Olympics is about over, Mac, and the lads and lassies from here done well. The ½ doz. women grabbed the women's championship, which you gotta admit was a smart piece of work, and the boys done a whole lot better on the track than any 1 figgered they would. And the whole issue kept the name of Canada in front of the world all the way through, so it was good business sending the teams over, although next time a lotta people hope the officials sent in charge of the team won't be so ready to talk as the last bunch. The way they kicked was the only thing over there faster'n Percy Williams.

Well, Mac, this is plenty for a hot day, so I'll sign off for the week.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

P.S.—I forgot to mention, Mac, Mister Alex. Kay from here was to Hamilton umpiring the senior play-offs there. He come back alive, so he can't be as bad as some local fans sez he is.

ORIOLES IN FOURTH PLACE

Rochester Placed in 6th Position By Losing 10-3 to Baltimore.

NEWARK IN FIFTH.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 11 (Canadian Press).—Baltimore Orioles took the first game of the series from the Rochester Red Wings here yesterday afternoon, 10 to 3, to go into undisputed possession of fourth place in the league standing and push the New York staters back to sixth position in the International pennant race. Before the game, the two teams were tied for the fourth position.

Chambers held the Red Wings to seven hits during the afternoon, four of which were gathered by Gelbert, visiting shortfielder, one of which was his 18th home run of the season and another was a triple. He scored twice and batted in the third run for the visitors.

Newark in Fifth Place

NEWARK, N.J., Aug. 11 (Canadian Press).—Newark moved into fifth place yesterday by defeating the Buffalo Bisons six to five in an eight-inning game, when rain stopped further play. The ninth had just started and the Bisons had scored two runs on singles by Archdeacon and Thomas and a triple by Fisher when the storm broke and the score reverted back to the eighth. The Bears trailed to the fifth when Fournier tied up the score with a homer, coming when the bases were loaded. The Bears go their sixth run in the eighth due to the wildness of Holingsworth, who forced in the winning run. In the eighth the game was halted by Umpire Soloday, who demanded the removal of a fan from the grand stand for annoying remarks. The fan refused to leave until Manager Johnson spoke to him, stated that unless he left, the game would be declared forfeited.

READING, Pa., Aug. 11 (Canadian Press).—Reading won the first of the series from Montreal yesterday afternoon, 10 to 3, by pounding Don Miller for 16 base hits good for 31 bases. The Keys walloped six doubles and three home runs. George Quellich hit two home runs on successive appearances at bat. Dutch Legett hit the other Reading homer. The second game of a scheduled double header was stopped by rain at the end of the first half of the first inning, with Montreal leading by 1 to 0.

GEHRIG CLOUTS 20TH HOME RUN

ATHLETICS WIN 8-0.

NEW YORK, August 11. — Canadian Press. — Lou Gehrig's bat held the centre of the stage yesterday afternoon as the Yankees defeated the Red Sox by 5 to 2 in the second game of the series at Boston. Lou's twentieth home run in to the centrefield bleachers, with two mates on base and two out in the third, gave the Yankees all the margin they really needed to defeat Charlie Ruffing. In the seventh Gehrig's single chased in Combe.

Boston outhit New York but was unable to bunch its drives with any success. George pipgras was at his best in the pinches. He seemed to specialize in fanning pinch batsmen at critical points.

The Mackmen cinched the game in the third inning by pounding Gaston for five hits that scored four runs.

Jack Quinn held the Senators to four hits in blanking them for his fifteenth victory of the season. Bucky Harris who tripled in the last inning was the ony Senator to travel beyond first base.

Chicago bunched their hits in two innings and took the opening game of the series with St. Louis at Chicago by a 5 to 3 score. Clancy's double with two out and the bases filled sent three runs over n the first inning and in the eighth after the Browns had tied the score, the White Sox hammered out four hits to score twice and provide the margin of victory.

Blankenship got in trouble in the ninth and Lyons relieved him to fan Bettencourt and Manush.

A five run rally by the Indians in the ninth failed to stave off defeat, Detroit finishing on the long end of an 8 to 7 score at Cleveland.

The Tribesmen outhit the Tigers 16 to 12 but eight of the visitors' blows were doubles, and two were triples. Detroit pounded Hudlin hard in the early innings and kept up the attack against Miljus. The Redskins chased Holloway in the ninth, and Van Gilder finished the game for Detroit.

YOUTH WINS GOLF HONORS

High School Sophomore New Western Junior Golf Champion.

HAD LOW SCORE.

CHICAGO, Aug. 11.— (Canadian Press.)—Leading from medal play to the final match, Richard C. Mullin, a 17 year old high school sophomore of Chicago, yesterday won the western junior golf championship by defeating Tom Cooley of Kankakee, Ills., six and four, in the 36 hole finals at the Glenview Club.

Mullin had the title well in his grasp from the first day of the tournament and only by spells yielded any one else a ghost of a chance. He qualified with a 73, one over par, and won three of his matches by six and five and another by 3 and 2, before he took the finals handily, although with not such a good medal score.

SALMONBELLIES TEACHER

GORDON "GRUMPY" SPRING, one of the greatest inside home players that ever wielded a lacrosse stick, is manager and coach of the New Westminster Salmonbellies, who represent Canada at the Olympic Games. The Salmonbellies defeated Weston, Ontario champions, in the finals for the Mann Cup, emblematic of the Canadian championship, last summer. New Westminster has been the cradle of western lacrosse for forty years and the town always turns out a first-class team. "Grumpy" starred as an amateur and then turned professional in the days of hectic rivalry between Vancouver and New Westminster. Spring, then a featherweight, used to flash across the front of the net, take a pass in the air, and slam the ball into the net over the shoulder of the goalie. He was the leading scorer in western lacrosse for many years.

SOFTBALL.

(Examiner Staff Correspondence)

CAMPBELLFORD, August 11. — A meeting of the Softball League executive has been called in order that there may be no misunderstanding of the rules of the play-offs. It has been distinctly stated that each of the final games must consist of a complete nine innings. The game on Thursday night was not quite up to standard. When the umpires called the game on account of darkness, the Outlaws were at bat. They were one run behind and had one man out with two men on bases. It was impossible for the players to see the ball and to make a play was more a matter of good luck than good management. The game was fifteen minutes late starting, and when there was time lost at various intervals, it was impossible to complete the nine innings. Unless something unforeseen occurs, the game will be replayed Monday at the usual time.

Much sympathy has been expressed for Leo Bush, the plucky catcher, who was so unfortunate as to suffer a fractured leg in the game last night. It is the wish of the executive of the league to express the sympathy of the fans and players in some material way. Bush will be off work for at least six weeks and will not be able to play ball again this season. It is expected that every member of the executive will be present at the special meeting, to be held at J. H. Bell's residence, Grand road, at nine o'clock Saturday evening.

DOLORES COSTELLO COMING IN MELODRAMA OF THE SEA

Dolores Costello celebrated in other great sea pictures, is again starred in a melodrama of stormy waters—"A Million Bid," a Warner Brothers' production, which comes to the Regent Theatre next Monday for a run of two days.

In "A Million Bid," Miss Costello is cast as a poor little rich girl, the victim of her mother's selfishness. She is practically sold to a middle-aged man of the world and separated from the youth she loves. It is on the rich man's yacht just after the marriage, that the boat goes down, bearing with it the mother, and apparently the bridegroom. The girl and her maid are finally rowed ashore.

The youth, who is a surgeon, nurses her back to health, marries her. A child is born to the couple, then happens the unexpected. The sea gives up its dead.

Again the fates whirl the two into the valley of despair. Then follows the most dramatic sequences of the tense, glamorous tale.

Dolores Costello has had no part which gives her such opportunity to express the emotional depths and heights of her genius as Dorothy Gordon in "A Million Bid." She has never appeared so wistfully lovely, so universally appealing.

In her support are Warner Oland, greatest of character actors, as the amazing rich man, and handsome Malcolm McGregor, as the young physician. Others in the cast are Douglas Gerrard, William Demarest and Grace Gordon. Michael Curtis directed.

HOLD ANNUAL BIRTHDAY PARTY

(Examiner Correspondence.)

SPRINGVILLE, Aug. 11.—The W.M.S. of Springville held their annual Birthday Party in the church basement on Tuesday of this week. The attendance was good, considering the busy season.

A number of the Fairmount society were present and some visitors from other parts, including Mrs. Wallace of Vermont, Mrs. Halliday, of Saskatchewan and Miss Staples of Woodville.

During the program the president, Mrs. Johnston was in the chair. The meeting was opened as usual by hymns and prayer. The Scripture lesson consisted of twelve verses, found in both the Old and New Testament, all bearing on the subject of "Serve and Service."

One of these verses was read by each of twelve different ladies.

Opening prayer was led by Mrs. A. Hunter.

The devotional exercises were followed by a short program of entertainment as follows:

1. A Reading by Miss J. Fairbairn—"As Red Men Die," by Pauline Johnston.

2. Solo by Miss Hazel Hall—"In the Garden of To-morrow."

3. Reading by Miss Esma Johnston—The Well of St. Keyne, by Robert Southey.

Others who were to have contributed to the program were unavoidably prevented from being present at the meeting.

A Spelling Match created much fun and excitement. Captains and sides were chosen—practically all present taking part. The words were given out by Mrs. M. Johnston and proved to be short, simple, yet difficult when sprung upon one unawares. The spelling was good, yet one side retained a few of its members long enough to win.

This match was so much enjoyed that another type of Spelling Match was held—one in which each person in turn adds a letter to a word already begun, trying not to complete the word with the letter they must add. Of course it necessarily falls the lot of some one to add the final letter so that person drops out and the next person starts a new word. This continues until the one winner remains.

This seemed to demand undivided attention as the majority of lengthy words are made up of several syllables, each part being a complete word in itself.

The delightful afternoon was brought to a close by the serving of refreshments—sandwiches, cake, tarts and tea.

During the preparation of the lunch stunts were performed on the lawn by the young folk.

Mount Vesuvius, above, is in eruption and is likely to continue for several days. A mouth of fire opened on the southwest side of the crater, and a large quantity of highly-liquified lava poured forth, rapidly forming a lake about 70 metres in diameter. A small cone blew off about 30 metres of its top, which was thrown over a considerable distance.

(Unofficial Opinions on the Markets

MONTREAL, Aug. 10.—The local market yesterday was steady, although no very large advances were recorded. Massey-Harris came to life, and touched a high of 41½, for a gain of over 4 points from the low of this week. Brazilian Traction was the only active issue and held steady throughout the session. With the exception of Brompton, the "paper" stocks were firm, with Port Alfred advancing 4 points to 68.

The strength in Massey-Harris did not come as a surprise, as it has been known for some time that the company was experiencing an excellent demand for its products. The only reason that was holding back the stock was the fact that market conditions were not favorable for an advance. There is every likelihood of shareholders being given some consideration in the way of a dividend early next year and in this connection, it is predicted that a $2 rate will be inaugurated. Shareholders have had a long wait and the directors are fully cognizant of this fact.

Earnings of Brantford Cordage are reported to be in excess of last year and when the annual statement of the company is published it is expected that the company will be shown in a better position than at any time since incorporation in 1925. Brantford Cordage, located in the city of Brantford, Ont., is the largest manufacturer of binder twine in the British Empire, and, with reports of record breaking crops in Canada demand for the company's product has greatly increased. The company is reported to have effected substantial economies in management and in this manner alone greatly enhanced profits.

There is an excellent possibility that the management of Hiram-Walker-Gooderham ¼ Worts will declare some sort of extra distribution at their dividend meeting in the next week or so. Earnings are known to be running at a satisfactory rate, and it will be recalled that shareholders were assured of a higher dividend disbursement at the last directors' meeting in May, if earnings warranted such a step. The general opinion in the Street is that an extra of 25 cents in addition to the regular dividend of 50 cents will be declared.

As was to be expected, the consistent steadiness of "Nickel" has been accompanied by a number of rumours, the most important of which is that there might be "rights" of a lucrative character offered to shareholders to take care of capital expenditures on the Frood, even though the company has ample resources to finance these without such recourse

The high point to which Mond Nickel shares have gone on the London market may be an indication of a strong belief there that International Nickel and Mond Nickel may merge so as to develop the fabulously rich reef which they share between them on unified plans. Both companies announce very extensive development policies to result in increased production on a large scale in 1930. As nickel will govern output of both, some arrangement between the companies is not unreasonable to expect.

Whilst admittedly the newsprint situation is in an unsettled state at the present time, the weakness of stocks of these companies have been reflected in the securities of Wayagamack and Dryden, neither of which produces newsprint on any extensive scale.

Wayagamack manufacturers principally kraft paper and is running full on this product. There is understood to be a growing demand for kraft paper, and earnings from this source are known to be good. Moreover, the newsprint machines of Wayagamack are running steadily and this additional tonnage takes care of part of the overhead. One insider informed the writer that the actual situation of the newsprint industry does not apply to Wayagamack.

Toronto Trading Light; Mine Exchange Closed

TORONTO, August 11. Canadian Press. — Trading was light on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning, with prices holding firm at former levels. Even the usually active International Nickel dropped to a turn over of three hundred shares, and was up a fraction at 97¼. Brazilian was fractionally higher at 32¼, as was Industrial Alcohol at 38. Standard Bank and Bank of Commerce each advanced two points, the former to 290 and the latter to 296. The same general conditions prevailed on the curb section, where British American Oil was the leader in point of sales. This issue was unchanged at 37. Hiram Walker's in good trading advanced 2½ to 54.

The Standard Mining Exchange was closed to-day.

Wheat Rallies To-day After Opening Weakness

CHICAGO, Aug. 11.— (Canadian Press).—Wheat rallied quickly today from initial decline associated with unexpected setbacks in Liverpool quotations. The weakness aboard was on predictions that the Canadian Government crop report this afternoon would prove bearish. Opening unchanged to one cent lower, wheat sagged a little more and then rose to above yesterday's finish. Corn started one cent off to ⅛ cent up and later showed gains for the new crop months but a pronounced drop for September. Oats were firm.

News From the Mines

Through
Selloway, Mills & Company

NORANDA
According to The Northern Miner, Noranda's production for the first six months of this year was $2,500,000, of which 25 per cent. was gold recovery. The second half should run $3,500,000. "E" ore body on the 600 has been driven for a length of 51 feet with average assay of 14 per cent. copper with splendid gold values. Such a distinct improvement over the 500 foot level was a great surprise to the management, as at no place on this level could the ore be called high grade. Cross-cutting is in progress to intersect the "E" ore body on the 500 foot level, which has already been drifted on for more than 110 feet on the 400, and assays run from 12 to 15 per cent. copper.

A further report states that shaft sinking has been resumed and is being carried on at the rate of six feet a day. While officials of the company are reticent in commenting on present developments, it is reported that the present objective is 1,028 feet, although some despatches state this will be carried to a dept of 1,500 feet. In additon to this, a diamond drilling campaign is proceeding at the 978 foot horizon.

AMULET
According to reports received yesterday, the seven feet of copper ore encountered in the drill hole at the No. 1 showing of this property had an average value of $17 per ton. Further drilling is progressing here and a drill has been moved to the No. 3 showing which has a surface outcrop of high grade zinc and silver.

AMITY
According to the general manager, F. W. Scriven, shipments of ore have been resumed to the Noranda smelter. The seventh car was loaded yesterday. A depth of over 43 feet has been attained by the winze which is being sunk from the 250 foot level to the lower horizon at 350 feet. Depending upon results on this horizon, the winze may be extended another 100 feet to the 450 foot level. The first 30 feet of the winze showed up to 4 feet 8 inches of solid chalcopyrite, but below this point the vein dipped out. The course of the winze was changed to pick up the vein again. Reports yesterday intimate that the change had been successful in bringing a major portion of the vein back into the winze again.

OIL BRIEFS
Sentinel is down 4,630 feet, awaiting arrival of casing.

Stockman No. 2, which has been delayed with casing trouble for a month is again drilling.

Advance No. 5 is down 2,285 feet, drilling with rotary. It is anticipated Dakotas will be reached soon.

Wabash down 1,500 feet, said to be 30 feet into lime.

Okalta No. 1 at 4,650 feet, hard going. No. 2 said to be still going 90 barrels per day. Okalta No. 3 setting 20-inch casing.

McLeod No. 1 not through bridge yet. McLeod No. 3 and 4 drilling in very hard formation.

CROWN RESERVE
According to a report just received from Kirkland Lake this company has cut its No. 2 vein on the seventh level, and it is said to be well mineralized.

They have purchased the Associated Goldfields' compressor and it is now connected with their own plant. Three more machines are being put into operation immediately.

NORANDA AND WAITE-MONTGOMERY
Accordig to advice received this morning from our field man in Ropyn, a diamond drill has been set up 3,000 feet west of the present No. 3 shaft, which probably has to do with the spotting of a site for new shaft. In additon to this a diamond drill hole is being put down vertically from the bottom level. The report further states that the first shipment of ore from the Waite to the smelter ran 13 per cent. copper, and that shipments are now leaving regularly.

Mining Briefs

A Special Service to The Examiner

TORONTO, Aug. 11.—According to a report just received from Kirkland Lake this company have cut their No. 2 vein on the seventh level, and it is said to be well mineralized. They have purchased the Associated Goldfields' compressor and it is now connected with their own plant. Three more machines are being put into operation immediately.

Teck-Hughes, which stepped up production in the first quarter of 1928 to a rate of $5,500,000 per annum and promises to maintain that record, has declined, in face of the placing of the dividend on a 60 per cent basis. Possible the huge development campaign recently laid down which involves the sinking of two shafts or winzes to a depth of 3,600 feet, has removed for the time being some of the speculative element from the stock. The company, however, is preparing for much bigger things.

Wright-Hargreaves on the 1,900-foot level have cut a vein in the shaft showing considerable free gold.

Presumably, Pioneer Mining Corporation will have a one-third interest in the Northern Manitoba property on which Huronian Belt Company has secured an option. Pioneer shares have not changed materially in price. This company's Michipicoten properties have reached an interesting stage of development. The shaft on the Jubilee Break is completed down to 5.25 feet and cross-cutting is now well forward toward the ore zone indicated by diamond drills. Important news should come from this enterprise before long.

According to the latest reports the N.A.M.E. ship "Patrick and Michael" is off the coast of Hudson Bay.

Towagmac has during the past seven months fluctuated considerably, but is selling now at about the price prevailing at the beginning of the year. Important developments have taken place during that period. The Lake Geneva Mines, which was first to develop a lead-zinc property of proven merit, adds to the possibilities of Towagmac, which holds a controlling interest. Cross-cutting is now under way at the 1,125-foot level at Aldernac to open up two high-grade copper-gold ore bodies is also important. Soon Towagmac may form another company to develop its Lake Fortune property. Towagmac has other promising prospects coming on. Towagmac is proving raw properties out of the interest it receives from The Kamiskotia Development Syn-management is in a nice position. its investments, and considering its dicate is extending its activities to other fields. Mr. Owens, a director and field engineer for the syndicate states that he staked a group of claims for the syndicate in the vicinity of the Anglo-Sudbury Mines, Limited.

TORONTO, August 11.—In a summary of the iron, steel and machinery markets, Canadian Machinery and Manufacturing News makes the following comment this week:

Demand, despite the noticeable falling off in pig iron as the big contract ran out, remains steady and the iron and steel markets are holding their place without much effort. The recent United States' steel advance is still quoted but has not been secured, as business is being done at lower rates.

Warehouse reports indicate considerable activity in building construction all over the Dominion. Toronto firms report excellent business and very bright prospects for the future. It is estimated that present contracts will occupy the remainder of the year, operating at full capacity, to execute.

The cumulative total of building contracts let during the first seven months of 1928 is 21.8 per cent over the same period of 1927.

The Steel Company of Canada have just announced a huge expansion program involving an expenditure of six or seven million dollars to be spread over the next three years. The directors report that the 1928 volume of business has encouraged them to embark on this program which is necessary to them if they are going to expand as the Dominion grows.

Belting manufacturers report dull business, mostly repairs and hand-to-mouth buying. The reason given is that the majority of firms are watching their costs very carefully and repairing where they formerly bought. Nickel and zinc reports indicate a poor market and weak demand. Copper and brass are fluctuating with a tendency to rise. Belting prices will probably advance during September.

Crop reports from western Canada continue good, while most of the Dominion's industrial concerns are busy. Employment conditions are the best since 1920.

TORONTO, August 10.—(Canadian Press).—Ernst Vierkotter, winner of last year's Wrigley Marathon, has indicated he will start in this year's race on September 5. Gertrude Ederle is almost sure to start. Neither has yet filed an entry, however.

DOUBLE CONCERT IN VICTORIA PARK

Large Crowd Hears S. A. Band and the Male Voice Choir.

Victoria Park was the scene of a large gathering of citizens and children last evening, to listen to a double bill of music. From eight to nine o'clock the band of the Salvation Army discoursed a splendid program. At nine o'clock Peterborough Male Voice Choir entertained the assemblage with vocal selections, which were enjoyed greatly. Their program opened with "O Canada," and chorus, "The Trumpet Sounds" was followed by a solo by Miss Jessie Pattison, 'Dear Little Boy of Mine," with encore, "Dreams." The Harmonica Quartette (Messrs. Wearing, McCannan, Reynolds and Thompson) caught the fancy of the people, and on two occasions rendered varied numbers. A chorus, "Volga Boat Song," by the choir, was followed by community singing, heartily joined in by young and old, and Joe Wearing wielded the baton in the two periods—and Joe "did handsome." Singing is enjoyed by our people as much as any exercise of community effort. Frank Pratt sang "Bells of the Lighthouse" with a fine swing; and with the National Anthem the last concert by the Male Voice Choir for this season was concluded. Martin B Chenhall, A.R.C.O., choir director, was accompanist during the evening.

Wedding Bells

SWANGER—WALSH

A quiet wedding took place on Monday morning, August 6, at St. James' Parsonage, of Elsie Bertha, second eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Walsh to William Clifford Swanger of New Hudson, Michigan, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. William Swanger, Peterborough.

The attendants were Louis Walsh, sister of the bride, and Mark Swanger, brother of the bridegroom. After a dainty luncheon the happy couple left on the noon train for Oshawa and points West.

GRIFFIN—COUVERT

A very pretty wedding was solemnized on Monday, August 6, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Couvert, Roseneath, when their daughter, Eliza Helen, became the bride of Frederick C. Griffin, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Griffin of Peterborough, the Rev. Mr. Wylie of Roseneath officiating.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of old rose brocaded satin with hat to match. She was attended by Miss Susie Couvert, sister of the bride, wearing a green silk frock trimmed with green and sand paisley and hat to match. Mr. Thomas Griffin, brother of the groom, acted as best man.

A dainty wedding breakfast was served to about fifty guests. Many handsome gifts received by the bride and groom testified to the high esteem in which they were held.

In the evening a dance was given to about two hundred people, in honor of the young couple.

FUSEE—REED

On Saturday, August 4, at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Percy C. Chrysler, 34 Patricia Drive, Toronto, the marriage was solemnized of Sara Mae, daughter of the late William Reed, and Mrs. Reed of Toronto, to Clarence L. J. elder son of the late Rev. C. H. Fusee, and Mrs. Fusee of Peterborough.

Rev. Fred Reed, returned missionary from China, brother of the bride, and the groom performed the ceremony.

GOOD PROGRAM FOR REGATTA

McCracken's Landing To Be Scene of Aquatic Sports On Thursday.

DANCE CLOSES DAY.

With fifteen events scheduled, McCracken's Landing Regatta, to be held on Thursday, August 16, is to be one of the finest this year. Stoney Lake is an ideal place for such a meet, and McCracken's Landing, as well as being a centre for summer cottagers, is on the mainland, which will make it easy for those motoring to reach the scene of the activities.

With the slogan "It Pays to Play," the capable committee, H. E. Ringel, chairman, A. F. Choate, secretary, C. G. Porter, W. F. Hall, J. O. McCarthy, D. M. Hall, C. Strickland, J. M. R. Fairbairn, and H. F. Choate, are planning a real time for the entrants and expect that these will be numerous in each event.

The sailing events will take place at 10.30 in the morning, when the events scheduled are: Canoe sailing, dinghy sailing for fourteen-foot boats, and open sailing.

Starting at two o'clock in the afternoon the other aquatic events are scheduled: Skiff racing, swimming races, canoe races, tilting and novelty races make out a well-rounded program. The races will be made much keener since special canoes and skiffs are barred.

The day will be brought to a close by a regatta dance in that attractive spot known as Wantasa Tea Room, which for many will be the end of a perfect day. From all advance notices everything is going over big.

CORN OFFERED THIS MORNING

Makes First Appearance of the Season On Farmers' Market.

PRODUCE SCARCE.

Corn made its first appearance on the market this morning. There was only one lot noticed for sale which was of small size and for which the vendor was receiving 25 cents a dozen. Huckleberries were still making their appearance and fine berries were selling for $1.25 for a nine quart pail, or 20 cents a quart.

The supply of produce in the market hall was very small while there was a large number of buyers. Eggs were selling for 40 cents a dozen for regulars, 43 cents a dozen for extras and 45 cents a dozen for extra specials. Broilers and spring chickens were selling for 40 cents a pound, while older chickens undersold them by only two cents or 38 cents a pound.

An automatic water pump demonstrated by Goodfellow and Welsh attracted a good deal of attention from the farmers, while the auction sale drew the usual crowd. The market appeared quite quiet after the hectic day last Saturday. The medicine men this week were noticeable by their absence.

BIRTH.

LOFTUS.— To Mr. and Mrs. Louis Loftus (nee Bessie Levine) at Nicholls Hospital, Friday, August 10th, 1928, a son.

If you buy out of town, and I buy out of town, and all our neighbors buy out of town, what in thunder will become of our town? Ever think about it?

ernments continually urge farmers to have their products graded before offering them for sale. The fact is, and this is well known, that for years the grain dealers have unmercifully discounted the value of farmers' products when they were not graded. They have then graded them themselves and reaped the benefit of the higher prices that resulted. Through the Grain Pool, farmers are taking this extra profit for themselves and grain dealers do not like it.

"Mr. Kennedy seems concerned over the welfare of the local elevator operators and millers. This concern on his part is rather amusing in view of the fact that for years past grain operators like Mr. Kennedy have been buying Ontario grain and shipping it to the States where it has been mixed with the United States wheat which, before the pool commenced operations in Ontario, sold for as much as 4 cents a bushel above the price our Ontario farmers could get for their Ontario grain. During the past year Ontario wheat for the first time has been graded and sold in Great Britain as Ontario wheat by the Wheat Pool, and has realized from 4c to 6c a bushel above United States wheat of the same grade. The fact is that both the Ontario Elevator Operators' Association and the Millers' Association have passed resolutions expressing approval of the Ontario Wheat Pool and their willingness to co-operate with it. The Wheat Pool has been using the facilities offered by the local elevators and millers wherever it was possible to do so.

"Mr. Kennedy's statement is full of misleading arguments and insinuations, and is not likely to be taken seriously by our well-informed farmers who know pretty well who have obtained the highest prices for their wheat, those inside the pool or those outside of it, and who for this reason are now joining the pool by thousands."

DRAYTON'S PLAN WILL BE ADOPTED

Exporters Vote in Favor

Liquor Control Board Chairman Wishes to Stop Short Circuiting.

WILL CHECK EXPORTS.

Runners Abandon Idea of Legal Battle When Board Stands By Challenge.

(Special to The Examiner)

WINDSOR, Ont., Aug. 13.—Sir Henry Drayton, chairman of the Ontario Liquor Control Commission has won the first round in the "clean-up" process to get rid of the "export business' at Windsor, which is alleged to be nothing more than a mere accommodation to facilitate the smuggling of beer and liquors back into the province, over which the Liquor Commission can have no control.

The exporters concerned, after a conference here, are in favor of Sir Henry's plan of establishing warehouses where the liquor exports can be checked.

In the stocks now under seizure there are all kinds of liquor, from beer to champagne and the best of French and Spanish sparkling wines. There is every brand of Scotch whiskey known to the most experienced connoisseur. This is not the product of any Canadian distillery, and the vendors of it have no license from the Commission to embark on this kind of business.

It is said that there is a solid large fund available to fight the attacks of the Liquor Control Commission on these practices but their intimation having gone forth that the provinnce would spend as much money as the distillers or any one else to preserve its rights, softened the intention of the angered brewers and distillers, who now are understood to favor oversight by the commission.

MINERS HOPE TO STAY HERE

Five Thousand Men Sail, Many Sacrificing To Pay Passage.

FEW WANT TO RETURN.

(By Henry Somerville—Special Cable to The Examiner)
(Copyright.)

LONDON, August 13. — About 5000 miners are now on the ocean for Canada, and another 5000 will embark during the week to aid in the harvest Applications closed on Friday and only A1 men were selected The rapidity of recruiting and mobilization is a credit to the efficiency of the official arrangements and to the eagerness of unemployed Britishers to exchange the dole for a chance to work.

William Straker, secretary of the Northumberland miners' association says the miners are facing the possibility of 200,000 of them never again getting work in the British pits. Mr. Straker says those who thought the miners unwilling to emigrate under government plan did not know their men. "I knew," he said, "that among Northumberland miners we had men who had sacrificed all they possessed to raise sufficient mohey to pay their passage out and we had more who would gladly go if assisted by the government and given a guarantee of employment, at least for a period Most of the men leaving on Friday and Sunday did not have any one to see them off. Their relatives could not afford the expense of a journey from their homes. In cases where friends and relatives were present it seemed to be assumed that the men were not returning after the harvest but were exploring a new land where they hoped to start life anew.

NEW YORK, August 13. — A double honeymoon which started on an automobile tour from Worcester, Mass., came to a tragic ending on the Boston Post Road, just outside of Rye, on Saturday morning, when one bridegroom was killed and the other bridegroom and both brides injured in a collision with a truck.

The dead man was Ellis Partridge, 40 years old, of 25 First Street, Worcester. His bride, who was Miss Hazel E. Engstrom, suffered a fracture of the hip and internal injuries. Alfred Aldrin, the other bridegroom, had a broken nose and severe body bruises, while his bride, who was Miss Carolyn M. Farnstron, is thought to have a fractured skull.

Daniel Castlegrant, of Lynnhurst, N.J., driver of the truck, is being held by the Rye police pending an investigation. According to the police, Aldrin said the accident occurred when the automobile in which the two couples were driving attemped to pass a truck ahead of them. Castlegrant was coming in the opposite direction, he said, and the truck and the car met head on.

The brides were cousins, according to an Associated Press report, and they and the two men had all been close friends for some time. The couples were married on Thursday afternoon. They were on their way to New York when the accident occurred.

QUEBEC, Que., Aug. 13 (Special to The Examiner).—"In our opinion, the proposal by Premier Baldwin to send 21,000 men to Canada is a perfectly sane one," declared Lord Lovat, Under Secretary for the Dominions, upon his arrival in Quebec, on Saturday afternoon in connection with his work as chairman of the Overseas Settlement Committee.

DOES SANTA CLAUS COME TO CANADIANS?

We have read where tourists enter Canada equipped for the hardships of a severe winter, with skiis, sleighs and winter underwear. We also have read where our American cousins think that Halifax and Vancouver are only a hundred miles apart, but this is an event that happened in our own city of Peterborough. While passing an American car The Examiner heard a little child exclaim to its mother: "Why, mother, does Santa Claus really come up here to these Canadians?"

BUILDING TOTAL UP LAST WEEK

C.G.E. Contract For $850,000 Makes Large Increase To Year's Total.

SEVEN OTHER PERMITS.

With the Canadian General Electric Company announcing that K. Sheehy had been awarded the contract for the first building of their $850,000 program and the issuing of seven building permits by City Engineer Parsons during last week, building in this city made a rapid stride forward for so late in the season. In the seven permits issued by Mr. Parson the amount involved was $3,755 as they were mostly for the erection of garages and verandas to homes in the city. The erection of one new home was commenced when A. A. Letellier took out a permit for N. M. Stewart to build a dwelling on Douglas Avenue. The house will be 34 feet by 24 feet of six room type finished with hardwood floors and pine trimming. An electric fireplace will be installed with a hot air heating system.

ENGINE FAILURE CAUSED WRECK

So Air Force Officer Reports To Ottawa on Beaumaris Tragedy.

BOARD TO INQUIRE.

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 13 (Canadian Press).—Engine failure is to blame for the flying tragedy at Beaumaris, Ontario, on Thursday, when an International Airways plane crashed, killing two and injuring five. This opinion is contained in the report of Squadron Leader A. B. Shearer, who has completed a preliminary investigation for the air board.

A board of inquiry will be formed within the next few days by the Department of National Defence. Besides visiting the scene of the accident the board will probably sit in Toronto or Hamilton to hear evidence, it is stated.

The reason for the failure of the plane's engine was not determined by Squadron Leader Shearer. There was no evidence of the machines being overloaded, it is intimated.

MAN INJURED BY BAD FALL

Percy Killenbeck Hurts Ankle When He Falls To Sidewalk.

SCAFFOLD BROKE.

The breaking of a rung which held the cradle of the scaffold on which Percy Killenbeck and Fred Dainton were working, resulted in a nasty fall for Killenbeck and a bad scare for Dainton this morning. Killenbeck suffered a sprained ankle and will have to have it in a paster cast for three to six weeks.

The men were painting the Royal Bank Building and were working on the ledge at the southwest corner of the building when the accident occurred. Killenbeck was working on the lower ledge and was sitting down when the scaffold fell. He tumbled to the sidewalk taking the shock on his legs and injuring his ankle. Dainton, who was standing up at the time, had a miraculous escape. As the scaffold slipped he caught the ledge with his hands and straddled the wire which supports the large Heinzman sign. He clung there until rescued.

Killenbeck was taken into Heintzman's, where he waited for Dr. J. Malcolm McCulloch, who arrived from the clinic and tended to the injured man.

Milwaukee Tourist Spends Week's Vacation in London, Ontario, Bastile

LONDON, Ont. — When George Wetzel set out from his home in Milwaukee, Wis., on a two weeks' vacation, intending to spend the time touring through Canada, he did not expect to spend seven days of the vacation in the jail here.

However, one of the first things he and his friends did on crossing the border line at Detroit was to purchase a liquor permit and secure a quantity of wet goods. In city Police Court he pleaded guilty to driving a car while intoxicated, and Magistrate Gladman imposed the minimum penalty, a term of one week in jail.

While he was a guest of Governor Mitchell at the county bastile, his friend supervised repairs to his motor car so the return journey could start as soon as he was released.

"I would certainly let you off with a fine, especially in view of the fact that you are a visitor to our country, but I have no option; anyhow, a man who drives a motor car while he is intoxicated is certainly a menace," said Magistrate Gladman.

Wetzel and his companion, J. Logan, started drinking at Windsor and the car went into the ditch not far from Glencoe. A passing motorist undertook to tow them out and in doing so stripped the gears and crippled his own car.

FRENCH FINANCIERS STUDY CANADA FOR INVESTMENTS

Associates of Rothschilds Hope To Increase Holdings Here.

TOURING COUNTRY.

Expect Visit Will Lead Up To Closer Understanding Between France and Canada.

TORONTO, Aug. 13.—(Special)—"Frankly we are keenly interested in Canadian investment and are making this journey through Canada to inspect as far as we can the mining, industrial, agricultural and business conditions with a view to increasing our holdings stated Charles Blumenthal, of Paris, the well known industrialist and financier, who is closely connected with the Rothschild family of international fame. Mr. Blumenthal is accompanied by two noted French bankers in the persons of Pierre Vernes and J. E. C. Moffre, both of Paris, the latter of whom has for some time been specializing in Canadian securities.

The visitors, who are travelling with D. E. Watts Montreal investment statistician, will, except for a week's holday at Banff, devote the next five weeks to studying Canadian conditions on the spot.

"I believe" concluded Mr. Blumenthal, "that this visit to Canada should lead up to a still closer understanding between France and the Dominion and also a still keener overseas appreciation of the healthy forward strides being taken by Canada and the great investment advantages thus afforded.

"In my opinion few countries of the world today offer such an attractive field for investment."

CONTROL BOARD HAS OWN BRAND

"Commission No. 1" and "No. 2" Scotch Whiskey Go On Sale To-day.

NOT MADE BY BOARD.

TORONTO, Aug. 13 (Special to The Examiner).—The Ontario Liquor Control Board to-day put on the markets its own brand of whiskey.

"Commission No. 1" and "Commission No. 2" are the official names for the two varieties of liquor offered by the board to the buying public with the seal of the Board's approval on the bottles.

Sir Henry Drayton, Chairman of the board, said to-day, "The blends are bottled in Scotland and bear the Commission's name. The price is $3.30 for the one and $3.50 for the other, which is a little higher grade."

"You are not going into the manufacture of liquor?" he was asked. "Nothing of the sort," he said. "We wanted to have a blend of whiskey that we knew would be good and at the same time could be sold at moderate prices, and this is it."

The damage to the roof amounted to about $25.00.

Elsie Howlett Loses Life In Tragedy On Sunday Afternoon

Gallant Effort Of Rescue By Thomas Bass. Her Companion, Fails to Save Girl—Canoe Upset When Girl Changed Her Position in Boat.

BODY RECOVERED AFTER THREE HOURS DRAGGING OPERATIONS IN THE LAKE

Shifting her position in a canoe in which she was paddling with Thomas Bass, Elsie Howlett, aged about 22, caused the boat to upset, and was drowned in Little Lake yesterday afternoon, about 4.40. Bass was picked up by a motor boat a few minutes later, while the girl's body was recovered at 7.55, after several boatloads of men had dragged that portion of Little Lake for about three hours.

According to Bass, the couple had rented the canoe from Odette's Boat Livery, and had been out about two hours. They were, in fact, on their way to the boathouse when Miss Howlett started to move around, and the canoe upset.

When the two came up Bass caught hold of Miss Howlett, and, in spite of her struggles, pulled her over to the upturned canoe. He managed to hoist her up on to the canoe, but she struggled so that she slipped off the other side, tearing a piece out of his shirt, which she had clutched. The piece of cloth was still in her hand when the body was recovered.

Exhausted by Struggle.

Bass, who is a small man, was exhausted by his struggle with his companion, who was of stouter build, and clung to the canoe, calling for help. Joseph Odette heard his calls and went out in a motor boat with Albert Odette and Joseph Jones. They brought Bass in and turned in the alarm, and in a few minutes boatloads of citizens, with firemen and police, were on the water with grappling irons.

The accident occurred right in the centre of the lake, where the current from the river is strongest, and the exact location of the fatality was not known. The men, in skiffs, punts, canoes, and motor boats, quartered up and down an area about two hundred feet across and one hundred yards long. Bass was not able to point with certainty to the spot, nor were the men who pulled him out.

Recover Body.

Fresh men replaced those who had begun the work, and dusk was closing in, so that it was evident only a few more minutes' work could be done till morning, when Jos. Jacque, handling an iron from a large lumbermen's punt, rowed by four men, felt something catch, start to come up and then break away. Coming back over the same area he struck the body again, bringing the girl's hat to the surface. While his boat was turning round and lining up with a motor boat for another sweep a smaller punt rowed by Martin Rody, with Jack Loucks handling the irons and Gordon Croner steering, crossed the path and brought the body to the surface. Loucks held it until the motor boat came up and took it on board. It was then taken to Mark Street Wharf in charge of Constable Joseph Wheeler.

Dr. J. M. O'Brien was immediately summoned upon the transpiry of the accident, but there was no need for his services, as such a long time had elapsed before the body was found.

Worked in Hotel.

Miss Howlett had been in the city for only two weeks, coming from Niagara-on-the-Lake. She was employed in the kitchen of the Grand Hotel. Her father was notified by telephone and left immediately for Peterborough.

During the dragging operations large crowds gathered on Mark Street Wharf, where the pulmotor was kept in waiting for two hours, at the foot of Burnham Street, and at the end of the McDonald Lumber Company's property.

Dozens of canoes circled around the searchers, while a sea-flea swooped up and down the lake several times, making things uncomfortable for those in the canoes.

Ninth Olympiad Is Brought To Close

Canadians Are Given Medals

Members of Dutch Royal Family Make Presentations To Athletes.

COLORFUL SCENE.

A. A. U. President Congratulated On Showing Made By Canada.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 13.—(Canadian Press).—With members of the Dutch royal family looking on, the ninth Olympiad came to an official close yesterday.

Queen Wilhelmina appeared in the royal box notwithstanding her well known objection to Sunday sports. With the queen were not only the Crown Princess Juliana and the Prince Consort Henry but also the aged Queen Mother Emma whose opposition to sports on the Sabbath has been quite as marked as that of her queenly daughter, as their guests of honor the Dutch Royal family had Swedish and Norweigian Royalty.

Queen Wilhelmina, who wore a shell pink dress with brown fur collar bowed with evident pleasure to the cheers of 40,000 spectators crowding the stadium to capacity.

The Queen's reversal of position on the Olybpic question was explained on the ground that she was greatly interested in all things military and had come primarily to watch the closing events of the Olympic questrian competition.

An hour later than scheduled, the equestrian competition was completed and the Ninth Olmpiad passed into history.

Presentations Made

Prize winners of all nations lined up on the field—some in sports dress, some in uniforms, some in cut-aways, and others in plain business suits— and ranged themselves facing the Royal box. The sun shone brighily and a strong wind kept the flags of all nations merrily in the breeze as the vast audience rose in tribute to winners of Olympic championships.

As the announcer called each nation alphabetically, stating how many firsts, seconds and thirds each won, the lucky contestants marched to the Royal box where Queen Wilhelmina handed out gold medals; Prince Henry silver medals and Count Baillet-Latour, president of the International Olympic Committee the bronze awards.

The Dutch winners received an especially strong hand from the cheering audience but the other victors were not neglected.

The Italians gave Queen Wilhelmina the Fascist salute. Loud cheers greeted Prince Olaf of Norway, who headed the Norwegian athletes, as he appeared to take the yachting gold medal.

Four First Prizes

AMSTERDAM, Holland, Aug. 13.—(By W. H. Ingram, Canadian Press staff correspondent) — Thirty-four medals, including four for first places won by the Canadian men's and women's contingents at the Olympic games, were presented to Dr. A. S. Lamb of Montreal, president of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, by Queen Wilhelmina of Holland, last evening.

Dr. Lamb was accompanied by Major Van Blyenburgh, Netherland attache to the Canadian team, when he went to the royal box at the Olympic Stadium and received from Her Majesty on behalf of the winners the emblems of Olympic fame awarded to those who established Canada as one of the leading athletic nations in the world.

The first prizes were won by Percy Williams, the Vancouver student, who scored a double victory in the sprints by winning the 100 and 200 metres, Miss Ethel Catherwood of Toronto and Saskatoon, winner of the women's high jump for which she established a new world's record, and the Canadian girls' 400 metre relay team, which also set a new world's record in capturing the event. The girls' team was composed of Fanny Rosenfeld, Ethel Smith, Florence Bell and Myrtle Cook.

"I wish to congratulate you upon the magnificent showing made by Canada," the Queen said in handing the medals to Dr. Lamb.

"Thank you very much on behalf of the Canadians," Dr. Lamb said in reply.

Man's Answer Too Much For Bandit

TOPEKA, Kan., August 13. — Bandits with soft and tender feelings have no place in this cold, cruel world.

When F. J. Zeigler went out to put his car away one night recently one of the above mentioned bandits stepped forth from behind a tree, mask over face and pistol in hand—a ferocious sight.

Zeigler looked him over for a minute and then said, "You go to hell!"

The astonished bandit, wounded to the quick, turned on his heel and hurried away. Presumably he is on his way to the place mentioned by Zeigler.

ADDRESS GIVEN.

WARSAW, Aug. 13 (Examiner Correspondence).—The annual supper at Carmel Church on Wednesday evening was a great success. The campers helped them out greatly. Five tables were filled three times by campers alone. They took in $180.00 at the gate. Wallace Anderson auctioned the autograph quilt. Harry Grubbe bought it for $14.00. They had gotten over $70.00 for the names. The cooking which remained after the supper, was sold.

For the program Mr. Herrington was chairman; besides the chairman's remarks, Rev. Mr. Rogers gave an address; Miss W. Edgar from Bridgenorth, gave two readings; Miss Phyllic Rome, Peterborough, gave a solo; Miss Winslow of Cleveland, Ohio, gave some instrumental music; Miss Violet Darling recited; so did Wallace Anderson; and there was some other local talent.

Begin Harvest

Wednesday, Thursday and Friday were good days for the harvesters. It had been a long time since there were three whole days without rain. Nearly all hay, wheat and rye are safely in, and barring what was spoiled near the first, most of the hay is in good or fairly good condition. Some of the wheat is sprouted, but much is good.

George Moore started his season's threshing on Thursday afternoon by threshing his father's wheat. Then he went to a neighbor's to thresh alsike, and is going out to Douro to thresh quite a lot of alsike.

HAS HOLD-UP IN CHICAGO STYLE

Two Killed By Made Jewelry Bandit in Battle With Police.

THREE WOUNDED.

PARIS, August 13.—The populous Parisian district of Faubourg du Temple to-day witnessed a pistol battle between police and a mad jewelry bandit which duplicated the style of Chicago daylight robberies in every respect. Two persons, the bandit, who remains unidentified, and the jeweler, Andre Manet, were killed, and three other persons, one a woman, were seriously wonded.

The bandit entered a small jewelry shop and fired point blank without any preliminaries at Manet, killing him instantly. Mme. Manet, who was in a back room, fled to a bedroom on the second floor, barricaded herself, whence she screamed to passers-by for aid.

When the bandit who pursued her began beating in the bedroom door, Mme. Manet in a paroxysm of terror, hurled herself from a window and was only saved from death or injury by an awning down which she rolled into the arms of two men who had run into the street at the sound of the screams.

Police who had been summoned to the scene attempted to rush the jewelry shop but were halted by a fusillade from the bandit, who firing into the street, wounded three persons among the crowd which gathered.

Then the police, taking refuge behing a motor truck engaged the bandit in a violent exchange of shots until the police reserves with poison gas apparatus arrived on the scene with firemen who prepared to demolish the building.

At this moment a policeman who had climbed to a window on the second floor of the building opposite succeeded in sniping the bandit, wounding him in the shoulder, and he fell heavily to the floor. A moment afterward another shot was heard and it is believed the bandit put a bullet through his own brain. His body showed several bullet wounds. There was nothing to help identify him but a Polish newspaper and a handkerchief marked with the initials "R.D."

On the following Monday the second final fixture will take the form of a benefit. Tickets will be put on sale as soon as possible.

The executive learned that it might not be possible for Harry Tinney to be present at the final games so an umpire had to be appointed in his place. After some discussion, Perry Sanders was appointed. The base umpires will be the same as for the semi-finals, B H. Beatty and Vince Farrell.

PARENTS VISIT GUIDES IN CAMP

Orderly Management Impresses Visitors—Program Provides Busy Day.

WORK SHARED UP.

(Examiner Staff Correspondence)

CAMPBELLFORD, August 13. — More than thirty parents and friends of the Girl Guides visited their camp at Consecon Lake yesterday afternoon. The occasion was visitors' day and the girls served tea and biscuits. The impression of the camp which the visitors received was highly favorable to the Girl Guide work and to the camp in general.

The girls have been divided into three patrols — Cheerful Cherubs, Willing Workers, and Busy Bees. The Cheerful Cherubs have the duties of the camp to attend to. But this does not mean that the same girls are the workers each day. Each patrol belongs to a different name each day, the Cheerful Cherubs are Willing Workers to-morrow, and Busy Bees the following day.

The day in camp is conducted along semi-military lines. Punctuality is strictly enforced and careful attention is given to every detail of the syllabus. The day begins at seven o'clock in the morning. At seven-thirty, the Cheerful Cherubs report for duty, and the others go for their morning dip in the lake. At fifteen minutes past eight, the colors are hoisted to the top of the mast while the Guide Ceremony is carried out. Prayers follow and then breakfast. Nine o'clock finds the girls busy with their orderly duties till ten-thirty, when camp inspection is carried out. The court of honor is held at ten minutes to eleven. This is a meeting of the camp officers and patrol leaders to discuss the program and other business for the day. Roll-call is at eleven o'clock. Ten minutes later the Guides are free for an hour gadget making. The girls expect to have some very unique souvenirs of their two weeks in camp.

Twelve noon finds the Cheerful Cherubs on the job to prepare the midday meal, while the others take a second swim. Dinner is at twelve-thirty. At one-thirty the canteen opens for the purchase of such things as are necessary to camp life. From two to three o'clock is the rest hour. From three to four is the quiet hour. During this time the girls write letters, go walking, or play quiet games. Swimming instruction is at four o'clock. Five o'clock finds the Cheerful Cherubs preparing the evening meal, which is at half-past five.

Retreat, or the guide ceremony which corresponds to this detail of the military day, is at six-fifteen. This is the ceremony when the flag is lowered. From six-thirty to eight, the Guides indulge in the sport of deer stalking. Then the camp fire is lighted till nine o'clock, which is the hour for retiring. At nine-thirty all the girls sing taps and call it a day.

Among the visitors yesterday afternoon were Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Magee, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Bell, Mrs. C. W. Turner, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stephens, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Connor, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Townsend, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bell, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Allan, Mr. W. J. Armstrong.

Visitors' day this week will be Friday after two o'clock.

FREE SERVICE WIDELY USED

More Than Three Hundred Readers Avail Themselves Of Offers.

RECIPES FAVORED.

That The Examiner's "Household Help" service is appreciated is indicated by the more than three hundred inquiries for helps sent in since the service was started.

It is interesting to note that more readers asked for the fruit and spice recipes than for any other help, with the rose petal potpourri second.

If any reader missed any of the weekly helps, she may obtain copies by writing to Marion at The Examiner office. The following have been offered.

- Recipes for home-canning of fruit and pickles.
- Recipes for potpourri of flower petals.
- Trimming Autumn hats.
- Instructions for making the new sleeveless jacket.
- The new pierrot neck ruche in ribbon.
- A coolie coat for beach, evening, or boudoir.

The last four are complete with sketches and diagrams that make pattern-cutting and trimming easy. They are not patterns, but show how the pattern may be easily cut.

This service is part of the new development of the Women's Page under the direction of "Marion," and The Examiner is glad to extend the benefit of the helps to all its readers. A coupon is printed daily, but a letter will do as well. A two-cent stamp should be inclosed to cover postage.

To make the very most of a lemon, it should be rolled and well heated before squeezing—it will then yield much more juice. The peel will keep a long time if it is well dried, grated and kept in an air-tight receptacle—it can then be used for flavoring cakes.

To pan-broil steak, rub the skillet with fat and then broil the meat, turning every ten seconds or so. (The opposite of the gas-broiling directions.) Pour off any fat that cooks out of the meat. None is wanted in pan-broiling.

To use up cream gone sour, try horseradish sauce, in which half a cupful of freshly-grated horseradish, one cupful of sour cream stiffly whipped, two tablespoonfuls of vinegar, and a pinch of salt are mixed together. Halve the quantities if the family is small.

DO YOUR EYES HURT AFTER MOTORING?

Lots of people say theirs do. Possibly you may need Glasses to protect your Eyes from the burning wind and glaring sun, or an examination may result in quick relief and relaxation to the sight.

THE MIRROR OF THE MODE

By Mary Marshall.

Red Moire was chosen for this distinctive evening frock, made with circular flounces drooping toward the right and a bow of the material below the right hip.

Can you wear red?

Congratulations if you can because red is decidedly smart and gives promise of being even smarter for autumn and winter wear.

By all means plan a red evening gown if you know that it would become you because in the present color scheme of fashion the red evening gown will look extremely well.

The question of wearing red is not entirely a question of blondness or brunetteness. The old idea, I think, was that red was made for brunettes and that if you were blonde you should never wear it. But the matter cannot be so simply disposed of. Vivid blondes with golden hair, clear skins and fairly high color can usually wear red for evening—but the sallow blonde with straw-colored hair should avoid it. On the contrary, the olive-skinned brunette often finds it the best evening color for her, and there are red-faced brunettes who ought never to attempt it.

Red-haired girls ought never to wear red. That, I think, is a truism and yet I have seen girls of real Titian coloring who never seemed better content with themselves than when sporting scarlet or cardinal color. Often, if their skin is fair and clear, they look charming in pink, and of course the rust shades that blend with the coppery tones of their hair are wisely chosen.

Much, too, depends on the way the red frock is handled. Sometimes the addition of lace or net softens the vividness of the tone where it comes in contact with the skin and makes it more becoming, but the smartest effects are, I think, produced by red untrimmed save for the fabric or a jeweled ornament such as a rhinestone buckle.

THE BLUE LIMOUSINE.

By H. Louis Raybold.

When the Carltons pulled into the New Brunswick touring camp their first thought was for the blue limousine. Had it arrived ahead of them? A survey of the small, grassy park set on the hilltop revealed no sign of it among the few cars scattered about.

Not that there was any hope to be gotten out of that. It had happened before that they had gone to bed assured that they had eluded their camp follower only to find in the morning it had arrived sometime during the night.

"But if they were really pursuing us, mother," had insisted Julie Carlton, "they would make some effort to be come acquainted. But they don't. They keep by themselves.

The trouble was that ever since Mrs. Carlton had realized that her little girl was growing into an extremely pretty woman she had suffered from the complex that her daughter would be the natural prey of all members of the other sex. And there had been certain circumstances that almost justified her fears. Were they not, at the present moment, taking this trip to cure Julie of an absurd infatuation for the "boy next door"—that frequent bete noir of fond mothers?

Of course, Julie's father absolutely scouted the idea that any car had deliberately pursued them from Springfield through the White Mountains, up the Maine coast, and across the border.

And now he pointed out the probability of their having turned off on the road that led to Fredericton. "They've just been taking a trunk route like the rest of us," he explained, hammering in a tent stake. "Haven't seen them all day, have we? Well—"

"Daddy!" Julie grabbed her father's arm. "There it is now—the blue Limousine!"

In a cloud of dust from the gravel road arrived the huge car of ancient vintage for all its recent coat of azure paint. Hardly had it stopped, before the long-legged youth with whose appearance they had grown so familiar stepped out, cast his glance toward a square of level ground farthest from the Carlton car, and indicated the spot to his father in the driver's seat with a gesture.

"Well," said Mr. Carlton, very firmly, "these tourist camps are free to all and as I've done nothing to put anyone on my trail, they're welcome to track me to Hudson Bay—if I go that far. And, for anything I've seen to the contrary, that young man doesn't even know our Julie exists!"

Yet in his heart the man was puzzled. There was surely more than coincidence in the fact that night after night the limousine had camped in their company. Regardless of how many times a day they passed it only to be passed in turn, always they landed up together for the overnight stay.

The next few days, however, could but show if there was actual intention behind all this. Did the blue limousine party time their departure with that of the Carltons who were remaining over for several days to take in side trips to Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island, there would be little doubt but that they, the Carltons, were the object of an inexplicable pursuit.

On the second night, the blue limousine was still there, but the Carltons, spending two days in Amherst, were unaware of the fact. The third night the car was gone, but not all of the equipment, hinting at expeditions similar to their own on the part of the limousine's owners.

On the following morning, Mr. Carlton, rising early for a speedy getaway, saw the long-legged young man come out of his tent, look around a bit, then start pitching out the duffle bags.

Yet it is doubtful if he would have done what he did, had not he observed, half an hour later, his daughter Julie sauntering over from the pump in the young man's company. Had there really been other opportunities for them to meet? Had his wife been right, after all?

Throwing down the tent pole he was disjointing, he strode over to the blue limousine and addressed the young man's father. "Sort of funny how you people are trailing us," he said, abruptly.

The other man looked sheepish, then grinned. With a cautious glance came over to Carlton and whispered in his ear.

"Say, I'm glad of a chance to tell you all about it. It was my wife's idea. We've been doing this motor camping business for fifteen years—been everywhere. Got so there was no kick out of it; going the same old places. So Abby suggested we get a thrill by not knowing where we would land up. Last year we took every third concrete road, but this summer she says, 'Let's follow the first camping party we see after pulling out of the Athol camp.' And it was you. We haven't meant to be a nuisance. My son is just getting over an illness and his fiancee is off teaching in a girls' camp, so we brought him along. He's kind of disgusted with his mother's idea, but you sure have taken us into a fine country!"

When Julie's father told her, she sniffed. 'That nice young man told me all about it this morning," she said. "And, by the way, Dad, Niles wrote me that if I don't come home pretty soon to get the ring he has just bought me, he'll drive up here after me!"

Mr. Carlton threw up his hands. "Never!" he cried. "Being chased by a pre-war limousine is bad enough, but that rattle trap flivver of Niles—nothing doing. We start for home tomorrow!"

A Place for Little Bits of Everything of Local Interest

CLOSETS used to be places that we closed the door on with relief—indeed some I see are still that way—but we should endeavor to do better, for the effort of the homemaker nowadays is to make her home attractive throughout, and this has led to a serious consideration of how to make the closet more of a beauty spot than an eyesore.

Delicate clothes need to be kept in bags. Buy a cheerful chintz in any color you desire—something, of course, which would correspond with your room. These are shown a great deal now in Peterborough shops. Or you may buy the material and make the bags yourself and tack ruffles of the same chintz around the closet shelves. Then turn to the hangers and shoetrees, these may be bought in the 10-cent store and with paint, which can also be bought at the same store, you can tint them in colors to match the chintz. If you have some hats which you don't use very often, put them in hat boxes which are painted to match the rest of the closet. Other hats which are used often need not be kept in the boxes for it is a nuisance to have to fish them out every time you want them. Instead buy little hat stands, such as used in the millinery stores and paint them to match. Putting your hats on these helps to preserve their shapes and keeps the shelves from looking cluttered.

In the newer homes the closets have a built-in ledge for shoes. But if you haven't much floor space, racks on the back of the door at the bottom make a good place for shoes—if you're not superstitious. It is easier too, to get at the shoes. If you require space for hanging clothes, fasten tapes on the door about the middle and tie them across the clothes. That will keep them from getting in the way when you close the door.

Then, our bathroom, everyone wants it to look as neat as possible. If each person in a family has his own towel rack and toothbrush holder, much confusion is saved. The children's racks should be low enough for them to reach easily and they should be taught to spread the towel out properly after using. Rubberized shower curtains will last much longer, too, if care is taken to spread them across the rod immediately after using.

I heard a lady complaining the other day, of being terribly annoyed at night because of the curtains beating against the screens. Then, too, she said they get dirty so easily. A good remedy for her complaint was given by slipping them through a wire coat hanger and then hanging the hanger on the curtain rod. This will keep the curtains out of harm's way during the night when we want as much air as possible.

Bob socks are very popular just now, not only at Juniper, where a great many were noticed, but right on the streets of Peterborough. These may be all right for playing tennis or at the summer cottage, but when it comes to wearing them shopping—it's going just a bit too far, don't you think? It reminds me of the story of a lady who came out recently at a garden party, in a lovely cool-looking white frock, making everyone envious of her, until they looked far enough up to see a big red fox fitting snugly about her throat. Furs are all right, too, in their place, but when it comes to wearing them when the thermometer is registering around 90 in the shade—it's going a bit too far again.

Oil and grease is bound to get on our clothes somehow, isn't it, when we are out motoring or even at the cottage. Some people have the impression that this cannot be removed, but the following mixture has proved very useful for that purpose and will also clean floors, windows, metals, etc.

Dissolve in two quarts of boiling water four ounces of castile or hard white soap shavings. Cool and add one-half ounce of saltpetre, stirring until dissolved. Strain through cheesecloth and let it settle; take off scum and add one-half pint of ammonia. Bottle and cork tight.

Are you sure that the milk which you are giving your children is all milk or is it watered milk? A good method for testing this before giving it to them is to dip a well-polished knitting needle in the milk for a few seconds; if the milk is pure it will form a large drop at the end of the needle. If watered, it will either run down quickly and drop in several small drops, or the point will appear dry and clean.

Just a Joke

BACK FROM THE FRONT.

The tramp raised his hat to the young woman who had opened the door in answer to his knock.

On seeing the wayfarer the trim young maid was about to close the door abruptly when the other spoke.

"I am no ordinary beggar," he said proudly. "I was at the front——"

"You at the Front?" interrupted the maid, glancing suspiciously at his rounded shoulders.

"I was," declared the tramp, "but I couldn't make anyone hear, so I came round to the back."

YOUR HEALTH

CAUSES OF INSANITY.

A great majority of those of unsound mind may be classed in the dementia praecox group. As in hysteria, one of the principal causes of this trouble must be considered the result of congestion within the pelvis, either of the uterus or prostrate. Displacement of the abdominal organs and constipation are contributory causes to this congestion caused by functional inactivity and negative emotional desires. There is often a history of an unhappy love affair.

Every case of dementia praecox should be given a few days fruit fast, in order to assist in the blood cleansing processes and also to relieve pelvic pressure caused by a prolapsus of the stomach and intestines, since, when the prolapsed digestive organs are comparatively free from food, there is much less pressure upon the organs and nerve plexuses of the lower abdomen.

Many cases of mental instability, accompanied by illusions and hallucinations have been shown by psycho-analysis to be due to mental repressions and incoordinations of thought. Besides these mental complexes, there are some other causes of a distinctly material nature, such as brain irritation from poisons, traumatic injuries, surgical shocks, and venereal diseases.

The wasting of nervous energy has a very decided effect in contributing to the formation of these diseases. For example, eye strain may produce disorders in parts of the body seeming to have no direct connection with the organs of vision. Indigestion, constipation, general eye weakness, and mental irritability can be entirely caused by an eye strain which does not impart any pronounced indication in the region of the eyes.

That which is termed "nervousness" has its origin in some mental or physical irritation, aggravated by fatigue and general enervation, the symptoms coming from some weak spot in the nervous system. Actual disease and destruction of the nerve cells are very rare, and do not usually occur until the body becomes exceedingly toxic.

If you wish to overcome nervousness, you must understand the numerous causes producing it. If the reason lies in your eyestrain, see your optometrist. If you are eating indiscreetly, you must earnestly strive to correct your mistakes and substitute good habits for those you find to be bad. If you are overworking mentally, it will be necessary to cut down on the mental work, and substitute more physical exercise. If you are enervating yourself with destructive habits of thought, as of fear, criticism, jealousy, worry, or malice, you can immediately enjoy a miraculous change by tuning out these destructive thoughts and tuning in their constructive opposites—courage, tolerance, confidence, repose and love.

Exercises taken while lying on the back are very successful in strengthening the abdominal muscles and raising the prolapsed conditions. The relief from this unusual pressure and the elimination of body toxins will do a great deal to help cure any form of insanity, provided it is not caused by structural changes in the brain.

The cause and cure of nervous troubles usually lie within yourself. Your physician can help you to discover these causes, but you alone can make the requisite changes in order to bring about a wholesome condition.

Questions and Answers.

Question—H. O. Y. writes: "Every time I turn my head to the left my neck snaps. What causes it? Also, my arms at the elbows, and my legs at the knees become numb and ache if I don't keep them perfectly straight when I sleep. Is it improper circulation, or my nerves?"

Answer: The neck-snapping is caused from some faulty position of the vertebrae or ligaments in your neck. This can probably be corrected by osteopathic or chiropractic treatments. The numbness of your elbows and knees may be caused by a mild form of rheumatism or by poor circulation due to insufficient exercise.

Question—B. J. asks: "Will you please tell me how to reduce the ankles?"

Answer: There is only one method I know of to reduce the ankles, and that is by exercise. Many twisting and bending exercises may be used, but walking is the best one of all, and will reduce the ankles as much as they can be reduced.

Question—Mrs. L. J. writes: "Have had an itch on one foot underneath and between the toes for about one and a half years. Can you suggest a cure for it? And what causes a pain in the left chest when taking a deep breath? This does not happen at the time—usually only when I laugh a lot."

Answer: You may be able to cure the itch underneath your toes by bathing your feet frequently in warm water to which has been added a handful of Epsom salts. The feet should be bathed at least twice daily, carefully dried afterwards, and boric acid powder sprinkled in your stockings and between your toes. The pain in your chest could be caused by a misplaced rib, which is rather common, or from adhesions to the diaphragm. An osteopathic examination would determine the cause.

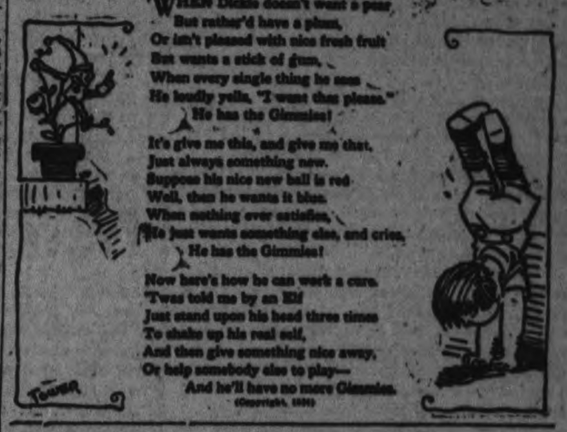
The Gimmies

By SHIRLEY RODMAN WILLIAMS

I DON'T know where it originated, but we've had always since childhood a phrase to designate that dissatisfied, wanting-something-else-feeling which some children have all the time and other children occasionally. We called it, "The Give Me's," which, being contracted was always "The Gimmies." It's an awful disease to let grow on one, that craving always for something. It creates much discontent and unhappiness. One of the surest ways for Grown-Ups to foster it in a child is to gratify his every whim, to give him spending money every day and to let him find fault with things. If you love your child curb "The Gimmies" now—help him to be content without everlastingly craving something more and new.



WHEN Dickie doesn't want a pear,
But rather'd have a plum,
Or isn't pleased with nice fresh fruit
But wants a stick of gum,
When every single thing he sees
He loudly yells, "I want that please."
He has the Gimmies!

It's give me this, and give me that,
Just always something new.
Suppose his nice new ball is red
Well, then he wants it blue.
When nothing ever satisfies,
He just wants something else, and cries,
He has the Gimmies!

Now here's how he can work a cure.
'Twas told me by an Elf
Just stand upon his head three times
To shake up his real self,
And then give something nice away,
Or help somebody else to play—
And he'll have no more Gimmies.

RURAL POWER LINES.

Hon. J. R. Cooke, member of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission, is authority for the statement that extensions to rural power lines during the present year will come close to a record, construction of new lines totalling about three and a half miles a day for every day of the year.

Electric energy is a great boon to rural Ontario, and it is a matter for general satisfaction that so much progress is being made in bringing to the farmers the blessing of electric light and power.

At the same time, down in this end of the Province there will be regret that most of this expansion noted has taken place in Western Ontario and the Niagara Peninsula, where they are very far in advance of us in so far as rural power development is concerned.

It is true that locally a distinct advance has been made in the extension of power lines to Chemong and Bridgenorth, while a similar extension through Otonabee to Keene is mooted.

But we have a long distance to go before we catch up with our friends in other parts of the Province.

WHY NOT PETERBOROUGH?

The suggestion has been made to The Examiner, and we pass it on to the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition directors, that an effort should be made to have the members of Canada's women's Olympic team appear at Peterborough's big fair.

The presence of Canada's dauntless six, first women's Olympic champions, with the world's championship women's relay team and the world's champion woman high jumper, Miss Catherwood, would undoubtedly be a stellar attraction for the Peterborough Industrial, and the people of this district would welcome the opportunity of doing honor to the girl athletes who won so much fame for their native land at Amsterdam.

It might not be possible to arrange for a visit of these celebrities, but at least it would be decidedly worth trying.

And we might further suggest that if the Exhibition directors find any merit in the plan that the campaign to secure Canada's champion women's team should be launched at once.

INVERLEA PARK.

The Examiner has no apologies for again referring to a question that has frequently been aired in these columns, namely, the desirability of improving the conditions at Inverlea Park, the city's only bathing beach.

This summer has seen probably the largest attendance of bathers in the history of Inverlea Park, many visitors sharing with local citizens in the pleasure of swimming in the Otonabee.

And the universal verdict of visitors and citizens alike could be summed up in a sentence something to this effect, "What a beautiful place this could be made if some money were spent upon it!"

There is much that might be done and should be done.

Proper sanitary conveniences are urgently needed; larger and cleaner and better ventilated dressing-rooms, with private rooms at a small rental fee, should be provided; and the approach to the water's edge requires improvement.

Such a program would not involve any startling expenditure, and anything it would cost would be amply justified because of the dividends of enjoyment and health citizens would obtain from the suggested improvements.

It is to be hoped that when next year's estimates are under consideration provision will be made for making Inverlea Park beach what it should be, one of the best river swimming resorts in the Province.

THE LUMBER INDUSTRY IN 1926.

The lumber industry in Canada is at present undergoing an interesting change. The centre of production is moving from Eastern Canada to the Pacific slope, and in the East much of the material cut in the woods is being diverted from the saw-mill to the pulp and paper mill. Generally speaking, there is a tendency toward a reduction in the output of lumber in Eastern Canada, due partly to diminishing supplies and partly to the demands of the pulp and paper industry. In the Province of British Columbia, on the other hand, the cut of lumber is increasing and the product is invading the Eastern market via the Panama Canal. The white pine of the East and some of the Eastern hardwoods will always be preferred for certain industrial purposes as long as they are obtainable. The large clear sizes in which British Columbia lumber can be obtained is one of the chief reasons for its present popularity.

Apart from regional differences in species and sizes of trees, wood will always be one of the most generally useful of all the raw materials used in industry. The supply is rapidly diminishing in certain regions, but it is highly improbable in this enlightened age that it will ever be completely exhausted. We will no doubt pass through a period of lean years before we begin to reap the benefit of present and future applications of scientific forestry methods. The area of land in Canada which is economically suited for forest production is very large, and once this area is placed on a sustained yield basis we will be assured of a permanent annual supply of timber of all kinds sufficient for the needs of industry in Canada with a satisfactory surplus for exportation.

The final printed report on the lumber industry in Canada in 1926 has just been issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics at Ottawa where it can be secured on application. The report is not only of interest to those engaged in lumbering and its allied industries, but will be found of value to forestry students and all those interested in the conservation of one of our most important natural resources. While the general figures have already been published in preliminary reports, the details are now given for the first time in a complete bilingual report.

The report shows an increase in the total cut of lumber of about seven per cent., with an increase of over twenty per cent. in the case of British Columbia, and smaller increases or decreases in the Eastern Provinces. In 1908 British Columbia contributed less than a fifth of the Dominion total, but in 1926 this proportion was over fifty per cent.

PRESS, PUBLIC AND POLITICS.

A British member of Parliament, who takes his duties seriously, and is described as one of the rising hopes of his party, is much concerned over the discovery he claims to have made that the public is no longer interested in politics. Surveying existing conditions, he is distressed to find that Parliament has lost, or is losing, its appeal, and that its proceedings are treated with indifference by the mass of the people. For this state of affairs, which he regards as positive evidence that "democracy is in danger," he largely blames the press.

His complaint is that the newspapers do not devote the space to politics that they used to give, and that the proceedings of Parliament, particularly, are not reported so extensively as they were in former days, or as their importance deserves. While columns are allotted to football, cricket, tennis and other sports, a debate in the House of Commons is disposed of in a few lines; a murder trial gets more publicity than the carefully prepared speech of a Cabinet Minister; and, as for the ordinary member of Parliament, who wishes his constituents to know what an orator he is, he has to be content with an occasional mention of his name, supplemented by the curt intimation that he "also spoke."

That there has been a marked change, within the past quarter of a century, in the attitude of the press toward the reporting of parliamentary proceedings is true. Time was when the leading daily newspapers devoted, not columns, but pages to the debates of Parliament, when the oration of a Prime Minister, a leader of the Opposition, or a Cabinet Minister was almost invariably reported verbatim, and when even the speeches of the back-benchers were recorded in generous proportions.

But the change, which marked the passing of an old tradition dating back to the eighteenth century, did not necessarily mean that Parliament had lost its power of appeal to public interest, or that it reflected a growing indifference to public affairs. Essentially, it represented a recognition on the part of the press that with changed conditions had come the necessity for a revision of news values, and a more equitable distribution of newspaper space.

It came to be realized that however important Parliament might be in the eyes of its members, there were other interests to serve besides those which occupied its attention. Public affairs had become more diversified, more comprehensive, and, in some respects more vital, than the discussion of party issues, or of matters purely political. Local government in the hands of municipalities, county councils, district boards or provincial legislatures had assumed a growing importance, which could not be ignored. New elements had entered into the field of progress. Economics, sociology and science had invaded the sphere of public affairs; and the annihilation of space, extended avenues of communication, and the efforts of the press to cater to the new conditions had brought a wider range of interests into the lives of the people.

All these are factors which have had the effect of curtailing the prominence, or reducing the news value, of Parliament. But there are others. The old idea that the press was made for the politicians is as fallacious as the view, still entertained in some quarters, that politics means partyism, or that newspaper comment should have only one political viewpoint. The trend of modern journalism is distinctly in the opposite direction, and if Parliament is so sensitive as to feel that it is injured by a free and independent expression of opinion, its claims to sovereignty may well be regarded as resting on an insecure foundation.

If anything could be more delusive than the belief that the power and influence of Parliament depend upon the length of a newspaper report of its proceedings, it is the suggestion that a more widely diffused interest in public affairs, involving less concentration upon the discussion of party issues in Parliament, is a danger to democracy. The doom of democracy is freely proclaimed these days, but it is hardly likely to be accelerated by the fear that the oratory of Parliament is not getting enough space.—Ottawa Journal.

The Question Box

W.J. Q.—Please give some information about the sinking of the Titanic.

A.—The White Star liner Titanic, commanded by Captain E. J. Smith, on her maiden voyage (westward), sank at 2.20 a.m. on April 15, 1912, after running at full speed into an iceberg in the Atlantic. The number of lives lost in this disaster, as given in Lord Mersey's report, was 1,513. According to statements made by survivors the band played after the collision and before the final plunge, and was playing "Nearer My God to Thee" as the vessel sank.

A.A.A. Q.—How many casualties did France suffer in the late war?

A.—In proportion to her population France suffered greater losses, perhaps, than any of the other combatants in the war. The wounded have been estimated at 2,800,000 and the final total of those killed was given in June, 1920, as 1,358,872. This figure included 361,654 who were reported as missing.

Enquirer. Q.—Please could you tell me if Canadian coins of the year 1854 would be considered rare or valuable.

A.—It is not likely, though a definite answer cannot be given without fuller particulars. If your coin is a "Bank Token, one penny" dated 1854 it may be worth five or ten cents. Please send further information—are the coins copper? What emblem is on them? What is the amount?

J. B. A.—Could you please tell me in what way would I find out about my great uncle who fought in the battle of the Crimea war. He was an admiral and left his estate to his brother who was my grandfather. He could have got the money 45 years ago, but he took sick and died. It was airship money. Could his eldest son get it now? How long can a will last? What is the expiration?

A. —(1)—It is likely that you could find some information about your great-uncle from the Admiralty Offices in London, England.

The rest of your questions may involve many legal entanglements and the information in your letter is not sufficient to give any definite answer. On seeing a lawyer about your case it was found that there would be many factors involved, such as whether the will was probated or the estate was administered or if the estates were in entail as they often are under English law, or if after seven years of searching the parties were declared legally dead if they had not responded to any enquiries made about them and if every possible means had been used to locate the parties to the estate without success. There are so many complications in this question that it would be wise to see a lawyer in clearing up the case.

GOD'S MINUTE.

I will praise Thee with my whole heart: before the gods will I sing praise unto Thee. I will worship toward Thy holy Temple, and praise Thy Name for Thy loving kindness and for Thy truth: for Thou hast magnified Thy word above all Thy Name.—Ps. 138: 1-2.

* * *

Dear Father, we thank Thee for a restful night, for sleep, and for Thy care. Now we look to Thee for a blessing as we begin a new day. May we pass through it without hurt, or sickness or death.

May we not fail in doing our work; in everything may we remember Thee, and honor Thee in our words as well as our acts. Give us love for Thee in our hearts, and perfect trust that Thou wilt direct us, and bring to pass what is for our good. Supply us with everything needful, and make us happy in Thy love. Bless Thy people everywhere, and help the missionaries and ministers in their work, that all who dwell upon this earth may soon learn of Jesus Christ and His love and desire to save them. Give help to those in want, and strength to the weak. Remember who are dear to us, according to their needs. And forgive all our sins for the sake of Jesus Christ, our Saviour. Amen.

A Thought

"WORLD PEACE"

(Velma Runnels, Campbellford, Ont.)

These two simple words are causing the great struggle in the minds of the people to-day. World friendship seems to be the missing link in this serious problem. One nation is misunderstanding the other. Even we misunderstand our own friends and citizens in our own domain. If we can't see our way clear to be friends with out own fellow countrymen, then how can peace be formed among the foreign nations?

Then there is the great labor question. If the big industries are going to crush the minor businesses, then where is the poor, honest, hard-working laboring men going to have a chance? They can't sit down and allow the big-dollared men to push them around at their will. The laboring man must demand his rights in order to live and if he doesn't secure his rights, it is up to him to fight.

Every man is equal in the sight of God. It is God's world that we are living on; not the man's with the big dollar neither does it belong to the poor. Think awhile before you push the poor man off his feet and consider him as a man who is as good as you. Then you will have gained a good number of steps toward the world friendship goal.

Peace must reign among the nations if each country wants to progress. Those who seek peace shall find it and those who find it must hold it. Give each man an honest deal and I'm sure your reward will be great. This world cannot hold world friendship if there is the constant turmoil of battle. A man cannot fight with himself. There must be the one against him with the different idea.

Every nation must lay down their swords and ammunitions of war and take God into consideration. A man who communes with God cannot have the war-like spirit raging in his soul. Before the sun sinks in God's glowing west, cast out all spite toward foreigners and your fellowmen. Remember the sun shines on all men. Make this world a world of love.

One of the oldest residents of King Township is dead in the person of Amos Lloyd, a York County pioneer, who was in his 96th year. He was a personal friend of the Prime Minister, Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, and last spring on his 95th birthday received a letter of congratulation from Mr. King. The latter's grandfather, William Lyon Mackenzie, was a great friend of Mr. Lloyd's father. Above are shown Mr. Lloyd and Canada's Prime Minister in an informal pose.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Aug. 13 (Canadian Press).—The foreign demand for Canadian grain here Saturday was moderate and a fair volume of business was done in oats and wheat.

In the local market 30,000 bushels of No. 2 feed oats were sold at 5½c per bushel over the October option, c.i.f. Montreal, and No. 6 wheat sold at 98c per bushel, and sample feed wheat at 94c per bushel. The domestic trade in Canadian Western oats was quiet but values were unchanged.

The inquiry for Spring and Winter wheat grades of flour was again of a limited character, but prices were firm.

The trade in all lines of millfeed was inactive but the undertone to the market was steady. Standard grades of rolled oats were unchanged under a quiet demand.

Extreme dullness marked the butter trade and prices were inclined to be easier. The receipts Saturday were 4,671 packages.

Little business was done in cheese and prices were about steady. The receipts were 11,399 boxes.

The demand for all grades of eggs showed a decided improvement and a fairly active business was transacted at firm prices. The receipts were 1,283 cases.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Aug. 13 (Canadian Press).—Wheat went up and corn down Saturday largely as a result of wholesale undoing of spread trades in which corn had been pitted against wheat. It was generally surmised that big owners of the September delivery of corn were letting go of their holdings and were buying wheat to make up a speculative wheat shortage of corresponding amount.

Closing quotations on wheat were firm, ¼ to ¾c net higher, with corn ranging from 4c decline to ¾c advance. Oats unchanged to ⅝c up, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 20c.

Wheat price gains in Chicago Saturday were in the face of unexpected downturns in Liverpool quotations, and notwithstanding an official report that the condition of the Spring wheat crop in Canada is 107 against 103 a year ago. However, the upward swing of the Chicago wheat market was somewhat due to word that export business in wheat totaled 1,300,000 bushels, largely No. 2 hard winter wheat from the United States. Houses with Eastern connections took a prominent part in Saturday's purchasing of wheat future deliveries here.

Although the Canadian Government crop report Saturday was the subject of considerable notice, a majority of Chicago traders appeared to attach less significance to the report than was the case at Liverpool. It was contended here that the report is based on methods of computation which do not afford a true index of existing conditions, and therefore should be ignored. The report gave quality percentage figures only and no estimate of yields. Interpretation of what the report suggested varied extremely, one idea being approximately 550,000,000 bushels, as a total outturn for the Prairie Provinces.

lower level Saturday, whereas the September corn finished on a much more distant months were comparatively firm. At one time, September corn was 4¾c a bushel under the closing quotations of the previous day. A little improvement was noted in the cash corn trading basis which offset at least in part the decline in the price of September delivery. Seaboard buying of oats gave a firm undertone to the oats market.

Offerings of provisions were light, and there was some scattered buying ascribed ascribed in part to foreigners.

BRITAIN LOSES TO U. S. TEAM

New World's Record Set Up in Meet at Stanford Bridge.

BRITISH ATHLETES STAR.

STAMFORD BRIDGE FIELD, London, Aug. 13 (Canadian Press).—The British Empire, with the pick of its Olympic talent, barely lost out to the forces of the United States Saturday afternoon in a meet marked by one world's record and the sensational performance of Douglas Lowe, of Great Britain.

Forty-five thousand spectators, many of whom collapsed from the combined effects of the jam and the broiling sun, witnessed the triumph of the Americans by the narrow margin of eight to six, first places only figuring in the scoring.

The United States one-mile relay quartet covered the distance in 3 minutes, 13 2-5 seconds, shattering the world's record by three seconds when Spencer, running the anchor in 48 flat, beat his rival, Jimmy Ball of Winnipeg, to the tap by nine yards.

Spectacular Performance

The most spectacular individual performance was turned in by Lowe, famous British middle distance star and Olympic 800 metre champion, who anchored two winning combinations; first in the two mile relay and then bringing the meet to a climax in the medley relay with a slashing half-mile in one minute, 51 seconds. This bettered the world's half-mile record by three-fifths of a second, and represented probably the finest 880 ever run with or without a running start.

So spectacular were the performances that in ten of the fourteen events, all of which were decided on a team basis, times or distances eclipsed those in the similar meet held here four years ago. In addition, two British records were broken in the field events when Lee Barnes pole-vaulted 13 feet 9 inches, and Ed. Hamm broad-jumped 25 feet, 1 inch.

Superiority in the field was the only thing which enabled the United States to win. The Empire won the last five of the eight running events and captured one of the six field features, that in javelin throwing, won by Doral Pilling of Canada.

The Empire, as it turned out, lost its best chance to capture the meet when beaten in the 880-yard shuttle hurdle relay which, was more of a tumbling event than a hurdle contest. Leighton Dye and Carl Kling, the first United States hurdlers, gained a 15-yard lead, but this was wiped out near the end of the third relay as Fred Gaby of England caught up to John Collier. With one hurdle to go, however, Gaby himself came a cropper, sprawling and losing all his advantages before handing the baton to G. C. Weightman-Smith Anderson, the United States anchor man, with a big lead, also fell over the next to the last hurdle, then dove over the final barrier, barely staggering home first.

The four-mile relay developed another thrilling in which Cyril Ellis, British anchor man, out-ran Lloyd Hahn in the stretch spurt, to win by a yard, coving the final mile in the fine time of four minutes, 14 1-5 seconds. Phil Edwards' half in 1.53, giving him fifty yards over his American rival, Earl Fuller, clinched the British victory in the two-mile relay and made the final leg a mere fump for Lowe, who was timed at 1.53 3-5 in holding the margin over Ray Watson.

Lord Burghley anchored the winning British steeplechase relay.

A margin of mere inches gave victory to the United States 400-metre relay quartet. They led from the start, but Henry Russell, off in the final 100 with a yard and a half lead, barely withstood a closing challenge by Jack London, Olympic runner-up, who followed Percy Williams, Olympic hero; Carlton of Australia, and Fitzpatrick of Canada in handling the British baton.

Canada is the second best trade customer of the United States.

PICKLED HERRING FAIL TO HIDE PICKLING FLUID

NEW YORK, Aug. 13 (Canadian Press)—A cargo of alleged pre-war whiskey, estimated to be worth $1,000,000 at retail prices here, was said to have been seized to-day by Customs agents on the Red Cross liner Nerissa. The contraband was in kegs, hidden under pickled herring which had been consigned in large barrels from Halifax, N.S. The Nerissa docked in Brooklyn yesterday.

HALIFAX, Aug. 13 (Canadian Press)—There is no record here of 510 barrels of fish alleged to contain kegs of liquor being shipped on the Nerissa. Agents of the Red Cross Line say the contraband could not have been loaded here.

She thought it would be too expensive

The old lady was so hungry for the sound of her daughter's voice that she made a desperate resolve — she would call her by Long Distance!

She had never before spoken over a long distance line, but the operator was kind and helpful. In a moment the beloved voice was sounding in her ear.

And when the telephone bill came she found the call had cost only 45 cents.

Now the Sunday evening talk to the absent daughter is a regular thing. More—it now costs only 25 cents, for instead of asking for her daughter by name, mother gives "Long Distance" the distant number — hence the charge (after 8.30) is only 25 cents.

HOWSON MOTORS IN NEW QUARTERS

Will Handle Oldsmobile, La-Salle and Cadillac in Water Street Garage.

Howson Motors are now in their new quarters on Water street in the building recently occupied by the Chevrolet Sales and Service. The building has been completely renovated throughout and now is one of the most modern in Peterborough.

A large sign with letters two feet in height spelling the word "Oldsmobile" over a length of 21 feet, which when lighted at night with 108 bulbs is one of the brightest spots on the street. A coat of white paint will complete this sign and in the day it will be an attractive feature.

The front of the building and the show windows are finished in a buff color, which gives the outside a neat and clean appearance. The interior of the show rooms is a departure from anything in Peterborough and is very fascinating. The walls are tinted pink and the ceilings are finished in cream, which is a becoming combination. On the south side of the show rooms is a new sales office finished in light oak.

The workshop is a light place to work, as far as brightness is concerned. The walls and ceiling have all been refinished in white, while throughout the whole garage new lights and reflectors have been installed. The general office has also been refinished in a manner as to harmonize with the rest of the building.

On the floor of the sohw room are four models of the Oldsmobile, a very attractive De Luxe sedan, a regular sedan, a coach and a sport coupe with a rumble seat. Beside the popular Oldsmobile which in its presentation a year ago made such a hit, the Howson Motors handle the Cadillac and the La Salle for the people who desire something better and distinctive.

The Howson Motors are under the guidance of W. S. Howson, who after two years of retirement has returned to the motor game and to present his twelve years of experience to his clients. For this length of time he was the Chevrolet de[illegible] in same offices which he now turns to after two years' absence, but this time with the Oldsmobile, La Salle and Cadillac.

T. H. Shields who is a partner to Mr. Howson, is a well known Peterborough man and is ready to serve the motoring public. Howson Motors will carry a complete line of Oldsmobile, La Salle and Cadillac parts and will be ready at all times to give prompet service to all cars, specializing of course in their line. Then there will be the usual lines of oils, tires and gasoline carried for the convenience of motorists.

A Splendid New Serial by Ruby M. Ayres

THE STORY THUS FAR:

JENNIFER FRY and NICHOLAS GAUNT fall in love. He is called abroad by his mother's illness, and promises her to marry his cousin, LADY EDITH. Jennifer stands in the crowd outside the church and sees the bride. Five years later Nicholas and Jennifer meet again. He decides to divorce his wife. But just then Lady Edith becomes ill. She asks Gaunt to promise not to see Jennifer again, and, thinking she has only a short time to live, he promises. Jennifer decides to be as gay as she can on a small legacy. She gives up her job and moves into better quarters. The flat over hers is occupied by DOLORES, and a young girl, BUDDY. Through them she meets CHESNEY, with whom Buddy is in love, but who wants to marry Jennifer. Jennifer tells him she does not love him, but promises to marry him. When she meets Gaunt again, and his wife. Gaunt tells her she shall never marry Chesney, and begs her to go away with him. But she refuses. Buddy goes to Chesney with a distorted story of the friendship between Gaunt and Jennifer. He goes to Jennifer for explanation.

CHAPTER XXXIX

Jennifer Explains

She drew away from him with a little shiver, and it was some moments before she began. "I met Nicholas Gaunt more than six years ago, before my father and mother died. I was nearly drowned, and he saved my life." She spoke in a dull sort of monotone, as if she were hardly conscious of what she said. "We met again, and I fell in love with him, and he with me. Then his mother died, and he promised her that he would marry Lady Edith, and he did. I never saw him for five years after that, and then, when I was working in a City office—I told you about that part of my life—we met again, one evening in Regent Street. We just spoke for a few minutes, and he told me that he was unhappy. Then we met again, and we got back to friendship."

"Friendship!"

"Yes, friendship," she said quietly. "It was never anything more. For some time we met occasionally and went about together. Sometimes I had dinner with him, always in restaurants; sometimes he took me out to lunch or for a ride in his car. Then one day . . ." she faltered, "he asked me to go away with him, and I refused. I suppose it was the way I had been brought up, but it seemed to me that I should be committing a dreadful sin. Oh, you need not laugh," she told him steadily. "I've always had a conscience, unhappily for me, perhaps. Well, we quarrelled, and I went away, alone, for a holiday. I was very unhappy, and while I was away I got ill. I was staying at a cottage at Porth with a Mrs. Jilly—I had stayed there before and she was very kind to me. Then Nicholas found out where I was and he followed me. I was alone in the cottage, and ill——"

She broke off with an eloquent memory of that grey evening.

"And so, of course, he stayed," Chesney sneered. "What could be more natural?"

Jennifer looked at him for a moment, then she pointed to the door. "Please go," she said quietly.

She was very white, but her voice was perfectly controlled. Chesney stood with clenched hands, staring at her; then he laughed.

He passed her and put his back against the door. "Go on, let me hear the rest of the story of this innocent friendship."

"There's no more to hear. In the morning a wire came from Italy, where his wife was staying, to say that she was very ill and not expected to live, and Nicholas left me. I never saw him again, except once in London, till the night at the Bohemian Club when Dolores introduced us. That is all the truth, Malcolm, whether you believe me or not."

"You say 'in the morning' a wire came from Italy."

There was a detestable inflection in his voice. "So Gaunt stayed the night with you."

Jennifer tried to answer, but she could find no words. It was the last straw that this man should so turn and rend her. With everything else failing her, she had clung to the thought of Chesney and of his love, and now they, too, were both failing her. After a moment she found her voice.

"You either love me or you do not," she said passionately. "You either believe what I have told you or you do not."

Chesney laughed. "Believe you! Of course I don't believe you! Nobody in this world would believe you. You admit you loved the fellow . . ."

"I love him still," said Jennifer.

Chesney turned deadly white and an ugly look grew in his eyes. He had not believed himself capable of such jealousy, and he was furious because he could not control it, furious with Jennifer for being its cause.

An unhappy experience of women had made him distrust them all until he met Jennifer, and he had placed her, on a pedestal apart, creating his own idea of her and almost worshipping it. And now the ideal was shattered. In the first shock of disillusionment and grief he saw everything with distorted vision. If he had given himself time to think calmly after his interview with Buddy he would have acted differently; but as it was, he judged Jennifer by the standard other women had forced him to set up and he cursed himself for a blind fool. After all, why should she be any different from the rest? And she admitted that she still loved Gaunt. The proud defiance of her face maddened him. He had always known that she cared for him very little, but it was a crushing blow to be told that there was someone else whom she did love.

"Is it true that Gaunt was here with you last night" he asked thickly.

"Quite true, but there is no harm in that. You have been here yourself often, Malcolm."

"I have never heard anything against him, and neither have you."

"Is it nothing against him that for years he has been running after you?"

"I have not seen him for years, and I shall never see him again. He knows that. We said good-bye last night and I told him that you and I were to be married."

Chesney broke into loud laughter. "You told him that! Thank you, I am not such a fool. No doubt you arranged it all very nicely between you I quite believe that you did. But if you imagine that I am going to take Gaunt's discarded . . ." He broke off as Jennifer took a sudden step forward.

"You dare say that! You dare!"

There was a terrible silence, then Chesney laughed.

"It makes no difference whether I say it or not. You know what I think."

His face was livid and his lips shook when he spoke.

He stood for a moment looking round the room as if to impress it for all time upon his memory, then he made Jennifer a mocking bow. "I wish you joy of your—bargain!" he said and was gone.

Jennifer gave a choking cry. She was trembling from head to foot, and for some moments she walked aimlessly about the room, not knowing what she was doing.

She felt as if the last ten minutes had been a hideous nightmare from which she was struggling in vain to wake.

Chesney had gone. The man on whom she had counted with such certainty had walked out of her life with frightful thoughts of her in his mind and jealous hatred in his heart.

Was that all any man's love was worth, that at the first suspicion she was not even given the benefit of the doubt?

She did not know what Buddy had told him, or how the girl had made her discovery; she had even forgotten that Gaunt had insisted it was Buddy who called at the flat last night.

After all, it was of so little importance. She had lost Gaunt, and the rest was as nothing when compared with his loss.

UNCLE WIGGILY

By HOWARD R. GARIS

Bedtime Story

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE DANCING DOLLS

Once upon a time Allie, the little sister squirrel who lived with Johnnie and Billie Bushytail, was ill with tail fever. That is, all the nice, fluffy hair and fur began to come off her tail.

"Oh, this must never be!" exclaimed Mr. Bushytail, the daddy squirrel. "Without a tail, Sister Sallie, or any other squirrel, might as well go live in the poor house. We must have Dr. Possum at once."

So Dr. Possum looked at the little girl squirrel and examined her tail and said:

"She must stay in bed a week and rest. Then the hair and fur will grow out again. Sister Sallie has been playing so much that she has rubbed most of the fur off her tail."

So Sister Sallie had to stay in bed but she did not like it very much and she fretted and cried and was so "mizzable," as she called it, that at last Billie said:

"We ought to do something to amuse Sister Sallie."

"That's right!" chattered Johnnie "How about asking Uncle Wiggily what we can do?"

"Fine!" chattered Billie, and when they scampered to the hollow stump bungalow of the old rabbit gentleman, Uncle Wiggily said:

"Why don't you make some dancing dolls for Sister Sallie?"

"How can we?" asked Billie.

"I'll show you," said Uncle Wiggily With the help of the two squirrel boys the rabbit gentleman fastened together a long thin pine cone and a short round pine cone. The long thin pine cone was the doll's body and the short, round pine cone was her head. Uncle Wiggily and the squirrel boys made six dolls this way.

They used sticky gum, off the same trees the pine cones came from, to fasten on the dolls some sticks for arms and legs. And when the dolls were finished Uncle Wiggily fastened them on a long piece of grape vine string and hung the string between two trees in front of the nest bed where Sister Sallie was lying to get better of tail fever.

"Now we'll amuse your sister," said Uncle Wiggily to the two squirrel boys. So, hiding in the deep grass, Uncle

Dr Possum looked at the little squirrel girl

Wiggily, Billie and Johnnie took turns pulling a long, thin piece of grape vine that was fastened to the bigger vine on which the cone dolls were strung. And when this thin string was pulled, the pine cone dolls danced most merrily. Sister Sallie saw them and laughed.

"Oh, how funny!" she chattered, and she clapped her little paws. "Oh, how I love to see those dancing dolls! Who made them? What makes them dance?"

But, to keep Sallie amused and contented in bed, her father and mother did not tell her that Uncle Wiggily, Billie and Johnnie had made the dancing dolls. So it was a secret from Sallie and she kept thinking so much about it that shedidn't mind staying in bed a week until her fur all grew out again and she had as fluffy a tail as ever before.

Now when Sister Sallie got well, the dancing dolls were left hanging on the grape vine string, looking very funny with their faces which Uncle Wiggily had made of red, white and blue colored clay. And one day, when the dancing pine tree cone dolls were still hanging there, a little girl in a roller chair was wheeled to the woods from the hospital where she lived. The little girl lived in the hospital so her legs would get better so she could walk.

"But I'm so tired of staying in this chair or bed all day long," sighed the little girl, and even the pretty woods did not amuse her.

But just then Uncle Wiggily hopped along behind a bush and, hearing what the hospital girl said, the rabbit thought —

"I will make Sister Sallie's dolls dance for her." Down in the tall grass Uncle Wiggily pulled the string. The pine cone dolls danced and the little hospital girl clapped her hands, laughed and said:

"Oh, how funny! What makes the little dolls dance, nurse?"

"It must be the wind blowing them" said the nurse. She didn't know it was Uncle Wiggily. And when the nurse went closer to get one of the funny dolls for the hospital girl, the rabbit gentleman hopped away. But the little girl was so happy that soon she grew well and could walk.

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

TUESDAY, AUGUST 14, 1928

Friendly stars rule again today, according to astrology which sees much helpfulness in the planetary influences for this date.

The sway favors physical exertion and muscular development. It presages continued evolution of sports as a part of American life.

Work for engineers who will bridge great wastes of water in this country and Europe is foreseen.

One of the new inventions will make possible anchorage in the sky, where there will be air depots and hangars, astrologers predict.

This should be a very lucky direction of the stars for aviation and aviators. Airplanes are to multiply too rapidly for safe traffic within the next five years, the seers forecast.

The day should be most fortunate for all brain-workers. Lawyers, orators and authors should benefit.

Merchants should pursue routine business and avoid any sort of extra risk while this rule prevails.

There is a forbidding sign for all who would borrow and lenders may say farewell to what they offer friends.

The rule is adverse for all who would bet on any future event for chances taken today will lead to losses.

The configuration is not promising for success in any game of chance for what is counted victor may be a boomerang under this direction of the stars.

London astrologers prognosticate great excitement in Europe over an event that may lead to war among the smaller nations.

Accidents in mines and docks may be much more numerous under this planetary government than they have been recently.

Persons whose birthdate it is may have delays in receiving money, but they have the augury of a lucky year. They should be most wise in administering financial affairs. This should be an auspicious time for developing the higher attributes of Leo subjects.

Children born on this day are likely to be sturdy and reliable. With the sun as their principal guide they may reach great success in whatever careers they choose. Girls will marry well.

LYRICS OF LIFE

A WINDSWEPT HILL.

I wish they wouldn't come like that,
Old thoughts from depths that long were still,
When once a pair of youngsters sat,
Hands clasped, upon a windswept hill.

And what cared we for dreams of gold?
Alas, that once we cared so much!
For gold was needed, we were told,
For mansions, servants, and all such.

I wish that we had been content
With just a cottage on that slope,
But down within the vale we went
With all we owned, for more to hope.

I wanted wealth that others had,
I turned from hills and lovely scenes,
Until the gold to make us glad
Became the end and not the means.

And gold is something all may own,
The poorest yokel may acquire,
But he must live for gold alone
And nothing else but gold desire.

The world is gray and drab and flat;
I have the gold, but gone the hill.
I wish they wouldn't come like that,
Old thoughts from depths that long were still.

AN EXPLANATION

Sophie Hodosky, New York waitress, was arrested on a charge of driving her automobile too rapidly. The judge asked her what wages she received. "Twelve dollars a week," she replied. "But how do you buy automobiles on that?" he inquired. "I don't your honor. You see, I make $80 a week in tips."—Capper's Weekly.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY CIXIL WAR IS THE WORST KIND.

(By Mehran K. Thomson, Ph. D.)

Civil war is likely to be more desperately fought and create more bitterness than a war with an outside nation.

Every fight gets fiercer and more violent in direct ratio to the closeness of blood and other ties of the combatants, starting with a war among nations of like traditions and coming to civil war and to clan feuds, to quarrels among relatives, to a fight between brothers and reaching the climax in a quarrel among lovers.

It may be set down as a general rule that the closer the tie of love the fiercer the fight in case of a falling out. This rule applies everywhere in the animal world. It is common for one species of animal to prey upon another. But that is a very tame affair compared with the struggle among animals of the same species. When wolves attack each other the fight is to a finish and waged with the utmost fierceness.

One reason for the fierceness of a fight among those near of kin is that the sides are more likely to be evenly matched. That always insures a close and bitter fight. Another reason is that pride is involved more intensely than among comparative strangers. We can give in and submit to strangers a great deal more gracefully than to those of our own kith and kin. One reason for this is that we have to live with those who are near us and fear that we shall never hear the end of it.

The most important cause for the bitterness of a struggle between near of kin and lovers is that the hate resulting is magnified by the former love. It seems that love may turn to hate with a vengeance. The situation is not unlike the impact of two cars in a head-on collision. Assuming that each car was travelling forty miles an hour, the impact of the cars must be reckoned at eighty miles an hour. Something of the sort pertains to a war or fight between near of kin and lovers. The previous affection is turned into bitterness and added to the fury and hatred of the struggle.

Fifteen-yearold Dorothy Kennedy, of Dixie, Ont., was killed by lightning during a violent electric storm, one of the worst which ever swept a large part of the district around Toronto, almost ruining standing field crops. It is indicated where she was standing on a ladder in her father's barn and where she fell after being struck. The electric bolt hit the cornice of the barn, went straight through and ran down the ladder, striking the child on the head and knocking her to the floor, twenty feet below. Death was immediate.

Drum's Vibration Worries Director at Radio Practice

The ancient game of "Button, Button, who's got the Button" was modernized recently into "Drum, Drum, who's got the Drum" a certain note which corresponded with the pitch or frequency to of its weekly broadcasts from WEAF, over WWJ and 20 stations of the chain.

While rehearsing a selection, Louis Katzman, director, stopped the orchestra, shot a critical glance at the drummer, and restarted at a point in the score a measure before where it had stopped. When a certain point was reached he stopped again, this time to warn the drummer verbally.

The drummer protested thtat the drum beat which had annoyed Katzman had not come from his instruments. Then an investigation was begun. The offending snare drum was reposing in another part of the studio, with no one near it.

The solution of the "self-playing drum" was found in the fact that one of the other instruments in the Hoover orchestra played a certain note which corresponded with the pitch ?——quency to which the "playerless drum" was tuned, the drum merely obeyed the laws of science and vibrated.

FIRM PURCHASES FUNERAL HEARSE

D. Belleghem and Sons Secure New Equipment at Convention.

The firm of D. Belleghem and sons, Peterborough funeral directors has done much this year to put its funeral service on a first class basis and has now the satisfaction of knowing that it possesses one of the finest equipped places between Montreal and Toronto, which was a Statement made by T. E. Simpson of the board of examiners who gave the establishment a thorough inspection. Absolutely sanitary and modern is the way to describe the funeral parlors and morgue of this local firm, who have spared no money in the last year to make this so.

Recently it has had the ambulance put on a new fast chassis and now a new funeral coach has been purchased. This is the last word in its line. Powered by a continental red seal motor and a special body designed by Greer and Son of London it is mounted on a special chassis built by Heeney and Company of Freeport, Illinois.

This beautiful new car was purchased direct from the manufacturer and the sweeping design the special body attracted much attention when it was placed on exhibition at the Funeral Directors' convention held recently in the armouries.

The driver's compartment is separated by glass partitions from the rear, which is beautifully finished. Silk curtains and shades complete the windows. There are two doors, the rear door is 37 inches in width and the side door 36 inches. The side door is a convenient arrangement to allow the casket to be placed in the hearse when it is impossible to use the back door. It has an overall length of 17 feet and a width of 5 feet 9 inches and a height of over 6 feet. The car is equipped with the latest hydraulic four wheel brakes. The whole interior compartment is equipped with special rollers. A removable flower tray on special rollers is placed in the rear compartment.

A full rounded body with sweeping lines lend a distinctive appearance to this coach; but beauty is not sacrificed to safety as the body is entirely of steel construction even to the top which assures absolutely safety in case of accident, even if the car turns over.

The car is finished in a blue black body with double gold striping around the moulding while the word 'Funeral Coach" is printed in silver on a black plate on the cowl and on a black plate on both sides on the doors in silver letters is engraved 'Belleghem."

MORE FLORISTS HERE THIS YEAR

Many Kawartha Resorts Are Booked Up Until Sept. 15th.

That there is a greater number of bona fide tourists this year than other years, is the statement issued this morning by the Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce. "True," he said, "we have not the same number of transients, for reasons obtaining this year which did not affect us the year before. For instance, the entire forty-five mile radius of the city was concentrated on Peterborough last year when shopping and purchasing certain classes of refreshments. During the past fall and winter conditions in three neighboring towns which, had conditions not been changed, would have necessitated his coming to Peterborough.

"Reports from many Kawartha resorts indicate that they are booked up till the 15th of September and all interviewed report tourist business in excess of last year's patronage."

It is to be expected that the tourist traffic of this district is on the increase due to the efforts being put forth to attract tourists here. Our literature and display matter distributed is in such cities as New York, Pittsburgh and Cleveland. Automobile Clubs, and so forth, in adjacent states have been put in possession of Kawartha literature. Canadian touring bureau, such as the Natural Resources Intelligence Service, Ottawa, and the Publicity Department of the Department of Public Highways, Toronto, have also been put in a position to answer intelligently enquiries with reference to the Kawartha district. They have been most active in this connection as evidenced by a letter just received from the Secretary of the Department of Public Highways, as follows:

"As our supply of the folder entitled 'The Trent Waterway' is again exhausted, we would ask if you would kindly send us 12 copies. Thanking you for same. Yours very truly, (Sgd.) K. A. Cockburn."

The fact that the highways approaching the city are somewhat shattered this year may have affected the tourist traffic adversely. This would be very slight, however, as in the majority of cases, points out the Secretary, the tourist mind is made up. He is bound for the Kawarthas and a great many of them have rented Kawartha Lakes cottages prior to leaving the States, through the medium of the Chamber of Commerce, who keeps an up-to-date file in this connection.

The following interesting comment by the Central Tourist Agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company has just been received by the Secretary of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce and has reference to the activities of the Trent Waterway Association, affiliated with the Chamber:

"I have just read with much interest your comprehensive annual review of the activities of the Trent Waterway Development Association as embodied in memorandum dated July 25th, 1928. I appreciate your courtesy in having a copy of this review sent me as it affords an illuminating insight into the work of your Association and the aims you have in view.

"Permit me to take this opportunity of congratulating you on the success which has attended your efforts in promoting the interest and welfare of the Trent Valley."

SENIORS STILL IN CENTRAL LEAGUE RUNNING

PETES DEFEAT NATIONALS 3-2 TO WIN FOURTH STRAIGHT GAME

Rejuvenated Team Breaks Winning Streak of Belleville Crew.

HURLERS' DUEL.

Battling deerminedly for a place in the league play-offs against Belleville, the rejuvenated Petes turned back the speeding Nationals on Saturday at James Stevenson Park by three runs to two, in one of the best games of the season. The game which was the fourth victory in a row for the locals and which incidentally broke a winning streak of eleven straight by the visitors, was a pitchers' battle between Al. Heckman and Hoot Gibson, with the veteran earning the decision over his youthful rival. He was on top of the Belleville hitters all the way, keeping their ten hits well scattered, and bearing down in the pinches, Hagerman three times being set back on strikes, twice for the third out with two runners waiting for a hit on each occasion. The visitors' first run was scored in the sixth when W. Mills got two bases on a pop fly to centre which was misjudged by Holyman, brother Harry who had also hit to the same spot scoring on the play. Their last run was a gift by Johnston who muffed Scott's high fly and by Mein whose useless throw to first sent the runner to second to score on a single by Weir. Outside of these fielding lapses the locals' defense was steady with two double plays, one by Ash unassisted, featuring. The big first baseman along with Holyman was the leading hitter with three safe blows while Tommy sent two runs across with a pair of clean singles. The Petes threw several runs away through dumb work on the bases, with Ash being the worst offender, but alls well that ends well.

For the Gerowmen Peeney Mills and Blakely led the hitters with two apiece while the latter and Vern Weir turned in sparkling performances in the field, the second-baseman handling nine out of ten chances, his one miscue being costly however, when he dropped Gibson's throw with an easy double play in sight and paved the way for the Petes' first two runs. Wicky Ross also featured with a brilliant catch of Hall's short fly to left field, the speedy centre-fielder coming a long way to make the play:

Following is how it all happened:

For Belleville Scott was hit by pitcher. He stole second as Weir fanned and advanced to third on H. Mills' fly to Wilgar but Green was Heckman's second strike-out victim of the winning.

For the Petes Rose flew out to Weir and Blakely threw out Johnston. Ash here inserted the first of his three hits, but Wilgar went out to H. Mills, unassisted.

The Nats, wasted two hits in their turn, a snappy double play pulling the locals out of a tight corner. W. Mills and Blakely both poked singles through short out of Mein's reach and Ross moved them up with a neat sacrifice. Hagerman walked to fill the bases and the stage was all set for Gibson but Heckman grabbed his high bounder and retired Mills at the plate, Swanston's quick throw to Ash getting the batter.

The Petes went out in order, Swanston grounded to Weir, who also took Heckman's fly. Blakely threw out Holyman.

The leader did nothing in the third. Scott flew out to Mein, who also threw out Weir. Rose did likewise to H. Mills. Ash made a nice play on Mein's wide throw just beating Weir to the bag.

Belleville were again retired in order in the fourth. Green's fly was taken by Mein. Johnston threw out W. Mills and Mein did the same to Blakely.

Poor base-running cost the Petes at least one run in their half. Ash led off with his second hit, a single to left and Wilgar followed with a hit over second. Swanston moved the pair ahead with a sacrifice. When Heckman fanned Mills dropped the third strike and Ash was caught trying to score and retired at third. Heckman reaching first. Heckman wast out at second on Holyman's grounder to Scott.

Ross opened the fifth by walking and Hagerman inserted the first of his strike outs. Gibson scratched a hit to Mein. Scott was out on his infield fly to Heckman and Weir forced Gibson at second on his rap to Mein. The Petes were easy. Mein went out to H. Mills unassisted. Gibson threw out Hall and Rose grounded to Weir.

The visitors opened the scoring in the sixth with a cheap run. H. Mills got a double on his short fly to centre. Green was thrown out by Mein, Mills taking third. W. Mills popped one to centre which Holyman misjudged, H. Mills scoring and W. Mills reaching second. Wilgar dropped Blakely's fly and W. Mills took third. Ross hit to Mein and Mills was caught between third and home and was retired at third. Hagerman obliged as usual by fanning to end the inning. The locals went out on four pitched balls, Johnston, Ash and Wilgar being thrown out by Scott, Blakely and Weir respectively.

Gibson opened the seventh by popping to Mein. Scott singled past first. Weir hit to Johnston whose throw to Rose was too late to get Scott but Weir was out at first on the attempted double play. H. Mills flew out to Wilgar.

The fighting Petes tied the score and set up a lead for themselves in their half taking advantage of the Nationals' only errors of the game to score two runs. Swanston started the fireworks by hitting sharply over second and then came the lucky break. Heckman hit to Gibson and with an easy double play in sight Weir dropped the pitcher's throw, both runners being safe. Holyman came through with a clean hit to score Swanston with the tieing run. Holyman was out trying to make secon on the throw to plate. Mein hit to Blakely whose wide throw scored Heckman, Mein taking second. Ross made a nice catch of Hall's fly to left. Rose was hit by pitcher but Johnston ended the fun by grounding to Gibson.

Green started Belleville off right when he hit safely to left and then the locals got another of those lucky breaks that have been going the other way all season, when H. Mills in attempting to sacrifice popped to Ash who doubld Green unassisted. Blakely doubled to right centre. Ross singled off Heckman. Ash making a nice stop of Mein's bad throw on the deflected ball. The issue was again up to Hagerman and the talkative Stan did his Easterling act all over again.

The Petes added another and should have had more. Ash led off with his thrid hit through third and reached second easily but overran the bag and was tagged. Wilgar went out to H. Mills unassisted. Swanston walked. Heckman singled to left and Holyman followed with a hit single through short scoring Swanston with what proved to be the winning run. Heckman was caught between second and third on the play and was out, W. Mills to Blakely.

Belleville were dangerous in the ninth, scoring one run on two errors followed by Weir's single but Heckman was equal to the occasion and retired the side without further damage. Johnston started the trouble by dropping Scott's high fly and Mein picked the ball up and made a useless wild throw to first, Scott reaching second to score on Weir's single, but Johnston threw out H. Mills and Green to end the game and serve notice on Oshawa that the Petes are still in the game and coming:

Kiwanis Lose First Game Of Juvenile Play-Offs

OSHAWA TAKES EARLY LEAD TO WIN 12-9 COUNT

Locals Credited With Only Home Run and Double Play of Game.

ERRORS COSTLY.

Return Game Will Be Played Here On Wednesday Night at Riverside Park.

By scoring four runs in the first two innings the Oshawa Juveniles defeated the Kiwanis of this city by a 12-9 count on Saturday afternoon.

The local youths appeared nervous in their play and did not show up to the form that they have displayed in former games here, wild throws and muffed balls on the part of the fielders proving costly for the locals.

Braund for the Petes was good up until the first of the seventh frame when he walked four men which added one more counter to the already heavy list of the opposition, he was replaced by Woods who also did good work having two strikeouts to his credit in the short time he was on the mound. Starr clouted the only homer of the game by a deep drive over centre field bringing in Whatley who was resting on second base at the time; also the only double play of the fixture went to the credit of the Clubmen when Brad, the Oshawa shortstop, hit to Braund, who threw to Weir putting out James at second and getting the runner before he reached first.

The first three Kiwanis men were struckout.

Hurst, first man up for Oshawa reached the initial sack when Dallin dropped his fly to left. Hall filed to Whatley. Matthews made first on a drive to centre field, Foley dropping the ball. A passed ball by Starr advanced the runners. Gingerski singled one into the field scoring Hurst for the first tally of the game. Matthews also registering on the hit. James struckout and Amsbury put the side out by a long drive to the left field which was easily handled by Dallin.

Second Inning.

Weir made first on a single and advanced to second on a passed ball. McCullough put one over the shortstop's head and made first, Weir being caught at second. McCullough was nipped trying to steal second. Foley, the next batter up, struckout.

In the second frame Brad was whiffed. Landen hit to Whatley and was thrown out at first. Hurst made the initial sack on a grounder to left field. Hall hit to Weir who dropped the ball, allowing the runner to make first and advancing Hurst to second base. Matthews singled sharply to centre field, Hurst and Hall scoring. Matthews ended the frame by flying to Weir.

Third Inning.

The third inning was the big frame for the Kiwanis. Huggins and Braund, the first two men up, struckout. Dallin was walked and made second on a passed ball, stole third and again on a passed ball advanced to home plate for the first tally of the Petes. Whatley doubled to centre field and completed the circuit when the fielder threw the ball into the visitor's dugout. Starr scored the third run for the Kiwanis by hitting a circuit clout deep into centre field.

Gingerski went out on a fly to Weir, James walked and Amsbury filed to Dallin who made a wonderful catch. Brad hit into a lightning fas double play Braund to Weir to McCullough.

Fourth Inning.

McCullough and Saunders both struckout in the first of the fourth, and Foley hit to Hall, who threw him out at first.

Laden doubled over Whatley's head to start Oshawa's fourth. Reeves went out on a fly to Foley. Hurst clouted one over Saunder's head scoring Laden and resting on the initial sack himself. Hall singled to left advancing Hurst. Matthews filed to Huggins, but Gingerski tripled to the left garden bringing in two runs. He scored a minute later on a passed ball. James walked and was caught by ten feet when he tried to steal second.

VIEWS ON SPORTS

The Kiwanis lost to Oshawa by a 12-9 count on Saturday, but it wasn't such a bad game after all. The local youngsters appeared to be nervous in the first of their play, which allowed the homesters to gather up a four-run lead.

* * * * * *

The two umpires did not seem to bear any great love for the visitors either, for that matter, the base ump handing out some rather raw decisions in the early stages of the game, while the man at the plate showed up well in the argument that ensued when the ball bounced into the visitors' bench.

* * * * * *

"Do I get a free haircut for this?" was the question asked by Starr as he crossed the home plate in the only circuit clout of the game. A question that was rather hard to answer, as the tonsorial prize offered by Robinson's barber shop for the juvenile group was won by Dunkerly earlier in the season.

There will be no game between the C.G.E. and Harrison in the City Softball League to-night. Further announcements will be made later in the week.

* * * * * *

Saturday's win gave the Petes the season's series with Belleville by 4 to 2 games. They thereby win twice as many from the leaders as the rest of the teams together.

* * * * * *

The Seniors again had only nine men available, Batten being in uniform, but was unable to get into the game.

* * * * * *

Hap Harrison was an absentee and the big fellow's hitting, which has featured the locals' attack all season, was missed.

* * * * * *

Stan Hagerman had his usual complaint that the Petes' pitchers threw him nothing but curves. He certainly is the Paul Easterling of this league when facing Peterborough hurlers.

Ash made two nice plays on bad throws by Mein, saving the recruit shortstop errors both times.

ROYALS WIN CLOSE GAME AT KINGSTON

Are Outhit But Make Better Use of Chances To Score Runs.

FINAL SCORE 6-4.

Local Juniors Play Good Ball Behind Good Pitching By Holmes.

For the first time in years, in a play-off game, a Peterborough team came out on the top of the heap with a Kingston team in Kingston, when the Royals, city Junior Champions, stepped into the Kingson Victorias in the Limestone city and walked out with the heavy end of a 6-4 count, after nine innings of thrills. The score was close and the teams as evenly matched as it indicates and that's saying a lot. The Petes, after a five-hour motor trip that began early Saturday morning, took first pokes at 2:30 (standard time) before a splendidly large crowd that gathered at the Kingston Cricket field, and the game, played in good time, provided plenty of excitement. There was no actually heavy hitting, not an extra base hit in the entire scrap, but neither pitcher had an easy day, both relying mostly upon their team mates to do the defensive work.

Holmes, on the mound for the Petes, breezed along throughout the entire session, being threatened on only two serious occasions, while Matheson, inclined to be a little bit wild had eight strike-outs to his credit. He also walked five men while Holmes allowed two free tickets. He struck out four batters.

Both teams were right out to win at the drop of the bat, as indicated by the fact that each scored a run in the initial session. And both teams were guilty of plenty of ivory too, the first run of the Petes' coming directly as a result of the Kingston battery crossing signals on a pop fly. Then, too, in the ninth, with the homesters pressing, the Royals messed things when, with two men on and only one out, the runners went wild and were trapped, one between third and home and the other between second and third.

However, an indication of the trend of play is best given by the score which shows both teams scoring in the first, the Petes blanked for the next three and the homesters for the next four. A big session in the fifth gave the invaders four and a single tally in the sixth while the Victorias ran in a brace of counters in the sixth and another in the ninth.

On their play Saturday, the Peterborough representatives looked good enough to take the two-game series and then be real conntenders for Provincial honors. With Kitchen held in reserve, Holmes went the entire route, combining nice pitching with reliance upon his teammates and in the majority of cases he was not disappointed. H. Hollingsworth had a little trouble in getting started but he showed a real improvement in the last five innings and his scorching single in the fifth with the bases cluttered, brought his stock up about a thousand points. Young Hartley was another very busy infielder with numerous assists, a hit, and two walks and a run to his credit.

In the early stages, however, the Petes seemed a bit slow to get going but they found themselves along after the third or fourth and began to find Matheson less of a mystery. The Hometown lads however, were quite as eager and played, perhaps the more consistent ball. Their opposition capitalized on the breaks. A return game should be a real argument.

First Inning

Hope struck out. Hollingsworth walked, stole second, and advanced to third when Beavis popped a fly in front of the plate that the Kingston battery failed to field. Hatton lifted a long sacrifice fly to right field that scored Hollingsworth. L. Hollingsworth was thrown out. Connolly to Smith. 1 run, 1 hit, 0 errors.

Vince hit through second base territory but Pennock filed out to Holmes. Gibson lifted a floater to centre field that Beavis collected, but too late to catch Vince at the plate. He had stolen second and third, while Pennock was at bat. Smith hit through short, advanced to second and went to third when Holmes failed to field Matheson's scratch. Quinn hit to Hartley, forcing Matheson. 1 run, 3 hits, 1 error.

Second Inning

Jones filed out to Wood; Hartley struck out, and Gordon was thrown out, Matheson to Smith. 0 runs, 0 hits, 0 errors.

Amey was thrown out, Hollingsworth to Gordon; Connolly got on on H. Hollingsworth's error; Wood struck out, and Vince hit to centre field. Penhock got on when H. Hollingsworth dropped his hit, but the Petes' second sacker redeemed himself right there by making a nice throw home to catch Connolly at the plate. 0 runs, 1 hit, 1 error.

Third Inning

Holmes struck out; Hope flied out to Connolly, and H. Hollingsworth hit to first and was out. 0 runs, 0 hits, 0 errors.

Gibson was thrown out, Hollingsworth to Gordon; Smith went out by the same route, and Matheson struck out. 0 runs, 0 hits, 0 errors.

Fourth Inning.

Beavis got a life when the catcher let a third strike get away from him. Hatton struck out, and Beavis was caught stealing second. L. Hollingsworth was thrown out, Connolly to Smith. 0 runs, 0 hits, 0 errors.

Quinn pulled a nice bunt that caught the Petes flat-footed. He advanced to second when Amey was thrown out, Hollingsworth to Gordon. Connolly struck out but Wood drew a walk and with two on Vince was forced to hit to Hollingsworth, who threw him out at first. 0 runs, 0 hits, 0 errors.

Fifth Innings.

HASTINGS WINS COUNTY SERIES DEFEATING LOCKWORKS 14 TO 6

Visitors Hit Heavily Here On Saturday To Win Third Game.

MEET CITY WINNERS.

Losers Play Ragged Game in Field—Both Pitchers Work Hard.

Hastings with a batting punch that gave Lockworks a merry chase at Exhibition Park Saturday afternoon, won the county series of the East Peterborough League. The score was 14 to 6 giving the visitors three wins, to one Lock Works' victory in the series.

Hastings will play the winner of the Raybestos--Cognawagas series for the league championship.

Ralph was hit freely by Hastings and he was poorly supported, the lack of assistance being largely responsible for the large score. His water supporters kept him in difficulty after the first frame when he retired the visitors easily.

With his team mate piling up a comfortable lead they had a soft assignment on the mound. He was inclined to be wild but it didn't mean anything to Lock Works who went out at second base with a regularity that became monotonous. Harry Beach brought his team up from the rear in the third when he drove in two runs with his triple and went home for a third tally on a wild peg. Ralph got another three-bagger in the fourth and also scored on a wild heave. Outside of these clouts the locals failed to do much with the visiting twirler.

Cowell, Forbert and Harrington were the busy performers for Hastings, the former showing some nice work behind the plate.

RIFLE SHOOT OPENS TO-DAY

Competitors From All Parts of Dominion To Compete at Connaught Ranges.

CADETS FROM ENGLAND.

CONNAUGHT RIFLE RANGES, South March, Ont., Aug. 13.—(Canadian Press.)— These ranges were a scene of bustling activity to-day as marksmen from many corners of Canad and a team of twelve cadets from England gathered for the opening of the annual prize meet of the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association. Competitors were arriving every few minutes and wasted little time in getting under canvas, their homes for the week. They were around the treasurer's office in large numbers, placing their entries for the various competitions; they were also to be found at the quartermaster's stores, making arrangements for sleeping accommodation, getting beds and bedding and the other paraphernalia of camp life. In many respects the scene was similar to the establishment of a new unit in wartime.

The entry list is well filled, totalling close to five hundred riflemen, and the weatherman has promised favorable climatic conditions for the shoot. Yesterday a brilliant sun made camp life pleasant and there was but a slight breeze blowing.

Year by year the arrangements for the convenience and comfort of competitors to the Dominion's blue ribbon shooting event improve. A new competitors' building, housing writing and reading room, a large assembly hall, and other spacious accommodation is to be used for the first time at this meeting.

Many familiar faces were seen around the ranges. All the well-known marksmen of the Dominion were here, renewing acquaintances. The entry list also contains the names of a team of twelve cadets from Clifton College, England, under the leadership of Major J. A. O. Muirhead, officer commanding the corps. The cadets, who will compete in all the events during the week are at present on holiday in Canada, and, following the conclusion of the meeting, it is planned that they will spend a few days around the city of Ottawa. Afterwards they will holiday in other parts of Ontario until the time comes for their return to England about a month hence.

Band Concerts.

Among entertainment features planned for the competitors this year, is a series of band concerts, at which the bands of the three infantry units of the city and district will provide the programs. The first of these took place this evening when the band of the Governor-General's Foot Guards entertained the camp. On Wednesday evening the band of the 38th Highlanders will provide the program, and on Thursday the music will be furnished by the band of Le Regiment De Hull.

Tuesday evening the semi-annual meeting of the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association will be held, and following the meeting there will be a display of machine gun fire, tracer bullets being used. The exhibition will be put on by the personnel of the Canadian Small Arms School, which is directed by Lieut-Col. W. K. Walker.

On Tuesday there will be a garden party to which a large number of guests, prominent in civil and military life of the Capital have been invited to meet His Excellency, the Governor-General. Lord Willingdon has displayed a keen interest in the affairs of the D.C.R.A.

There were a large number of visitors at the ranges throughout the day and one feature to which they were attracted was the display of cups and trophies, on view at headquarters. Among those which received particular attention was the Bisley Grand Aggregate Shield, won this year by Lieut. Desmond T. Burke of the C.G.F.G., Ottawa. This is the second year in which this shield has been brought to Canada. In 1927 C.C.M.S. Alex Parnell, of Toronto, was the winner. It is a beautiful shield, standing nearly four feet high, and bears the coats of arms of the seven provinces of the Dominion of Canada which were in existence in 1871, the year in which the shield was first presented to the Bisley meeting by the D.C.R.A.

The officials for the meeting include the usual list of well-qualified officers. Lieut.Col. D. R. Street, Ottawa, is the chief executive officer and his assistant is Lieut. Col. R. J. Birdwhistle, also of Ottawa. The chief range officer will be Col F. F. Clarke, of Montreal. These three officers held the same position last season.

The matches scheduled for the first day's operations include the Tyro, the MacDougall, the Bankers, the Barlow and the Cadet, with shooting scheduled to commence at 8.15 a.m.

DRY BASEMENT IS DESIRABLE IN HOME BUILDING.

"Out of sight is out of mind," but this must not apply to the foundations and basement. This vital part of the house deserves most thorough care in its planning and construction.

In the basement of many residences may be found working spaces which call for damp-proofness. A dry basement is desirable not only because of these, but also as a preventive of rust and mold. This matter of dampness is too often accepted as a necessary evil. Many dry basements now in use prove the contrary.

The footings of new buildings are practically always of monolithic concrete. Concrete being plastic when made and placed brings an even pressure on all of the inequalities of the ground surface. Footings for interior posts supporting the floor-beams should be ample size to prevent settlement.

After the footings are in place the basement wall may be of either monolithic or hollow concrete masonry, such as block or building tile, according to the local situation and the preference of the owner. Concrete masonry walls are usually less expensive.

Regarding the matter of water-proofing, this may often be avoided or at least simplified by providing proper drainage outside the wall. If the subsoil does not have good drainage, a line of drain-tile placed entirely around the outside of the footing and connected to a suitable outlet can generally be relied on to carry off excess water. The excavation above the tile should be filled to a depth of one or two feet with gravel or some other materials of a porous nature. All down spouts from roof-gutters should be connected to drains or else arranged so as to discharge water away from the basement wall.

As a further means of securing a dry basement, two or more coats of good cement plaster should be applied to the exterior surface of the wall just as soon as the mortar joints have hardened. The wall surface should be thoroughly dampened. A similar coating may be applied on the inside surface if desired.

Another common method of wall treatment is to coat the exterior surface with hot tar, pitch or suitable asphaltic preparation, using a broom or fibre brush. The wall must be clean and absolutely dry when this coating is applied.—Copyright 1928. The Architects' Small House Service Bureau.

COLONIAL AS TO HEREDITY

(Frank R. Evans, Architect.)

In the home illustrated here the designer has ignored traditional styles, and given us a thoroughly practical home of modern, but not futurist, design. Through its simple good proportions, symmetry, and atmosphere of structural soundness, it possesses a distinct character which will appeal to many.

The plan, of course, immediately suggests the typical centre hall Colonial type, but by the treatment employed distinctiveness has been gained, and cubic contents appreciably lowered. As shown, the house contains only 22,000 cubic feet, whereas a true Colonial exterior would have necessitated raising the roof lines, thereby entailing a proportionate increase of cubic contents, and therefore of cost.

The choice of materials of correct shades and textures is highly important in the erection of a home of this type, the stucco and red brick walls, and red shingle roof, proving very successful in this particular case.

Those commendable qualities which make the centre hall plan so enduringly popular are employed to full advantage here. Notice the logical manner in which each room is related to the rest of the plan, and the correctly proportioned dimensions of each as they seem to fall naturally into their appointed places.

A sunroom, which is here erected as an adjunct to the living-room, gives access to a rear verandah. It is interesting to note that while the popularity of front verandahs may be slightly yielding, in some localities, before the fashion of automobile "joy-riding," that of the garden verandah, where real restful peace may be enjoyed, is undoubtedly increasing.

A simple plan, providing three bedrooms, is used on the second floor. The modern home-builder's requirement of abundant closet space is exceptionally well met, for in addition to a large clothes closet in the bathroom and in each bedroom; a linen closet, and a roomy, lighted, fur storage cupboard open into the hall,

The main dimensions of the house are 24 ft. by 32 ft., therefore as erected, on a 50 ft. lot, the owner need never fear a view of plain brick wall, which, no matter how well laid, is never inspiring.

With hot water heating the cost of erection was approximately $7,500, exclusive of lot.

Readers desiring further information regarding a house of this design should communicate with Home Building Information Service, 345 Adelaide St. West, Toronto, Ont., who will see that it is supplied. When writing please mention design number 137. Copyright, 1928.

Jimmy McLarnin, of Vancouver, the baby-faced boy with a heavy-weight wallop, knocked out Stanislaus Loayza, of Chile, in the fourth round of their scheduled ten-round battle in the Olympic Arena at Detroit. McLarnin, the conqueror of Sid Terris and Phil McGraw, disposed of the sturdy South American with a left hook to the head, following the punch with a short right that caught Loayza flush on the chin. His body draped over the lower rope of the ring for a second, then he fell back and attempted to regain his feet, but was still on his knees vainly trying to shake the cobwebs out of his dizzy brain when he was counted out. The match was boxed before a coatless, sweltering crowd of 18,000, with gate receipts around $88,000, a record for lightweight competitions in the West.

ONTARIO TEAM CAPTURES HONORS

Win Golf Honors at Interprovincial Match at Montreal.

MONTREAL, Que, Aug. 13—(Canadian Press).— Championship golf by Fred G. Hoplitzel, Jack Cameron and Ross Somerville, supported by two consistent rounds from R. M. Gray, the veteran of the side, gave the Ontario team of four amateur golfers the laurels in the inter-Provincial match contested at Royal Montreal Saturday. An aggregate of 621 for the 36-hole competition, the equivalent of 77½ each for 18 holes, provided the Ontario representatives a decisive margin over Quebec, the unsuccessful defenders of the title, who finished in second place with an aggregate gross of 645.

Manitoba, trailing Alberta by one stroke at the end of the first 18 holes of the competition in a tussle for third place, pruned own their total on the afternoon through a brilliant 74 by A. A. Weir—a card which tied with F. G. Hobiltzel's afternoon round for the best of the tournament—and a smart 77 by the long-driving Carson MacWilliams. The strength shown by the Manitoba quartette in the afternoon was sufficient to give them third place with an aggregate of 659. But not enough to enable them to make a serious threat on the Quebec team and second position.

Alberta, with a team of young stars headed by Gordon MacWilliams, finished fourth in the aggregate, but the far Western team introduced to the East the most promising golfer of the competition, J. A. M. Mountfield, of Edmonton, from whom much may be heard in the future if he holds seriously to the game and gains the experience required to round out his play. The Western amateur champion had only fair rounds Saturday, but his play attracted the golf critics among the gallery.

HEAVY RAINFALL ON OPENING DAY

Opening of Scottish Football Season Off To Poor Start.

GLASGOW, Scotland, August 13 (Canadian Press Cable). — The Scottish football season, which opened on Saturday, got off to a very poor start. The weather everywhere was thoroughly disagreeable, rain falling heavily at the majority of games. The attendance was accordingly affected.

Visiting clubs had the pull in the results winning five and drawing two matches. Hearts' new team, which includes Harkness, the great former amateur goaler for Queen's Park and Scotland, Bennie and Battles, the Scottish American, opened wih a fine win over Queen's Park, whose supporters saw Harkness put up a sterling game. Both Bennie and Battles scored. The Celts, with three juniors in their attack, also did well. McGrory scored their goal against Dundee. This player was recently the centre figure in sensational transfer negotiations. Arsenal, it is understood, offered $40,000 for him. McGrory refused to agree to the transfer because his share of the purchase money was not large enough.

McMurtry enabled Motherwell to defeat Airdrie, while Gibson had three of Partick's four goals against Raith Rovers. An easy win was that of Third Lanark at Hamilton, Wilson getting wo goals for the warriors. The champion Rangers excelled in the first half against Kilmarrnock, who, however, improved towards the finish. Fleming registered twice for the Rangers. Clyde won with little to spare against Falkirk, Jessiman's winning tally coming just on time.

Smith's equalising goal at Ayr caused a rumpus, Morgan, of St. Mirren, being ordered off the field. After being behind, Hibernians came strong at the finish and divided the points with St. Johnston.

The return engagement between these two teams has not yet been arranged but it is expected that there will be a different tale to tell after their next meeting Although it is generally believed that the local players present a strong opposition it is not a common occurrence for them to win every event

The events were: Men's singles, O. Weston defeated A. W. Armstrong, 6-3; 6-2. Harry Free defeated T Black, 6-2; 6-3. Men's doubles, B. H. Beatty and W. Kingston won from R Cole and P. On Wednesday afternoon Point Anne will play here in a Tummon league fixture and on Saturday Cobourg will visit the local courts in a central Ontario Association event. Following the tournament in the afternoon tea was served in the club house.

THEATRES

AT THE REGENT.

Those who have seen Dolores Costello in "The Sea Beast," "When a Man Loves," or "The Third Degree," will look for great things from her characterization in "A Million Bid," and their expectations will be gratified beyond their most extravagant dreams. Dolores Costello has never had a part more calculated to bring into vivid emotional reality the possibilities of her genius.

The story is that of a girl who is sold by her mother to the highest bidder; freed by a storm at sea from her husband and her mother, and at last married to the young doctor whose letters her mother had intercepted.

When life goes well with the two the supposedly drowned husband comes back He is suffering from loss of memory, and the young surgeon insists that it is his duty to operate on him, in spite of the havoc his returned memory may cause to him, and to his wife and child The operation is successfully performed, but with returning memory something fine awakens in the old man, and pretending that he does not recognize his benefactors he wanders out of their lives.

This is but a bare outline of a story thrilling and big and authentic. Warner Oland as the old husband gives one of the most masterful of his performances. The manly Malcolm McGregor plays the young husband with force and charm. Betty Blythe, who will be remembered as "The Queen of Sheba" in that great spectacle of several years ago, is the frigid, worldly mother in perfection. Wm Demarest and Douglas Gerrard actually lighten the tragedy and the [illegible] the love of all mothers every[illegible] Grace Gordon as the maid also gives creditable performance.

Added to the finesse of the acting is the technical beauty of the picture. The photography is unusually brilliant and Michael Curtis has again proven himself a truly great director. Everyone should see Dolores Costello in "A Million Bid."

Must Have Winner Declared For Trip To Oshawa Saturday.

The winner of the East Peterborough League must meet the Oshawa District champions next Saturday in the first game of the opening round of the O.B.A.A. This order means that Raybeston and Cornwagas who open their play-off series this evening must play again tomorrow and on Wednesday, if a third game is necessary. If two games only are necessary, the winner will play Hastings on Wednesday in the first contest for the league championship.

Umpires Kay and LeBarr will handle tonight's game which will be played to a decision. It looks like a great contest with Vannest and Maudsley on the mound.

DEL CHERRY HURT.

Kingston Baseball Star Badly Injured When Car Hits Pole.

KINGSTON, Aug. 13.— (Special) —Del Cherry, star player on Kingston's team in the Central Ontario Baseball League was seriously hurt in an auto accident last night. With some companions he was driving in a car near Tuttle's Hill when the driver of the car lost control and the car hit against a telegraph pole.

Cherry was the most seriously injured and was brought to the Kingston General Hospital. Stuart Beeman and John Haines, who were riding in the car suffered serious cuts. The car was badly wrecked.

NEGLIGENCE FOUND BY CORONER'S JURY

Irvine White, Driver of Car, Named in Verdict On Victor Harris' Death.

LINDSAY, Aug. 13.—The coroner's inquest inquiring into the death of Victor Harris, the seventeen-year-old Cameron youth, who was fatally injured in an automobile collision near his home early Monday morning, August 6, was held in Cameron village, and a verdict of negligence on the part of the driver of the car, Irvine White, of Fenelon Falls, was returned.

Harris was frightfully injured when White's car crashed into a horse and buggy in charge of the former, and died the following day in the Ross Hospital, Lindsay.

Thirteen witnesses were heard at the inquest, and no evidence was adduced to prove that a lighted lantern was carried on the buggy at the time of the accident. The contention that the boy was asleep in the buggy at the time the accident occurred was not proven.

White wa sarrested a few days ago by the Provincial Police, but was given his freedom on bail being furnished.

LOCAL RESIDENT EFFECTS RESCUE

Edward Greer Saves Lives of a Man and Three Children.

The unknown elderly man referred to in the following from the Border Cities Star, Windsor, as having rescued a party of four when their boat upset was Edward Grier, 72, of Peterborough who was visiting his sister, Mrs. C. O'Connor at the time:

Several hundred people saw one man and three children rescued from Lake St. Claire, opposite Stop 13, Riverside, just before noon today when a speed boat travelling about 25 miles an hour capsized on a turn. Those rescued were two girls, aged 13 and 5, and one boy, aged 11, the children of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Lutz, of Pittsburgh, Pa., who saw the accident from the shore; and the driver of the boat, Albert T. Boden, who operates a water livery at Riverside. Several boats went to the rescue.

One Saved By Driver.

Mr. Lutz, who is staying at the Prince Edward hotel, ascribes the rescue of all three of his children to the fact that the two oldest can swim. The younger girl sank, but came to the surface again and was saved by Boyden, Mr. Lutz thinks. The two older children swam to the overturned boat as soon as they struck the water, and clung to it until boats put out from shore to save them. Boyden also hung on to the boat supporting the little girl. Boyden was equipped with a life preserver.

Mrs. Lutz screamed and collapsed when she saw the speedboat turn turtle and her children thrown into the lake. Her husband, just as frantic, sounded an immediate alarm and put out in one of the rescuing boats.

Begged for a Ride.

When the Lutz family, on a holiday here since Sunday, left the hotel this morning for a quiet drive about the Border, there was no intention of including a speed boat ride in their program. However, when they were passing Riverside, the 13-year-old boy begged for a ride in one of the livery boats, with the result that only a few minutes later all three children were struggling in the water. None of them suffered ill effects from their dip and, unless colds result from the immersion, will be all right by tomorrow, Mr. Lutz said early this afternoon.

Blames Driftwood.

Mr. Boyden ascribes the accident to a waterlogged piece of driftwood, floating in the river. These, he says, are very dangerous.

"I was slowing down to take a curve," he said, "and was not doing more than 25 miles an hour at the time. Had I struck the log squarely, the boat might have gone over it, but as it was, it caught us right as we were turning around and over we went.

"But the Good Lord was with us. The two elder children knew enough to grab the boat as we went over, and the littlest girl came right up in front of me. I grabbed her, swam to the boat and saw to it that both the other children had a good grip on the overturned boat, when I knew we were safe."

A rowboat, manned by an elderly man whom Mr. Boyden does not know, quickly put out from the point just below the boat livery, while, at the same time, one of the larger launches from the livery started to the rescue. Both arrived at about the same time and it was not long before the children and Mr. Boyden were safe on shore.

Nothing was lost but the boat livery man's shoes. "I kicked them off in order to swim better, but they did not amount to much, at that," he said.

Mr. Boyden thinks that the two elder Lutz children displayed remarkable presence of mind. They did not struggle nor try to climb on top of the overturned boat, which was a speedy sled, offering very little to hold on to except the fin-like keel. Had these children lost their heads, as others might have under the same circumstances, the overturning of the boat might have resulted in tragedy instead of a mere wetting, the boat livery man thinks.

The boat was towed to shore.

Sam Jones, operator of the derrick which stood the strain of the collapse of the crane on the opposite bank of the Welland Canal when eight men were killed by the fall of a huge lock gate. He later brought the dead and injured to the top of the bank in a sling.

FIRE DESTROYS GARAGE AND CARS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Aug. 13.—A fire which broke out from unknown causes and which made a great deal of headway before being noticed early this morning destroyed the garage of Reeve W. T. Curtis here. Three cars, in the building, a motor hearse, a small sedan and a roadster were also lost. There was no insurance carried on either cars or building.

TINY MOSQUITOES CARRY DISEASE

Viciously Attack Defenseless Sleepers at Night

Mosquitoes are ruthless in their attacks on their human prey. Under cover of darkness they cause constant annoyance and untold misery.

So treacherous are these tiny insects that civilization has been retarded where mosquitoes are found in large numbers.

Nothing can spoil a person's rest and disposition like the presence of even one solitary buzzing mosquito in the bedroom. Many a one has spent a frantic half-hour in fruitless efforts to find and swat one of these tormenting pests.

Mosquitoes not only disturb rest, but inject disease germs directly into the bloodstream. Scratching the itching bite often caused blood poisoning.

Try FLY-TOX and see how easily it does the work! You do not even have to see the pest. Just spray this fragrant and stainless liquid freely about the room, on screens and curtains.

FLY-TOX is a scientific insecticide for the home developed at Mellon Institute of Industrial Research by Rex Research Fellowship. Sold in bottles

Wheat Prices Go Down As Shipments Increase

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—(Canadian Press).—Material setbacks in prices for wheat rescued early today from hedging and from General Commission House selling. World shipments of wheat showed a big increase both over a week ago and one year back. Starting at ⅛ cent decline to ½ cent advance, wheat soon underwent a drop all around. Corn developed weakness, September especially the market opening ⅝c. off to ⅞c. up and later showing nearly 3 cents in many cases. Oats were easy.

Opening prices were:—Wheat, September, 109½; December, 114¾. Corn, September 86¼; December, 72⅞. Oats, September, 37⅛; December, 45¼.

International Nickel Features Quiet Session

TORONTO, Aug. 13.— (Canadian Press.)— With the exception of International Nickel, not an issue experienced a thousand sale in the trading at the Toronto stock exchange during the morning session to-day. Prices were also dull with practically all changes of a fractional nature. Abitibi was up to 52, with a net gain of two, Brazilian Light and Power was up ¼ at 57¾, and Brantford Cordge up 1½ at 19½. Nickel, after reaching 97¾, closed with a loss of one at 96½. Massey Harris slackened 1¼ at 39½, Page Hersey one at 93¾, and City Dairy one at 54. British Americean Oil was steady in the curb section at 37. Distillers Seagrams and Walkers each were ¼ higher at 15½ and 53½ respectively.

High Money Rates Restrain N.Y. Trading

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—(Canadian Press.)—High money rates continued to have a restraining effect on trading in to-day's stock market. The marking up of the call money renewal rate to 7½ per cent., the highest since the first of the month, brought a flurry of selling which carried a score of issues down one to six points, but buying support was quickly provided and the market was headed upward again by early afternoon.

Banks called $15,000,000 in loans during the morning. Time money was 6½ per cent bid for all dates with a somewhat more plentiful supply coming in at that figure. Commercial and Bankers acceptance rates held firm. The sale of sterling around the low level for the year aroused hopes in speculative quarters of a return flow of gold from England in the near future, but leading bankers were not quite so optimistic. Outside the stock and money markets the chief speculative interest centred in a further break of $2.50 a bale in cotton, part of which was recovered.

Mine Market Is Dull With Prices Irregular

TORONTO, Aug. 13.—(Canadian Press).—The morning session of the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange to-day was very dull, with prices inclined to be irregular. Noranda, after opening at 43.50 finally climbed to a height of 55.25, but with slow trading slid back to 49.50, closing with a gain of 90 over Friday's close. Lake Shore was up twenty at 20.40, Howey Gold two at 97, and Sudbury basin up five at 6.30. Crown Reserve was 2¼ higher at 42¼ and Amulet 9 at 3.70. (Unofficial Opinions on the Markets

MONTREAL, Aug. 11.—The local market yesterday was not a very active affair, and changes, for the most part, were of a minor character. Gains, however, outnumbered losses. The overnight news in Wall street was of a bullish nature and resulted in sharp advances in a number of New York stocks and this found some reflection in local issues. An easier trend, however, developed before the close, due to highering of call money to 8%, and this carried practically all stocks down from their high levels.

The scarcity of Lake of the Woods was well illustrated yesterday when an order at the opening found the market comparatively bare of stock, and resulted in a sharp advance in the security to 84½. In sympathy with the balance of the list, the issue reacted somewhat before the close. The probability of a bumper crop this year in Western Canada is a bullish factor, as the company is certain to benefit from the prosperity which is bound to ensue in the West. For a high grade stock Lake of the Woods common affords a large return to the investor.

The writer has it on good authority that Page-Hersey Tubes are earning close to $10 a share on the common at the present time, as compared with about $7 shown last year. Until 1924, Page-Hersey preferred is convertible into common on the basis of two common for one preferred, but transactions in the preferred latterly have been infrequently the last sale being for 20 shares at 200 on July 7th. The year's high of 106 on the common took place when there were reports of merger possibilities. Undoubtedly there were negotiations but the initiative did not come from the management and evidently no proposition was set forth which was sufficiently attractive.

It is understood that the Canadian Industry Alcohol Co. in July experienced one of the best months in its history and prospects are that earnings for the year which ends September 30th, 1928, will be of record breaking proportions. The stock, due no doubt, to technical market conditions has not reflected this prosperity, but insiders maintain that it is only a matter of time before the "Street" realizes that the issue is attractive at these prices and a sharp advance occurs. "Alcohol" is now down about 13 points from the high of the year.

Earnings and sales of Howard Smith Paper Mills so far this year have been running ahead of last year. New records have been set in several months and outlook for the rest of 1928 is excellent. The company, a fine paper producer, has not been suffering to any considerable extent from competitions which have affected the newsprint companies may put their machines into fine paper production, rather than close down altogether. They believe competition from such a development would not be serious, however, as newsprint companies have not adequate facilities for fine paper output.

Dominion Bridge is receiving new business daily and it is reasonable to assume that shareholders, as in the past, are bound to receive the benefits of this in one or another. An increased dividend or bonus is looked for by many before the end of the year.

Mining Briefs

A Special Service to The Examiner

TORONTO, Aug. 13.—Average millheads have been stepped up substentially and are running at between $9 and $10 per ton now. This is attributed to the fact that workings in the mine have passed through a faulted zone that yielded lower than average grade ore and average values of ore being developed are on the up grade once more.

Both Wright-Hargreaves shafts are nearing the objective of 2,000 feet. When leading pockets are built and the two shafts which are 590 feet apart are connected, two new levels will be opened up, without delay.

The faulted zone in the north vein has already disappeared and it is expected that the faulted conditions in the south vein will also disappear when the fresh levels are opened up.

It is probable that from now forward the company will be able to earn 20 cents per share or better on the stock. The company's liquid assets are substantial and it should be only a matter of time when dividends will be restored at the former rate.

Obscure Factors in Hollinger's Output

Hollinger is the highest yielding stock in the Canadian mining list, at the present low price the yield being nearly fifteen per cent. The last annual report showed net current assets, including inventories, etc., of $13,565,505, and officials have intimated that these are sufficient to permit maintenance of dividends at 26 per cent or $1.30 per share, even if earnings in any given year fall below this requirement. It is pretty certain that a considerable amount will have to be drawn from surplus reserves for this purpose this year to meet the full dividend.

Hollinger is still paying for improper back-filling in the mine in the past. This work continues to hamper breaking down of ore in important sections of the mine and has thrown the operations badly off schedule. Some 4,000 tons daily is all that the company has been able to put through the mill, but when backfilling which should have been attended to as work of breaking down ore went on, is completed, the company may be expected to step up tonnage materially.

The fire and its aftermath are only part of the story, however. The loss last year in net ore reserves of $6,000,000 has yet to be accounted for. Undoubtedly, this was largely responsible for the break of more than 50 per cent in the price of the stock this year. Apparently, the Schumacher property, which is just now being developed at depth must be called on to help make up this shortage. Is that property big enough to enable Hollinger to produce some $15,000 in gold annually and made additions to net reserves.

Hollinger has some $60,000,000 in ore reserves in the older workings, which can be counted on to contribute more new ore.

The suggestion has been made that President N. A. Timmins might come to some arrangement with Hollinger Consolidated, whereby the company would take over his varied mine interests. This would place a new complexion on Hollinger's outlook.

Ribago Copper Corporation to Organize New Company

The Ribago Copper Corporation announce that as the result of the exploration of the Rouyn property having been unsuccessful in developing ore in commercial quantities, it was deemed advisable to suspend operations and try and secure other properties of mining possibilities.

This has been done and the company has secured five groups of claims, one in each of Balfour, Hess, Yeo and Cunningham townships, and timber berths Numbers 83 and 81, Sudbury mining division. These claims have a total of approximately 3,600 acres and the geology of each looks promising, according to directors.

It has been deemed advisable by the directors to organize a separate company to operate the first three of these groups, the company to be known as the Ribago-Sudbury Mines, Limited, to which the Ribago Copper Company's interests have been transferred.

At the meeting of directors held at the town of Haileybury, Ont., on July 23, the following resolution was unanimously carried.

"That the shareholders of record of Ribago Copper Corporation, Limited, as at August 15, 1928, be and are hereby given the right to purchase any part of the one million shares of Ribago-Sudbury Mines, Limited, now under option from that company to this corporation, at the price of twenty cents per share, said right to be terminated at the pleasure of the directors without notice to the shareholders."

Keeley Engineer Studies Mine

In making public the directors' report for the year ended February 29 last, A. L. Burgess, Secretary of the Keeley Silver Mines, stated that the profit for the year amounted to-$272,564.78, as against $538,698.32 in the previous year, while the net surplus at February 29, 1928, of $705,968.72 shows a decrease of $14,786.61 over the corresponding figures for the previous year. The net current assets of the company amounting to $1,089,987, show an increase of $35,967.35 in the year now under review.

During the fiscal year 994,562 ounces of silver and 92,962 pounds of cobalt were produced, the gross value(including increase from all sources) being $632,727.61, as compared with $1,640,006 ounces of silver and 185,830 pounds of cobalt having a gross value of $1,042,250.10 during the preceding year. The average price of silver per fine ounce was 56,716 cents, against 57,173 cents in the previous year.

The cost of production per fine ounce, including all expenses and a capital expenditure of $1,661.17 was 35.25 cents per ounce. The cost of production per fine ounce during the preceding year was 29.41 cents per ounce. The increase in the cost of production was principally due to the material decrease in the monthly production during the latter half of the year.

During the year the following underground development has been carried out: Drifting and crosscutting, 5,169 feet, raising, 256; winze sinking, 103.5. Some 20,970 tons of ore was hoisted. Of this amount 19,671 tons was taken from the stopes; the remainder came from development. The cost per ton of ore delivered to the primary crusher averaged $4.14.

Due to the caved condition of some of the stopes and irregularity of other sections of ore, no estimate of ore reserves is possible, the report states. It is, however, hoped to maintain the present rate of production for a few months and exploration work is being carried out in various parts of the mine.

Thompson Cadillac Progress Report

Progress report dated August 2nd, from Murray D. Kennedy, mine manager for Thompson-Cadillac Mines, states that during the week ending July 31, a total advance of 190½ feet was made in drifting and crosscutting on the two levels at the property.

On the 150 foot level drifting on No. 2 vein from the north crosscut was advanced to the east 13 feet and to the west 18 feet, the vein in both places being quartz well mineralized, and the porphyry on each side of the vein very heavily mineralized. Mr. Kennedy states that this vein looks very promising, and is probably the vein that was cut in diamond drilling that gave such good assay results. The west drift on No. 1 vein was advanced a distance of 32 feet.

On the 300 foot level the north crosscut was advanced 5½ feet and is still in the large quartz vein, which is now 20½ feet wide and still in the face. Drifting on No. 2 vein was advanced to the west 15 feet, the vein being quartz about one foot wide, the porphyry being wider than the first —both vein and porphyry being very heavily mineralized. The drift on the same vein to the east was advanced 11½ feet, the vein being two feet wide and very similar to the showings in the west drift.

BUFFALO YACHT WAS BLOWN UP

Explosion at Isle Royale Finally Explained—Boat Caught Fire.

NO ONE ON BOARD.

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., August 13 (Canadian Press). — According to information brought to Port Arthur to-day the vessel blown up in Washington Harbor, Isle Royale, on Wednesday last was the full cabin yacht Peggy B., of Buffalo, N.Y. The name of the owner had not been ascertained. It was stated in earlier reports that the vessel blown up was part of a scientific expedition.

To-day's report was brought in by Sam Rude, a fisherman of Isle Royale. He stated that the generation of gases from the batteries started a fire which got beyond control. The boat had aboard large stores of gasoline and was cut loose from the dock and allowed to drift. Shortly afterwards there was an explosion which blew the craft to pieces. No one was on board at the time.

CANAL'S VALUE IS SET FORTH

Secretary of Waterway Association Replies To Letters in Globe.

FAVORS COMPLETION.

The "Voice of The People" Toronto Globe, this morning published a letter dealing with the Trent Waterway project, written by the secretary of the Trent Waterway Development Association. Mr. Stinson makes direct reply to E. E. H. of Kingson who wrote discussing the same subject in the issue of July 30.

The secretary's letter gives authoritative information relative to the waterway and among other things, quotes five statements regarding it as made by Professor Goforth of the Department of Economics, McGill University:

1. It shortens the distance from Fort William to Kingson by nearly 200 miles.

2. In a period of seven or eight years it has shown a larger passenger traffic than any canal in the Dominion.

3. It provides very valuable potentialities in hydro-electric power development.

4. It should serve a very valuable purpose in freight handling as a feeder of considerable importance to the main system.

5. Its traffic should grow in proportion to the expansion of population and industry.

Britain's Population Due For Distinct Slump in Few Years, He Says.

NO SURPLUS TO MIGRATE.

Children Who Should Have Been Born in War Years Would Be Parents in 1940.

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 14. — (Special to The Examiner).—One of the most striking statements made to me in an interview I had with Lord Lovat, who is here on immigration matters was his declaration that by 1940, Great Britain would not have any surplus population to migrate.

"How does Your Lordship make that out?"

"Well, it goes this way. Our male population, due to the war, mind you, is bound to decline. We are due for a distinct and inevitable slump in our population. It will begin about 1931. You see, the war started in 1914. From that date, you will see, there began the comparative absence of births of children and by 1931 the boys who should have been born from 1914 onward will fail to appear. We have today in England, of boys under fifteen years of age, about six Millions. By 1931 these will have dropped to about five and a half millions. What will it be in 1940. You can work it out for yourself."

Subscriptions To Memorial Are Being Received

The Committee is Particularly Anxious to Get a Large Number From $1.00 Up.

The work of erecting the Citizens' War Memorial in Confederation Park is gettong on and in the course of a few weeks will be complete.

During this week every householder will have had an appeal through the mails for a contribution to the fund necessary to clear off the $6,500 balance due on the memorial. Up to the present time only about $1,000 has been sent in by citizens, yet hundreds have delayed their intention of availing themselves the opportunity to contribute. The holiday season has interfered but it is hoped that the amount needed will not be short. The committee was particularly desirous of having a large number of subscriptions of $1.00, $2.00, $5.00 and up as circumstances permitted. Some of them have already come in and have been greatly appreciated.

Please send in your subscription to Mr. G. H. Thompson, 437 George street just as soon as you possibly can.

BREMEN AIRPLANE IS PRESENTED TO NEW YORK MUSEUM

BERLIN, Aug. 14.—(Canadian Press.)— The airplane Bremen, first to negotiate the trans-Atlantic passage from Europe to America, is destined for the projected Municipal Museum of the City of New York. This became known yesterday when Jacob Gould Schurman, United States ambasasdor, received a letter from Baron Von Huenefeld, owner of the plane, making a tender of it as a permanent gift to the community which first welcomed him to the United States.

Baron Von Huenefeld wrote the ambassador that he had put all his earthly possessions into the Bremen and its sister ship, the Europa. The munificence of friends, he explained, has permitted him to sacrifice the Bremen as a slight return for "warm and sincere friendship and confidence." He added:

"Through us this friendship has been extended to all of the Fatherland and we have become convinced that it never more will be disturbed and that a bridge has been built across the ocean that no storm can ever destroy."

The Bremen, which is now being exhibited in an exposition at Quebec, will be shipped to Germany and shown at the International Aviation Exposition to be held in this city early in October. After that, it will be taken to its home oprt at Dessau, where it will be overhauled at the Junkers Works preparatory to its final dispatch to the United States in December.

WILLIAMSON IS FINED $75

Magistrate Langley Finds Him Guilty of Reckless Driving on Provincial Highway.

RESULT OF ACCIDENT

Mervin Williamson was found guilty of reckless driving yesterday by Magistrate O. A. Langley and fined $75 and costs or one month's imprisonment. His chauffeur's license was also suspended for three months. The case arose out of the accident on the provincial highway about two miles west of this city on Saturday night, August 4, when Traffic Officer Wilson was struck by the car driven by Williamson. V. J. McElderry, K.C., conducted the defence and Crown Attorney Hatton, K.C., prosecuted.

In the accident the buggy of Mrs. Grady, who the officer was stopping, and the motorcycle of the traffic constable were wrecked and Mr. Wilson was thrown to the side of the road. Evidence was submitted that the brakes on the car, which was owned by Herbert Stinson, were in very poor condition, and that two bottles of beer and one of liquor, partially consumed, were found in the car. Witnesses for the defence claimed that the liquor was not drank in the car. With Williamson in the front seat of the car were two other men, who were being taken to Cobourg.

Found Liquor in Car.

Traffic Officer Hugh Wilson was the first witness called by Mr. Hatton. He said that on Saturday night, August 4, he was coming in the highway from Springville when, about two miles west of the city, he saw a buggy without the regulation lights. He turned around and drew up along side the buggy, leaving plenty of room for a car to pass, and had only begun to question the woman when a car struck the buggy and his motorcycle from the rear. The wheel and reach of the buggy was broken and the axle badly bent, while the motorcycle was hurled into the ditch and he landed on the side of the road. The car went on about 150 feet and stopped. He picked himself up and put the driver of the car and the two occupants under arrest. Later he searched the car and found two bottles of beer and one bottle of whiskey about one-third consumed. He said that F. Hillier was drunk and that E. Heffernan was not far from it, while he smelt whiskey on Williamson's breath. He took the

LOCAL POLICE NOT IN FAVOR OF NEW PLAN

Think Reckless Drivers Will Pay Little Attention To Complaint System.

SUMMONS EFFECTIVE.

If Drivers Would Co-operate With Police Speeders Could Be Curbed, Says Inspector.

It was announced last week that the Hon. G. S. Henry was entertaining plans for the creation of a complaint bureau for the dealing with abuses of traffic regulations. Cards are to be printed, if this suggestion materializes, on which will be printed all the common offences of the road and the driver who is endangered on the highway by a "cutting in driver," or a reckless chauffeur of any description, will only have to check the heading under which the offence occurs and mail it into the Parliament Building's bureau. These cards would be made available through garages and service stations.

This plan would work out in the following way. If several cards were received at one time relating to a single motorist, he would be checked up at once. The report card would be used in a confidential manner.

Police Inspector J. F. Reid when asked about this system by The Examiner this morning, said that he did not believe it to be much use. Citing the experiences of Peterborough's traffic by-laws he said that only a summons would be effective. Many are brought to the police station and warned of the parking laws but people will still persist in parking where they should not. For this reason he believes that the complaint plan would not meet with much success. He has heard people remark about reckless driving on the highway and state that the police are not on the job. If these offended drivers would only co-operate with the police and take the number of the offender and report the incident to headquarters an investiagtion would take place.

Frank Stinson, secretary of the Peterborough Automobile Club, made the following statement: "It is understood that the Minister of the Department of Public Highways is making a study of the matter of reckless driving on the highways and until his findings are absolutely made known it is impossible for anyone to pass an opinion definitely on the effectiveness of such a plan.

"My own personal observances have been that the highways are at times unsafe for driving, and that something should be done to curb the reckless careless, inconsiderate and ill informed driver as to the rules and courtesy of the road."

When asked if he did not think that this would result in petty grievances being the cause of many of these cards sent in, or cards sent in because of grudges, Mr. Stinson made no direct reply, but stated that during the French Revolution there was a similar system under which names were sent to a committee who acted on the lists and 'you know the results."

A motorist in conversation with The Examiner cited another historical case where the ancient Romans would send in lists of undesirable persons to the Triumvirate which would expel or execute them as aliens.

There has been no official word received either at the Automobile Club or Police Headquarters as yet as to this complaint system. The highway inspector who was in the city yesterday made no comment on the system.

Operation Is Considered To Separate "Siamese Twins" At New York City

NEW YORK, August 14. — On a wide bed in West Park Hospital to-day Mary and Margaret Gibb, 17-year-old "Siamese twins" awaited the report of a scientific observation which may result in an operation to free them from each other.

Dr. Francis P. Weston, the surgeon who has undertaken this unusual case, declined to confirm reports from the twins' home town, Holyoke, Mass., that they were seeking to be cut apart so that one of them, Margaret, might marry. Dr. Weston told the United Press, however, that he had been studying the case for many months, and that as he was considering the advisability of an operation to separate them.

"I do not care to comment extensively on this," Dr. Weston said. "It is a delicate matter and does not concern the public. The girls are joined together and it may be possible to separate them. That is all I can say."

Mary and Margaret are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Gibb, who brought them here where they could be observed and studied by Dr. Weston. They are said to be the only "Siamese twins" alive who were born in this country. They are joined together at the base of the spine, which in itself gives an indication of the hazards they would undergo should they be separated by a surgeon's knife.

"Siamese twins," Dr. Weston said, "is a misnomer. It has come to be applied to any two persons who are born together at any part of the body."

Thus far science has failed in all attempts to separate persons who are joined by an abnormality like that of Mary and Margaret. In several cases operations have been attempted when one of the twins is about to die of pneumonia or some other disease, but the operation always has resulted in the death of both individuals.

PASSENGER TRAINS WRECKED BUT ALL PASSENGERS ESCAPE

Seven Coaches of C. P. R. Train Leave Track at Audley Station.

TRAINMEN HURT.

International Limited Hits Open Switch and Crashes Into Freight Train.

PICKERING, Ont., Aug. 14 (Canadian Press).—Six passenger coaches and a baggage car of the Canadian Pacific Railways train No. 20, which left Toronto at 9 a.m. for Montreal were derailed at Audley station, a few miles north of here, but none of the passengers was injured.

H. W. Weaver, of Toronto, the baggage master, was the only member of the crew to be hurt, and he was only badly shaken up.

Railway officials at one o'clock had not announced the cause of the derailment. The work of clearing the line was started immediately and it was expected to have traffic moving through Audley by two p.m.

The train was well loaded with passengers, including a number of women and children, who all escaped serious injuries. The accident occurred at a curve near a switch with the train travelling at a good rate of speed. The passengers were considerably thrown about, but according to statements made by some of them, there was no serious panic.

Farmers working in the fields nearby rushed to the scene when they heard the crash, but their assistance was not needed.

Crack Train Wrecked

BROCKVILLE, Aug. 14 (Canadian Press.)—The International Limited, crack Canadian National train, en route from Montreal to Chicago, was derailed at noon to-day at Aultsville station when, as it is asserted in reports from that place, it struck an open cross-over switch and piled into the middle of a freight train standing on the eastbound track. The cars attached to the freight train were in turn, thrown against a string of boarding cars which were stationed on a siding, the result being that both tracks of the main line were blocked. Details of the wreck available here are still fragmentary but all reports agree that no person on either train met with injuries.

Commandant Frank Ham, of the Salvation Army Training Garrison, Toronto, and recently in charge of the Peterborough corps, who has been promoted to the office of Staff Captain, the promotion coming from International Headquarters, London, England.

CHEMONG PAVING PROCEEDS SLOWLY

Cottagers Fear That Stretch Projected For 1928 May Not Be Completed.

When the paving at present under way is completed, Peterborough will be the centre of a splendid highway system, and hundreds who have hitherto been repelled by poor roads will be attracted to the city. This should solace those who are inconvenienced by the many detours surrounding the city.

A trip to the Port Hope highway section under construction indicates that it will shortly be completed, but similar optimism cannot be felt in regard to the Lindsay highway stretch at Chemong road. Only a few hundred feet of the road has as yet

Deceased Has Been Painting In City For 25 Years—Has No Close Friends.

James Butler, aged 55 years, a resident of Peterborough for the past twenty-five years, dropped dead this morning about 11 o'clock at the home of Charles Quinlan, 219 Rubidge street, where he was working this morning.

Mr. Butler was employed by W. D. Thomas, painter and decorator. He was to do some graining upstairs this morning at Mr. Quinlan's residence. Mrs. Quinlan told The Examiner that she was in the kitchen washing as Mr. Butler went upstairs to do his work. He had finished the primary cost and was ready to start the graining. The next thing she noticed was when he appeared in the doorway of the dining room. She did not know that he had come downstairs and her attention was attracted by his choking. As he began to cough and choke his knees began to sag, and he finally slipped to the floor, as if he had fainted. She immediately ran into the house next door to secure aid from her neighbor, D. Beavis, who returned with her.

Mrs. Quinlan got a glass of water and they tried to give him a drink and to bathe his head when Mr. Beavis said that it looked more like a stroke to him than a fainting spell.

She immediately tried to get a doctor, phoning Dr. J. M. O'Brien, but he was out. She next telephoned the clinic and Dr. H. V. Dobson immediately responded to the call, but on arriving he pronounced the man dead.

W. D. Thomas, his employer, was then informed. He came and stayed until the remains were removed to Lane and Eanos Funeral Home.

A. T. Johnston, proprietor of the Windsor Hotel, where Mr. Butler lived, told The Examiner that he believed the death to have been caused by choking. "At times," he said, "I saw the deceased choke so hard that he became blue in the face. He was a heavy cigarette smoker. When he left the hotel he was in the best of spirits and in the best of health from all appearances, and has been real well for some time. He did not have a weak heart or any complaint that I knew of. He ate a hearty breakfast before leaving for work."

For the past twenty-five years he has lived with Mr. Johnston at the hotel. There are no relatives that Mr. Johnston knows of. His parents and brother lived here, but they died quite a while ago.

Mr. Butler was a native of Ireland, coming to Canada when he was three or four years of age.

HORSE PARADE TO BE LONGER

Kiwanis Produced In Canada Exhibition Assured of Support.

UNDER F. H. DAWSON.

The horse parade in connection with the Produced-In-Canada Exhibition to be held under auspices of Kiwanis Club in October, promises to be bigger than last year. Chairman Frank H. Dawson told The Examiner to-day.

An innovation last year, the horse parade nevertheless created a great deal of interest, and many hundreds of people lined the streets to see it. Where, not so many years ago, similar crowds would have gathered to see a parade of automobiles, the stage can now be held by horses, no longer used to the extent that they were, but still indispensible for certain classes of work.

Mr. Dawson has had a very encouraging response to his canvass, and it is expected that the parade this year will be longer than the mile-long parade of last year. This section of the Kiwanis Fair is apparently progressing in step with all the other departments.

PLANE TAKES NEARLY EIGHTEEN HOURS OFF TRANS-ATLANTIC VOYAGE

NEW YORK, N.Y., Aug. 14. — (Canadian Press) —An aeroplane was hurled from a catapult on the deck of the liner Ile de France, 450 miles at sea, yesterday, swung its nose toward New York, and dropped down at Quarantine five hours later with a crew of three and a cargo of mail.

The liner, plunging ahead at her normal 23 knots, is scheduled to dock some time before noon to-day. Those aboard the plane had cut nearly 18 hours off the trans-Atlantic voyage.

Their flight was the first in which a plane ever was catapulted from a moving steamer's deck, and it inaugurated a ship-to-shore service which will be made from the Ile de France on both East and West journeys hereafter, and which the French Line proposes eventually to extend to regular passengers.

A catapult weighing sixty tons and an amphibian plane of nearly four tons were loaded aboard the Ile de France when she sailed from Havre last Wednesday. Commander Louis Demougeot went along as pilot. With him on the experimental flight yesterday were B. Monronseau, radio operator, and A. Sarzach, mechanic.

A radiogram from the master of the liner to the Associated Press reported the take-off was perfect. The plane carried fuel sufficient only for the 450-mile flight to Quarantine, but in future the steamship company plans to load more fuel for longer flights that will cut a full day from the time of the transporting important trans-Atlantic mail.

RANGERS TAKE TRIP ON FRIDAY

Member of Unit With Their Families, Will Go To Gore's Landing.

REGIMENTAL OUTING.

Details of a regimental picnic to be held down the river by steamer on Friday next were announced to the members of the Peterborough Rangers last night by Lt.-Col. W. Gordon Hall, Officer Commanding the unit. The excursion will go to Gore's Landing by steamer Stoney Lake, leaving George street wharf at eight o'clock and the Street Railway wharf about 8.30. It will be open to members of the regiment, officers, non-commissioned officers, and men, with their wives, families, and sweethearts, all of whom will be carried free of charge. Each party will, of course, carry its own baskets, while a booth on board will cater to the desires of those present for cooling drinks, etc.

Col. Hall announced that the picnic is being held to give the men an outing because district headquarters had seen fit to cancel the camp at Barrieifield over the Labor Day week-day. On Labor Day, however, there will be a field day at the rifle ranges, with a tactical exercise in the morning and musketry, etc., in the afternoon. In the meantime, starting next Saturday and continuing every Wednesday and Saturday, there will be shooting at the ranges to enable every member of the unit to get in his musketry. Transportation will be provided, leaving the armouries each day at 1.30.

A large number o fthe men present last night signified their intention of attending the picnic and those who could not be sure of getting the day off were urged to send their wives and families along anyway. Officers and N.C.O.'s were asked to get in touch with members of their sections who were not present and advise them of the arrangements.

CHILDREN'S REGATTA.

Chemong To Be Gathering Place On Wednesday For Fine List of Events.

Chemong Children's Regatta, which is scheduled for Wednesday at 1.30 promises this year to be a huge success. Fifteen events are planned, and the prizes are well worth striving for. The regatta will be held in front of J. K. Hughes' cottage, and from 1.30 until midnight there will be enough fun to please everyone. The prizes will be distributed at the pavilion at 8 o'clock, and dancing will start immediately after.

Among the fifteen events are rowing, paddling and swimming races, with a special race, single canoe, for Chemong Park residents only, for the J. K. Hughes cup.

All arrangements are being made by the Chemong Cottagers' Association, under whose auspices the regatta is held.

Buildings Destroyed In Gale

Town of Stranraer, Sask., Is Struck By Heavy Storm.

COMMUNICATIONS CUT OFF.

Several Acres of Wheat Crop Destroyed—No One Injured.

STRANRAER, Sask., Aug. 14 (Canadian Press).—This little town was struck by a storm of cyclonic proportions Saturday night. Buildings were turned over and smashed, the stockyards were badly damaged and the driveyard was blown away from a grain elevator.

Communication with outside points was restored only yesterday.

The storm broke suddenly and destroyed several acres of wheat. No one was injured.

Yesterday morning the district was swept by a hail storm. The damage which is expected to be heavy, could not be estimated.

Saturday, the hail storm drifted as far as Saskatoon district where damage to crops is expected to reach 100 per cent. The Vanscoy district, 15 miles from Saskatoon, was the hardest hit. The hail here flattened acres of grain to the ground. At Elstow, three horses were killed, a barn was damaged and a farm helper slightly injured by a lightning bolt.

At Rosetown, Sask., the storm hit a strip 15 miles long and from six to ten miles wide, levelling the crop and blowing down small buildings.

REVENGE COSTS LIFE OF TAXI-CAB DRIVER

NEW YORK, Aug. 14 (Canadian Press).—A taxi-cab driver died early to-day of a broken neck received when he drove his cab, as a retaliatory measure, against the car of a man with whom he had just had a fight. The dead driver, Frank M. Paar, received a broken neck in the crash, but Christopher Murphy, driver of the other cab, was uninjured. Police a few minutes before had stopped a fight between the two in which Paar was receiving a beating.

59 GARAGES BUILT IN CITY

Gain of Six in Number of Permits Issued By Engineer This Year.

SEVEN MORE HOUSES.

During the first seven months of 1928 there have been 59 permits taken out from the City Engineer's Office for the erecting of private garages in this city. The great majority of these were for single garages, but in some cases they were to be large enough to house five cars. For the same period last year there were fifty-three permits issued. The month of April leads with eighteen permits being granted, while May and June are tied for second place with fourteen each, July has twelve, with March one, while there were none issued for the first two months of the year. April led in 1927 with twenty-two permits.

Dwelling-houses also show an increase this year over 1927. For the seven months permits have been issued for the building of thirty-one new homes in this city, while a year ago there had only been twenty-four issued. In this form of construction, May leads, when twelve permits were issued, with seven in June, six in July, five in April, and one in January. May led in 1927 with eight permits.

Some of the new homes are being built on the best streets in the city and these new additions are well in keeping with the surrounding homes. On Weller Street several very valuable houses are being erected. In the west part of the city, on Charlotte Street, across the Monaghan Road, the new homes are fast improving the district and it is being built up very quickly.

GOOD PROGRAM FOR FIELD DAY

Ninth Annual Event Will Be Held at Pontypool on Wednesday.

RAIN DELAYS FARMERS

(Examiner Correspondence)

PONTYPOOL, August 14.—The ninth annual Field Day will be held in the Memorial Park on August 15. A good program of sports has been arranged which included a baseball game between Orono and Bethany; softball tournament for a silver cup with the following teams entered: Kendal, Kirby, Orono, Tyrone, Millbrook and Pontypool; horseshoe pitching with teams entered from Bowmanville, Tyrone, Orono and Pontypool.

Picnic lunch will be served on the grounds after which a good concert will be given in the Orange Hall by Bert Lloyd and Co., which are well-known entertainers. The concluding feature will be a dance in the hall with Moncrief's Orchestra furnishing the music.

Farm Notes.

The recent rains were not a very welcome visitor to the farmers in this locality. Several good fields of grain were flattened, while any fall wheat that is cut is growing in the sheaf. The potato crop was more or less injured, parts of some fields been practically all under water. The Robert Thorndyke, at 83, Often Walks Six Miles to Visit.

WORKS IN FIELDS

(Examiner Correspondence)

SPRINGVILLE, August 14.—Robert Thorndyke, who is 83 years of age, thinks nothing of walking the distance of six miles from Peterborough to the home of his daughter, Mrs. William Whitfield. He is a remarkable man for his years in every respect. This season he was in the field forking hay and as usual helped to hoe in the garden; pick peas, etc., enjoying it all the while.

Mr. Thorndyke is not entirely gray and his eyesight is as good as ever—never having to use glasses. His hearing is also perfect. He reads a great deal and has an extremely retentive memory both for things past and present. He is a staunch Conservative and at election time reads every parliamentary speech and debate available. Not only does he read these speeches and debates but he can remember their complete substance. He has a wondeful memory for dates and history and can give the details of almost any historical fact in the history of Canada and Great Britain.

Mr. Thorndyke was born in Hope Township on September 28, 1845, and lived there until he was 17 years of age. His father, who was a millwright, met with an accident at his work leaving his son fatherless when

Evangelist Travels In Home On Wheels

BONARLAW, August 14—What might be called a home-on-wheels, visited this district last week. Harold Jones and family of 187 Clinton avenue, Albany, N.Y., motored over to this district in their car. The family, four in number, have all the modern conveniences one could wish for on a long motor trip. In this car was a neat little electric range, refrigerator, kitchen cabinet, table and wicker chairs, while travelling this made a very comfortable living room. They carry clothing, and provisions from which a meal could be served in a very few minutes. The wicker chair served as a seat for the driver, and at the back of the car was a nice verandah covered with an awning. Two electric lights in the top and small windows gave it the appearance of a railway coach.

Mr. Jones is a preacher of the Gospel, and held two meetings in the Gospel Hall at Springbrook. He finds this car a great convenience for his work. He also sells a number of Bibles.

W. I. MEET AT LAKEFIELD

Reading of Correspondence Takes Up Big Part of August Meeting.

DISCUSS CONVENTION

(Examiner Correspondence)

LAKEFIELD, Aug. 14.—At the August meeting of the Women's Institute held on Wednesday afternoon in the Memorial Hall, Mrs. J. H. Payne, the president, occupied the chair.

Following the reading of the minutes by the secretary, Mrs. Leslie Harrison, correspondence was read, which occupied considerable time in reading and discussion.

Folders were sent by the department on the uses of milk and cheese and frozen desserts, all tried and found economical and simple.

A letter from the department regarding the convention in November was read, and also regarding the booth and lectures at the Canadian National Exhibition, which are under the direction of the Women's Institutes. This affords a splendid opportunity for those who visit the Exhibition to learn of the institute's activities and to gain a great deal of interesting information which will benefit the individual member and the branch itself.

A note was read from the convenor of the committee on historical research suggesting the advisability of the special meeting for the committee reports which are being prepared. The matter was left to the discretion of the convenor.

Miss Sanderson, convenor of the committee on the road signs, reported that although the road signs had been erected, it was only in a temporary fashion as the wet weather had made it impossible to get the suitable posts, but the work would be completed at as early a date as possible.

Mrs. Evans Blewett reported on the pie social and presented a carefully prepared statement of receipts and expenditures, and handed something over $35 as the net results of the undertaking.

It was decided that Miss Down and Mrs. Howard Bullock should represent the directors on the executive committee.

Afternoon tea was served at the close.

Junior Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Junior Institute was held on Wednesday afternoon in the Memorial Hall. In the absence of the president and first vice-president, the chair was taken by the second vice-president, Miss Irene Northey. There were seven members and three visitors present. Owing to the extreme wet weather, the picnic scheduled for this regular August meeting was postponed until Wednesday, August 22, when it will be held. One of the visitors, Glen Garvey, contributed a recitation to the program.

Motor Camping.

SHIELD DONATED FOR NOVICE JUDGE

Canadian National Exhibition Gives Prize for Competition Here.

A beautiful shield, bearing the Crest of the Canadian National Exhibition, which has donated it, was received at the office of J. B. Nelson, local Department of Agriculture representative, on Saturday. With no "strings attached," the shield will be given to the lad totalling the highest number of points at the judging competition of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, though anyone who has ever been in such a competition in past years, will not be elegible. In other words, it will be given a novice who shows the best promise as a judge of livestock.

Mr. Nelson, in conversation with The Examiner, declared that there is every indication of keen competition at the Peterborough Exhibition this year, interest in the livestock judging showing an increase as the weeks grow less.

DAMP WEATHER CAUSE OF LOSS

Alsike Crop One-Third Ruined in Bailieboro District—Wheat Sprouts.

NO THRESHING YET

(Examiner Correspondence)

BAILIEBORO, August 14.—Owing to the continuous damp weather the loss in this year's crop to the farmers of the district can scarcely be estimated. Had the weather been favorable during the past fortnight the greater portion of the fall wheat, alsike and hay would now be safely under cover and considerable threshed, but the weather is continuing so damp that it is almost impossible to get the crops dry and up to date there is very little harvesting being accomplished. The majority of the farmers claim that at least one third of the alsike seed is already ruined. The seed has grown completely through the bundles and the straw is in a very rotten condition.

One of the oldest farmers in the district claims he has farmed in this district for almost seventy years and he cannot remember a season when the fall wheat has grown to such an extent in the sheaf as it has this year. Many of the sheaves are completely covered with sprouts two inches long, while some wheat is sprouting right as it stands before being cut.

The damp weather and rust has almost destroyed the oat crop, many fields of oats will not be harvested this season as they will be of no use either in the grain or straw. It almost looks as if there will be an oat famine in this vicinity this year.

There are some splendid crops of peas, while some of the later sown crops were struck with the root rot and the farmers ploughed them up.

FARMERS BEGIN HARVEST WORK

WILL HOLD FIELD DAY

(Examiner Correspondence)

WARKWORTH, Aug. 14. — The local farmers are now busily engaged in cutting wheat, which is a splendid crop. Barley is also a good crop. With favorable weather, the farmers are looking forward to a bountiful harvest. The threshers are busy repairing their machinery and hope to be in operation this coming week.

The raspberry crop throughout this district has been greatly damaged with the heavy rains.

The Northumberland Tomato Growers' Association will celebrate its annual field day on August 22 with a motor trip through Prince Edward County. H. C. Clemenson, manager of the Canadian Canners' seed farm at Wellington, will show the growers the tomato seed-growing tests plots.

Donald Cook was exhibiting a few Russett apples that were grown last year. They were still quite firm and of good flavor. This speaks well for the keeping quality of the Russett apple.

CHURCH PICNIC GREAT SUCCESS

Bazaar Also Held by Apsley and Chandos Congregations.

PROCEEDS LARGE

APSLEY, Aug. 14.—St. George's Church, Apsley, assisted by St. Stephen's congregation at Chandos, held a picnic and bazaar at Philip Tanner's Landing on Loon Lake on Wednesday, which favored with glorious weather, the first fine day in the month, proved highly successful in every way. The total proceeds for the day amounted to about one hundred and sixty dollars. Fifty of this was realized from the sale of articles in the bazaar, which was opened at two o'clock by Mr. Bloomfield of Rochester, in a happy and appropriate speech. Tourists from around the lake were present and contributed largely to the success of the affair both socially and financially. A very fine game of softball of nine innings was played between Apsley and Tourists, resulting in a win for the former with a score of 16—9, after a difference of only one run at the end of the sixth innings.

A race for motor boats with small engines brought five entries. Ernest Tanner, with a lead of two lengths beating C. S. Windsor. Two boats of eight horse-power, owned by Harry Freese and Charles Hawkes, competed in the larger class, and on a second attempt Mr. Freese's boat proved the winner. Other sports had to be cancelled owing to lack of time.

Thanks are given to all who help by hard work and cooking, and also to Mrs. Walter Miller, Miss K. Martyn, Miss Rubidge of Peterborough; Mrs. Dean, Mrs. C. S. Windsor, Mrs. J. Downing, Mrs. C. Hawkes, and others for gifts to the bazaar.

Mrs. H. White presented a beautiful three-tier cake, which was sold by auction for $2.50. Mrs. Roy Brown for the third time in succession in the draw for the quilt, held the lucky number.

Receive Injury

FISHER

FISHER Body and Fisher Body alone made it possible for Chevrolet to demonstrate what wonders can be accomplished in beautifying a car of popular price. There is an obstacle which quite literally prevents any car from giving that which only Fisher gives. This obstacle is the stubborn fact that nowhere in the world is there anything even remotely approaching the unrivaled facilities of Fisher Body in the creation either of beauty or of value. For that reason the cars with Body by Fisher which everywhere arouse such unusual admiration, cannot be duplicated or rivaled because Fisher Bodies cannot be duplicated or rivaled. Chevrolet was able to draw upon these unrivaled Fisher Body resources and the result is an exquisiteness of appearance so pronounced and so advanced that it places the car absolutely alone and supreme in its class.

AN IMPORTANT INQUIRY.

The Government inquiry into Ontario's fishing problems and resources which is being opened is a most important matter for the Province, especially for districts like our own, which depend upon the fishing to attract large numbers of tourists.

Of the value of Ontario's game fish as a magnet for visitors there can be no doubt.

Unfortunately, there is no doubt either of the fact that the fishing resources of Ontario are being rapidly exterminated, that many lakes and rivers in which muskies and black bass abounded are practically fished out, that the automobile has carried tourists far into the North and helped to deplete waters that a few years ago were rarely visited, and that unless the situation is dealt with intelligently and efficiently a large part of the Province will be black-listed by the thousands of tourists who want to fish.

Already magazines devoted to outdoor life are warning readers who inquire about fishing prospects in Ontario that many waters are fished out—and we cannot afford to have much of that kind of publicity.

The present inquiry promises to be exhaustive, and it is to be hoped there will be general co-operation in order that the report when presented may contain some workable suggestions that will help to solve this most important problem.

THE WAR MEMORIAL APPEAL.

While a splendid response has already been made to the appeal for the War Memorial Fund, the necessary amount has not yet been secured, and The Examiner, in again calling attention to the duty of the community to keep green the memory of its war dead, would remind those who have not yet subscribed to this altogether worthy cause that the opportunity to assist in this public enterprise represents not only a responsibility but a privilege.

Over 600 men from this city and county gave their lives as soldiers fighting for every citizen of this community.

They fought for us, they died for us.

Surely we would be ingrates if we did not see to it that the new generation of our people and the stranger within our gates will have something tangible before them to give testimony to the sacrifice made by those heroes who did not come back.

No hesitation was shown by them when asked to offer their lives for their homeland; is there to be any hesitation now among those for whom they fought when asked to offer—not our lives, not all our money—but merely a small donation?

"They gave their tomorrows"—can we refuse to help to see that their memory is honored?

A BALANCED EXHIBITION.

The increased accommodation that is being provided for livestock and the expansion of the prize list is concrete evidence that the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition is continuing to pay proper attention to the agricultural side of the big fair.

At the same time, the re-engagement of Cervonne's Band, the booking of a large number of superior vaudeville attractions, and the signing of Sheesley's big midway carnival shows shows that the entertainment side is not being neglected.

Peterborough's Exhibition has been well directed in this respect.

It has not made the mistake of featuring amusements at the expense of agriculture; yet while the accommodation and prize money for agricultural exhibits have steadily expanded, the quality of the entertainment provided has each year been improved.

The wisdom of such a well-balanced program is reflected in the box-office figures.

There is something for everybody at the Peterborough Industrial, and naturally everybody wants to go, with the result that the attendance record continues to climb.

With so many attractions offered for this year's Exhibition there is no reason to look for any halt in the upward movement of that record.

EDUCATING THE ELECTORATE.

Criticism of Premier King and Hon. R. B. Bennett talking politics throughout the country are not infrequently heard.

According to some people, the political leaders should save their oratory for the House and for election campaigns.

The Examiner has no sympathy with such criticism.

The trouble with many of our citizens is that they pay too little attention to political issues and national problems except during the month or two before Federal elections.

They could, of course, keep in touch with the issues and with political developments through the newspapers, but, unfortunately, a large percentage fail to do so, and therefore Mr. King and Mr. Bennett are doing a valuable public service—even if party advantage may be the reason for their activity—in going about the country and discussing national questions.

Their addresses bring the issues to people who are too indifferent or too lazy to follow them for themselves.

And it must be remembered that the tours now being carried on by the leaders of the two chief parties entails a great deal of work and considerable sacrifice on the part of the Premier and the Opposition leader.

While other people are enjoying a vacation, they are taking long journeys and undergoing the labor of daily addressing large gatherings.

The Ottawa Journal is right when it points out that Mr. King and Mr. Bennett "are showing a devotion to public duty that deserves commendation."

The new Oxford Dictionary has 414,825 words. This includes all the known words in the English language, except the ones used by baseball writers.—Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

THE MODERATE VIEW IS OBTAINING.

Everyone who has followed the course of political and industrial events in Great Britain realizes that a year or two ago there was grave danger of the destructive Red element gaining ground to such a degree that the very constitution would be threatened. There is still such an element at work, but in the great Labor party, headed by Ramsay MacDonald, who is a visitor to Canada soon, there are moderate leaders who have won the day and who now control the situation. The country owes a debt of thanks to such men as Clynes and Thomas, the latter recently announcing a great settlement with the railway workers. These men have fought the "Emperor" Cooks within the ranks, agitators who preached revolution and who brought on the great general strike of a few years ago. In a recent speech of conciliation, Mr. J. R. Clynes said:

"Let some who call themselves the workers' friends observe that, bad as things are, they could be made worse by smashing trade union agreements, by creating ill-feeling between employers and workers, or by trying to build political systems on manufactured discontent. The effective use of our political weapon does not depend upon trade disturbance or industrial dislocation. These conditions usually penalize large bodies of wage-earners and impede the political advance of our party. Wisdom dictates that we should secure a maximum of peace in industry and appeal to the intelligence of organized labor to extend their confidence to our party so that our principles may be tested."

With such leadership as the above, there would be no danger to Britain if the government of the country were entrusted to a Labor party, no danger beyond what experimental, economic and fiscal policies might bring about to ordered society. The Labor leaders no doubt realize that they never can succeed at the polls if the Russian bogey is raised against them. It was that which put Mr. Baldwin in office. The hothead radicals and revolutionaries, a minority within Labor ranks, are merely postponing the day when Labor will succeed to government responsibilities. British labor, in the large majority, is as sound as British business in doctrine and in respect for accepted governmental practice.—St. Catharines Standard.

THE "TALKIES."

(From the New York Evening Post)

What is the future of the "talkies"? They are now being featured on Broadway. Moving picture houses are asking for helpful hints to send back to Hollywood as to the public's opinion on what should be talkified. News pictures, comedies or drama? Or all three? And at the same time they are being attacked by outraged actors and musicians as "art debasing."

There are naturally two confident schools of opinion on the future of this latest entrant into the amusement world. There are those who foresee the final death of the legitimate stage and the concert hall. They believe that the perfected "talkies" will replace the movies of to-day and that the no longer "silent drama" will represent the ultimate in dramatic art.

Against this school are those who consider the "talkies" a temporary novelty. Granting that they be technically perfected, they do not believe Hollywood capable of finding actors who can speak the part as well as look the part on a movie screen. Nor do they believe that Hollywood can survive the revolution in technique which the "talkies" would demand both in scenarios and in direction.

More important, perhaps, is the objection that the movie audiences don't want the "talkies." For a while they may think they do because they are new, but there are those who go to the movies because they like the quiet atmosphere and accompanying music or because they don't want to think. Neither of these classes will permanently enjoy the "talkies," for they involve a certain amount of concentration. It is doubtful if they will ever demand much mental effort, but if the characters on the screen are talking all the time some attention must be paid to what they say. If their words are stupid and banal, that will not make listening to them any pleasanter; if they are fraught with meaning, it will not make it any easier.

The value of talking moving pictures in news reviews has already been proved. In this department they have doubtless come to stay. Their future in feature films and comedies is not so certain. Yet there are impressive possibilities in this new development, which, after all, is still in its infancy. If the "talkies" of the future are to compare to those of to-day in the same manner as to-day's movies compare with the early flickerings of the silver screen, we don't know quite what to expect.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Extra bus accommodation is promised for the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition. It will be needed, for record crowds are expected.

Joe Wright's failure to play the role of a superman should not be allowed to take the edge off his reception. He brings back with him the Diamond Sculls, surely honor enough.

Are there no Republicans among our tourist friends? So far only Al Smith banners have been noticed on United States cars visiting Peterborough.

Sir Henry Drayton seems determined to prove that the second word in the name of the board he heads really means control.

British Columbia advertises for visitors, but, according to the notice sent out, will have no welcome on the mat for any who are out of work and out of funds.

This is the season of the year when thousands of young Ontario citizens make Horace Greeley's advice about going West mean something.

The Question Box

J.C.S. Q.—Would you be kind enough to publish in your valuable department something about O. R. Jacobi, artist?

A.—Otto Reinhold Jacobi, landscape painter, was born at Konigsburg, East Prussia, on February 27, 1812. He studied art at the Academy of Berlin, and in 1832 won a prize entitling him to three years' study at Dusseldorf. He was appointed by the Grand Duke of Nassau, Court Painter at Wiesbaden, which position he kept for twenty years. In 1860 he came to Canada that he might paint a picture of Shawinigan Falls. The country attracted him, and he stayed, devoting himself to painting landscapes. For many years he had a studio in Toronto. His pictures are famous for their wonderful color quality. Jacobi was a charter member of the Royal Canadian Academy of Arts, of which he was also president from 1890 to 1893. The last years of his life were spent with his son on a ranch near Taiva, Dakota U.S.A., where he died on February 20, 1901.

J. de J. Q.—Who commanded the German Pacific fleet during the war when the fleet was defeated, and where?

A.—Admiral Graf von Spee was in command of the German Pacific fleet, officially known as the German East Asiatic squadron, at the opening of the World War in 1914. He was completely defeated, and lost his life in the battle of the Falkland Islands, one of the principal naval actions of the war. The engagement was fought on December 8, 1914, to the southeast of the Falkland Islands. The victorious British battle cruiser squadron was under command of Vice-Admiral (later Admiral) Sir Frederick Charles Doveton Sturdee (1859-1925).

GOD'S MINUTE.

Here are they that keep the commandments of God, and the faith of Jesus. Rev. 14: 12.

* * *

O God, our Heavenly Father, Thou hast been good and gracious to us. In the morning Thou gavest us a day, each minute to be used in service to Thee and to humanity. Help us to use each of these minutes, O Lord, to Thy name's honor and glory and to the advancement of Thy cause and kingdom. At the close of the day may we return all of the hours just as sacred and holy as they were when given to us at early dawn.

We thnak Thee for Thy love and protection. Thy gracious love is so boundless and unlimited that it has overshadowed us and sheltered us from all harm and danger. Thy heart of love includes us in its beatings, and so we are grateful to Thee.

Thou art our Friend, O Jehovah of hosts. Thou has been with us through thick and thin. When other supposed friends were deserting us, Thou didst abide with us as a Friend that sticketh closer than a brother. We seem to hear Thee speaking to us now. Yes, Thou art so very near and Thou wilt surely keep and protect us through the night. Accept these our petitions this hour, we pray, in Jesus' name. Amen.

A Thought

A GOOD CITIZEN.

In so far as we conceive the good citizen to be primarily a man of character and secondarily an efficient producer, we must recognize that the scope of a liberal education is in reality much wider than that of a technical education, and while it is true that no class of the community has a monopoly of character values, we may well concern ourselves with a redistribution of these values throughout our body politic. It may be that such an enterprise would ultimately promote social welfare more effectively than a redistribution of wealth. But character values are an affair of ideals and ideals can not be inculcated either in a classroom or out of it. They can only be transmitted by a process of perfection. And so the problem of making a good citizen out of an average school boy resolves itself in the main into the old problem of how one generation can infect the next generation with progressive and dynamic ideals.—Dr. Crichton Miller.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, August 14 (Canadian Press). — Sharp upturns in price for wheat toward the last yesterday accompanied talk of immense export dealings in wheat from North America. There was also an estimate from a Chicago crop authority putting the Canadian wheat yield this season much below Saturday's figures.

Closing quotations on wheat were firm, 1¼ cent to 1⅝ cent net higher, with corn ranging from 1 cent decline to 1⅛ cent advance. Oats ⅛ cent to ¼ cent to ½ cent off, and provisions at 5 cents setback to a rise of 15 cents.

Higher quotations on wheat came in the face of announcement yesterday that the United States wheat visible supply showed 9,739,000 bushels increase. On the other hand, Europe was estimated to have bought 1,200,000 bushels of North American wheat yesterday in addition to a huge amount last week, far greater than had been made public. One exporter said he alone sold more wheat in one day than all exporters were given credit for.

According to one of the most experienced statisticians in the grain trade here, the latest Canadian official figures together with additional data received yesterday indicate that the 1928 wheat yield of the Canadian Prairie Provinces is 450,141,000 bushels whereas some of Saturday's estimates were as high as 550,000,000 bushels.

The lowest forecast is based on the official condition figures applied to the average yield per acre for ten years and taking a revised average total of 22,902,243 acres. Earlier in the day, the wheat market here had shown a downward trend owing largely to extra favorable Canadian crop advices. Big world shipments and 2,000,000 bushels increase of the amount of wheat afloat.

Further closing-out of spreads between wheat and corn helped to strengthen wheat values yesterday and to weaken corn, especially corn for September delivery. At one time September corn was nearly 4 cents lower than Saturday's finish, and at a new bottom level for the season. Scattered reports of rain being needed by the new corn crop gave relative firmness to December and March contracts. Oats lacked aggressive support.

Provisions averaged higher, responsive to upturns in the value of hogs.

BUTTER AND EGGS.

TORONTO, Aug. 14.—Firming of prices is noted on the Toronto wholesale produce market, this applying to eggs, butter, cooked meats and lard. Reports show that the condition of steady to firmer quotations in the egg market prevails quite generally in the Dominion, with the demand good and the shipments hardly enough to meet the demand caused by the large consumption.

At Winnipeg—The local egg market is fairly steady with a decided slump in production. Dealers are buying from country shippers at: Extras 34c, firsts 32c, seconds 29c. Prices to retailers are: Extras 40c, firsts 38c, seconds 34c.

Vancouver—Receipts are declining and the market remains firm. The demand is good and dealers are quoting producers: Extras 31c to 32c, firsts 28c to 29c, pullet extras 25c to 26c.

Charlottetown—This egg market is unchanged in tone and prices. Prices to country points are still: Extras 33c, firsts 30c, seconds 24c. Eggs are selling in a jobbing way at: Extras 39c to 40c, firsts 36½c. Production is still declining and is reported far behind for the same period last year.

CHILDREN ENJOY THEIR REGATTA

KEEN COMPETITION

STONEY LAKE, Aug. 14 (Examiner Correspondence).—The very high wind of Saturday made necessary an alteration in the course of the children's regatta on Saturday at Juniper Island, but while it caused a slight delay it did not in any way detract from the pleasure of this pleasing event. The spontaneous enthusiasm and the earnest endeavor to do the best possible were a positive evidence that the "days of real sport" are not over and that the senior regattas will not die out because of a lack of "comers." The entries were particularly good and while there was some fouling owing to the wind, nevertheless the regatta was a great success in each and every particular. The entries averaged six to each race and the competition was both clean and fair. Mr. Gordon K. Fraser acted as announcer and starter, Messrs. H. F. Foote and J. H. Renwick were referees; Major H. C. Wotherspoon and Mr. S. Heward were judges; Messrs. J. M. Gouinlock and G. Wadds also assisted the committee in their efforts. Everything possible was done to make the regatta go as well as the adult events, and the children cooperated admirably with their elders.

The swimming races for children of 12 years and under were run in heats as the entry list was so large, and also for the boys of 14 years and under.

Each year brings a crop of new entries; children who have attained the years and experience deemed sufficient by their parents; then, too, each year brings its graduating class, those who are now sixteen and will never again be eligible for a juvenile regatta. Then there is another group, wide eyed and eager, for the time when they, too, can swim, paddle and row and win cups like Big Brother.

Following the regatta, the parents and children and a large contingent of interested onlookers gathered in the pavilion for the presentation of prizes, which consisted of silver cups, the second prizes being somewhat smaller than the first prizes. Mrs. J. M. R. Fairbairn kindly presented the prizes in her graceful way. The prizes to the girl and boy who had won the greatest number of points were also silver cups of a still larger size, and were won by Ruth Gouinlock and Jack Black, who received them amid a chorus of applause. SENDS SON TO DEATH TO SAVE HUNDREDS FIERS, France, July 19.—M. Andreux, railway signalman, has been given the cross of the Legion of Honor. But his son is dead.

Faced with the alternative of sacrificing the lad or endangering hundreds of passengers, he gave the signal which sent a train hurtling on to the track where the boy stood.

Mme. Andreaux had sent the lad to the signal box with his father's lunch. The boy stumbled and fell on the track, just as the father got a signal that an express train must pass a freight. With spartan determination, the parent turned the switch which sent one of the trains onto the side track where the boy lay.

three men to the police station, where they were locked up. Later in the evening, along with Chief Newhall and Sergeant Wigg, the brakes of the car were tested on the place where the accident occurred. The car, going at 30 miles an hour, took it 71 yards for it to be brought to a stop after the emergency brake and service brake were applied.

Mrs. Grady told about the accident and the damage done to her buggy, and Chief Newhall told of making measurements and smelling liquor on Williamson's breath.

The defendant himself was the first witness called by Mr. McElderry. He said that he had had a glass of beer about 4.30 in the afternoon, and as he had had no tea, this was what the officers smelt on his breath. He declared there was no drinking in the car, and that he had been told to take the two passengers to Cobourg by Mr. Stinson. At the time of the accident he said he was going about 30 miles an hour and never saw the buggy until he was about three car lengths away, and was one length away when he noticed the motorcycle, although both front and rear lights were lighted. As he pulled out to pass the lights of a second car dazzled his eyes and he struck the buggy and motorcycle.

Fred. Hillier said that there was no drinking in the car, and that he had a bottle of beer that afternoon. In cross-examination Mr. Hatton produced a signed statement which he had given Chief Newhall and Officer Wilson on the night he was arrested in which he said he had had two bottles of beer and two drinks of liquor.

Harry Austin told of seeing Williamson at 8.10 in the evening before he started for Cobourg and then Williamson was perfectly sober.

Magistrate Langley, in finding Williamson guilty, said he should have seen the rear light of the motorcycle, and knowing that the brakes were poor, more caution should have been taken. "The courts must be more severe as highway accidents are increasing, and good stiff penalties will have to be handed out from the bench."

One of the men pleaded guilty to having liquor in other than a residence and was fined $100 and costs.

CAVAN PIONEER IS STILL ACTIVE

but 9 years of age. Before he was eleven years old he hired with Henry Lockington and worked for him for five years. During that time Mr. Lockington never spoke a cross word to him.

Cleared Own Farm.

In 1862 when he was seventeen years old he went to Manvers, where he bought a farm, cleared it and received the Crown Deed. Occasional bears prowled around the house and deer were common intruders. After three years of clearing the land a yolk of oxen was purchased and a crop was put in. Grain was sowed by hand and cut with a cradle. The average cut was three or four acres a day. Raking and binding was also done by hand. Before the building of the Midland railroad, grain had to be drawn to Port Hope for sale.

There was no time in those days for gardening and the price was low on farm produce, butter being worth only 10c a pound and eggs 5c a dozen and dressed pork 3c a pound. These were shipped for sale.

In 1871 Mr. Thorndyke married Mary Anne Galloway. They had five children, four girls and one boy, three of whom are now living, Mrs. B. Hammond of Regina, Mrs. T. Collison of Stratford, and Mrs. William Whitfield of North Monaghan. Eight years ago, his wife and two children, Alva Thorndyke, and Mrs. George Patton, died within a few days of each other.

Sociable Days.

During the pioneer days a sociable time was enjoyed. Logging bees were a necessity and these were always followed at night by a dance and jolly time. The young women attended during the day to prepare the eatables and carry them to the men and stayed at night to dance. Logs measuring four feet in diameter were common then and lumber was worth 90c per thousand feet.

Mr. Thorndyke tells of having walked from Manvers to Hope a distance of seventeen miles before 7 a.m., arriving there before breakfast. He and his mother have started out to tea and walked to the home of relatives who lived three miles this side of Lindsay, reaching there before dark.

When his only son Alva became old enongh to farm for himself, he was given the homestead and another 150 acres of land was purchased near Bethany. On this Mr. Thorndyke built a "Shingle and Chop" mill which he operated. Ten years ago this was destroyed by fire.

When 75 years of age, he left the farm and made his home with his daughter, Mrs. William Whitfield, spending part of the time with his other daughters. Recently he has been moving about continually from one place to another amongst friends and relatives. He cannot rest contentedly in one place for long at a time. He had made three trips to the West and contemplates a fourth this summer, has been to Stratford several times and other places nearer home too numerous to mention.

Long-Lived Family.

Mr. Thorndyke comes from a family of endurance, strength and loyalty. His father, William Thorndyke, was born in 1820, and was also a millwright, and helped to build the first mill in Manvers. He fought in the Mackenzie Rebellion and the gun used by him at that time has been handed down from generation to generation as a family heirloom. It is now in the fourth generation. On it is carved an Indian's head. William Thorndyke met an early death as a result of trying to save a fellow workman from a falling beam at a mill raising. He sustained a broken leg and died in 1854 from the effects of the accident.

Mr. Thorndyke's grandfather fought with Wellington at Waterloo, and his grandmother's brother, Mr. Ling, fought with Nelson in the battle of Trafalgar.

He remembers the building of the old Midland Railroad, which ran through Peterborough, Lindsay, and Port Hope. On the 12th of July when he was 10 years old he had his first ride. The Orangemen were walking in Omemee that day and as the train pulled out, William Nugent pulled him on board so that he might get a ride home—a distance of five miles.

One sister-in-law is still living in Otonabee, and is now 81 years of age and wonderfully active, and eight grandchildren, Keith, Jean, Kenneth and Pauline Thorndyke, of Bethany; George, and John Whitfield of North Monaghan; Grace Whitfield, of California and Robert Whitfield, of Birmingham, Alabama.

He is of an optimistic nature, never worries over little things and is still young with the young people. He has a great many true friends who are always glad to welcome him, returning his hearty handshake and pleasant greeting. He is a grandpa to friends whose numbers far exceed his eight grandchildren, yet never grows old in spirit.

The peas are now being cut and if fine weather prevails, they will be at least fair. The barley, buckwheat, and second cutting of alfalfa all are looking excellent and these crops alone are all the farmers have to build much on. There has been no threshing done yet owing to the damp weather.

News Briefs.

The excessive rainfall has proved a terrible handicap to the farmers, who were almost in despair over the saving of the late hay crop and the grain, much of which had begun to sprout. The fair weather of Wednesday and Thursday was utilized to the very last second of daylight in the work of harvesting the grain crop, for no one knows what the morrow will bring forth.

A Splendid New Serial by Ruby M. Ayres

THE STORY THUS FAR:

JENNIFER FRY and NICHOLAS GAUNT fall in love. He is called abroad by his mother's illness, and promises her to marry his cousin, LADY EDITH. Jennifer stands in the crowd outside the church and sees the bride. Five years later Nicholas and Jennifer meet again. He decides to divorce his wife. But just then Lady Edith becomes ill. She asks Gaunt to promise not to see Jennifer again, and, thinking she has only a short time to live, he promises. Jennifer decides to be as gay as she can on a small legacy. She gives up her job and moves into better quarters. The flat over hers is occupied by DOLORES, and a young girl, BUDDY. Through them she meets CHESNEY, with whom Buddy is in love, but who wants to marry Jennifer. Jennifer tells him she does not love him, but promises to marry him. Then she meets Gaunt again, and his wife. Gaunt tells her she shall never marry Chesney, and begs her to go away with him. But she refuses. Buddy goes to Chesney with a distorted story of the friendship between Gaunt and Jennifer. He goes to Jennifer for explanation. She tell him the truth, but he does not believe her, and leaves her in anger.

CHAPTER VI.

Dolores to the Rescue.

Presently she went to the kitchen and spoke to the little maid. "I'm not at home to anyone. Not to anyone!" she said tremulously. "I've had bad news. I may have to go out of town tonight."

Nicodemus came rubbing against her and she looked down at him with dazed eyes.

"You must look after the cat for me," she said, "just till Miss Vasher comes home."

"I think she is home already, Miss. The caretaker said she thought she came home early this morning."

"Oh!"

Jennifer did not care. Her life here was ended, she knew; she would have to cut adrift once more.

She went back to her room and began to take some clothes out of the drawers. She could make no plans, could not think; she only knew that she must get away,and as soon as possible. If Edith Gaunt had seen Buddy, of course Nicholas would know everything and then he would come to her, and in her weak, overwrought state she dared not trust herself to see him again.

She began to pack a trunk, then gave it up and sat down on the side of the bed helplessly.

Out in the little hall she heard voices, indignant voices, and then a knock at her bedroom door.

"Who is it?"

The door opened and Dolores came in.

She looked tired and untidy. She still wore travelling clothes, but she had taken off her hat, and her hair was rough and unkempt.

"The girl tried to keep me out," she explained, "but I wasn't being kept out." She came across to Jennifer and put her arms round her. "You poor soul! I don't know what to say to you."

Jennifer shivered. "Don't say anything. I'm going away. Oh, please don't say anything!" she broke out, almost wildly.

Dolores sat down beside her; she looked white and worried.

"I've been travelling all night to get here. That Buddy . . ." she broke off to resume more quietly. "After all, it's my fault. I brought her up. Have you seen her, Jennifer?"

"She came here last night, but I did not see her. Nicholas Gaunt was here and he sent her away." Jennifer laughed mirthlessly.

"I suppose she hates me, and I suppose it's only natural." She wrung her hands. "The horrible part of it is that I'm innocent of what they accuse me of, quite innocent."

"Of course you are." Dolores pushed her strange coloured hair back from her forehead with a fierce little gesture. "I never had any doubts about it at all myself, even though that woman, that Mrs. Jilly, was so sure."

Jennifer gave a stifled cry.

"Mrs. Jilly! What has she to do with it?"

Dolores explained. "We were staying in Porth. I thought I told you. It rained and we took shelter in her cottage. Your photograph was on the mantelshelf. Of course, Buddy saw it, and then it all came out. You'd stayed there with Nicholas, so the woman said, and apparently he told her you were his wife . . ."

"I wish I were! I wish I were" Jennifer said brokenly.

Dolores glanced at her with compassionate eyes and quickly away.

"Men are all devils," she said fiercely. "God knows why we love them or bother about them at all. They make all the trouble there is in life. Look at my Buddy! If it hadn't been for the way Malcolm played around with her, none of this would ever have happened. Not that I'm excusing her, don't think that. I could thrash her for the way she's behaved to you. I think she's gone mad, rushing away from me and up here, making trouble like this."

"She went to see Malcolm and told him . . ."

"I know. She's seen Edith too, but I've stopped Edith coming round here. I went there first this morning, directly I got to London."

Jennifer had her face in her hands. "Of course she believes it all?"

"Of course she does. Nicholas hasn't been home all night for one thing. Edith was supposed to go to Paris yesterday, you know, only Buddy wired stopping her!" She got up and began pacing the room. "My Lord, what complications! Have you got a cigarette? My nerves are rags."

"What are you going to do?" she asked, after a moment.

Jennifer looked up. "I'm going away, of course. Malcolm's been here . . ." Her voice broke. "Oh, it was unspeakable! unspeakable what he said to me."

"Don't take any notice. He'll be sorry soon."

"I hope I shall never see him again."

Dolores puffed away fiercely; then she said, "Edith swears she'll go for a divorce."

Jennifer's eyes dilated. "Divorce?" she faltered.

"Yes, and drag you into it. But she won't! Don't look so scared. I'll manage her, even if Nicholas can't. She said the same thing more than a year ago when she was so ill. She heard that Nicholas had been going about with some girl, I suppose now it was you all the time, and she told me herself that Gaunt gave up seeing the girl on condition she promised to make no inquiries and let the whole matter drop."

"Oh!"

Dolores laid a hand on her shoulder. "Do you really love him?" she asked in a queer voice.

Jennifer tried to answer, but she could not.

Dolores sighed. "Poor kid! Why did you let him go then? If it had been me I would have cleared with him a year ago. He's got enough money to make it possible."

"Money never counted with me."

"Nothing ever counts with a woman when she's in love," Dolores said cynically. She paced away and came back.

"I suppose you're hating Buddy for all you're worth?" she asked constrainedly.

Jennifer shook her head. "No, I don't. I think I'm sorry for her. I hope she'll be happier than I am."

Dolores laughed. "She'll never get Malcolm, if you mean that. Little fool, she's queered everything there for good and all. He'll never forgive her for this as long as he lives." She hesitated, then asked diffidently, "Shall you take him back, Jennifer?"

"I?" Jennifer looked up, flushing scarlet. "Never, never!" She laughed. "Take him back after what he said to me? How can you ask such a thing? He never even gave me the benefit of the doubt. He believed everything except what I told him."

"That's because he loves you so much. He's mad about you. Poor devil I know how it feels. I'm sorry for him."

"If he'd really loved me he would have taken my word against the whole world."

Dolores shook her head. "No, he wouldn't. He knows too much about the world."

She flung her cigarette end away. "I must go, but I'll come back, and Jennifer dear . . ."

"Well."

"Will you promise me to try not to hate Buddy too much?"

"I don't hate her. I told you I didn't. I might have done the same if I had been in her place."

With sudden impulse Dolores stooped and kissed her.

"You wouldn't. You're too good." She laughed rather sadly. "Jennifer, I often wonder that you've guessed about Buddy."

"Guessed what? I don't understand."

Dolores flushed dully and her eyes wavered.

"Everyone else knows, only they pretend not to," she said painfully. "I hate them knowing, but it's often been in my mind to tell you. I knew you'd be kind and understand."

"Understand?"

"Buddy's my child," Dolores said defiantly.

"Oh!"

The elder woman laughed. "Are you shocked? No, I don't believe you are." She caught Jennifer's hand and pressed it hard. "Now you know why I've always been so fond of her, and why I don't want you to be too hard on her. Goodbye! I'll take Nicodemus with me."

She caught up the cat who had followed her into the room and, without another word, carried him away.

UNCLE WIGGILY

By HOWARD R. GARIS

Today's Bedtime Story

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE HAY WAGON

The hot August sun shone down on the field where a farmer, having cut his hay, had raked the dried grass into piles, half round in shape and looking like the igloos, or ice huts, of the Eskimos at the North Pole. But if an Eskimo igloo had been in the hay field that summer day it would soon have melted into a puddle of ice water and then it might have boiled. For it was very hot.

Uncle Wiggily found it so, having to wear his fur coat night and day, though to tell you the truth the rabbit gentleman's fur coat was not so thick and heavy, now that it was summer, as it would be when cold winter came.

"Whew! But it certainly is hot!" exclaimed Mr. Longears as he hopped across the hay field.

"Then why do you come out in the hot sun?" asked a voice and, looking around to see who had spoken, the bunny saw a little field mouse lady in her gray fur coat with a long tail.

"Oh, I must hop out every day, rain or shine, hot or cold, to have an adventure," said Mr. Longears. "But so far today, Mrs. Field Mouse, no adventure has happened. I was just saying how hot it was."

"Why don't you crawl inside one of these piles of hay and keep cool in the shade?" asked Mrs. Mouse. "That is what I am going to do."

So saying, she wiggled her way beneath a pile of the dried grass and soon she stopped rustling it and Uncle Wiggily said:

"I think she has gone to sleep. I'll do the same."

So Mr. Longears crawled beneath one of the round mounds of hay and, indeed, he found it very cool and pleasant there, out of the hot sun. He cuddled up into a round ball and closed his eyes.

"Ouch!" suddenly exclaimed Uncle Wiggily when, just as he was falling asleep he awoke with a start. For it felt just as if some one had stuck a pin in his pink, twinkling nose.

But when the rabbit gentleman looked he saw it was only a dried spear of grass that had stuck his nose. Then he smiled and bit off the stem, so it no longer pricked him and went to sleep in the sweet pile of spicy, perfumed hay.

Now soon after this the farmer said to his men:

"We must haul the piles of hay from the meadow into the barn for it looks like rain and rain will spoil my hay."

Then the farmer and his men drove a big wagon into the field and began loading on it the different piles of hay. A man would stick his pitchfork into a mound of dried grass and lift nearly all of it, with one swoop, upon the hay wagon where another man spread it about smoothly.

Uncle Wiggily did not wake up when the men came to gather the hay and the rabbit gentleman was asleep when a man's pitchfork (the sharp points luckily not touching him) lifted the hay pile upon the hay wagon.

It was the last of the pile to be lifted on that load and did not need much scattering about. So the pile of hay, with Uncle Wiggily asleep inside it, was soon being ridden on the hay wagon toward the barn.

Pretty soon, however, the jolting of the wagon wakened Mr. Longears. He felt himself being jounced and bounced about and said:

"What in the world has happened?" He could not guess, so, peering out through the cracks in the load of hay, he saw where he was; up on top of a high load. "My goodness! I'm on a hay wagon!" thought the bunny. "I daren't jump down, for it's too far to the ground. Oh, what shall I do?"

There was nothing to do but wait until the hay wagon was driven into the barn and then Mr. Longears thought he could slide down and run away. Soon the load of hay rumbled over the barn floor.

"Unload!" cried the farmer. He and his men stuck their pitchforks into the load of hay and lifted big piles of it off the wagon and tossed them back in the mow where the hay would be kept for the horses to eat during the winter. Uncle Wiggily, still hiding in the hay, did not know what moment he might be lifted up in a pile and tossed into the mow.

"I only hope I don't get stuck with a pitchfork," thought the bunny. And then, all of a sudden, something happened.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 15, 1928

Benefic aspects contend with those of adverse power today, according to astrology.

In the early morning there may be an inclination toward irritability, especially on the part of husbands who should be treated tactfully.

Warm weather may be expected in many places and cities will be places from which to flee, but the seers predict improvement in public health.

Under this rule of the stars sudden deaths are presaged among the prosperous, but workers have promise of immunity from many ills.

Newspapers and their editors are well directed and they will profit at this time when they will contribute unusual interest in public matters Personalities may be prevalent and astrologers persist in forecasting sensations of unheard of character.

While there is a good sign for social matters of every sort gossip is subject to an evil direction of the stars.

Severe thunderstorms may be looked for late into the autumn for the conjunction of Mars and Jupiter in July still produces effects, those who read the skies maintain.

Women continue under a rule of the stars that sharpens all their faculties and makes them keenly alive to all that concerns human welfare.

They will organize for many reforms as the autumn advances and they will sustain disappointments as well as victories.

Girls may revive oldtime feminine styles and manners, but they will continue to be alertly awake to all that spells progress. They will not be easily intrigued by flattery and will be hard to deceive, the seers declare.

According to ancient lore this should be a fairly favorable day for employing young men who will be successful in work that requires tact and faithfulness.

Neptune is in an aspect that is supposed to encourage disorders and changes of rule in government.

Warning again is given that Europe may suffer troubles that will affect the United States.

Mexico comes under a sway that promises surcease of many causes for unrest. The west coast should benefit in the coming year.

New fortunes are assured to many who invest in novel enterprises. A woman is to achieve great prominence as a financier.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year of much importance in their careers. These subjects of Leo may find new channels of income and may reach prominence in public affairs.

Children born on this day are likely to be loveable, high-spirited and optimistic. With the Sun as their guiding influence they will walk in pleasant paths in all probability. They may be inclined to talk too much.

YOUR TOWN

Some town's the home town,
No matter where you go,
Some town the best town
A man will ever know,
Some town's a good town,
Though others you may see,
Some town's the one town
A fellow ought to be.

Some town's the best town
A fellow ever found,
Some town's the one town
You know your way around.
Some town is your town,
Each alleyway and street,
Some town, a dear town,
Familiar to your feet.

Some town's a new town,
But only one is yours,
Some town's the old town
That happiness assures,
Some town's your own town
And you will long some day
For some town like this town—
And so why go away?

Under the Southern Cross

On a narrow strip of desert coast in far Peru, an epic of Canadian industrial enterprise is being enacted.

Below those desert sands, in the bed of a prehistoric ocean, nature has stored petroleum of such rich body and unusual purity that it has come to be recognized as the ideal crude for the manufacture of a better motor oil.

Imperial Oil Limited has discovered the precious lubricating properties of Peruvian crude. Imperial alone is responsible for the development of the Peruvian oil field. Imperial resources and enterprise today make Peruvian crude available for the manufacture of Canada's better motor oil.

From this superior crude, by advanced and exclusive refining methods, Marvelube is made. Because it is made from a better crude, Marvelube is an inherently better oil, and more fully meets all requirements of motor lubrication under all conditions of operation.

CHARTS OF TRENT ARE AVAILABLE

Full Set of Two Dozen Costs $9.35 — Catalogue Issued.

Corrected to April 1st, 1928, a catalogue of marine charts, sailing directions and tidal information, issued by the Canadian Hydrographic Service, Department of Marine and Fisheries, Ottawa, has just reached the office of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce.

Of interest to this district is a full list of the charts of the Trent Waterway, about two dozen in all. These charts sell for $9.35 a set, and are the only charts listed in this comprehensive publication which have to do with Canadian canals. If the Trent Waterway were a canal entirely, there would be no need of charts, but because it is a waterway of 250 miles in length, composed of rivers and lakes and only 32¼ miles of excavated canal prism, it is necessary in order to navigate it safely to resort to the use of the charts.

The catalogue of marine charts contains information as to where charts of the Atlantic and Pacific waters may be purchased as well as charts of the Great Lakes System, Canadian side, and the St. Lawrence River.

Several Plan to End Marriages by Poison

CHARLOTTE, North Carolina, August 14 (Canadian Press).—Police here have uncovered what they believe to be a murder plot whereby several husbands and wives planned to rid themselves of their marriage ties by poisoning their spouses. One death and the serious illness of three persons are attributed directly to the alleged conspiracy.

Six persons, arrested over the week-end, were called to the Recorders' Court to-day, to face charges of murder and conspiracy to murder. Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Pressley were accused of murdering L. M. Lockamy, Mrs. Pressley's former husband. Lockamy died on June 5, and three weeks later his widow and Pressley were married.

Others under accusation were: Mrs. L. M. Pridgen and Mrs. Tilly Townley, charged with conspiracy to murder their husbands, J. S. Moore, negro preacher, charged with conspiracy to murder his wife, and S. W. Daniels, fortune teller, charged with murder, whom police accuse of supplying the poison with which Lockamy was murdered.

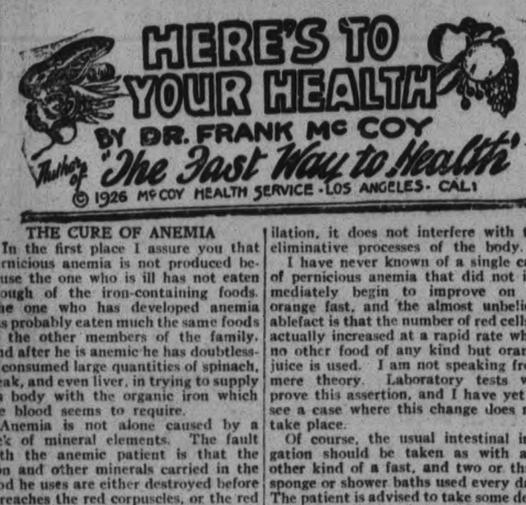
FIVE OF SUB. VICTIMS ON BOARD WRONG VESSEL

POLO, Italy, Aug. 14.—(Canadian Press).—It was learned today that eight of the men who died aboard the ill fated submarine F. 14 were victims of a tragic mistake. They were apprentice motorists and had been ordered to board the F. 15, but by error went aboard the F. 14 to their deaths.



THE CURE OF ANEMIA

In the first place I assure you that pernicious anemia is not produced because the one who is ill has not eaten enough of the iron-containing foods. The one who has developed anemia has probably eaten much the same foods as the other members of the family. And after he is anemic he has doubtlessly consumed large quantities of spinach, steak, and even liver, in trying to supply his body with the organic iron which the blood seems to require.

Anemia is not alone caused by a lack of mineral elements. The fault with the anemic patient is that the iron and other minerals carried in the food he uses are either destroyed before it reaches the red corpuscles, or the red cells are themselves destroyed by the poisons which exist in his body. In many cases it seems that the morefood he puts into his body, the more the red cells are destroyed. It does not take a sage to understand that something in the body is destroying these cells, and all the investigation of physiologists has failed to disclose any special place in the body where these cells are killed.

The anemic toxemia is like a devouring monster in the body which eats up the red blood cells and drinks up the hemoglobin. Starving this toxic monster out seems to be the only cure of pernicious anemia. While fasting on plain water often brings about very desirable results, my experience has orange juice fast is even more satisfactory. This is because the orange juice supplies the body with calcium and other minerals and with the needed vitamins of which the blood has been depleted. At the same time, due to the stimulating effect of the citric acid of the orange, the poisons can be more rapidly eliminated from the body. Since orange juice does not require much energy for its digestion and assimilation, it does not interfere with the eliminative processes of the body.

I have never known of a single case of pernicious anemia that did not immediately begin to improve on an orange fast, and the almost unbelievablefact is that the number of red cells is actually increased at a rapid rate when no other food of any kind but orange juice is used. I am not speaking from mere theory. Laboratory tests will prove this assertion, and I have yet to see a case where this change does not take place.

Of course, the usual intestinal irrigation should be taken as with any other kind of a fast, and two or three sponge or shower baths used every day. The patient is advised to take some deep breathing exercises from the very start and to continue taking these breathing exercises indefinitely, even after it seems that a cure has been effected. This extra breathing supplies the blood with more oxygen with which to carry on work, and this extra oxygen is badly needed by the patient.

After the orange fast, the diet should be similar to that which I recommend in my weekly health menus, published in many prominent newspapers throughout Canada and the United States. These menus include a plentiful supply of green vegetables which, of course, are needed by everyone, whether or not they have a tendency to anemia.

At the same time, the patient must take up a regular course of physical culture and do everything to increase the functional activity in every muscle and organ of his body. Blood tests should be taken frequently, and if there is any material loss from the blood cell increase, it is advisable to take another short fast as before, and then return to the diet, alternating with the fasting and dieting for some time if it seems necessary until all of the bodily toxins which may have been responsible for the original trouble are entirely removed.

Questions and Answers.

Question: O....H asks: "What shape of belt would be the best for one to wear with a floating kidney, and should it be worn through the night as well as through the day? Is taking half a wineglassful of brandy a day any harm to one with a floating kidney?"

Answer: I have attempted to raise floating kidneys through the pressure of belts, but have never been able to do so with any success. The x-ray examination will show that these belts do not actually raise the kidney or any other prolapsed organs, although sometimes the patient feels more comfortable when the belt is worn. Most people do not have any symptoms from a floating kidney, and the majority of patients examined are found to have at least one kidney lower than what is considered normal. A floating kidney would not be harmed by brandy any more than one in normal position. Whether or not the stimulation of brandy is good in your particular case depends upon many other things besides the position of your kidneys.

Question: Mrs. J. asks: "Is there any cure for "false" angina? And what exactly is it, and what causes it? It does not affect my breathing, and occurs between the shoulders and across and down my left arm."

Answer: Any true or false angina is a sign of some interference with the normal flow of blood from the heart, or due to some nerve derangement produced by inflammation of the nerves or pressure upon those going to the left arm. The so-called "false" angina can often be cured by one or two osteopathic or chiropractic treatments.

Question: E. G. H. asks: "What would cause a dark spot to appear on each cheek about the size of a dime?"

Answer: Dark spots are caused by some faulty formation of color pigment in your skin. This is usually due to faulty metabolism, and can be prevented by a correctly balanced diet.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY WOMEN SCREAM

By Mehran K. Thomson, Ph.D.
(Author, The Springs of Human Action)

Fear will do one of the three things to us. There is some overlapping of course, but generally speaking men, women and children have distinct and characteristic reactions of fear.

When a man is frightened he is likely to run away, which is another way of saying that he is able to take care of himself. Fear must not be confused with anger. A man does not always run away. He may attack his enemy. If he does so he is impelled by anger and not by fear. The fear emotion arouses the instinct of flight.

Fear in a child will cause partial or complete paralysis. He will simply stand still and do nothing. He may be even too frightened to cry or make a noise. This is nature's way of protecting the child because in that immobile state he is safer than he would be if he attempted to run away. His best means of protection is to stand still. In such a posture it is difficult to see him and the enemy might pass him by. Every hunter knows how he may be deceived by looking directly at an animal and not see him because the creature is absolutely still. The opposum protects himself in this way. It is the weapon of the weak and defenseless, to make themselves as inconspicuous as possible.

Women scream because they are accustomed to depending on others for assistance. The scream is a demand for help. It is a reflex, a nervous reaction which takes place automatically just as one winks his eyelids when an object comes dangerously near the eye.

Screaming serves the double purpose of frightening the enemy and of securing help. It makes an effective weapon for women because of the lack of confidence in their unaided power.

John Helmer, 67-year-old Duluth prospector, who was rescued from the Red Lake bush after plunging for 22 days without food through the territory around Nungesser Lake, died shortly after he was found. When he reached Fort William, after being taken out of the bush, friends did their best to prevail on him to go to the hospital, but Halmer insisted on going to his favorite restaurant. He insisted that what his system required was "fried eggs —fried potatoes." He went to the restaurant, ate, and, shortly afterward, died. No. 1 picture shows Helmer, a wreck, lying on the ground on a canvas outside the restaurant after he had eaten his meal. No. 2 shows him heading toward the restaurant while a Fort William woman attempts to hold his arm. This picture indicates how efforts were made to dissuade Helmer from going to the restaurant.

CHEVROLET GROUP WINS CONTEST

Missionary Program Given at League Meeting at Petherick's Corners.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

PETHERICKS CORNERS, Aug. 14.— Fifty-seven league members turned out on Friday evening when the missionary program was given under leadership of the convener, Earl Fairman and his assistant, Gerald Barnum. After the devotional section by Mrs. Minnie Petherick and Rev. Mr. MacTavish, the program consisted of a reading by Gladys Petherick, a travel talk on the excursion trip to Niagara by Roy Barnum, with considerable discussion and explanation of the wonders of the trip by various members of the group which made the trip. Earl Fairman gave the missionary talk and then led a contest which was won by the Chevrolet group with the Fords second. The Stars led on the night's attendance.

The stage is all set for the annual garden party of the Zion congregation in Mr. John Simpson's grove on Thursday evening.

Definite word has been received that Rev. Mr. Glover, of Smithfield and Rev. C. Daniel of Sunderland will be able to take charge of the special services in connection with the fiftieth anniversary celebration of Zion congregation on October 28.

Among those who attended the Bay of Quinte excursion to Niagara on Wednesday were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Barnum and family, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Barnum, Miss Gladys Petherick, Messrs. Clarence Barnum, Aylmer Petherick, Douglas Barnum, Fred Fry, Grant Meiklejohn, Don Kerr, Frank Naish, Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Meiklejohn.

From Burnbrae and Menie a number also attended. The entire cast of the play, "The Path Across the Hill," Misses Nettie Hay, Emma Bennett, Hazel McKenzie, Helen Oddie, Emily Craighead, Messrs. Grant Thain, Francis Collingwood, Fred Bennett, Mack Little, Robert Matthews. Others were Mitchell Rannie, Allan Hutcheon, Kenneth Milne, Harold Milne and Lorne Anderson. All report a most enjoyable and profitable time in viewing Canada's greatest wonder.

FRENCH SUSPEND SYRIAN ASSEMBLY

Plan During 3 Months' Vacation to Solve Differences Between Governor and Body.

PARIS, Aug. 14.—Henry Ponsot, the French High Commissioner to Syria, has suspended the Constituent Assembly in that country for three months, during which time an attempt will be made to straighten out differences which have arisen between the Assembly and the Commissioner acting in his official capacity as Governor of the country under a League of Nations mandate.

Without protest and affirming its willingness to continue good relations with France, the Assembly has accepted its dismissal and separated calmly. But the situation is not one that is likely to be settled easily during the vacation period.

Ever since it was elected the Syrian Assembly has shown a disposition to frame its Constitution in a manner which the French High Commissioner held that he could not accept so long as the country was under a League mandate. If Syria had been a French possession the situation would have been different.

It is, however, still under tutelage, and the Constitution the Assembly is seeking to frame amounts to a declaration of independence, not so much from France as from all League control.

In support of their attitude the Syrians quote the arrangement made between Iraq and England, but there is this difference: Before Iraq obtained its Constitution it signed a treaty of alliance with England in which England reserved all points on which international responsibility might be affected. In fact, the British mandate was fully recognized.

When, in 1926, the French began in Syria to attempt to follow a new and liberal policy they gave complete freedom to the people to elect their Assembly, and some of those then elected were men who had been condemned after the 1925 troubles.

It is these men who are insisting on the inclusion in the Constitution of certain articles to which the High Commissioner has taken exception on the ground that they do not take into account the international responsibilities of Syria as defined when it was made a mandatory nation under League guidance.

CONCRETE BASE NEARLY READY

Most of Surfacing On West Side of River is Finished.

AT CAMPBELLFORD.

(Examiner Staff Correspondence)

CAMPBELLFORD, August 14. — Yesterday afternoon saw the finish of the surfacing of the Havelock Road and the beginning of the work on the Hastings connection. Only one block on the Havelock Road is barricaded, and this will be opened to-day. The concrete base on Front Street South was completed yesterday, and the curb lines have been laid out on the remainder of Mill Street and Front Street from the intersection of Mill. Front street north, north of the business section, is barricaded, and when this is completed, all the concrete base for the three and one-half miles of Campbellford's paved streets will be laid. There has been some talk of a further extension of the program, but nothing official has been done in this respect to date.

The town men are working on the finishing up of the space between the curb and the sidewalk. This will be of concrete and the regulation depth of four and one-half inches will be observed throughout the business section. In the residential parts, there will be an option of either gravel or earth for a grass plot. This will be decided by the property owners. The present strip of surfacing which is under way at the present time is the last to be done on the west side of the river.

TRIP TO LINDSAY AGAIN ENJOYED

Many Passengers Have Pleasant Outing By Boat Through Lakes.

RETURN BY TRAIN.

Yesterday, August the thirteenth—not an unlucky day, I hope, for I am not superstitious—in the year of grace, nineteen hundred and twenty-eight, saw the third trip of the season up the canal, river and lakes to the little town of Lindsay by the well-known steamer "Stoney Lake," the passengers thereby returning to their homes in this city and neighborhood by train.

And it was a worth-while trip, too; for the day was, without pretending to cant—a thing I detest in man or woman—simply divine; a real God-given day, a day of glorious brilliant sunshine, of cloudless beauty, tempered as regards its heat by a gentle breeze. I had anticipated such a day, for as I looked out of my chamber window at sunrise I saw a thick haze almost amounting to a small fog over the face of the earth. Said I to myself: "That betokens a lovely, sunshiny day," and, true enough, it did; for a more glorious day would be hard to imagine. After an unusually early breakfast, I managed to hit on a bus to take me to George street wharf. We made

Our Start

At 7.45 a.m. We had a fairly good number of passengers—a good army of men and boys, the matron and the maid, who all appeared to be intent on having a real day of pleasure and enjoyment. And here, by way of digression, let me say they thoroughly succeded, if pleased faces might be taken as any outward indication.

Bad Manners

But "evil is wrought by want of thought, much more than by want of heart." This is an old truism and I have noticed it frequently on the good old steamer "Stoney Lake," which vessel as usual was our means of transport. Some early-comers, of whom I happened to be one, would take from the pile one of the folding deck chairs, select their desired location, open their chair and either sit down for a while or deposit their impedimenta in the shape of light overcoats, lunch baskets, books or whatnot, to mark the fact that that particular chair or seat was bespoken. Well and good; in some cases courtesy prevails. But in many cases a passenger leaves his seat temporarily possibly to say "How d'you do" to a friend and on coming back expecting to find his sea empty, discovers that his belongings have been moved off his chair and deposited on the deck while others are occupying the seat he or she had vainly imagined was to be his or her permanent resting place. For instance, I was a similar victim. I left my chair which I had early secured, placed my small articles upon it to denote occupation, crossed the deck to salute a charming lady of my acquaintance and in a few minutes returned to find my small belongings thrown on the deck and my chair occupied. Fortunately I found a spare chair on the diminished pile and re-established myself elsewhere. But what motive is at the root of such annexation? Why it is simply selfishness in many cases. Rather than take the trouble to procure a chair for himself, the guilty party will remove the original occupier's worldly goods, because, forsooth, the particular chair happens to be in some position that he fancies. The whole thing displays a lack of decent manners.

Across Little Lake

Our departure whistle having sounded we steamed across Little Lake where, alas, a fatal drowning accident to a young girl, who had only been a fortnight in this city, took place on Sunday last. An accident which one may say is preventable, for it occurs through the foolish, and by far too frequent, practice of attempting to change places in a boat. It is risky enough as a rule in a skiff, but on a canoe the practice—which has no commonsense in it—is often fatal, as in the case under consideration. Well, we crossed Little Lake and called at the Mark street, or East City, wharf. There, as well as at other points of call we took on additional passengers. On we steamed till we steamed into the precincts of the

Lift Lock

This lock has a naturally forbidding appearance, and I rarely approach it without thinking of Dante's—wasn't it?—remark, "Abandon hope, all ye that enter here." However, in a few minutes we had been transferred from the level of the lake to the higher waters of the canal.

Many people speak of this lift lock as being the largest lift lock in the world. This is not altogether correct; it is the highest by two feet, for it is that dimension higher in its rise than one on the Manchester Ship Canal in England. At least, so I have always been informed. But in capacity it is not the largest, for ocean-going vessels can be passed on the British lift lock. Nevertheless the Peterborough lift lock was a grand conception, and I am not disposed to cross swords on a small dimension.

Up the Canal

All this time there was a lovely, cloudless azure sky, while a gentle breeze seemed to fan invigorating currents of air amongst us. We passed up the canal where there are always some pretty points of interest and scenery for those who have eyes to see. Personally I never complain of sameness on this trip or on the down-river trip to Rice Lake. I can always see some beauty that I seem never to have noticed before. I think Peterborough is magnificently well-provided with lovely navigable waters, well worth a good journey to see and appreciate.

In due course we arrived at Lock 24, where a good deal of interest was taken by the voyagers in a diver who was preparing himself for diver's operations. He was watched closely while he put on his heavy and cumbersome costume; but time did not permit of waiting to see him make his descent. In course of time we reached Lakefield at 10.40, where we took on more passengers, until we had, I suppose, some one hundred and sixty on board—a comfortable boat load.

At Lakefield much interest was taken in the large cement works there and some photographic views thereof were taken by a very charming young lady who was one of our passengers. There are, fortunately, still a few of that type in this world who seem, by some God-given gift, to radiate and diffuse sunshine and happiness among their fellow-creatures. Shortly after leaving Lakefield we entered Katchewanooka Lake. There we met the Islinda, another vessel belonging to the Stoney Lake fleet, with whom we exchanged the usual maritime courtesies, and then began our journey

Up the Lakes.

At 11.05 we were negotiating the lock at Young's Point, and at 11.30 a.m. the welcome sound of the dinner bell was heard, and most of us were quite ready to either descend into the dining saloon or attack the respective lunch hampers. Candidly I was quite ready for my repast, and right well I enjoyed it, thanks to the capable cooks, Mrs. Godfrey and Mrs. Dawson, and another whose name I have not the pleasure of knowing.

By this time we were at Burleigh. There we saw a hydroplane, which attracted a good deal of notice. Then we met the Empress, another vessel belonging to the Stoney Lake fleet, and with whom we also exchanged greetings.

And so we went steaming gently along. The sun had now got its midday strength, and notwithstanding the pleasant and gentle breeze it was decidedly warm. And in due course we arrived at Bobcaygeon, where we experienced

A Delay.

At this place is a pivotted road bridge crossing close to the locks. Something had gone wrong with the works and the bridge could not be opened to let us pass through. There was a great deal of hammering—some facetious individual said a fly had got into the cogwheels and had refused to come out! However, some of us went ashore for a spell and we learned that only a few days since a steamer had been held up for forty minutes for the same reason. On asking the reason, we were informed that some one in authority—who it was did not appear—had given orders that after the bridge had been opened for a steamer to pass, and then closed again, it was to be wedged up, such wedges to be driven out when a steamer came along. Now, this is practically a new bridge, and it appears strange that such treatment should be needed. However, after a good deal of hammering on the part of the lock officials and an enforced wait of fortunately only twenty minutes, we went on our way rejoicing.

One of the lakes we passed through was named Lovesick Lake. I wonder what was the origin of such a title? Did in times past some lovesick swain or maiden come to a tragic end through a hopeless love?

On and On We Went

until we reached the mouth of the Scugog River, running up to Lindsay. Here the supper bell rang, and once more with a grateful heart I arose from a well supplied supper table. Then a run up the river under the electrically worked bascule bridge, and we arrived at the City of Lindsay.

On our journey we had passed through Little Lake, River Otonabee, the Canal, Katchewanooka, Kawartha, Clear, Stoney, Lovesick, Deer Bay, Buckhorn, Pigeon and Sturgeon Lakes and the Scugog River. Arrived at Lindsay our steamboat tickets were exchanged for railway-vouchers, and at 6.30 p.m. we disembarked after thanking the captain and his crew for their unvaried courtesy, care and attention, and meandered across the town to the C.N.R. Station, where we found a special train in readiness for us, which safely landed us in Peterborough at 8.15 p.m., thus ending up a most enjoyable and delightful day. Then came the farewells with old and new friends at the railway station, farewells that undoubtedly some felt real sorry to make.

I have been on this same trip many times, but I never remember one in which there was such God-given perfect weather, nor one on which the voyagers appeared to have enjoyed themselves so thoroughly. Everyone was happy, the children were well behaved, which added considerably to one's comfort. In fact, the whole thing may be voted a great success.

This trip is to be repeated next Monday. Be in time for it, for I understand it may be the last of the season.

CANADIAN BEEF? INDEED!

To many an American tourist travel in Canada becomes a source of education as well as re-creation. A conversation among several Americans overheard the other day in a railway diner a little distance from Toronto emphasizes the need.

"I wonder where they get their beef from," conjectured the traveller, ordering "Roast beef rare, please."

"Why, from England, of course" replied the companion of the journey; "don't you remember, 'Roast beef from England?'"

Startled, a Canadian on the opposite site of the table, who had been viewing the herd of cattle grazing contentedly in an Ontario pasture, broke in upon the conversation:

"Pardon me, but Canadians raise their own beef—you will probably be served Ontario beef —"

"Indeed! How interesting," interrupted the tourist, "I thought Canada was a mining and lumbering country."

ENGLISH FINANCIER STUDIES PROSPECTS

H. M. Thornton Considers Expansion of His Industries To Canada.

TORONTO, Aug. 14.—(Special)—H. M. Thornton, J.P., Managing Director of two English companies representing $17,000,000 in capitalization, and employing 1,000 persons, is in Canada at present, one of his purposes being to investigate opportunities for the expansion of his interests here.

He, with Mrs. Thornton, is with a group of 50 in a C.P.R. deluxe tour to Victoria. In the course of an interview here today, Mr. Thornton expressed unbounded confidence in the future prosperity of Canada in England he remarked, the heavy imperial and local taxation had retarded business development. "We all feel in the Old Country, that we would rather wait for our prosperity than not pay our debts, even if some of these war debts are open to question, we are gradually feeling our way through the aftermath of war" he said "and we shall soon show to the world, that, reorganization, British pluck and determination and having behind us the best of workmen in their respective trades, will once again give us growing activity in the markets of the world."

Canada has 160 species of hardwoods, and 31 of softwoods—a total of 191.

JUDGING TO BE FAIR FEATURE

Young People Will Have Competition on Wednesday, Sept. 12.

SPLENDID PRIZES.

From the Peterborough Department of Agriculture office will go out during the next day or so announcement and details of the fifth annual judging competition in live stock and domestic science to be held at the Exhibition grounds, Peterborough, on Wednesday, September 12, commencing at 8.45 a.m. The competitions, open to all farm young people under the age of 26 years, will be under the joint auspices of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition and the Ontario Department of Agriculture and will boast a prize list of over $400 in value.

Following is the announcement as written by J. B. Nelson, local agricultural representative:

"It is with pleasure that we announce the fifth annual Peterborough County Judging competitions in Livestock and Domestic Science for farm young people, to be held at the Peterborough Exhibition Wednesday, September 12.

"As in former years there is a splendid list of cash prizes amounting to $175.00 and this list is supplemented by a number of very valuable special prizes. In all, over $400.00 worth of prizes will be given.

"You will notice several new features of the competitions this year. Members of former county teams, who previously were debarred, may enter in the senior class.

"The 'Royal' trip winners will also be selected at this competition. The winners of this trip (to the Royal Winter Fair) last year had a wonderful time and there will be keen competition for these prizes this year.

"Arrangements are being made for a picnic lunch at noon so come to the competitions with your baskets—coffee will be provided—and enjoy a day with the farm young people from all over the county. Send your entry on the enclosed form by September 8."

Wm. Knox, Contest Superintendent, Peterborough Exhibition.

J. B. Nelson, Agr. Representative.

Domestic Science.

Some time ago, The Examiner published complete details of the boys' livestock judging competitions but as yet, the Domestic Science department has been neglected. With the above announcement, however, there have been enclosed rules and regulations of the Domestic Science competitions which are open to any girl under the age of twenty-six years who is resident in the County of Peterough or the townships of South Monaghan, Cavan and Emily, and who has not taken a regular Household Science course at a school or college. As in the case of the live stock judging, entries must be in by September 8. No entry fee will be charged.

For the purpose of awarding prizes, the entrants will be divided into senior and junior competition with each entrant eligible for only one prize, awarded on a basis of fifty per cent. for correct placing and fifty per cent. for reasons. This will apply to all three branches — Nutrition (school lunches and family menus), Clothing (dress parade and country girls' wardrobe), and House Furnishings (farm living rooms and kitchen plans). The senior division will be for al lover eighteen years of age and the junior for all girls 18 years and under. Any girl who has taken part in a provincial Domestic Science judging competition is automatically in the senior class regardless of her age.

Special Prizes.

There will be regular first prizes of $4.00, second prizes of $3.00, third prizes of $2.00 and fourth, fifth and sixth prizes of $1.00, but two "specials" have also been provided through the courtesy of the Peterborough Raw Fur Company, which has donated a beautiful "Markina" choker, to be given to the senior competitor who makes the greatest total in all classes, and through the kindness of Alex. Gibson, Jeweller, George street. Mr. Gibson has donated a valuable brooch to be given the junior girl with the highest total in all classes.

2ND (ARMOUR) TROOP.

The 2nd Peterborough (Armour) Troop of Boy Scouts met at the Parish Hall, St. Luke's Church, on Friday last. There was only a small gathering owing to several boys being away camping. After flag break, the Scoutmaster and boys proceeded to the railway bridge and Scouts Milleken, Gardiner, Lee, Hamilton, and Townsend passed their Scout pace. On return to headquarters, the compass was discussed and games played, S. Townsend being the chief winner.

The boys were warned for the Chemong rally.

6th PETERBOROUGH TROOP

The 6th Peterborough Troop has just completed a ten-day camping perio held in the vicinity of Young's Point. This was the 6th's first camp and such a success was realized that it promises to be made an annual event.

The camp was run under patrol system and the troop was made up of two patrols—the Foxes and Beavers. Each day a special program was held consisting of swimming, hiking, and scout activities. This was followed in the evening by a blazing council fire around which squatted the boys on logs, listening to interesting stories and enjoying a real sing-song.

Wednesday was visitors' day and the afternoon found many parents and friends assemble to have a real day's outing with the scouts. A special field day was held which involved many scouting gabes. Practically every scout obtained a prize in some one of the events.

The only thing that was not in keeping with the whole environment was the inclemmency of the weather but as boy scouts they lived up to their 4th scout law.

The camp was in charge of Mr. Castricum in the absence of the scoutmaster, and the troop is very thankful to him, the troop committee, and others who were responsible for the success of this camp.

SETS NEW RECORD.

Chef Swims Fifteen Miles in Five Hours at Atlantic City.

OCEAN CITY, N.J., Aug. 14 (Canadian Press).—After only three weeks of distance swimming, August Zerva, 32-year-old chef, swam from Atlantic City to this resort, 15 miles, in five hours and six minutes, finishing late last night. Early to-day he left the hospital where he had received stimulants after his long session in the cold water. Zerva is training for the Wrigley Marthon in Toronto.

The previous record for swimming the course was made in 1915, when Charles Burdro swam it in five and a half hours.

Two Millionaires Allowed To Each Acre of Suburb

CHICAGO, Ills., Aug. 14. — The burning question of how many millionaires should be permitted to an acre of Lake Forest's aristocratic terrain has been settled by the suburb's council. The answer is two and a fraction; but because of a widespread antipathy to the division of millionaires into fractions, an even two is approximate enough.

The council has voted to require persons building homes in 13,000 square acres of restricted territory to have a lot no smaller than 20,000 square feet or about half an acre. The more plebian purses may provide homes on lots containing 7,500 square feet. For those who find even this too much territory, there are flats in store buildings and elsewhere.

The council action was a victory for B. F. Affleck, president of the Chicago Union League Club, who had protested against Van Wegenan Alling's plan to build three homes to the acre across the street from the Affleck estate.

Mr. Affleck said he had no objection to people living on lots of 7,500 square feet, so long as they did it somewhere else.

FOWL SUPPER AT ENNISMORE

One of the Last of the Socials That Always Draws a Fine Attendance.

SUPPER ALWAYS GOOD.

The Lawn Social and Fowl Supper to be held at Ennismore on Wednesday, August 22nd, is one of the last of the socials held in the district and is one of the very best attended events both by city and country residents.

In addition to the fowl supper there is a baseball game at four o'clock, a horse shoe tournament and a fancy booth, with valuable articles.

Supper will be served from 5 until 8.30 o'clock and extra dining room accommodation has been prepared so that the large crowd that usually attends will have good fast service as well as an excellent dinner.

Father McAuley and his parishioners make excellent hosts and as the event is hled on Peterborough's half holiday there will no doubt be a large attendance from the city and district.

MYSTERY OF NORTH FINALLY CLEARED

Bodies of Eminent Explorer and Two Nephews Found in Lonely Shack.

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 14 (Canadian Press).—A two-year-old mystery of the North has been solved by the finding of the bodies of John Hornby, eminent explorer, and his two nephews in a lonely cabin on the north bank of the Thelon River in the barren land west of Hudson Bay. In a wireless message to headquarters here, Staff Sgt. M. A. Joynce, Royal Canadian Mounted Police, stationed at Chesterfield Inlet, stated that the party had apparently died of starvation.

HEAVY TRAFFIC OVER RAILWAYS

Grain and Package Freight From Lake Ports Passes Peterborough.

BOTH LINES BUSY.

LINDSAY, August 14. — The passing of numerous heavily laden freight trains through Lindsay and Peterborough on both the C.N.R. and C.P.R. lines during the past few days tells the story of heavy grain and package freight haulages from the upper lakes terminals.

Business has been quite active on the C.P.R. Port McNicoll dire. Since the company extended its line into Midland, heavy shipments have been made via Lindsay and Peterborough from the new elevator which was formerly the property of the Lake Simcoe Storage Company.

On the C.N.R. there have been brisk shipments of grain and package goods from Midland and Depot Harbor. Recently two boat loads of Australian wool arrived at the lake terminal, and this passed through Peterborough for Boston.

Both railway lines anticipate a busy fall season in grain shipments.

GLACIER DAM STILL HOLDING

Reports of Bursting of Mountain Barrier Proved Erroneous.

FIRE CAUSED REPORT.

SIMLA, Punjab, Aug. 14 (Canadian Press).—The Punjab Government received official information to-day that reports of the bursting of a glacial dam in Kashimir on the Shyok River are arroneous.

It was indicated by the first report that the glacier had given way was based on a fire seen burning in the neighborhood which was mistaken for the signal prearranged to be given when the break occurred.

KENORA GREETS LABOR LEADER

People Turn Out En Masse To Pay Tribute to Ramsay MacDonald.

CIVIC WELCOME.

KENORA, Ont., Aug. 14.—(Canadian Press).—The population of Kenora turned out en masse last night to welcome former Premier Ramsay MacDonald and his three daughters who are making a brief stop over here in the course of their Canadian pleasure trip.

The British Labor Leader was met at Dryden by the Hon. Peter Heenan, Canadian Minister of Labor, who on his arrival at Kenora introduced the visitors to a gathering of civic dignitaries and leading citizens.

In a brief address, replying to the speech of welcome, Mr. MacDonald thanked the gathering for the cordiality of welcome accorded himself and his daughters.

EXTRA PRIZES ARE DONATED

T. Eaton Company Gives Book For Runners-up at Fair.

CUPS AGAIN GIVEN.

Each year, the value of the school fair is recognised more fully by the T. Eaton company of Toronto. Last year, it donated silver cups to be given the pupils winning high honors at the various school fairs throughout the province and so successful seemed the idea that this year, not only has that company donated approximately 550 of the trophies, but also second and third prizes consisting of sets of books by good authors.

Every school fair in the province has been given consideration and already, at the Peterborough office of the Department of Agriculture, have arrived cups and sets of books for the fairs supervised by J. B. Nelson, local Agricultural Representative. A silver trophy, nicely designed and suitably inscribed, will be given to the champion pupil at each school fair, while the sets of books will be given as second and third prizes.

The straight line

The geometrical axiom that the straight line is the shortest distance between two points is equally true of advertising. Advertising offers the shortest route between seller and buyer.

Reading advertisements saves time. By reading the advertisements in your daily newspaper you learn of the things you want and need; you learn where they are for sale and for how much. The advertisements enable you to weigh and choose even before you lav down your paper.

Advertisements are money savers because they enable you to secure better quality for the money you invest. They enable your dollar to purchase its full value in merchandise. Advertisements will keep you posted on every development that affects you, your wife and children, your home and your business.

Read the advertisements in this newspaper. The time you spend in reading them represents time and money saved when you buy.

Everyone should read advertisements as he does the news.

THE MIRROR OF THE MODE

By Mary Marshall.

Three rhinestone buckles and the hobble sash provide ornament of a distinctive sort to this evening frock of black satin.

Have you seen the new hobble skirts? Or what is perhaps more important—have you tried to walk in one?

My own idea is that they are a good deal easier to look at than to wear and the fashion would be a good deal more practicable for a race of women without knee joints who merely slid along on rollers than for women who walk as we do.

And most women do walk quite freely. Look at the photographs taken of fashionable women at resorts or in city streets and you usually see them taking long, wide strides that would be a credit to any young man. The old-time mincing step that grandmothers considered ladylike is no more—and yet with these new hobble skirts one will have to mince a little or come to grief.

This season, I am sure, will long be remembered as the season of the printed frock. Flowered prints and spotted prints, geometrically angular prints, and prints showing landscapes or anamistic figures—we have had them all and even as the midsummer days are passing the figured print seems to be as highly favored as ever. One wonders now whether prints will continue into cool weather and, if perchance the fashion is one that goes with the frost, how we shall ever get along without them.

Wherever there is talk of autumn clothes one hears intimations of the expected vogue for chestnut brown. It seems to be taken for granted, in fact, that the warm reddish brown shades that the French call "marron" will be favored for wraps and hats for the coming season. And there are some warm browns not quite red enough to be chestnut that have already been accepted among smart evening tones.

Social Amenities

GLOVES AND GUESTS.

Puzzled: "Is it correct for a lady to remove her glove when shaking hands with another lady? When a lady is entertaining at home, should she precede her guests when showing them to her room? Should she open the door into her rooms for them?"

(1) It is not necessary for a lady to remove her glove when she shakes hands. And since it is not required that she do so, she does not need to mention the fact or excuse the fact that she is not taking off her glove.

(2) Yes, it is generally easier for her and more convenient for her guests if she opens the door of her room and enters first. She may, if she wishes (and it is better if she does) say something to make the way smooth: "Will you excuse me if I go first to show you the way?" or "I'll go first, if you don't mind, to light the light," or "Do you mind if I go first, and will you 'follow the leader'?"

THE WHATNOT

A Place for Little Bits of Everything of Local Interest

WHO shall hold the purse strings?" was the question under discussion on a shady verandah one day last week. Visitors comprising grandmothers and flapper daughters—married and with babies nevertheless aired their views.

Said one grandmother, "I have told my daughter to have the money turned over to her so that she might handle it as they would arrange some satisfactory budget. Of course they would each have their own personal allowance."

• • •

"I think there should be a joint bank account," said a young wife. "I can pay the grocery bills and get the necessary articles for the house and my husband can pay insurance and whatever other accounts we may decide on. Of course it is necessary to have a budget in this case too."

• • •

"How are you going to manage if your husband is the kind who hands over an amount each week and says that has to do you?" was another wife's question. "It all depends on what the amount is," another answered. "If it is not enough a woman is foolish to try to struggle along without coming to some other understanding."

• • •

"Well my husband wouldn't think of doing a thing like that, he thinks too much of me to keep any back."

Then an older woman spoke up. "I used to think that too, my dear, but I have found that ideas change very often. A man may take up some hobby that demands more than its share of the income and he will spend that amount on it. Then the wife runs short. Some other man may get meals down town, many of them being eaten there because he meets acquaintances, and that means more money. Any woman with young children spends less because she is not out so much and her allowance is overlooked. What about the tobacco that so many men use? Do their wives receive an equal amount to spend on themselves?"

• • •

And so it went, each one putting in her ideas. I wonder how they will settle the question? What do you think?

• • •

Something new (but adapted from a similar use) seen in a George Street window is a colored glass, fan-shaped container for cigarettes. This holder is for use on the dinner table.

• • •

A recent Toronto visitor to our city carried a neat and novel purse. It was flat and the edges were joined by leather thongs passed through holes punched in the leather. I was surprised to find she had made it herself. This fact suggests the possibility of having a number of purses to match one's dresses.

• • •

On a dinner table in a city home the cloth used was of buttercup yellow damask, and with it was seen green opaque glassware. Yellow roses in green holders followed the color scheme.

• • •

Have you used the new cheese that is so suitable for sandwiches? It spreads just like butter and is made by a well-known firm.

• • •

Now that we must think of preparing the youngsters for another school year one item to keep in mind is the marking of garments. One article used for this purpose is applied without using heat. It doesn't spread or wash out.

• • •

Another of the uses to which colored glass is put is that of a table lamp. It has a lacey fern drooping from a standard set in a square base.

• • •

A bedroom in a west end home has a pleasing and novel arrangement of its wall decorations. The pictures are grouped in a mass just above the bedside table which stands between the twin beds. This may seem strange at first but when one considers that the wallpaper is a large old-fashioned design it is evident that the larger grouping makes it easy for the eye to find the pictures. A number of pictures scattered over the entire wall would look like 'patches' on it.

• • •

White costumes seem to be smart this summer, especially if the white is a bit off-shade, such as ivory or cream. An ensemble seen on George Street consisted of this white in a jacket dress worn with hat to match, stitched, and white buckskin shoes.

• • •

Speaking of shoes—have you seen the variety on the feet of our guests from across the border! One tourist wore a pair of navy blue kid that were lovely with her dress of navy and white. At a resort up the lakes I saw sandals of straw and leather and shoes of shantung, embroidered. One girl wore a pique dress and shoes to match, though these fabric foot coverings don't seem very substantial to me.

TRAVEL-LOG.

"OPEN MY HEART AND YOU WILL SEE"

I shall never forget the effect on my mind as my Venetian gondolier held his oar for a moment as we passed the three storied grey Renaissance pile known as the Palazzo Rezzonico, where the English poet Robert Browning lived and died. I had read often of the tablet on its walls with the famous lines.

"Open my heart and you will see

and I almost hesitated to lift my eyes to the walls as if almost I would instead be looking into that warm and understanding heart. If ever a man should doff his hat, it should be in moments like this and I took mine off as I read. Two hundred and fifty years this palace has stood by the shining waters of the Grand Canal, but only during the last fifty have the gondoliers slowed down for all to spend one holy silent moment before its windows. Byron and Wagner, Dickens and Madame Duce have left their mark on adjacent palaces, but with the possible exception of the last, none had the Italian heart of the man who made this spot famous. All wrote of Italy, but on him, Italy itself wrote an immortal page.

Just a Joke

"If I had time," cried Grandma Bell, "I'd can come fruit and make some jell."

The Art of Attraction

No. 19.

Health is another great factor in the charm of a womanly womna. There have been instances where men fell madly in love with invalid women. The case of Robert Browning and his wife is the one notable instance that always springs to mind in this connection, but that was a super-love, one of those wonderful affairs to which the ordinary person can never hope to attain. They were both poets and they dwelt in a different world from the mundane sphere. Browning met his wife when she was a bed-ridden invalid and, although he took her to Italy to benefit by the climate she never was very strong or robust. She was not a handsome woman, either, in many ways, but Browning adored even her deficiencies in this way and wrote a poem to "the little mouth that would not close," because the slightly protruding teeth prevented it. To the majority of men, health appeals and women would do well to guard this previous attribute for their own sakes as well as for the added attraction it brings to them.

MARION'S MAIL.

"Dear Marion:
Your page is very interesting and wonderful. Would it be too much to ask you for a pattern of a simply-made apron or an oblong or heart-shaped cushion top?
Yours sincerely,
Mrs. J. L."

Thanks for your compliments, Mrs. J. L. I will endeavor to send you the patterns requested within a few days.

"Dear Marion:
I am making the pot pourri and think it will be lovely. I am sending you my favorite cake recipe. I wish you continued success in your interesting page. H.A.W."

Thank you, H.A.W., for the recipe, which was printed several days ago. I have been so busy during the past two weeks that I have not had time to answer my mail. Do write again.

"Dear Marion:
There is a boy in my district who demoralizes the other children for blocks around. He is a regular bully, and nothing anyone says to him has any effect. I think his parents have been told, but they do not seem to do anything about it. Is there anything we can do to protect our children?
Yours sincerely,
Holly."

If the boy's parents will not help by repressing the young man, you might call up the police department and have them approach the family. I have answered the other part of your letter personally.

"Dear Marion:
My sympathy goes out to the little girl who calls herself "Old Maid," for I, too, was called an old maid at her age. My parents told all their friends I would be an old maid and for that reason I married the first man that asked me, one whom I didn't like very well, and I've had just ten years of unhappiness. Don't you do it, 'Old Maid.'
I think your columns are just wonderful, dear Marion. I like best the little sermonettes you use to open the 'Whatnot' every two or three days. Give us more of them.
With best wishes to you and all your readers,
Yours sincerely,
Ruth."

I am glad you wrote, Ruth. Parents often do their children a great deal of harm by their careless remarks. I know a girl who was made awkward and self-conscious all her life because her parents kept telling her when she was little that she was awkward. I know another who was made unhappy all her life because her mother used to talk about her personal defects when she was little—her pug nose and her freckles and other things that her mother found to make fun of. I do hope the girls and boys who read this will use their good sense and not allow the foolish remarks of others to drive them into things they may regret all their lives. And you parents should be doubly careful not to impress erroneous or disheartening suggestions on the minds of your children.

SPICED CHERRIES.

(Sent in by "Jenny Wren")

Six quarts of cherries with the seeds removed, 3½ pounds of sugar; 2 cups vinegar; 1 tablespoon ground cinnamon; ¼ tablespoon allspice; 2 teaspoons cloves (ground); 1 teaspoon grated nutmeg.

Mix the spices with the sugar and add the vinegar. When dissolved, pour over the fruit. Allow to stand in a warm place for three days, and each morning stir the mixture well, being sure to bring to the top any of the materials that may have settled at the bottom. Jar and seal after the third day.

Pedro Elephant

By SHIRLEY RODMAN WILLIAMS.

EVERY mother knows that no two children can be treated in exactly the same way. The method most successful with one may be a total failure with another. For instance in the case of children who aren't interested in eating or have aversions to food. One can be starved into eating; one can be successfully ignored till he eats; one can be won by good example; while another can be made to eat by drawing his attention from the food to something more interesting as in the case of Ann who had a pet toy elephant which professed great interest in the bottoms of empty bowls and cups. It would wait patiently on the floor near her high chair till her food was gone and then come scampering joyfully to view the empty dishes. How Jane did eat to please that elephant!

AT dinner my elephant,
My nice Pedro Elephant,
Sits waiting around on the floor by my feet.
He snorts, "Hurry up there, Ann.
So when I climb up I can See all of your dishes cleaned up nice and neat."

So all of my spinach nice,
My bright yellow carrot dice,
I pile on my fork, and I gobble them up.
I eat all the crumbs up clean,
My cookie and pink ice cream,
And I drink every drop of the milk in my cup.

And then when my elephant,
My nice Pedro Elephant,
Comes scrambling along up the leg of my chair,
He dances with all his might
And squeals out his great delight
To see the clean bottoms of bowls I have there!

DOVE OF PEACE.

By Helen Gray.

"I wish," said Lotta coolly, "that you would kindly return my white rooster."

An indignant face, very red, topped with a battered straw hat, came up on the other side of the high hedge. "What white rooster?" he inquired.

Lotta waved a sun-burned hand toward the next-door chicken house. "He's standing on the roof now—there, he has crowed!" as a thin reedy squawk split the Sabbath stillness.

"Ah—true enough, the beast doesn't belong here at all—how did it get inside?"

"I don't know," said Lotta patiently. "When he does come back, I shall lockhim up."

"That's fine," returned Dick Paine, cheerfully grinning at her; "he's a fearful pest you know."

"He's a dear," retorted Lotta, who had petted Nicodemus, the white cockerel from the very day its heartless mother had repudiated it.

"Too dear to me!" gritted Mr. Paine. "He's scratched up all our flower beds—after we sold our own chickens so as to have some flowers ——" He had lifted the protesting Nicodemus from the empty chicken house and handed the bird across the hedge to Lotta.

"You are growing very crabbed and nagging, Dicky. You are going to be a most disagreeable old man."

Dicky glowered at his late fiancee. "Possibly I may not live to be an old man," he said stiffly.

Lotta smiled. "I will come and plant posies on your grassy mound, Mr. Paine."

"That will be a privilege reserved for my widow," he tossed over his shoulder as he stalked away across the lawn.

His widow!

Lotta had not thought of that possibility. To leave a widow Dicky must first marry—and for him to marry and bring a wife home to the darling house next door where they had planned to live—it was an intolerable thought! Nicodemus, the miserable white cockerel, had been the cause of all the trouble. He, the wanderfoot of the chicken tribe, would never stay inside the chicken runs. His wings had both been clipped, but whenever he chose he sailed triumphantly over the ten-foot wire fence and dodged under the hedge into Dicky's yard. He always went there as soon as Dicky had planted any very choice flowers or seeds or bulbs.

But Nicodemus the Bad had accomplished it!

Lotta thought of all these things and gave the white cockerel a vicious little shake. How under the sun did the cockerel manage to fly so high? He must have had an eagle for an ancestor, she thought dolefully, or else he had a motor inside of him like an aeroplane. She opened the door of the chicken run, found an empty coop and locked Nicodemus in durance vile.

"There," she sighed. "You have made trouble enough in the last four weeks."

"You mad at Nicodemus?" asked her little brother Tom.

"He is so wild, Tommy," evaded Lotta.

"Give him to me," begged Tom.

"He would be as much of a pest as ever—but you can have him, dear, only don't let him fly over into Mr. Paine's garden. That's a dear."

"Mr. Paine. You mean Dickey?" Tom was round-eyed.

"Of course," said Lotta shortly as she went into the house and Tom saw that she had been crying.

"It's that old Nicodemus bird," said the little boy. "He's made a lot of trouble and he oughter be sackerficed—like those people cook told me about. I think I'll talk to cook some more about it."

Cook, who had watched the love idyl of Lotta Ames and Dick Paine, only to see it shattered by a quarrel which began over Nicodemus, the bad white cockerel, listened gravely to Tommy's story. "I'll help you out, Master Tommy," she said, "only you must do exactly as I say. To-morrow's your birthday, you know."

"And I'm to have a party!"

"And you're to ask Mr. Paine at the very last minute so he can't refuse."

"I'll cry if he refuses—he likes me," said Tommy. "He wouldn't disappoint a little boy he liked!"

And he didn't, but Tommy had really to shed tears on his seventh birthday to drag Dick Paine from his white-flannelled repose in a hammock to play with small lads and lassies at a birthday party.

It was a nice party and Lotta's mother seemed glad to see Dick once more. "It was nice of you to come over to-day," she said.

"I didn't want to butt in at this time, only Tommy begged me," he explained.

Lotta was there, rosy and smiling, but she avoided Dick. At supper Tommy leaned across to Dick and whispered: "Do you like the salad?"

"Great!" responded Dick.

"It's Nicodemus—I mean he's in it, too, with other chickens!"

Dick stared. "Why—he—Lotta——"

"She don't care—she gave him to me, and cook and I planned to sacrifice him because he is bad and makes so much trouble, but it's funny, he's bad to have around, but good to eat." And Tommy returned to his birthday supper.

Everyone laughed, and Dick jumped up. "Where's Lotta?" he asked, his face very red.

"You will find her outside somewhere, Dick. Tell her to come back when Tommy cuts the cake." And Mrs. Ames smiled contentedly, for she knew that the reign of Nicodemus the Bad was ended and that a dove of peace would take his place.

A Tip or Two

A leading New York shop is featuring handkerchief linen dresses in sports effects for daytime summer wear.

Sports types are rather leaving the field of circular flares free to the more normal mode by adopting the straighter lines in skirts, fullness inserted merely by wide pleats. This permits of the trim slender lines to which women are partial. Whether the garment is one-piece or two-piece, the sports silhouette remains largely the same—youthful.

If coat and dress are to go together and are unlike in every other particular, they may be bound together, figuratively, by the same color thread or the same kind of bands. Thus they seem parts of ensemble. If the coat is plain and the dress is figured, bands of the dress goods may trim the coat.

The organdie dance frock with tiered skirt or gathered side draperies is very good.

The tri-color theme of Chanel has been extended to slippers and used with very clever effect, banded in red, white and blue with a flat bow and a stripe up the heel.

Handwoven bags of generous proportions are well liked to carry with summer frocks for they carry an enormous number of the articles no woman can be without.

Following upon the announcement of the engagement of Viscount Hardinge and Miss Margot Fleming of Ottawa, comes the announcement that a second equerry at Rideau Hall, Captain Derek Murphy, M.C., will wed Miss Elizabeth Lawson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred S. Lawson, of Ottawa. The bride-elect is one of the most beautiful and popular members of the younger set in the capital. Capt. Murphy leaves in September to join his regiment, the Irish Guards and will return next year to Ottawa where the marriage will take place.

Cogs Win First Game Of E. P. L. Play-Offs

PLAY SMART BALL TO DEFEAT RAYBESTOS 5-0

Vannest Credited With Nine Strikeouts and Allowing Two Hits.

MAUDSLEY WILD

Same Two Teams Will Meet Again To-night in Second Battle.

Cognawagas played smarter baseball and hit for runs when they took the first game of the E.P.L. playoffs with Raybestos, 5 to 0, at Exhibition Park last night. The Cogs, also got better pitching, Vannest repeating his stellar performance against Crescents, whiffing nine batsmen and holding the Rays to a pair of scratch hits. Raybestos went out in order in five of their seven trips to the plate and nobody saw third base.

Scotty Maudsley did not pitch up to form. He was wild, and the lower section of the batting order beat him. In the fifth when the Cogs scored three runs, his support failed to the extent of a wild throw and a muffed fly and Masterson relieved with two out and two runs across. Baker greeted the new heaver with a single that scored the third counter, and the last run of the game.

The teams play again this evening. If Cogs win, they will go to Hastings tomorrow afternoon for the opening of the series with the county winner. A win for Raybestos will tie the series, and a third game will be played on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The winner will play in Hastings at 5.30 o'clock, and Hastings will come here for the second game on Thursday evening. All this rush is necessary because the O.B.A.A. has refused to extend the time for opening the playdowns with the Oshawa District winner which is next Saturday.

A monster crowd saw last night's game. Cogs won the toss and proceeded to dispose of the Rays in one, two, three order. Hillier grounded to the pitcher, Nichols struckout and Scully fouled to Rooke.

Wilson, for the Cogs was thrown out by Nicholls, Scully tossed out Corbett and then went back to take Vannest's fly.

The Rays were helpless before Vannest in the second. Barry and Corrin fanned, Maudsley was passed, and Moore struck out.

A pass to Rooke brought in a run for Cogs. The runners stole second, and made third when Nicholls failed to field Billingsley's tap down third. The Rays infield look bad on this one. Crary singled between middle and left to score Rooke. Baker tapped to the pitcher, and he went out, Billingsley being held at third. On Delahaye's grounder to the box, Billingsley went in but went out easily on Maudsley's toss to the plate. Cripps rolled out to Maudsley.

Rays got a runner to second in the third when with two gone, Hillier scratched a hit off Corbett and stole. It was a wasted effort as Nicholls fanned.

Two were gone when Vannest singled to right. Rooke drew his second pass, after which Maudsley fanned Billingsley.

The fourth brought a lifesaver for Scully, who opened for the Rays, with a bouncing ball that finally rolled safe as the catcher looked on. Barry tried to bunt and popped to Delahaye who quickly doubled Scully. Corrin missed three.

An error at third paved the way for another run for the Cogs. Nicholls fumbled Crary's grounder and the runner stole. Baker flied out to O. Nicholls and Delahaye fanned. Cripps picked out a soft one and doubled between middle and left, scoring Crary. Wilson flew out to O. Nicholls.

The Rays looked weak in the fifth, when Maudsley grounded to Vannest. Moore fanned and Rogers was retired from the box.

Not so with the Cogs. Corbett flied to Moore, but Vannest was safe when Corrin dropped his fly. Rooke forced Vannest at second, Hillier making the play at the bag but failing to make it two. Billingsley hit into left, and Rooke went to third, and scored on O. Nicholls' wild heave to third. Crary singled to score Billingsley, the hit bringing about Maudsley's retireemnt. With Masterson pitching, Baker singled to left to score Crary. Delahaye skied to Corrin.

The Rays went out in the sixth on a fly to Wilson, a grounder to Crary and a fly to the pitcher.

Corbett shot a single through Hillier with two down, and Vannest's fly was taken by Moore.

Socks Siebold Scores 17th Victory of Season for Reading.

ORIOLES WIN

READING, Pa., August 14.—(Canadian Press).—Socks Siebold scored his 17th victory of the season when he defeated the Toronto Leafs 6 to 2 in the first game of the series yesterday. The Keys pounded Hankins early to earn the victory. It was the league leaders' third straight defeat.

ORIOLES WIN.

BALTIMORE, Md., August 14.—(Canadian Press).—Baltimore won the first game of the series from Buffalo here yesterday, 4 to 1, although outhit by the New York staters. Bolen kept the visitors' hits well scattered except in one inning, and with exception of that frame was in trouble but once. Buffalo's only run was forced in by a walk with the bases full in the sixth.

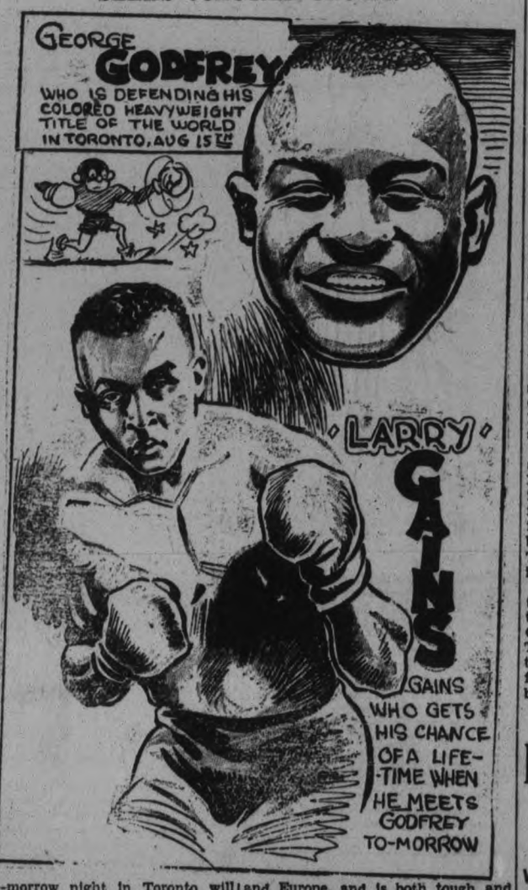
Buffalo threatened in the second inning when singles put the first two men on and Elliott sacrificed them around, but he caused Kelly to pop to Onslow while Mills popped to Lamotte after Barnes had walked. Two of the Oriole runs were four base blows by Clark and Lamotte. Mills held the locals in fine style, the third inning being the only frame in which they were able to collect more than one of their seven hits. Ogden batted for Mills in the eighth frame and Hollingsworth hurled the final inning. The victory was Baltimore's tenth in the last 12 games.

REDS DEFEATED.

NEWARK, N.J., August 14.—(Canadian Press).—Consistent stick work enabled the Bears to defeat Rochester yesterday in the opening game of the series 10 to 3. Lefty Fischer pitched great ball throughout and his only bad inning was the ninth. With one on, Hank Gowdy lifted the ball into the left field stands for a homer. Urban's triple drove in the other run. Lutzke starred for Newark with three hits, including a double and drove in four runs. His double made his 100th hit of the year.

Somerville Leads Amateur Golfers At Montreal

SEEKS COLORED CROWN



To-morrow night in Toronto will be fought the biggest heavyweight fistic bout ever staged in Canada, and in the opinion of some competent critics it will be a faster, more thrilling affair than the recent Tunney-Heeney scrap. It will bring together two colored boxers, Larry Gains, of Toronto, challenger, and the Philadelphia sock artist, George Godfrey, present world's colored heavyweight titleholder.

Gains is indisputably the greatest fighter in Canada to-day, and on this occasion he is being given the chance of a lifetime. He has a long record of successes, and a few failures behind him, on this continent and Europe, and is both tough and speedy. Moreover, he enters the ring keen and absolutely fit. His one handicap will be weight, in which Godfrey will certainly try to use his marked advantage. Larry will have to move fast, dodge as much punishment as possible, and watch his chance.

The purse will scarcely be of Tex Rickard's dimensions, but nevertheless a record one for this country. Godfrey has been guaranteed something better than $40,000, which indicates optimism on the part of the promoters, who expect Toronto sportsmen will swarm out in their thousands to witness this major event.

Dorothy Page Leads Women's Western Play

On the Indian Hill course of 6,420 yards, Miss Page was four blows better than par golf.

Behind the medalist was Mrs. Dalton Raymond of Baton Rouge, formerly Southern champion, with 78, while the only other player to score under 80 was Virginia Wilson, Chicago, semi-finalist last year in the British tourney.

CHESS WINNERS

BADKISSINGEN, Germany, Aug. 14.—(Canadian Press).—Five of the six games in the second round of the International Chess Masters' tournament were decided yesterday. The only winner was Dr. Euwe of Holland.

Nimzowitsch, Denmark, drew against Yates of England in an irregular opening after 54 moves.

Roti of Czechoslavakia lost to Dr. Huwe of Holland in a queen's pawn after fifty moves.

Dr. Tartakower of France adjourned with Spielmann of Austria in a queen's gambit declined after 64 moves. Dr. Tartakower had the better position.

Marshall, United States, drew against Capablanca, Cuba, in an irregular defense after 39 moves.

Rubenstein, Poland, drew against Dr. Tarrasch, Germany, in a queen's pawn opening after 30 moves.

Mieses, Germany, drew against Bogoljubow, Germany, in a carokann defense after 34 moves.

ATHLETICS GAIN ON THE LEADERS

Defeat Tigers 7-1 for Half a Game in Standings.

FOURTH STRAIGHT WIN

NEW YORK, August 13.—(Canadian Perss).—The Athletics gained half a game on the idle New York Yankees yesterday by beating the Tigers 7 to 1 in the opener of a series at Philadelphia.

It was the fourth straight win for the Mackmen and shut them back into a position 4 1-2 games behind the lead.

Left Grove held the Tigers to two singles, which with a wild throw by Cochrane in the fourth saved the losers from being shut out. Grove also gave only one walk.

"Mule" Haas starred on the attack against Owen Carroll by driving in Bishop with a double in the first inning and later scoring on a sacrifice. He also increased the Athletics' shaky 2-1 lead in the seventh by driving Orwoll across the plate. The Athletics got two runs in this inning and three more in the eighth.

Big Ed Morris hung up his fifteenth victory of the season for the tail-end Red Sox yesterday against Cleveland. The score was 6 to 2. The visitors fielded poorly, whereas the changed Carrigan lineup performed smoothly and gave Morris brilliant support.

Only two games scheduled.

MENIE DEFEATS GLEN ROSS

Wallop Pierce All Over Lot to Win 16 to 10 Score.

PLAY-OFF GAME

(Examiner Correspondence)

BURNBRAE, Aug. 14.—Menie softball team staged a real comeback on Friday night when, playing on the home lot, they walloped Pierce's offerings all over the field to defeat Glen Ross, 16 to 10, in the second play-off game.

While the defensive work of the Menie squad was good, the winning punch was in the willow work, which was on a par with the heavy batting records set up during the season.

The third and final game is to be played at Glen Ross on Tuesday night, and with a tie on the round, Menie are confident of retaining the cup for another year.

DARKNESS STOPS SECOND PLAY-OFF

Managers of Two Teams Agree On Seven Innings Game To-night.

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 14 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — The semi-final softball game between St. Andrew's and the Outlaws last night met a similar fate to that of Thursday night. There was not enough daylight left to finish the nine innings which the rules demanded, and after it was practically pitch dark, there came a touch of dissension in the Outlaw ranks and the umpires called the game. After an impromptu meeting of the managers of the two teams, it was decided that the third attempt at the game would be made to-night. The play is to start at six-thirty instead of six-fifteen and seven innings will suffice.

At a quarter to seven, the Outlaws were still four players short, but the umpires would not wait any longer. St. Andrew's team was all present. In spite of the advantage that the Churchmen had in respect to players, the Outlaws gave them a stiff run and for the greater part of the eight innings played were in the lead. As darkness came on, it was impossible to play anything like real ball, and the game developed into a sort of burlesque. McArthur on third base had a beacon light burning, while the Outlaw pitcher simply tossed the ball and let the batter hit it if he could see it. There was nothing to be gained by continuing, so the game was called at eight o'clock.

Don Carrick, Toronto golfer and Canadian Olympic boxer, who was defeated on points by Avendane, Argentine champion.

VIEWS ON SPORTS

Teco and K. of C. meet to-night in the first softball fixture of the week at Confederation Park.

Peterborough has a heavy program of hardball billed for this week, what with the E.P.L. play-offs at the Exhibition Grounds and the Kiwanis-Oshawa game at James Stevenson Park on the following night. Surely this ought to delight the hearts of the most ardent baseball fan, and he should make it a point to be in attendance at them all, as every one promises to be a battle from beginning to end. There was a monster crowd at last night's battle between the Raybestos and Cognawagas—so why not be at the rest. They will be just as good.

* * * * * *

The Cognawagas stepped out and defeated the Raybestos 5-0 in the first game of the city section of the E.P.L. last night. Meeting again to-night a win for the Cogs will send them to Hastings to-morrow afternoon to play with the leaders of the county section in the first of home-and-home games, or a victory for the Raybestos would tie the series and a third game would have to be played on Wednesday afternoon, the winner to go to Hastings that night. The victor of the latter series will travel to Oshawa on Saturday.

* * * * * *

Vannest was good last night, and proved the mainstay of the game by repeating his performance of last week in having nine strikeouts to his credit and holding the Rays to two scratchy hits. Maudsley was not up to his usual form, and the opposing batsmen took full toll from him to collect four runs. He was relieved by Masterson in the fifth inning, who followed in one more counter to make the total of five.

The Oshawa Juveniles come here to-morrow night, bent on making it two straight from the Kiwanis of this city, with Knox, their hurling ace, to occupy the mound. The locals lost the decision on Saturday, and while the Oshawa team in itself played good ball with Reeves standing out as their stellar performer, the base umpire only needed a gun to make himself an old-time highwayman as far as a couple of decisions he dealt out to the clubmen in the early stages of the game were concerned.

This game will be played at James Stevenson Park to-morrow night at 5.15 sharp. Be sure and take it in, as it will be well worth while. Also we would remind you of the Royals-Kingston fixture on Thursday night at the same park, which promises to be one tight fought battle.

The Peterborough Branch Teco Stores softball team, which has provided so many merry arguments in the City Softball League, will venture further afield in search of combat, when, on Wednesday afternoon, the half-holiday, they motor to Toronto. There on the Christie Street grounds they will tie up with the Toronto General Office crew in an exhibition feature that will, in all probability, provide them with as much opposition as they have encountered all season. Many employees of the local stores will follow the team.

When Kingston Victorias go into action against the Royals, of All Saints' Athletic Club, here on Thursday afternoon at five o'clock, it will be with a whole-hearted intention of redeeming their showing in Kingston on Saturday when they lost the first game of the Junior second round to the Petes. At that, they may do the trick. They have a neat infield, while Amey, who does the receiving, has one of the meanest throws to second that the Royals base thieves have encountered this season.

Fifteen hundred soldiers of Military District No. 3 start their annual training period there August 21 and continue in camp until September 1, while on September 1, 2 and 3, twelve hundred members of infantry units having their headquarters in urban centres will be under canvas for their short period of intensive training.

NEW YORK, August 14.—(Canadian Press).—The Pirates scored an easy six to one victory over the Brooklyn Robins in the first game of the last invasion of their own grounds by the Eastern clubs.

Remy Kremer held the Brooklyn batters to six hits. Harvey Hendrick drove in Rube Bressler, with the Robins' only run after two were out in the fifth. The Pirate batters pecked away at Bill Doak's spitball until they had amassed four runs before Doak was relieved in the fourth. Kremer drove in two runs with a clean single in the fourth. Jim Elliott finished the game for Brooklyn, giving two more runs in the seventh.

HEADS FIELD BY TWO STROKES

Former Champion Comes Within One Stroke of Course Record.

TWO TIED FOR SECOND

GOLF CLUB, MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 14 (Canadian Press).—C. Ross Somerville, the London Hunt Canadian amateur golf champion in 1926, started a formidable threat for 1928 honors when he led the field in the 36-hole qualifying round of the event here yesterday, turning in a 74, 71—145, to head the field by two strokes. Somerville's 71 on the second round was within one stroke of the course record.

Close behind him came two youngsters, Carroll Stuart of the Royal Ottawa Club, and Nichol Thompson, Jr., of Chedoke, Hamilton, each of whom turned in a 73, 74—147.

Scores of 163 or better qualified for the first round match play to-day.

Fred G. Hoblitz, who headed the field at the end of the first 18 holes, weakened on the second nine and added at 78 to his morning rounds of 72 for 150 and sole possession of third place.

Tied at 151 were two United States contenders, B. Warren Corkran of Baltimore and W. K. Lanman of Scioto, Columbus, O.

The field was started at 8 o'clock in the morning and it was close to 9 o'clock in the evening, with darkness almost upon them, when the final pairs reported in. Many found the Summerlea course a stiff test, and cards for the most part ran high as wayward shots paid heavy penalties.

Summerlea offers little scope for the golfer to make up wasted shots. As a result, scores of 163 or better qualified and luckily, seeing the play ended in the dark, there were just 32 inside the limit and no play-offs were necessary.

There were some surprises. One of the biggests upsets was the failure of C. C. Fraser of Kanawaki, to qualify. The former champion started off badly on the first round and could not pick up the lost strokes. He totalled 166, which left him outside the pale, the first time he has failed to qualify in a golf tourney in many years.

Cards To Recall Farmed Players

ST. LOUIS, Mo., August 14.—(Canadian Press).—Alarmed by the slump of the St. Louis Cardinals from 6 1-2 to 2 1-2 games leadership in the National League race within a week, President Sam Breadon, vice-President Branch Rickey and Manager Bill McKechnie held a conference yesterday and announced outstanding players on Cardinal "farms" would be recalled in an effort to bolster pennant prospects.

Names of players were not mentioned, but Ernest Orsatti, Minneapolis outfielder, is expected to be one of those recalled. He was with the Cardinals part of the 1927 season and for the last month has been hitting well over .370.

After August 31, the 25 players limit will expire and the Cardinals can have as many as forty men on their roster.

OTTAWA EXHIBITION SHOULD BE SUCCESS

Will Be Well Worth Seeing, Even if Rain Should Occur.

It is now merely a matter of days until the opening of the Ottawa Exhibition, the big annual event for Ottawa and district. The dates are August 20 to 25 and the directors have left nothing undone to ensure six wonderful days and half a dozen nights of entertainment.

Entries already received ensure splendid displays in live stock, poultry, dairy, handicrafts and the varied other departments. Space in all buildings is at a premium and while fair weather is hoped for, the exhibition should be an immense success, rain or shine. In the large general purpose building in the east end of the grounds will be a most unusual display of the latest fall models in automobiles, an intensely interesting exhibit of airplanes and a great radio show for which the various dealers have combined forces. The pure food show in the new building will be an eye-opener. In addition to the new booths which have been installed, electric refirgeration and glass cases will make the dairy exhibit unusually attractive.

Outstanding Features.

Outstanding in the musical features will be Victor and his famous band in daily programs which include solos by Gertrude J. Van Deinse, hailed as the girl with the million dollar voice and America's foremost open air singer. In front of the Grandstand, the Frivolities of 1928, a spectacular music and dance revue, will be the stellar factor. This will be elaborately staged and costumed, with special lighting effects. The cast of fifty, mostly girls, have been carefully selected, the principals being chosen from leading Broadway productions. Another outstanding offering will be California Frank with his cowboys and cowgirls, bucking bronchos, Texas steers and wonderfully trained horses in a miniature rodeo production.

By special arrangement there will be daily stunt flying over the grounds. L. E. Maynard, pilot instructor of the Ottawa Flying Club, will put his Moth plane through everything that the machine can stand. For six years he was in the London Air Pageant and he has a wide repertoire of hair raising thrills. The vaudeville offerings will also include sensational features so that both afternoon and night the grandstand program, concluding with a dazzling fireworks display, will be one of the strongest ever assembled for an annual exhibition.

With the exception of the grandstand program and the dog show there will be no charge other than the gate admission to the grounds. No extra charge is made for the Victor band concerts, the automobile, airplane and radio shows or for the horse show events in the Coliseum. The admission to the grounds is 35 cents but by securing the coupon tickets which are now on sale at the exhibtion or from various merchants, five admissions for one dollar are secured, a direct saving of seventy-five cents. These coupon tickets are transferable and are also good for the grandstand in the afternoons or for the dog show. Already a large number of these tickets have been sold. In addition to city merchants, a number of leading merchants in surrounding towns have secured a supply and many mail orders have been received. These are given prompt attention.

The air transport company operating between Chicago and San Francisco has become the largest commercial flying system in the world with its acquisition of the controlling interest in the line operating between Seattle and Los Angeles. 18,000 feet last July.

DOLORES COSTELLO IN SUPERB DRAMA AT "THE REGENT"

"A Million Bid" is melodrama with an O. Henry surprise at the end. So good a surprise that the present reviewer will not spoil your pleasure by revealing it. It is enough to say that Dolores Costello outdoes all former performances and that is saying a great deal.

She is cast as a girl who is the victim of her mother's selfishness. Married to a man she loathes and separated from the young doctor to whom she had been enraged, she finds release by means of a sea-storm in which both her mother and her middle-aged husband disappear.

It is after years of happy wifehood and motherhood that the former husband wanders back. It is here that the strange unraveling of the tragic tangle takes the breathless turn and the unforeseen happens.

In support of Miss Costello is that great character actor, Warner Oland as the old husband. Malcolm McGregor is well-cast as the young husband. Betty Blythe gives an ably effective portrayal of the outrageous mother. The direction is masterly and the photography worthy of especial mention. The most beautiful star of the screen with a fine cast in a superb production. That is that about "A Million Bid."

Chemong Service

Rev. J. D. Paterson of all Saints' Church was the speaker at the open air meeting at Chemong Park on Sunday evening.

He gave a very impressive address taking as the basis of his address a question asked by one of our poets, "Is a man better than a sheep." He referred to his having seen thousands of sheep on the hills of Scotland. Seemingly they were very contented and happy, they had a good wooly coat on their backs and plenty to eat and drink, as contrasted with them, man is full of worry and has to struggle and strive for a livelihood. As Job says "Man that is born of woman is born to trouble as the sparks fly upward..' Yet man is of more value the 12th of Matt., "How much then is a man in the image of God and through Jesus Christ can enjoy fellowship with God, and is destined for the eternal companionship of God."

He closed by urging those present to live up to their privileges as sons of God, so that they might fit themselves for their heavenly inheritance and their eternal destiny.

Rev. W. S. Ecker of Gilmour Memorial church was in the chair and read the scripture from Matt. 12.

Rev. J. O. Totten of Bridgenorth United Church, lead in prayer.

A male quartette from St. James United Church composed of Messrs. Turner, Baldry, Worrell and Lee sang three numbers in their usual fine style.

Dr. Blagrave of St. John Church will be the speaker next Sunday evening. The Salvation Army Band will also be in attendance.

ST. PAUL'S, MARMORA.

A hearty service entered, into by a large congregation, led by an augmented choir, marked the visit of Right Rev. C. A. Seager, D.D., Lord Bishop of Ontario to St. Paul's church on Sunday morning. The sacred edifice was tastefully adorned with a variety of summer blooms which, with the temperature at the degree most favored, helped greatly the atmosphere of worship. The service was taken by the rector, Rev. A. B Caldwell, the Bishop reading both lessons. After the second hymn had been sung Bishop Seager ascended the pulpit and announced as his text Philippians, 2, 4 and 5, 'Look not every man on his own things, but every man also on the things of others. Let this mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus." The sermon was prefaced with the words of commendation and encouragement to rector and congregation, the former being referred to as a faithful, devout priest, capable and energetic. "How shall I present unto you something of the manifold significance of the text?" asked the Bishop in commencing a powerful discourse. Having shown that 'mind' thus used in the text mean 'spirit,' he announced that he would emphasize the intellectual and reasoning side of the subject. "There is no use of our talking or our qualifying ourselves as Christions," he continued, "unless having the mind of Christ Jesus. What is our Christianity? What does it mean to me? The only kind of Christianity worth while is not the kind which fills the newspapers with controversy. True Christianity is the reproduction of His siprit among men. We waste a lot of time over forms and so forth and neglect the essence itself. Let us concentrate on my main thought—sharing in His mind. His siprit, His purposes and plans, with intelligence and interest. Using illustrations in turn of a farmer, a manager of an industrial concern and a bishop, he bespoke the need each has of intelligent and interested co-operation. "Men don't enjoy work because they don't throw themselves into the work," he declared in giving the second illustration. "The problem of Christ is in broad lines identical with that of the three types of men I have mentioned. Bishop Seager further remarked. As He stands, as pictured to us in the Book of Revelation, in the midst of the churches, a living presence, what is His problem? It is to secure men and women, clergy and city alike, who really know what His purpose is and who are willing to throw themselves into that purpose. Test our Christianity by that. It isn't respect for a form of doctrine. It isn't the respectability of the Scribes and Pharisees. What He is trying to do is to spread what He calls the kingdom of heaven. What expression or thought comes to our mind as we think of that phrase in the Lord's prayer, "Thy kingdom come?" Do we convert it with the coming of the archangel at the last day? Such a thought exhausts our Lord's expression of the kingdom of heaven. "The kingdom of heaven is within you," He said. There is a call in the diocese to every Anglican to look not only on our own things, but also on the things of others. The Bishop then brought to light interesting details of churches in the diocese being re-opened this year after being closed for a number of years, showing his own unmistakable concern for a more adequate administration of the Church of England in the remote and sparsely populated districts in his diocese. Speaking with emphasis, he declared, "The church is no end in itself and like the Sabbath was made for man, and not man for the church. The business of the church is to be made the bondslave of all. The business of the church is to spread the leaven." His Lordship then told of missionary work being done in the diocese of Q'Appelle and in the diocese of Honen, the daughter church of the Church of England in Canada established in far-off China. Addressing the various church workers in conclusion, he gave this advice, "Crowd aside the Christian principle and you crowd aside civilization."

While the offertory was being taken, J. F. Baker, of Bonarlaw sang as a solo, "I Heard the Voice of Jesus Say."

Bishop Seager spoke for five minutes to teachers and scholars at the morning Sunday school, stressing the importance of the parts teachers, older scholars and the juveniles have in that work. In the afternoon Bishop Seager visited Holy Trinity church and gave another practical address on "I am the vine, ye are the branches."

Wheat Up At Liverpool; Rise Follows At Chicago

CHICAGO, Aug. 14.— (Canadian Press.—With Liverpool wheat quotations higher than looked for wheat values here scored fresh upturns early to-day. Liverpool reported less bearish Canadian crop advices and better inquiry abroad both for wheat from Canada and from the United States. Opening unchanged to one cent higher, Chicago wheat soon showed a decided general advance. Corn also developed firmness, starting unchanged to one cent up and subsequently holding within the initial limits. Oats were easy.

Opening prices were: — Wheat, September, 111⅜; December, 116⅜. Corn, September, 88⅛; December, 73⅜. Oats, September, 37; December 40.

Slight Gains Shown On Standard Exchange

TORONTO, Aug. 14 (Canadian Press)—A slight general improvement was manifested at the morning session of the Standard Mining Exchange to-day, prices registering slight gains with fairly heavy turnovers. Losses were also evident in a few of the issues. Noranda, after opening at 49.50, gradually slid down to 48.80, at which figure it closed with a net loss of 70. Castle Trethewey was down five at 40, Towagmac down 10 at 3.60, and McIntyre, with very light trading, lost 35 to sell at 21.00. Hollinger Consolidated advanced five to 10.00, Lake Shore showed an increase of 65 at 21.05, and Sylvanite crawled to 2.41 with a gain of four. Sudbury Basin, occupying a position of prominence, opened at 6.60, closing at 6.75, unchanged from yesterday's close. The Western issues were rather active although few changes were shown in prices.

Morning Session Dull On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO, Aug. 14 (Canadian Press).—The morning session of the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day was very dull, with little interest shown in any of the leaders. Prices were mostly steady with the exception of a few issues which suffered a slight decline. International Nickel with very little trading closed at noon at 95⅝, with a loss of ¼. Brazilian Traction was off 1½ at 51¼, Brompton off one at 35, Gypsum and Alabastine off one at 62, Page-Hersey off one at 92½, and Maple Leaf Preferred off one at 11½. Consolidated Smelters advanced 1½ to 241½, and Alberta Pacific Grain Preferred ½ to 90½. The issues on the curb section remained mostly firm with few fractional gains and losses being registered.

Chrysler Is Again Leader On Market

NEW YORK, Aug. 14 (Canadian Press).—The stock market displayed another complete reversal of form today, selling off sharply during the morning and then rallying briskly in the afternoon. The recovery was stimulated by the lowering of call money rate from 7½ to 7 per cent. The early losses of one to four points in the active issues were largely recovered, and replaced in many instances, by gains of one to three points. Trading which had been dull on the decline, picked up on the rally.

Time money continued firm with 6½ per cent bid for all dates. Some New York dealers also advanced the bid rate ¼ of one per cent on 120-day bills.

Chrysler was again the leader of the market ,moving up to another new high record at 97, on big turnover. Brockway Motor crossed 61 to a new peak and Electric Auto-Lite and Motor Wheel also moved into new high ground. General Motors, which broke four points in the morning, reacted, recovering a substantial part of its losses.

Amusement shares also attracted a large following. Warner Bros. Pictures A, which broke 4¼ points in the early trading, recovered all its losses and moved to a new peak price at 85½.

Dry Dock Co. Bonds Are Offered.

Public offering is being made by Drury & Co., of an issue of $675,000 of 1st mortgage guaranteed 6 per cent. 20-year sinking fund gold bonds of the Montreal Dry Docks, Limited. These bonds are offered at a price of 99 and accrued interest, to yield 6.09 per cent. The issue is guaranteed as to its principal and interest by Canadian Vickers, Ltd., ranking against the assets and earnings of the guarantor subsequent to the outstanding 1st mortgage bonds of that company.

Montreal Dry Docks, Ltd., recently incorporated, has acquired as a going concern a predecessor company of the same name, which has been in successful operation in the dry dock and ship-repair business for over 15 years.

Fixed assets of the company, on a basis of cost less deductions for depreciation, are shown by the balance-sheet as at February 17, 1928, are valued at $798,369, equivalent to approximately $1,200 for each $1,000 bonds presently outstanding.

Earnings of the company for the three-year period ended December 31, 1927, available for bond interest, depreciation and federal taxes, after deducting all operating charges, maintenance and repairs, were $391,439, an average of $130,479 a year, or 3.22 times the annual bond interest requirements of this issue. For the year ended December 31, 1927, on the same basis, earnings were $139,619, equivalent to over 3.44 times the interest requirements.

The volume of investment buying, it may be assumed, will continue large, as profits throughout the country are at a high level, and, from the investment standpoint, the security market offers many attractions. Except in rare instances of companies affected by unusually favorable influences stocks are not at the present time a purchase for speculative purposes.—The House Organ.

MINING BRIEFS

A Special Service to The Examiner

TORONTO, Aug. 14.—If it may be taken for granted that the first shipment of Waite-Akerman-Montgomery, which ran 13% copper, not to mention other metals, is representative, the copper values alone will be $36.40 per ton. If the company ships 200 tons daily when the new Noranda smelter unit is in operation, this would mean $218,000 per month and $2,500,000 per annum. If operating costs were, say, $6.00 per ton, a total of 72,000 tons annually (200 tons daily) would cost $450,000. The operating profit looks almost too big, but Waite is a low cost mine, because of its domelike massive high ore body.

Teck-Hughes has its new shaft under way. Sinking has reached a depth of close to 40 feet. The headframe will go up immediately, when it is expected a minimum of 120 feet per day will be gained in sinking. The staff is going to try to beat that average by a wide margin.

The diabase dyke that meant so much to Teck-Hughes Mines cuts through Kirkland Lake Gold Mines near the 2,725 foot level, or at a shallower horizon than was anticipated. Kirkland Lake Gold Management expect as great things in relation to their property as were found on Teck-Hughes, where 70 feet width of ore was obtained.

Kirkland Lake Gold's winze is down 3,000 feet, but the station has to be built at 2,975 feet. This will be a big one, for it is planned to work into the Chaput-Hughes from that level, as well as on other levels.

It is regarded as significant that Teck-Hughes has located its new shaft, which will go to 3,600 feet, and more, right next to Chaput-Hughes property, Chaput-Hughes shareholders view this with interest.

Kirkland Lake Gold Mines hold 700,000 shares of Chaput-Hughes stock in its treasury at a total valuation of $1.00 whereas the market valuation of these shares is $84,000. When Kirkland Lake Gold gets through with development of Chaput-Hughes, if it turns out well, it will hold nearly all the Chaput-Hughes stock in its treasury.

According to advice just received from Rouyn, Newbee have cut three feet of massive chalcopyrite in their last drill hole at a vertical depth of 150 feet. The drill is being moved 200 feet east where another hole will be started immediately.

McIntyre's decline of 30% this year to $22.00 presents an anomaly. The company has completed its spade work in connection with the development of the central and eastern sections of the property and while broad lines of development now continues at great depth, it is directly for ore development now instead of mine development formerly, and results to date have been fully up to expectations of the management. Meanwhile, mill capacity is being stepped up to 1,700 tons daily, which should serve to bring annual production to close to $4,500,000 per annum, from which profits, befored epreciation, should approximate 50% on the stock. In view of its scope, McIntyre's capitalization is conservative, being $3,900,000 par value $5.00.

THE CITY'S BUSINESS.

Things are pretty quiet on the top floor of the city buildings these days, the Peterborough Branch Provincial Laboratory having been closed recently for the summer holidays, lasting until August 20. During that time, all specimens for examination and all requisitions for biological products are being sent to the Laboratories, Ontario Department of Health, East Block, Parliament Buildings, Toronto.

In the absence of A. G. Metherall, Plumbing Inspector and City Relief Officer, who is spending his vacation at his summer home, Burleigh Falls, A. W. Archibald has taken over the duties of the Inspector, while Charles S. Stapleton, Sanitary Officer for the city, is attending to the relief work.

Around the City

Frank G. Stinson, Secretary of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce and of the Trent Waterway Association, left to-day for Midland, Ontario, where he will spend two days in conference with the President of the Trent Waterway Association and with the Directors of that Association in the Georgian Bay district. In addition, a brief inspection trip of the Thirty Thousand Islands has been planned for Mr. Stinson by the Georgian Bay municipalities with a view to further improvements in Georgian Bay publicity in the Trent Waterway publications and linking up more closely if possible, two great tourist attractions in Central Ontario: viz. the Trent Waterway-Kawartha Lakes area and the Georgian Bay-Thirty Thousand Islands district, strategically located at the northern inlet of the Trent System.

Rum-Runners Fool Uncle Sam's Guards

PORT COLBORNE, Ont. Aug. 14.—(Canadian Press).—Concentration of 75 foot United States Coast Guard vessels in the Upper Niagara River off Bridgeburg is said to have left an opening for rum runners from this port to the coast of Ohio and Pennsylvania and business has been very brisk from this port for the last week. Close observers here venture the opinion that there has been collusion between the Port Colborne and Bridgeburg craft and that the gesture that caused the cutters to concentrate on the Niagara River was merely a blind to open the way to the Lake Erie coast on the American side.

No. 3 shaft situated 2 miles east of No. 2, has been equipped for deep work, and sinking is progressing rapidly. No set depth has been made for this, but it is understood it will be continued indefinitely accordingly as ore at each horizon may be opened. Tests from the concentrator have been satisfactory, the plant now running at a rate of 250 tons of ore daily. No effort is being made to regulate average grade of ore. However, it is taking care of all ore coming from development, thereby eliminating the necessity for handling this material again at some later date. Due to the flutuation in values, it is impossible to estimate what the production from this may amount to in the course of a month. However, the net results will pay for a very large part of current development and construction.

Notre Dame Mines

Advices from Rouyn state that the recent discovery on this property, situated east of Noranda on Rouyn Lake, is very important. Diamond drill results to date on the No. 1 hole are said to be decidedly encouraging and work is going ahead rapidly.

Cork Province

This property has not very much ore above the tunnel level, so that this mine must be considered as a shaft operation, and that hoisting ore and pumping of surplus water will add materially to mining costs.

A winze has been sunk some 260 feet from the tunnel level and several hundred ft. of drifting done on each of the two levels opened up, and in the former working a good deal of ore was taken from the first level below the tunnel. New ore of fair grade and width has been opened up on both these levels, and on the bottom level an entirely new vein has been encountered, which appears quite promising, but has not yet been opened up sufficiently to enable one to judge of its importance.

Portland Canal District

Our field man in the Portland Canal district reports as follows:—

"Big Missouri.—Consolidated are carrying out their heavy drilling program on this property an definite results should be obtained at an early date.

"Premier Border.—Work on this property is being carried on actively and favorable results have been obtained.

"United Empire Gold and Silver.—Heavy mineralized rock has been exposed on this property and while it is somewhat low grade, the volume is said to be very large. Possibilities for this property are good. It is of interest to know that the lead they are developing extends into the Bayview property.

"Georgia River.—Good progress is being made with the trail, and it is hoped that it will be possible to take pack-horses to the upper camp by the 20th of this month.

Wright-Hargreaves

A report just received from our field man in Kirkland Lake states that exceptionally rich ore has been struck on the 1,950 foot level of this property. It has already been drifted on for 9 feet, and is said to assay $128 to the ton.

CHEMONG PAVING

been paved, despite the fact that the work started several weeks ago, and the slowness of the progress is causing Chemong residents to fear that another summer may see the road again tied up.

The opinion has been expressed to The Examiner that those responsible should put extramen to work, or take other sufficient measures to speed up the work, in order that this stretch should be paved before this summer's end. It would, these informants of The Examiner think, be a big hardship on hundreds of people if they were compelled again next year to make the big detour, which, even now, is not in any too good condition.

Then, too, Chemong Park cottagers and residents of Bridgenorth are complaining about the dust, and suggesting that the road at present in use should be oiled without delay. A trip over the stretch from the end of the paving to Chemong indicates that oiling would be a safety measure of first importance, since the heavy dust raised by even one car hangs in the low land and obscures the drivers view at even a short distance.

SOMERVILLE UP IN FIRST ROUND

FAVORITE FOR TITLE.

SUMMERLEA, Que., Aug. 14 (Canadian Press).—C. McLuckie played his customary steady game, but the veteran was no match for Somerville, the medallist yesterday, who clicked off pars and birdies to add steadily to his margin.

EXPLOSION SCATTERS CLAY ABOUT STREET

Yesterday in the central part of the city the sound of an explosion disturbed the quietness of the afternoon. People were seen to rush out of the stores and those in the upper floors came to the windows. The noise was heard for several blocks and sounded much like the bursting of a steam boiler. On investigation it was found that a large truck had back-fired and the explosion was so great that it blew part of a load of clay to the street.

SEVERE STORM STILL LASHING TROPICAL SEAS

Florida Experiences High Winds and Heavy Snowfall.

WARNINGS DISPLAYED.

Residents Along Coast Taking Precautions Against Winds.

TAMPA, Fla., Aug. 15 (United Press).—Tropical disturbances continued to threaten disaster to part of Florida yesterday, after almost a week of high winds in which upwards of $1,000,000 in damage was done.

The worst threat was to the west coast, where, according to reports, a heavy north-east storm is approaching. The storm should strike sometime this morning in the district of Tampa, Cedar Keys and as far as Mobile, Ala.

Will Be a Gale.

The new storm will reach gale proportions, the weather bureau advices said.

The east coast apparently has escaped new damage. Rain and high winds, which drove the people from Miami streets last Monday, subsided during the early evening and there was no new threat. However, a terrific storm struck Havana during the early evening, but it is not believed it will whip across to strike Florida.

Little Damage.

Already some effect of the west coast storm—reportedly moving up out of the Gulf of Mexico—were reported along the west coast. Storm warnings have been posted for the entire territory north of Tampa and residents have taken precautions against high winds.

At St. Petersburg the wind reached a velocity of 30 miles an hour, but reports said the wind would reach greater power. Coast guardsmen were held in readiness to give aid.

Captain William White, of the peninsular and occidental steamer Cuba, arrived at Key West from Tampa and reported his craft had been struck by a 45 miles an hour wind. The vessel was just off Sanibal Island when the winds struck, but the little vessel pulled through without damage.

Passengers Rescued.

Meanwhile, 75 passengers of the Munson liner Munamar, who were stranded when the vessel went aground near Abaco Island, while the high tropical winds were blowing were safe aboard the liner Lady Cordeaux and en route to Nassau, Bahamas Islands, yesterday. They were removed by the Lady Cordeaux, and, according to reports to the Tropical Radio Corporation, all were in good condition.

The Munamar still is stranded on the shoals, but an effort will be made to remove her.

RAIL AUTOMOBILE PAYS VISIT TO CITY

C.N.R. Officials Travel in Car Fitted Up For Railway Use.

Designed with a view to bringing into closer relationship two main factors of transportation—the motor car and the railroad train:

It has forsaken the highways and the byways;

It has discarded the conventional pneumatic tires;

It no longer requires the guidance of a steering wheel;

It boasts a complete set of railroad signal lamps and flags;

It enjoys all the privileges and rights-of-way that the railroad engine does;

It has a one-man operating staff, rather than two . . . .

Fish, general superintendent, Chief Engineer T. T. Irving, both of Toronto, and Superintendent George Stokes, of Belleville, left Toronto this morning in their unusual vehicle, and after making Peterborough in good time, drove to Lakefield. Later, during the afternoon, they departed for Campbellford and thence to Belleville.

Boy Flags Train From Rushing Toward Broken Rail, Given a Purse of $125

CAPE MAY COURT HOUSE, N.J., August 15. — A twelve-year-old boy waving a pocket handkerchief, stopped a Wildwood-to-Philadelphia train of the Atlantic City Railroad to-day, just before it reached a 14-inch break in the track. There were 300 passengers on the train, which, after the warning, stalled again and very slowly passed over the break.

The boy's father, John Anhalt, a farmer and hunter living at Swain, five miles north of here, heard a train go by toward Atlantic City, and also heard a ripping round. He went out to investigate, and found a piece of one track ripped away. Apparently the track had been undermined by recent rains, and the passing train had torn out the section.

Coming along the same track, w hile Anhalt was examining the broken place, was another train bound for Philadelphia—a commuters' train. Anhalt sent his son, John, Jr., running down the track, waving a handkerchief, while he himself frantically waved a large piece of red white and blue bunting.

So pleased were the passengers that on the way to Philadelphia they collected $125, and on the trip back to Wildwood this evening the train made a special stop in front of Anhalt's home and the purse was presented to him. He gave it to his son.

SCHOOL TEACHER SLAYS WIFE WITH HAMMER BLOWS ON HEAD

SEEMED ECCENTRIC.

KINGSTON, Aug. 15 (Canadian Press).—Rushing to the home of Wilbert Richard Williams, aged 46, retired school teacher, in answer to a telephone call from Williams in which he said he thought he had killed his wife, police this morning found the body of the woman. Williams was placed under arrest on a charge of murder. Police found Mrs. Williams' body in bed. Apparently she had been killed with a hammer. Gashes on the side of her head bore mute testimony to the manner in which she came to her death.

Williams showed little emotion as police were conducting their investigation. He rolled a couple of cigarettes and seemed to enjoy the smoke as the police were making their gruesome discovery.

The retired school teacher played tennis with his wife yesterday and neighbors stated this morning that there had never been any indications or trouble between the couple. They moved to Kingston about a year ago from Picton, where Williams had been a school teacher. They had been married not much more than a year.

Those who were acquainted with Williams state that he had a most peculiar disposition, generally keeping to himself. When he did enter into conversation Williams invariably kept asking the same questions over and over. Apart from this, there was little about the man which would indicate eccentricity.

Mrs. Williams formely was Maud Runnings of Owen Sound. She was a graduate of Queen's University and taught school in Picton for two or three years.

After telling the police his wife had been nagging him and this morning had told him he should not go to the bathroom without his slippers, Williams showed more interest in the time he would get his dinner than in his wife's slaying. Superficial examinations made by physicians indicate that Williams is mentally deranged. It is understood that only a short time ago relatives considered placing him in an institution.

An inquest into the woman's death will be opened to-night. Police found everything in William's home in perfect order, leading them to believe the woman was slain in her sleep.

Native of Owen Sound

OWEN SOUND, Aug. 15 (Canadian Press).—Mrs. Wilbert Williams, who was the victim of a shocking tragedy in Kingston to-day, was a native of Owen Sound and attended Public School and Collegiate Institute here. Her father, John Runnings, is now a resident of Kingston, it is believed. She is survived by her father, a sister and a brother, J. B. C. Runnings, Science Master at Owen Sound Collegiate Vocational School, at present out of the city on vacation.

Miss Runnings taught in the Peterborough schools for a number of years, leaving to take a course in Queen's University, where she met her husband.

Water Used Heavily On Columbia Co-ed

NEW YORK CITY, Aug. 15.—A young Columbia student on her way to morning class from Brooklyn was overcome in a street car by the heat and lack of fresh air during the rush hour. She made a desperate effort to keep from fainting, but suddenly the people seemed to melt away and she remembered nothing until she gurgled to consciousness on the Times Square platform, dripping wet from head to foot. With murder in her eye she looked around to find the kindly soul whose drenching revived her, but no one paid any attention Apparently her benefactor had carried her to the platform, found water to dash on her and satisfied with his good deed, rushed off to his office.

TWO SAILORS DIE FROM HEAT

One Takes Cramps While Bathing and Other Has Sunstroke.

AT IROQUOIS LOCK.

In company with other members of the crew of the s.s Terminald, of the McNaughton Line, which was tied up at the foot of the locks waiting for clearance, Charland went in swimming. A moment later he went down and failed to reappear. Companions dived for the body, and could not locate it, and finally a diver was summoned from Morrisburg, and the body found. It is believed that Charland was stricken with cramps.

DIES OF SUNSTROKE.

Alphonse Deschamps, aged 22, a sailor aboard the steamer Brulin, of the Crawford Line, dropped dead yesterday when the boat was entering the locks at Iroquois. His death was attributed to a sunstroke. The body is being held at Iroquois pending the receipt of instructions from Montreal concerning disposal.

THE WEATHER

To-day at noon the temperature officially was up to 88 degrees in the shade. Yesterday's highest point was 83 degrees. There was considerably more humidity yesterday, and the heat was probably more oppressive than to-day. This summer's highest point locally was 92 on July 8th. Some exceedingly high figures have been registered at some points in British Columbia this summer, and at some places over 100 degrees has been recorded on from 4 to 8 days. One small town has the unenviable record of 106 degrees.—W.P.

FAVORITE HORSE THREW HIM; FOUND TO HAVE BEEN DOPED

Sensational Rumors Continue To Surround Financier's Death.

POISONS IN BODY.

Toxic Matter There May Have Come From Laxatives or Decomposition.

(Special Cable to The Examiner. Copyright)

LONDON, Eng., Aug. 15.—The postmortem examiner of Captain Alfred Loewenstein's body finds "marked traces of toxic matter." This statement is capable of the harmless interpretation that ptomaines were found. There are alkaloids naturally produced by decomposition. Toxic matter might also come from laxative pills which many people are in the habit of taking.

These innocent theories, however, are over-looked in the crowd of more sensational rumours that have followed Loewenstein's death. The suggestion that he was poisoned before leaving England is supported by the strange tale that a few days before his death the horse which he rode at Melton Mowbray got out of control. It threw Loewenstein and then bolted. It was normally a well behaved animal and, on investigation, it was found to have been doped.

DOURO FARMER BADLY GASHED

Horses Bolt While Michael Leahy Makes Repairs To Binder.

LOSES MUCH BLOOD.

While repairing his binder at his farm in Douro on Monday morning, Michael Leahy sustained a very serious injury, having both legs cut to the bone and suffering greatly from loss of blood and shock.

Mr. Leahy was making a special effort to get his binding finished, after delays caused by inclement weather, and when the machine broke down was hastily trying to repair the damage. His horses became startled and bolted, causing him to fall forward on the binder knives. He was removed to St. Joseph's Hospital, and attended by Dr. F. P. McNulty and Dr. J. M. O'Brien, who performed an operation and also contemplated for a time a blood transfusion, after the extreme loss of blood suffered by the injured man.

In addition, the members of the group will be guests at the Directors' luncheon and will give several musical numbers.

Roadster Rolls Over Twice At Curve; Two Young Men Climb Out Uninjured

After their roadster had turned over twice on the Jackson Park road at about seven o'clock this morning, two young men climbed from the wreckage practically unhurt to the relief and astonishment of other motorists who, near the scene of the accident, had watched their car round the outside of a turn on which it had met a slowly moving truck, take a long skid and, tipping over the shoulder of the road, come to a rest, on its side against the fence which had stopped it on the second turn over. To a windshield which cracked but did not splinter, and to the fact that the top was up, driver and passenger attribute their escape without injury, while three dented fenders and a headlight pointing skyward comprised damages to the car. After accepting a lift to the city, they returned to the scene and drove their damaged car in on its own power.

Contrary to the somewhat ridiculous estimate of one would-be authority, the car was proceeding at about thirty miles an hour rather than at the speed he suggested—"sixty miles an hour, so help me"—the fact that the road on their side sloped outward, and downward being responsible rather than excessive speed.

SIAMESE TWINS LIKELY TO REMAIN JOINED TOGETHER

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Dr. Harold M. Hays, director of the Park West Hospital, announced that the hospital had no intention of permitting an attempt to separate the "Siamese twins" Mary and Margaret Gibbs, now at the institution, unless such procedure received "the endorsement of prominent men in the profession."

Dr. Hays said that certain confidential medical reports on the 18-year-old girls had been "surreptitiously removed from the hospital." He did not indicate whom he suspected.

FIRE DESTROYS STORAGE TANKS

TOTAL LOSS $50,000.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 15.—(Canadian Press.)— Roaring thunderously and shooting dense black clouds of smoke and a solid sheet of flame that could be seen miles away, fire last night partly destroyed the refining plant of the North Star Oil Company, in St. Boniface, Manitoba. Nine storage tanks containing crude oil and gasoline exploded, adding to the difficulties of the fire fighters to subdue the blaze. The damage is estimated at $50,000.

GUARDS STOP RUM RUNNERS

Sink One and Capture Another Trying To Cross From Bridgeburg.

CREWS ARRESTED.

DUNKIRK, N.Y., Aug. 15.—(Canadian Press.)—Attempting to evade the coast guard blockade along the Niagara river, two rum running boats last night took to the open water of Lake Erie only to be run down before they reached the United States shore. One of the boats was sunk by coast guard fire when it failed to stop as ordered near Greenhurst, five miles west of here. The second boat surrendered. The crew of the sunken craft, who described themselves as Clifford Davies and Frank Miller, of Buffalo, were held in Dunkirk to-day awaiting the action of the Federal authorities. Their cargo of Canadian ale went down with their boat, which took fire before it sank. Davis said the coast guards shot landed "in his lap" but he was uninjured.

The crew of the captured boat, who said they were Edward and William Mack, of Niagara Falls, were taken to Buffalo. Whether the boat cargo of liquor was seized was not learned here.

Egyptian King's Yacht For Princes, Royal Brothers Will Live Aboard At Cairo

CAIRO, August 15. — Public interest in Egypt is veering from politics to the visit of the Prince of Wales and the Duke of Gloucester, although it is to be of an unofficial character.

The royal brothers are expected to arrive on September 13 at Alexandria and sleep one night at the Residency, where preparations already are being made. There will be no official ceremonies, but it is expected that King Faud will entertain the royal visitors at a banquet at the famous Montaza Palace before their departure for Cairo by a special train reserved for the special use of distinguished guests.

King Faud's superb Nile steamer, the Kasid Kheir, will be placed at the disposal of the royal guests, who probably will reside aboard of it while in Cairo, and perhaps proceed subsequently in the vessel to the Sudan by the Nile route instead of the Red Sea, if weather conditions are favorable.

The steamer was built in England for King Faud and was delivered in the past year. It is fitted with every possible luxury in a manner worthy of Eastern traditions of splendor. It has only been used once by the King, the occasion being the inauguration of the new barrage at Naghamadi last summer, when he also made an extensive tour of Upper Egypt.

TAYLOR AT END OF RESOURCES WHEN FOUND IN NORTH WOODS

Had Eaten Flowers, Fish, Frogs and Grubs—Lost Axe First Day Out.

SWAM MANY RIVERS.

THE PAS, Man., Aug. 15 (Special to The Examiner).—Forty-eight days' wandering in the back woods of Northern Manitoba, 300 miles through country where the white man is still a "pale face," just a jump ahead of death, and living only by a courage few know and on fare that included almost everything the wilds offer from rose blossoms to dead fish, and from frogs to white grubs that live under rocks.

That was the story Andy Taylor told when the prospector had been found after a search of nearly two months in which all the resources of the northland, from the Indian trailer to the airplane, had been thrown into the hunt.

Taylor gave the first story of his adventure from his bed in The Pas Hospital. "They came just in time," he said, with a weak smile. "I couldn't have stuck it much longer. Food was running low. I think I found all the dead fish floating in the lake and frogs were hard to catch.

"After I discovered I was lost I sat down and tried to figure out distances and direction. I thought I was south of Cold Lake, so started north. That's where the trouble started.

"I had three matches, a pail, a penknife, and an axe. The last match failed when I tried to light a beacon fire. Then I started to get hungry and saw a partridge. That's when I lost the axe. I heaved it at the bird and the handle broke off short."

He gave what was meant for a chuckle. It barely passed as one but the spirit was still there.

"It seemed I wandered hundreds of miles those first few days. I crossed rivers and lakes by the score, it seemed. I'd take off my clothes, tie them to a pole and push them before me. I kept cool anyway. I swam a lot. It was less tiring than trying to plough through the bush.

"I had knee boots on when I started. They didn't last long. Soon the sole went and I cut up the uppers and made moccassins out of them. I made a strike at the old abandoned camp when I found a piece of oil-cloth about two feet square. I didn't know what I could do with it, but it looked like a bonanza to me then.

"Maybe you think you wouldn't eat fish or bugs. If you felt that your stomach was hanging limp to your backbone, believe me you would. Once I thought I'd start chewing my moccassins, but I found some of those white grubs under a rock I turned over. They were a bit salty but they helped some. Frogs were better but were slippery devils and hard to catch.

"I didn't find many berries, but what I did find tasted like strawberries and cream. I had a few feeds of wild rose blossoms but they didn't fill much of a hole.

"I robbed a nest of a couple of young birds, but they were mostly bone and feathers. I tried the bark pulp of birch and poplar too, but the strike of the month was a patch of potatoes planted by Indians on an old Hudson's Bay Company post."

It was while trying to return to this potato patch that Taylor was found.

Taylor had to pause frequently during his narrative. He would lie back on his pillows thoughtfully, rub his ruddy beard, and gaze at the ceiling. Once or twice a slow smile would break over his face, as he thought of some incident that now held a degree of humor. At the time it probably looked like the shadow of death itself over his shoulder.

Fisherman Spins A Real Fish Yarn

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 15. — Emil Splittstoesser, Jr., and his brother Edgar were fishing in Waseca recently, and Emil hooked a big one, according to a report from that place. Emil played the fish for some time, but the line broke and the fish got away with a lure of which the angler was especially proud.

Sometime later he saw another fisherman come in with a big northern pike, and it developed it had been picked up near the spot where Emil's had broken away. The fisherman said he had hooked the big pike, but when he pulled up his anchor he found the fish entagled with the rope, and the lure which Emil had lost was in its mouth.

THREE MEN GET LIFE SENTENCE

Get Commutation Twelve Hours Before They Were To Hang.

FOR BRIGHTON MURDER.

LONDON, Aug. 15. — (Canadian Press Cable).—Three young men, condemned to be hanged this morning, received commutation of their sentences to life imprisonment from the Home Secretary twelve hours before the time set for their execution under circumstances as dramatic as ever were conjured up by novelist or playwright.

The trio, Percival Taylor, 24; James Weaver, 21; and George Donavan, 31, were convicted of murdering and robbing an elderly man near Brighton. Their appeals had been turned down and only on Monday the Home Secretary advised them he was unable to intervene.

He afterwards changed his opinion however, and as relatives gathered in their cells bidding them goodbye, the Governor of the prison walked in and gave them the joyful news. They shouted, hugged their mothers, and exclaimed that the commutation showed their innocence.

BOY'S BODY FOUND FLOATING IN CANAL

Eight Year Old Hamilton Lad Had Been Missing Since Monday.

HAMILTON, Aug. 15 (Canadian Press).—The body of an eight-year-old boy was found floating in the Desjardins Canal, near the high level bridge this morning. The remains were clad in a bathing suit. It is believed to be the body of Wallace Lindsay, who has been missing since Monday morning when he left home to go swimming.

The little dog which accompanied him was found by police yesterday on a bench in Harvey Park, awaiting the return of its master.

Will Use Deadly Gases

Sir James Irvine Declares That Deadliest Gases May Now Be in Preparation.

CONFLICTS OF SHORT LIFE.

Will Be in Favor of Country With An Advanced Chemical Industry.

CHICAGO, Aug. 15.—That chemical research may be secretly preparing new and deadlier poison gases for the next war, was a warning issued by Sir James C. Irvine of St. Andrew's University, Scotland, before the American Chemical Society at Northwestern University.

Asserting that the country possessing the most efficient chemical industry possesses also the most efficient instrument of war, Sir James declared that no peace treaty or visiting commissions can control or even detect research designed to furnish lethal agents for the future, and that this research may be going on anywhere in preparation for the next war.

"The whole machinery of war may be scrapped," he said. "Warships may be sunk, armies disbanded and fortresses demolished, but the chemical factory must remain, and, so long as it exists, it is a potential war factory.

"An organic works design for the large scale preparation of compounds such as dyestuffs requires very little alteration in plant or personnel to be converted in a few hours into a place from which will pour materials more deadly by far than those used in the late war.

"I do not speak in a panic created by the press as to the unimaginable potency of gas poisons, but I have a profound respect for the possibilities of chemistry and for the ability of chemists."

Will Be of Short Life

Sir James considered it quite possible that the war of the future may be declared, waged and won in a few days.

LINE CLEARED EARLY TO-DAY

Traffic Operating Normally Over C.N.R. Line Near Aultsville.

MOTORIST BLAMED.

BROCKVILLE, August 15 (Canadian Press). — Through traffic over the main line of the Canadian National Railways was resumed last night after wrecking crews had built a detour about the scene of the wreck at Aultsville at noon yesterday when the west-bound International Limited sideswiped an east bound fast freight train which was attempting to clear a cross-over switch. According to reports in railway circles here, the accident was due originally to the action of a motorist in driving across the path of the freight train, necessitating the application of the emergency brake by the engineer and thus stalling the freight train, with which the passenger train collided. Both tracks of the main line were cleared to-day by the wrecking crews belonging to Montreal and Belleville, and traffic is being operated normally.

Good Program of Events Has Been Arranged For To-morrow.

STONEY LAKE, Aug. 15.—The annual regatta at McCracken's Landing will be held on Thursday afternoon, August 16, and a particularly good program has been prepared for the occasion.

The following committee is in charge: H. E. Ringel, chairman; A. F. Choate, secretary; C. G. Porter, J. O. McCarthy, C. Strickland, W. F. Hall, D. M. Hall, J. M. R. Fairbairn, H. F. Choate.

A dance will be held in the evening at Wantasa Tea Room in connection with the regatta.

A Unique Record.

On Monday last, August 6, J. S. Knapman completed fifty years of sailing, which is a record to which few can aspire. Mr. Knapman has won scores of trophies, and for years his sailing dinghy Cygnet was a feature of the Stoney Lake regattas, to say nothing of other regattas on the Kawartha Lakes. His elder son, Harold, was a keen sailor also, and as a lad sailed with his father and later sailed the Cygnet to victory himself, and in 1915 when Harold was overseas dad once more took command and added another victory to the long list already scored.

SLACKBERRY PICKERS JAILED BY FRICK FARM OFFICIAL

WAYNESBURG Pa., Aug 15.—Four small children, one of them aged 2 years, went without a mother for a night while Mrs. Mary Lachinsky sat in a Greene County cell because she picked blackberries on Frick Coal Company property.

In cells adjoining that of Mrs. Lachinsky were eight boys, ranging in age from 10 to 16, held on the same charge. Mrs. Lachinsky and the eight lads were arrested on orders from J. L. Stucklader superintendent of Frick farms. They were released on bail provided by higher officials of the Frick organization.

Stucklader's explanation was that the prisoners had picked berries and sold some of them, instead of sharing them with him as he understood they would for permitting them to pick on the company's property.

FALL WHEAT ALL IN BARNS

Hay Also All Drawn In By Warsaw District Farmers.

SPRING WHEAT RIPE.

(Examiner Correspondence)

WARSAW, Aug. 15.—The hay and fall wheat is all in now. Some spring wheat is out, also some oats and barley. What is ripe now is of splendid quality. The few days of dry weather have been a boon to the farmers.

George Moore started threshing wheat on Thursday afternoon, and on Friday threshed alsike for Richard Tedford and was going into Douro to thresh alsike.

On Friday and Saturday evenings, what appeared to be a fire to the south, turned out to be Fred. Hamblin's alsike. It was so poor he decided the best thing to do was to burn it, and it had to be done after the dew fell.

Negro At Evanston Says He Slew Girl; Watch Torn From Victim Traps Prisoner

CHICAGO, Aug. 15—The murderer of Jennie Constance, whose brutal slaying shocked Northwestern University circles, was trapped through the watch he tore from the wrist of the Summer student when he beat her to death with a section of iron pipe at Evanston last Tuesday night. When captured he immediately confessed.

The confessed murderer is a negro who gave the name of Dave Shanks. He had worked around Evanston as a bootblack and at various other occupations. He sold the watch to a boy, the son of the owner of the shoe shining stand, for $1, and it was the boy who led the police to Shanks.

The confession cleared up a crime that has had Evanston, particularly its women, in a state of alarm for nearly a week. Immediately after the finding of the body of Miss Constance, President Walter Dill Stott of the university offered a reward of $1,000 for the capture of the murderer, who was adjudged to be either a maniac or a degenerate.

Many other helpful points were given. Rev. A. T. Weir benefited those present by a splendid talk. He impressed the need of good books in our library and homes.

MADOC, Aug. 15.—The re-opening services of Trinity United Church after it had been re-decorated were held on Sunday, August 12. The re-decorating was done by Walter Turner & Sons of Belleville.

The ceiling, which was of wood construction finished in natural finish and varnished, has been changed to a very light color, and the beams are of light buff. This reflects more light into the church. The walls back of the organ are blended from light ivory to light cream to light green and then to a medium buff, this being the wall color. The designs or ornaments are of an all-over pattern brought out in gold. The upper part of the walls in the auditorium is of a pleasing sunset effect, blended from an ivory to cream, pink to green and a light buff. The stile is of a soft brown color, separating the tin with a line of brown. The design is of a set pattern brought out in two tones of brown, taking a light effect.

PROFESSIONAL SWIMMING.

The action of the Ontario Government in placing professional swimming within the jurisdiction of the Ontario Athletic Commission and thus rendering it liable to a 2 per cent. tax on gates or prize money, will meet with approval.

Professional swimming does not differ from other forms of professional sport, and like those sports, should help to pay for the building up of amateur athletics from the ranks of which its exponents are recruited.

The principle by which professional boxing, wrestling, baseball and now swimming are taxed to help pay for athletic instruction for young Ontario is thoroughly sound.

Already the good results of this coaching have become evident; there is much greater interest in track and field events among the boys of the Province, and by the time the next Olympic contests arrive Ontario is likely to supply a formidable quota of athletes.

The small tax on professional sport enables the Province to supply the necessary instruction without the cost proving burdensome to the people of Ontario, and there is no reason why professional swimming should not pay its share along with the rest.

PROMPT ACTION.

Participation in a drunken carousal has cost four Toronto employees of the Ontario Liquor Control Board their positions.

The offenders could not surely expect any other result from their foolishness.

As Sir Henry Drayton expresses it, the public could not be expected to view the operations of the Liquor Control Board with respect unless the employees of the commission showed such respect by example.

Certainly there should be no place in the employ of a commission seeking to control the sale of liquor on reasonable lines for men who have shown by their conduct that they have not themselves learned the secret of control.

The board has acted wisely in promptly dismissing these men, and its quick action should serve as an emphatic warning to all employees of the commission that their conduct must be exemplary.

There have been very few complaints in this regard, it is true, and the fate of the Toronto employees will undoubtedly help to cut the number down to still smaller proportions.

WHERE CARE IS REQUIRED.

In Little Lake on Sunday a young girl was drowned because in shifting her position in a canoe the craft was overturned.

On the same day a Russian lost his life at Toronto because he tried to change places with his companion and in so doing upset the canoe.

These fatalities once again call attention to the fact that a canoe, while a safe and popular craft when handled properly, is dangerous to those who have not learned the few simple rules that make for safety.

The most important of these rules is that violated by Sunday's victims.

Those who use canoes must learn to sit still; such boats were never meant to be treated as if they were wide and flat-bottomed punts.

If a change of position is desired, paddle into shore to carry out the shift; it is a difficult and dangerous operation to attempt in mid-stream.

There is no finer boat for use on the waters of this district than a canoe, but it must be handled properly and given a chance.

That many people are not doing this is a matter of observation.

QUEBEC'S DRASTIC LAW.

While there are varying opinions as to the drastic step taken by the Quebec Minister of Highways to eliminate speeding, there is no disputing the fact that the policy now in force in Quebec should prove effective.

Whether it is just or not is another matter.

With the speed limit 35 miles an hour in Ontario and only 30 in Quebec, it seems unfair that an automobile owner should lose the use of his car for doing something that is quite legal in another Province.

Quebec has evidently come to the conclusion that there is no use in appealing to motorists to obey the law.

That policy has been tried out for some time, and has not given the desired results, and now the drastic step has been taken of deciding that the license of every driver who is convicted of exceeding the speed limit will be automatically cancelled.

And there will be no chance of appeal on the part of the driver.

As soon as he is found guilty of driving faster than 30 miles an hour his license is cancelled, and he loses his privilege of driving a car in Quebec.

The Quebec plan is too harsh, for after all the question of what constitutes safe speed for a car depends altogether on circumstances.

Ten miles an hour may be too fast under certain conditions, while 40 miles an hour on a good road is not a dangerous speed when there is no traffic congestion.

TO BLOSSOM AS THE ROSE.

In the Book of Isaiah there is a prophecy of a coming time when "the desert shall rejoice and blossom as the rose." Plans that have now been set on foot in Eastern countries seem to herald as not far distant the day when this prophetic utterance might find its literal fulfilment. The extensive scheme entrusted to the Imperial Chemical Industries, Limited, to tap the vast mineral resources of the Dead Sea and to use part of the potash and phosphates thus extracted for the fertilizing of the desert areas of Palestine, presages a day when the wilderness and the solitary place shall be glad and the waste places of the Holy Land shall burst forth into glorious fertility.

A despatch from London, published yesterday, tells of another ambitious scheme propounded by an American engineer to the French Government. It has for its object the creation of inland seas in the Sahara Desert, and the changing of the climate of Northern Africa by increasing the rainfall of the country. The proposal is to cut three ship canals from the Mediterranean Sea 40 feet deep and 200 feet wide, which would provide a water route for ships of 250 miles and would permanently flood some 10,000 square miles. The main purpose of the project, however, is to affect climatic conditions, so that the rainfall will be increased.

A few years ago the contemplation of a scheme of this nature would have been looked upon as madness, and utterly beyond the ingenuity of man. But engineering undertakings that looked at first as difficult as this one have been successfully carried through to completion by the genius and industry of men. Given the time and sufficient money such canals as have been proposed to carry commerce into the Sahara could, without doubt, be built in a few years. Once there is water in the desert vegetation will follow, and these waste places will then be robbed forever of their desolation.—The Globe.

A LABOR DISRUPTION.

The distinguished leader of the British Labor party, who is now enjoying a well-earned holiday in Canada, once pictured the path of Socialism as "the pilgrim road which, mounting up over the hills and beyond the horizon, winds towards the ideal." To judge from recent developments, not only in Britain, but in other parts of the Empire, the ascent is proving somewhat rocky, and the windings have become a maze, in which the organized army of marchers towards the ideal is in danger of being lost.

Whatever significance is to be attached to the rift between the main body and the Left wing of the British Labor party, it is not the only sign of discord within the ranks of those who are pursuing the "pilgrim road." In Australia, a stronghold of Labor with a Socialistic tinge for many years, there has been bitter dissension resulting in a cleavage that is said to portend political changes of importance in the Commonwealth. In our own Dominion, clashes between the Socialist factions and the trades and labor organization have been more frequent and virulent of late. And now in South Africa, where politics are somewhat hectic, there has arisen a situation which reveals the Labor party rent asunder, with each division proclaiming open war upon the other.

The strength of that party was such that, when General Hertzog formed his government, he found it expedient to enter into a pact with its representatives, three of whom were offered, and accepted, seats in the Cabinet. These included Colonel Cresswell, the Labor leader, an able and aggressive Englishman with a capacity for administration that made him an efficient Minister of Defence.

Whether Cresswell's acceptance of office, or his consistent support of Hertzog's policies, offended some of his friends and comrades, the despatches do not make clear. But not long after his political affiliation with the Nationalists, there began murmurings within the Labor camp, which eventually assumed the form of furtive criticism of the leader. About a year ago, matters had reached a stage that seemed to demand a "show-down." Realizing that there were elements working against him which could no longer be ignored, Cresswell opened an attack upon the National Council of the Labor party, accusing the members of that body of disloyalty to the Labor cause, of intrigue for selfish ends, and of secretive attempts to capture the machinery of the party for their own purposes.

As the result of this broadside, what had been an underground movement became an open rupture, one section supporting the leader, the other ranging itself behind the National Council. The next phase was the calling of a convention of Cresswell's supporters, the repudiation of the National Council as a controlling board, and the appointment of an emergency committee charged with the duty of carrying on the work of the body claiming to be the direct inheritor of the spirit and purposes of the original Labor party.

The National Council and its supporters were not slow to retaliate. Denouncing Cresswell as a discredited leader "in full revolt against the democratic control of the party," they passed a resolution, a few weeks ago, expelling him and others, including one of his two colleagues in the Government, from what is designated the official organization.

The result is a situation which is described as "without precedent in the democratic politics of the Empire." A party that was united and strong is now split into two factions, each claiming to be the true and official body representing Labor, and each waging bitter war upon the other. A coalition Government, dependent for its existence upon the support of Labor, finds itself with an ally weakened by division and torn by internal dissension within the Cabinet, as well as in Parliament. And, to make confusion worse confounded, Premier Hertzog dare not countenance one Labor legion without almost certainly antagonizing its rival.

What the effects of the disruption will be on the fortunes of the various political parties in South Africa, time will soon show. But from this distance it looks as if the next general election, which cannot be long delayed, will be even more bitterly fought than the last. —Ottawa Journal.

The Question Box

Student. Q.—Which city is the true capital of Holland, Amsterdam or The Hague?

A.—According to the best authorities, Amsterdam is the true capital of Holland, or the Netherlands, as the kingdom is officially styled, while The Hague is the Court capital. The sovereigns of Holland are crowned in Amsterdam. The Hague is the usual residence of the Court and the diplomatic bodies and the seat of the Government and the States-General of Parliament. The late Professor J. M. D. Meiklejohn, of the University of St. Andrews, Scotland, in "A New Geography," says: "Amsterdam is the true capital of Holland." Elisee Reclus, the great French geographer, in his "Geographie Universelle," calls Amsterdam "the capital of The Netherlands."

M.E.M. Q.—Kindly give me some information concerning the mining and manufacturing of asbestos.

A.—The Province of Quebec produces about 85 per cent of the asbestos output of the world. The great asbestos deposits of Quebec are found in the region called the Eastern Townships, situated about 65 miles south of the City of Quebec. The asbestos, of the chrysotile variety, is extracted from rock in the serpentine belt. The greater portion of the entire output of Canada is exported to the United States in its raw state.

The shipments of asbestos amounted to 273,522 tons in 1925, and were valued at $8,976,645. These figures do not include sand and gravel, by-products composed of crushed serpentine and used for building purposes. The 1925 production is the largest in quantity since the origin of the industry. The quantity of rock mined in 1925 amounted to 4,121,258 tons, which yielded an average of 129 pounds of asbestos fibre per ton. The greater quantity of rock is crushed by machinery while a small quantity is cobbed by hand.

GOD'S MINUTE.

Look not every man on his own things, but every man also on the things of others. Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus; Who being in the form of God, thought it not robbery to be equal with God.—Phil. 2:4-6.

O God, we come to Thee because Thou art in Thyself all that we desire to become in ourselves. We are weak, but Thou art strong; we come seeking Thy strength. We are sinful but Thou art holy, and we come seeking Thy holiness. We are ignorant but Thou art wise, and we come seeking Thy wisdom.

Bless us, that we may be in our characters what Thou art in Thine, pure and holy. Aid us, that we may be in our hearts what Thou art in Thine, good and righteous. Help us, that we may in our lives be what Thou art in Thine, kind and generous. All that Thou art, we pray that thus we may become, so that we can think Thy thoughts after Thee, walk in the steps of the One Who went about doing good, and so live that our wills may be brought into harmony with Thy divine purpose, and our lives conformed to Thy eternal righteousness.

A Thought

HELPING ONE'S SELF.

The best way to help one's self is to help others. This is not the view worldly men take. They imagine that the more they do for others the less they have left for htemselves. They get all they can, give as little as possible, and keep all they can. They do not give to help the poor, to build great institutions for educational and charitable uses, because they believe that giving will diminish their store and weaken themselves. When they give at all they try to do so in such a way that all men will know it in order to make it work for their own good after all. They give for themselves, and not for others.—Dr. Buckley.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Aug. 15.—Trade was generally slow with only the better grades of cattle in demand on the live stock market yesterday morning. There were 1500 cattle left over from Tuesday a fact which did not tend to greatly strengthen the demand.

Hogs were the exception to the rule, showing a rise of 25c. Calves were steady at Tuesday prices. Bologna bulls dropped off $1, there being practically no demand. A few good butchers sold at 10¼ to 11 with mediums at 9 3-4-10 1-3. Cows were easier. Lambs were steady at from $15 for tops to $10 for culls.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 15 (Canadian Press).—Owing to the fact that foreign bids were below local exporters' views, the export trade in Canadian grain here yesterday continued of a limited character. The domestic trade in Canadian Western oats was fairly active and values were firm.

Little business was done in Spring and Winter wheat flour, but prices for all grades were firmly maintained.

A fair amount of business was done in all lines of millfeed with local and United States buyers and prices were firm. Standard grades of rolled oats were unchanged.

The inquiry for eggs was again good but owing to the continued scarcity of supplies the volume of business was restricted. The undertone to the market was firm. The receipts were 4,373 cases.

An easier feeling developed in the cheese market and prices scored a fractional decline, which was attributed to the limited demand. The receipts were 9,038 boxes.

The trade in butter was again decidedly limited and the undertone was easy. The receipts were 250 packages.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Aug. 15 (Canadian Press).—Wheat prices ran up rapidly yesterday influenced by news of frost in Canada and by likelihood of more frost there last night. Reports that so far no loss in bushels and but little in quality would result failed to act as an offset. Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled 2⅝ to 2¾c net higher, with corn ½ to ⅝; oats varying from ¼c decline to ½c advance and provisions unchanged to a rise of 15c.

Uneasiness over indications that the wheat crop outlook in Canada is less favorable than has been generally assumed became manifest yesterday soon after the opening. Low temperatures in parts of the Canadian wheat belt were given special notice, with Liverpool quotations higher than had been looked for and with apparent possibility of widespread damage from frost, skepticism about recent seemingly exaggerated estimates of this season's Canadian wheat yield developed fast. Meanwhile, work was received of 7,111,000 bushels decrease of the Canadia nvisible supply and that Japan is expected to require a greater percentage of foreign wheat than usual.

It was only, however, after definite reports were at hand telling of frost in the southern part of Alberta province that the wheat market here bulged in earnest. Free selling on the advance caused a reaction, but renewed commission house buying near the finish forced the market up to the day's best level. Offerings were decidedly light on the way up. The forecast for the Canadian Prairies pointed to unseasonably cool weather again last night.

Corn rose with wheat. Receipts of corn in Chicago yesterday amounted to only 33 cars, and not much was being booked to arrive. Charges were made for 220,000 bushels of corn to Buffalo. Need of rain is North Central portions of the corn belt was also a subject of comment. Oats were sluggish, doing little at any time, but with September and December touching the lowest quotations yet for the crop.

Provisions reflected new high price records for the season which were established in the hog market.

CHICAGO CATTLE.

BUTTER AND EGGS.

TORONTO, Aug. 15. — Although prices on eggs in the Toronto wholesale produce market showed a firming at the start off of this week, the strengthening movement is still in progress as shown by a one-cent advance in prices yesterday, this applying both to the buying and selling divisions of the quotations list. The wholesale houses attribute the strong egg market to the fact that the supplies are not keeping pace with the demand, which this summer has been particularly good and also especially notable for the fact that there was no lessening of the demand on the part of the consuming public at the Midsummer season.

Firmness characterized the Canadian egg markets in general. Reports from Montreal show that the egg market there is firm with the same inability of the producers to keep up with the demand by the consumers, and with prices for jobbing extras 42 cents; firsts, 39 cents, and seconds, 34 cents.

goblins will catch you if you don't watch out."

Mrs. Orra Varcoe gave a paper on historical research and read by Mrs. C. W. Varcoe. This was exceedingly interesting, especially to the younger generation of to-day, and dwelt on the Township of Alnwick. This township in our forefathers' time was vast woods of a good specimen or else they could not have come here and built such lovely homes as we see today. At first it was the woods or rather the price of it that gave them a way to exist and pay their debts. Just think of what we would think if our girls at the age of fifteen or sixteen were going to settle down in a woods like many of our mothers and grandmothers when some of them raised a family long before they were really old enough to marry. Those grand-parents or parents must have been hardy, strong people in order to endure the hardships of hard work and the cold in winter. The men chopped down the trees and made wood of them, which they hauled to Cobourg, the distance of thirty miles. They often had a bee to help fallow the ground, pulling stumps and stones after the wood was taken off. After this the land was made ready for seeding. By inches they cleared the timber, all tilled, and in good shape for farming. How thankful this generation should be that all the hard work was done for us. Neighbors lived miles from each other, and many young wives, some with babies in their arms would walk to Rice Lake for the cows, as that was the first place for pasture, going through the paths, sometimes getting lost in the bush and travelling a great deal farther than needed. The men harvested their grain by cutting it with a cradle, then raking and binding it into sheaves. What a slow process it must have been. The women helped in the harvest field a great deal then, as their houses were small and were called shanties. They were not furnished like we have today; most of them were only one room with a bed in one corner, stove in one, table in another, and a bunk as it was called for the children to sleep in. This bunk was made of wood and fitted up in the day time with bed-clothes inside, and served as a lounge, although it was a very hard lounge. It is surprising how those pioneers lived, such small homes, large families, and yet they were healthy with less diseases than they have now. The children went to bed early, ate plain wholesome food, and were not used to excitement or delicacies as they get nowadays. It is a somewhat popular theory especially among older folks that our young people of to-day could not stand the hardships endured by the pioneers and that humanity is softening as the years go by. But the war showed that modern youth could endure privation, hardships and face death as gallantly as the people of any other age; the records of sport provide proof that the race is not degenerating. The papers of to-day are full of athletes breaking world records, showing that the youth of to-day is not inferior to anything in the past. Education was not as far advanced as it is now, nor were there any automobiles, telephones, radios, or pianos. If they wanted to go visiting they often hitch oxen to a crotch made out of two pieces of big limb and a board nailed across and away they went, enjoying their drive the nas much as anyone to-day riding in an automobile.

Roseneath was then called "The Corners," it consisted of a post-office with store combined, keeping a few necessities that the farmers round would need; a shoe-maker's shop, for everybody wore hand-made boots those days; a hotel, and two or three families were all who lived here then.

Hastings was called "The Rapids," and some of our older people recall it by The Rapids to-day. Alderville Indian Reserve was more thickly populated, and the residents made their living by hunting, fishing and making baskets from birch trees which they sold readily to the farmers. The wives carried their little papooses on their backs; this was a sort of basket made from birch bark. The nearest doctor resided at Warkworth. The quickest way to get him was to go on horseback; the so-called road was through woods and very rough travelling. The first democrat around Alnwick was owned by Mr. Mouncey, Robert Mouncey's father, and people came miles to see it. Later it was called a double buggy.

Think of the women wearing a sunbonnet or plain straw hats to church, and their dresses with plenty of cloth to cover their arms and made long to the ankles. They were happy and satisfied to have one Sunday dress and would go miles to attend prayer meetings and often went to Alderville to hear Rev. Elder Chase, whose name and Christian work still is spoken of among the Alderville Indians. Let us then think of all that has been given to us and how thankful we should all be. May we try to follow their example to live honestly and help make this world better for the coming generation.

Mrs. Sherwin served a delicious lunch, when all departed to their different homes, feeling they had spent a beneficial and intelligent afternoon.

FROM MAKER TO WEARRE

ANDY TAYLOR FOUND ALIVE

The Pas Prospector Was Near Death When Located By Searchers.

THE PAS, Man., Aug. 15 (Canadian Press).—Lost for 46 days, during which time he wandered aimlessly through the densely wooded country north of here, Andy Taylor, local prospector, was found by searchers yesterday near Burnt Lake and brought by airplane to The Pas.

It was a harrowing story that Taylor related with difficulty to his rescuers. For days he had walked through the woods in the belief that he was on his way to a settlement, only to find that he was hopelessly lost. Faced with starvation, he had killed frogs and eaten them, and at times when driven to desperation had recovered dead fish on the surface of the river to relieve his hunger.

The condition of the man when found by Fred Coleman, veteran prospector, of Cobalt, Ont., and Capt. Kenyon, who piloted the Fokker search plane, betrayed the extreme hardships and suffering which he had endured during his wanderings. His clothing was in tatters from pressing through dense underbrush, while bits of rags were bound around his feet for protection against the rough terrain. Seven weeks' growth of beard covered his face, while his haggard countenance showed that he could not have survived much longer if aid had not reached him. Barely able to walk, he nevertheless showed his joy in having been returned to his wife and friends, who had long since given him up for dead.

MUSIC NOTES

KIWANIS MUSIC FESTIVAL

For several weeks there have been unusually interesting and instructive articles in the "Globe" by Dr. Lawrence Mason, the well-known Music and Dramatic critic. Anyone, who has read these constructive criticisms in connection with the various Music Festivals and Competitions which have been, and are, being held in various parts of the Province, cannot but have profited and gained some conception of the right spirit in which both competitor and hearer should approach such an event.

* * *

The idea in the entrant's mind must be, "not what can I get?" but, "what can I learn?" Learn, not only from the kindly and competent adjudicators comments and criticisms, but from hearing the other competitors rendering of that which has been given sincere and earnest study by all those competing. A competitor must display something of the true sportsman's attitude towards a competition, and must exhibit a willingness to take a beating gracefully, if a better instrumentalist or singer is competing. The opinion of the adjudicators, who are honest and upright gentlemen, who make their decisions only by reason of their knowledge, experience, and broad musical culture, must always be accepted as final.

* * *

Writing of adjudicators, the Peterborough Festival is very fortunate in its choice, for Dr. Herbert Sanders, F.R.C.O., Organist and Choirmaster of Dominion Church, Ottawa, is one of Canada's outstanding musicians, one of whom we can all be justly proud. Captain O'Neill, Mus. Doc., is Bandmaster of the Quebec Citadel Band, a noted Bandmaster and an experienced adjudicator. His services are constantly in demand in the capacity, not only in Canada, but also in the United States. He is the adjudicator for the Brass Section at the Toronto Exhibition. We may confidently expect wise decisions when we have adjudicators of such high musical standing and experience.

* * *

All the tests in the various classes have of course, been chosen by the adjudicators. Dr. Sanders chose all piano and vocal tests, including trios, quartettes and choir tests. Captain O'Neill chose those for the various Band tests, along with the Cornet, Trombone, Clarinet, Brass Quartette etc., tests. The Orchestral Section, Violin, Cello, String Quartettes, etc., were chosen by the Canadian Bureau for the Advancement of Music, an organization which is fulfilling its mission in a most satisfactory manner.

* * *

The Festival is going to be a much bigger affair than the one held last year. Requests for copies of the Syllabus, in addition to the eight hundred already sent out, have come from Stratford, Ottawa, Guelph, London, St. Catherines, Toronto, Belleville, etc. In fact, the Festival is advertising Peterborough in a very desirable manner.

* * *

We are looking forward to having Dr. Lawrence Mason, of the "Globe," Mr. Augustus Bridle, of the "Star," and Capt. J. S. Atkinson, Director of the Canadian Bureau for the Advancement of Music, with us during the Festival, and having them address the competitors and audience.

* * *

We hope that the citizens will evince a keen interest in the Festival, and attend all the sessions in large numbers. In Winnipeg, Stratford, Ottawa and Kitchener, the audiences were limited only by the size of the hall, and we hope that will be the case in Peterborough.

* * *

Copies of the Syllabus, or any information regarding the Festival can be got from Dr. Craig, 146 Hunter Street, West, Peterborough.

A Splendid New Serial by Ruby M. Ayres

CHAPTER XLI

AN OLD FRIEND GONE

Jennifer stayed where she was. Her head was splitting and her thoughts were chaotic.

Buddy was Dolores' child. Well, she was not surprised; nothing surprised her now.

Edith Gaunt meant to sue for divorce, and more than a year ago she had threatened Nicholas to do so. Well, that didn't surprise her, either. Life was horrible, a discord of ugly sounds when it might have been such perfect harmony and happiness.

A year ago Nicholas had consented to give up seeing her on condition that Edith made no further inquiries. Was that the truth?

Jennifer found herself saying aloud, "He might have told me. If he had, it would have made all the difference."

It comforted her to believe that, even while she knew it would have made no difference at all. She was past caring for anything; it mattered nothing what became of her. Life was horrible, always her thoughts dragged back to that conclusion.

Presently she rose and went on with her packing. To get away, to escape from them all, was her one thought, the one thing she knew she would do.

She wrote to the landlord, enclosing a cheque for three months' rent and saying she was giving up the flat.

When her little maid came to say good-night to her, she gave her a month's wages in advance and dismissed her.

"I don't know. If I do, I'll write to you."

When she had gone, Jennifer sent the porter for a taxicab and had her luggage taken downstairs.

"Shall you be away for long, Miss?" the man asked curiously.

"I'm not sure. It all depends."

"You will leave an address for letters, Miss?"

Jennifer hesitated. "I'll send you one when I'm settled."

She got into the cab and drove away, the caretaker stood looking after her with wise eyes. "Not coming back, that's a certainty," he told himself with conviction. He was a man of experience. "What's more," he added in his mind as the cab turned the corner and vanished—"what's more, she wants watching or my name's not Smith."

He voiced this opinion aloud to Chesney when, an hour later, he found him hammering on Jennifer's door.

"Miss Fry went away about six o'clock, sir."

"Went away? Did she say where she was going?"

"No, sir, and she didn't leave no address. She said she'd send one when she was settled."

"And . . . did she take much luggage?"

"A goodish deal," Smith admitted, and then he added, "And she looked ill, too, sir, if I may say so. Ill, as if she ought to have someone to look after her."

He felt sorry for Chesney. He had always rather liked him, having seen a good deal of him when he was running about with Buddy Vasher, before Jennifer came to live in the flats.

"Miss Vasher's home, sir," he volunteered now.

"I know."

Chesney turned blindly away. He felt sick with shame and remorse. The tortuous day had shown him his folly and driven him back to ask for forgiveness at Jennifer's feet.

But he was too late, one little hour which made him a lifetime too late. Jennifer had gone.

It was not until Jennifer was stepping into the taxicab, and the driver asked "Where shall I drive to, Miss?" that a realization of her own loneliness came home to her.

Where could she drive to?

For a moment her heart seemed to stand still in frightened amazement.

Why was it that in the years of her life she had never seemed to make one real friend?

Even in the old days, before her father and mother died, she had been singularly alone.

She had never had a girl friend to whom she could tell little secrets; never a woman friend whom she felt she could really trust.

Dolores had been kind to her, but she looked at life from a different angle to Jennifer. She saw it through distorted glass, and accepted what she saw, or so Jennifer considered.

There was nobody else. Not a soul whom she could ring up on the 'phone, or at whose door she could arrive with her boxes and ask for a few nights' shelter, sure of not being refused. The taximan repeated his question.

"Where shall I drive to Miss?"

Jennifer recovered herself with an effort as memory flashed Mr. Gurney's cheery face before her. He had always been kind, and his last words were, "If I can be of any use to you, be sure to let me know."

Her spirits rose as she gave his address. As the taxicab rolled along through the remembered streets of the City, Jennifer had the curious feeling that she was driving back into the past. There was the lamppost where she had waited in the evenings for the omnibus; there was the tea-shop where she had eaten her lunch so many times, and—yes, there was even the same policeman at the Bank Corner, directing the traffic with stolid capability. He had not changed at all, not aged a day.

Jennifer laughed at herself for feeling amazed that things had not altered. After all, why should they have done so? Eighteen months is nothing out of a lifetime. It was probably only she who had changed.

Her heart beat fast as she got out of the taxi, and telling the man to wait, she ran up the wide stone staircase to Mr. Gurney's offices.

Everything unchanged here too. Ceilings still wanted whitewashing, and doors cried out for a coat of paint.

She opened the outer office-door and walked in.

A row of clerks leaning over remembered desks, stopping working to look up.

Jennifer scanned their faces eagerly; but there was not one that she knew; strangers all of them.

The first chill of disappointment touched her heart, and her voice was not quite steady as she asked if Mr. Gurney was in, and could she see him.

One of the clerks got down from his stool and came forward.

"Mr. Gurney?" he asked politely.

"Yes; I am Miss Fry. If you tell him, I know that he will see me."

The rustle of parchment seemed a great noise in the little silence that followed; then the clerk said diffidently:

"I am sorry. You have not heard perhaps—but Mr. Gurney died seven months ago, and the practice has been sold?"

"Oh!"

She had never dreamed of this; never thought it possible.

The clerk said again sympathetically: "The new owner, Mr. Selbourne, is in. I am sure if you would like to see him——"

"No; oh no! It's of no consequence, thank you."

She walked out of the office blinded by tears.

Dead! It seemed impossible that she would never again see Mr. Gurney's kindly face. She felt as if someone had cut the solid ground from beneath her feet and left her amongst quaking sands. She told the taximan to drive her to a quiet hotel in Bloomsbury where she had once lunched with Nicholas Gaunt. They had chosen it because it had seemed unlikely they would meet anyone there whom either of them knew. It was an hotel used chiefly by commercial men and people visiting London from the country, but it was quiet and clean, and Jennifer gave a sigh of relief when she found herself safely installed in one of its bedrooms.

She sat down on her largest trunk and looked around her. It was like starting life again; it was like sealing up the chapter of the past and beginning a fresh one.

But now she had less courage to face things boldly; she felt far less capable of fighting Fate than she had done eighteen months ago when she parted from Nicholas.

"I must go abroad. That's the best thing to do. I must go abroad."

The thought floated unsought into her brain, and she clung to it as a drowning man will cling to a straw.

Abroad one could hide in little towns; abroad nobody knew one's business, or cared, and with the small income from her capital she could manage quite well. She wished she had taken Mr. Gurney's advice and invested her money, instead of recklessly spending it.

She wished with all her heart and soul that he was still alive, so that she could go to him and tell him her troubles. But it was too late. The one kind friend of whom she now felt she could have been sure was dead.

To whom else could she turn?

The man she loved had no right in her life, and she no longer had a place in the regard of the man who had loved her.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

Thursday, August 16, 1928.

(Copyright, 1928, by The McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Strong benefic aspects dominate in to-day's horoscope, according to astrology, which finds the planetary government favorable to many activities on the Earth.

The early morning is a time to face one's financial affairs and to settle them in a satisfactory manner, even though the rule may incline the mind toward a depressing viewpoint.

Correspondence of every sort is well directed and the day is especially suspicious for love letters.

Women are subject to a sway making for success in the home and in public work. They should bend all their energies to this day's opportunities.

There is a sign making for high nervous tension and an impatience at obstacles. The family may appear peculiarly trying while this rule prevails.

Rehearsals for new plays should be fortunate in their outcome, for the stars presage an autumn season of extraordinary interest.

This should be a lucky day for plighting troth. Engagements and marriages are well directed and they entail continued prosperity.

The Sun is in a place promising much to all who seek any sort of preferment or favor. Persons of wealth or influence are inclined to be generous and helpful under this rule.

The day is an auspicious one for presenting gifts, whether they be engagement or wedding rings and it seems to forecast costly wedding presents.

Political candidates should benefit while this configuration prevails. It is a good sway under which to obtain contributions.

Self-confidence probably will be accentuated by this planetary government, but it is well to beware of egotism, which will continue to be prevalent.

This should be a really fortunate time for launching new enterprises or for beginning new work. It is well to prepare for a busy autumn for there will be many unusual conditions to be met.

Persons whose birthdate it is may have rather an exciting year in which they will be tempted to engage in secret affairs that may be unlucky. These Leo people may be too self-confident for their own good.

Children born on this day should be trained to positive attitudes of mind. They may be easily influenced, although they are likely to be rarely intelligent and successful. Noble ideals and fine feeling are usually distinguishing traits.

Canada was the first of Britain's colonies to receive self-governing powers.

UNCLE WIGGILY

By HOWARD R. GARIS

Sunday's Bedtime Story

(Copyright, 1928, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Mr. Longears saw a hole in the barn floor.

"Dear me!" whispered Uncle Wiggily to himself as he snuggled down in the load of dried grass on the hay wagon. "I must certainly jump down and get out of this barn pretty soon, or some of those men will stick me with their pitchforks!"

The rabbit gentleman had gone to sleep under a pile of hay in the field, having crawled there to be in the cool shade, for it was a very hot day. And while he slept the farmer and his men loaded the pile of hay, with Uncle Wiggily in it, on the wagon and drove to the barn.

All of a sudden, as Mr. Longears was burrowing down deeper into the load of fodder, thinking he might reach the bottom of the wagon and find a hole through which he might escape, all of a sudden he felt the prongs of a pitchfork come into the hay very close to him. And a moment later Uncle Wiggily felt himself being lifted right up with a bunch of hay to be tossed over into the mow.

"Oh, my goodness!" thought the poor rabbit gentleman. "Oh, dear!"

He gave a wiggle and a twist and found himself falling out of the forkful of hay. Down, down, down fell Uncle Wiggily.

"This is the end of me!" sighed the bunny uncle. "This time I shall certainly break my pink, twinkling nose."

But instead of falling on the hard barn floor, Mr. Longears toppled to a small pile of hay which had scattered between the wagon and the mow. So it was as if he had fallen on a sofa cushion and he bounced down very softly.

"Oh, look at the rabbit!" cried one of the men unloading hay.

"He must have been asleep in one of the piles we brought from the field," said the farmer.

"I'm going to catch that rabbit and put him in a cage!" shouted another man dropping his pitchfork and starting to run after Uncle Wiggily as fast as he could run.

"You'll never catch that rabbit!" said the farmer with a laugh.

"Why not?" asked the man, scurrying around the wagon.

"Because he is a smart rabbit," said the farmer. "See how he is all dressed up," for Uncle Wiggily had on a cool, thin suit of silk pongee over his fur coat, and he wore a belt and a watch chain and everything.

"Say, what kind of a rabbit is that—all dressed up?" cried the man who was going to catch Uncle Wiggily. "I never saw the like before."

"He must be a trained rabbit out of a show or a circus," said the farmer. "I don't see how he ever got in my field. But you'll never catch him."

"Yes I will!" said the man. Neither he nor the farmer knew that Uncle Wiggily lived in the woods near by in a hollow stump bungalow.

"That man isn't going to catch me if I can help it!" thought Uncle Wiggily to himself as he leaped first this way and then that way to escape. Once he turned toward the door but he saw some cows standing there and he was afraid if he ran out, that the cows might be startled and step on him.

"And nothing," said Uncle Wiggily to himself, "makes one feel flatter than to be stepped on by a cow! I must be careful!" So he turned to run the other way, but the man was close after him.

"You'll never get him!" laughed the farmer.

"Yes, I will!" cried the man.

He almost had hold of Uncle Wiggily's little stubby tail that stuck through an opening in the bunny's silk coat when, all at once, Mr. Longears saw, in front of him, a hole in the barn floor.

"I'll jump down there!" said the rabbit and he gave a funny little wiggle, twist and jump, and down the hole he went. And oh, what a funny jump it turned out to be. For Uncle Wiggily had jumped right into——

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY WE ENJOY A PRACTICAL JOKE.

(By Mehran K. Thomson, Ph.D.)

The practical joke aims to place someone in an embarrassing position.

We all enjoy seeing a person thrown off his high horse. The situation is really humorous because the person off balance is likely to say and do ridiculous things. It is always a lot more fun to play pranks on one who lacks poise and is easily confused and acts foolish. Boys especially delight to pick on one who is likely to chase them, threatening all sorts of terrible punishments that everyone knows will never come to pass.

The practical joke is often dangerous and sometimes fatal. Among the Fourth of July casualties was a victim of a practical joke. This was too much of a temptation for some practical joker who paced a firecracker in the sleeping man's mouth and touched off the fuse probably with no other motive to get some fun out of the surprised and embarrassed conduct on the part of the careless sleeper. But the explosion blew out the man's teeth and otherwise injured him severely so that he was removed to the hospital in a critical condition.

We usually refrain from indulging in practical jokes because we regard them as crude and dangerous. But the very need for suppression shows that there is an impulse to indulge. We enjoy the practical joke because the other fellow pays the bills. It is always at his expense. We don't enjoy it a bit when the tables are turned.

The other fellow not only furnished us cheap amusement but he also satisfies our sense of importance at the same time. The fun and elation is in proportion to the embarrassment of the victim. The favorable circumstances in which we find ourselves by contrast tickles us mightily and we laugh.

LYRICS OF LIFE

THE FIRST GRANDCHILD.

We thought the first would make us old
("Grandma" and "Grandpa" sounded strange),
And then the wire the glad news told:
Janet was here—and, oh, the change!
For now we're planning things like these:
Dresses, and dolls, and Christmas trees.

We're back beside a little bed
That makes us younger twenty years.
We who looked back now look ahead,
And now again our own youth nears.
We're talking over lovely times,
And brushing up on nursery rimes.

We thought the first would make us old,
But now we know the truth of things.
These baby hands a promise hold;
Youth never comes but youth it brings.
For hearts forget the burden of
The past, with something new to love.

under present conditions it is impossible to stop it.

"Gas poisoning has been used once and will be used again. The futility of paper promises has been clearly demonstrated and so long as the chemical factory remains it can be utilized as a factory for gas poisons.

"While there is a general opinion against this method of warfare, we are swept along by a tide against which it is impossible to struggle.

"The chemist must not be held responsible for the abuse of his discoveries: he did nothing to bring the great war into being, and did much to save us from its effects."

Sir James pointed out that the scientist who is called upon to provide the deadly explosives of the shell also makes the drugs and anaesthetics which help and heal, and during the World War he had to solve the problem of giving protection against gas poisons as well as provide means for swift retaliation.

When Great Britain found itself short of sugar, scientists there devised means of extracting it from dahlia tubers; when maltos was needed, they found a method of making it from potato starch; novocain was manufactured synthetically at half the cost and in one-fifth the time usually required, Sir James said.

"In the popular mind the impression may have been created," he continued, in tracing the calls made on chemistry during the war, "that Germany had exercised unusual scientific foresight and capacity when she first deluged the allied lines with waves of chlorine gas.

"Actually, chlorine was discovered by the Swedes; methods of preparing it electrolytically were discovered by the British; its application as a bleaching agent was first rendered possible by the French; but it was first used deliberately to kill by the Germans.

"With this new offensive, the strife became something more than war to the knife. The retort and crucible were to play their part, and the challenge had been thrown down to the country where, to quote an insolent criticism: 'There was no real science, only playing at science.'

"Two problems stood out pre-eminently in the new warfare—protection for our troops and retaliation.

"The vital question of securing the safety of our own men was almost swallowed up in discussion on the unrighteousness of reprisal. I do not seek to reopen this debate, and it is far from my desire to criticize those who, on principle, urged that we should refrain from following Germany's lead, but I must state in a word that we had no alternative save surrender."

Sir James showed that certain raw materials are absolutely necessary for the manufacture of high explosives, listing coal tar, hydrocarbons, corton, glycerine, sulphuric acid and nitric acid as the essentials.

"Cut off a country from any of these," said the Scotch chemist, "and be she as great intellectually as ancient Greece, she will not be a great power according to the standards of our times.

"It is not the most powerful explosive that counts in war time manufacture, but the one that is most easily obtained in the necessary quantities.

"No nation can afford to depend on other nations be they friends or foe, for anything which has become a necessity.

"We must as a consequence manufacture scientifically, and to do so we must learn to think scientifically. The time is indeed past when the prosecution of scientific research can be left to the unsupported enthusiasm of the solitary worker or when the statement that 'universities exist for the preservation of useless learning' can be regarded as anything but foolish epigram."

Prisoner Orders Photos For Friends

GALT, Aug. 14.—W. S. Peterson, 57, Toronto, yesterday secured photos of himself for his friends at the expense of the Galt police. Peterson made the most of his opportunities when he was taken to be photographed for the local "rogues' gallery." He smiled sweetly and instructed the photographer to send half a dozen copies to his friends. He had just been given an indeterminate sentence of two years less one day on seven charges of theft.

Reeve J A. Middleton; Deputy Reeve Henry D. Coons, and secretary Percy T. Udy.

Dr. Morgan reported that scarlet fever had appeared in the township, but that the patient was now recovered and no other cases have developed.

He also reported that he had ordered the Sanitary Inspector to have the school house in S.S. No. 9 fumigated and the premises put in a sanitary condition before the opening of the school.

One case of charity was considered and steps taken by which immediate relief would be given.

The Board of Health expressed its unanimous appreciation of the services of the Peterborough Branch of the Provincial Laboratory, and expressed the hope that it be permitted to remain in Peterborough.

four-tone effect to carry out the color harmony of the upper walls. The main or lower walls are in panels and of a light buff color brought out with green and pink, which makes a beautiful polychrome effect. These are surrounded with a stile of darker buff separated by a line of golden brown. At the top of the panel is a small design, and to finish it at the bottom is a Grecian key brought out with pink and green crossed. Being blended, these bring out the finished decorations.

The main entrance or vestibule is finished in a buff color with a suitable design at the top and bottom. Throughout the church the color scheme is very pleasing, harmonising with the beautiful stained glass memorial windows.

Unpardonable Perspiration Odour readily avoided

What quality can match the beauty of a lovely skin? And what social error can so readily embarrass its possessor, as that subtle offence — perspiration odour?

Of course, every one perspires. In this way nature rids the human system of one to two pints of moisture every day.

But this perspiration, so necessary and so healthful, need not be offensive.

Why not be sure of absolute personal daintiness? All you need to do is use Lifebuoy for face, hands and bath — and perspiration odour will vanish.

Lifebuoy, besides being a delightful, all-sufficient toilet soap, possesses mild but effective antiseptic qualities which clear away clogged pores, purify them, and make perspiration odourless.

To Keep Well

Drink plenty of water, perspire freely, bathe often with Lifebuoy Soap.

And there is no price penalty, because Lifebuoy costs no more than toilet soap that is just "soap."

LET THE BLESSED SUNSHINE IN.

When I was a boy we used to sing about letting the blessed sunshine in, but with the prudery and false modesty of those days no one seemed to take such advice very literally. Even at the bathing beaches the boys had to wear bathing suits with at least quarter-length sleeves, and trunks that reached to the knees. The girls were compelled by the bathing beach ordinances to also wear stockings and some kind of queer bloomer suits. Maybe this was why the girls did not learn to swim much in those days. Certainly at that time our skins were starved for the health-giving rays of the sun, with its beneficent ultraviolet vibrations.

The change to the simple one-piece bathing suit started on the Pacific coast, but now within the last few years the custom has spread all over America so that those with the old-fashioned suits by the yardage look queer on any American bathing beach. The summer sun which was formerly shut off from our bodies now gets in its good work. This is unquestionably one of the reasons why such diseases as tuberculosis are being prevented and overcome, and in a large measure, for the fact that the average length of life is now over fifty-eight years.

Our study of food habits, our increased interest in exercises and outdoor games have also played their part, but our change to sensible clothing has undoubtedly had a marked influence. The girls now in the summer wear as little as one or two pounds of clothing, and as the shoes usually weigh a half pound, you will see that there is now a vast difference between the weight and type of cloth used in dresses than that of ten or twenty years ago. Most of the light colored and light weight dresses admit more of the ultraviolet rays and at the same time shut out the heating rays of the sun.

The ultraviolet is really a cold ray, but has the most influence on changing the hemoglobin of the blood and increasing the red blood cells. Heavy clothing, such as wool, shuts these beneficial rays out almost entirely, and cotton clothing has a like effect. Silk permits more of the health-giving rays to pass, but the new "Celanese" material is the best of all for summer use, owing to the fact that its material and weave permit a larger percentage of the blood building ultraviolet rays to reach the skin.

I have just concluded an experiment to prove the facts I am giving you. Using the ultraviolet burner which is used in therapeutic work, I held the burner against my skin for ten seconds' then successively through cloth made of silk, wool, cotton and Celanese. In a few hours a perceptible burn appeared on my skin from the use of the direct rays of the ultraviolet light which finally developed into a deep sunburn. The burn through the Celanese cloth I estimated as about one-third of the direct ultraviolet radiation; through the silk, only a slight amount, and through the cotton and wool no showing at all was made on the skin.

I am sure my readers will be interested in the result of this experiment, as it proves conclusively that this new artificially produced type of cloth is the best for summer wear for those who wish to take advantage of the beneficial rays of the summer sun.

Questions and Answers.

Question—Mrs. J. H. asks: "What causes headaches on top of the head, and is tea bad for one's nerves? I always notice I am more nervous after drinking tea. Is buttermilk good for one?"

Answer: Headaches at the top of the head frequently come from cystitis or some form of bladder irritation. I do not consider a moderate amount of tea drinking bad for the nerves, but find that nervous people seem to like to drink hot drinks, as they feel more quieted just afterwards. Buttermilk is a good food, but should not be considered merely as a "drink"; it should be used as a meal, and not in addition to other foods.

Question—Mrs. R. G. writes: "Please advise what you think about spices."

Answer: The main fault I have to find with spices is that they tend to overincrease the appetite which encourages one to eat more than he would otherwise. There is no doubt but what all condiments have some irritating effect upon the mucous membranes of the stomach and intestines, and therefore may be one of the causes in the development of stomach and duodenal ulcers.

Question—O. H. writes: "Would like to ask your advice on a paralyzed colon. Is there any cure for it? Is there any way of getting it back to normal and thus dispense with the daily enema?"

Answer: You probably do not have paralysis of the colon, as such trouble is quite rare. If your colon were paralyzed, your entire body below the waist would be paralyzed also. There is no better treatment for a sluggish colon than a few weeks' course of treatment with the enema twice daily. If you will use the right food after stopping the enema, your bowels should move naturally two or three times daily. If they do not, it is probably because of a kind of paralysis of your intestines. This condition could be determined by an X-ray examination and can be corrected by deep massage manipulations and electrical treatments.

"There is no need for heavy guns or the customary material of war, for the chemical factory can provide the poison shell-fillings which the airplane will distribute on their objectives—and I leave to your imagination what those objectives are likely to be.

"In his heart of hearts the chemist loathes the suggestion that his science should be used in this way, and expresses abhorrence of the idea that his own intellect should be utilized for developing new and more effective poisons for warfare. Nevertheless, there is a general opinion that

Velvet in Fall Fashions

There are preparations now going on over the coming winter collections and one point is carried out by all the maisons—the use of printed velvets. There are three central patterns that appear to carry the general vogue.

DOTS—SMALL FLOWER PATTERNS—PLAIDS

The liking for polka dots is so tremendous in summer dresses that some of the overflow has swept over the winter fabrics. In these, the light dots over the dark grounds is still the best combination.

The big houses that set the pace such as Bianchini, Ducharne, and Coudurier, all show velvet grounds sprinkled with a small flower cultivation in contrasting shades.

These houses also make a point of the PLAIE VELVETS. Generally on dark grounds like black, navy blue, or brown, with the plaiding done in thin contrasting lines.

Furthermore, there is VELOURS FRAPPE. Which is very supple plain velvet with a self pattern stamped on it. The whole point about these new French velvets is their extraordinarily flexible and buttery softness.

Charming Styles Very Exclusive Printed Velvet

For the woman that wishes to keep abreast of the mode a Velvet Frock is a necessity. They appeal at once — comfortable, warm and smart. Now Paris says, "Printed Velvets." To see the many charming styles displayed here is to recognize immediately their loveliness. Plain and printed. New pleated and flare skirts, with satin combination. THIRTEEN JINX AFTER CANUCKS

Olympic Athletes Unable To Take Part in Paris Meet.

MANY AIR SICK.

LONDON, Aug. 14.—(Special Cable to The Examiner, Copyright).—Hoodoo thirteen has jinxed the Canadians twice in two days. Airplanes carrying thirteen boy and girl athletes and officials to and from Paris have been forced down and as a result of the air sickness and excitement the teams are almost completely shot. To-night the girls are expected to compete in a British Empire vs. France, Belgium and Germany meet at Stamford Bridge, but all are so crocked up that Miss Gibb, with the support of P. J. Mulqueen, has refused to let any of the girls compete in their own particular events and chance losing the reputations won at the Olympiad.

Ethel Smith and Miss Gibb are ill in bed and Ethel Catherwood positively is unable to jump. Myrtle Cook refuses to run in the 100 yard dash, but Fanny Rosenfeld will hurl the discus. Florence Bell will run in the hurdles and Jean Thompson will run in the 100 yard dash and Miss Bell and Miss Thompson will run in the all-British relay.

The promoters of the meet are wild because the Canadians will not compete as originally entered.

The boys have gone to cireland. Last night not one of them was in shape to really show his worth. The jinx started with the take-off at Croydon on Sunday morning when a radiator leak forced the plane to return. Then it was discovered there were thirteen in the party and that the pilot of the relief machine was the man who carried Captain Alfred Loewenstein, the Belgian financial wizard, on his death trip. The flight to Paris was jumpy and everybody was sick. Johnny Fitzpatrick was laid out on the floor all the way and Percy Williams, Wilson, Edwards and Ball were limp. Miss Gibb fainted after disembarking and all the girls were ill, but rushed to Colombe Stadium, where 40,000 spectators gave them a rousing ovation because Canada had made good where Germany had thrown them down.

Williams ran in the 100 metre in ten and four fifth seconds despite his condition, beating Fitzpatrick and Ball. Edwards beat Wilson in the half mile.

Ethel Catherwood, who was too ill to face the movie camera, startled everybody by leaping five feet. Myrtle Cook won the 100 yard dash from Fanny Rosenfeld, Ethel Smith and Florence Bell. The crowd gave the girls a wonderful reception and besieged them for autographs, going almost wild fighting for a chance to get the signatures of the athletes.

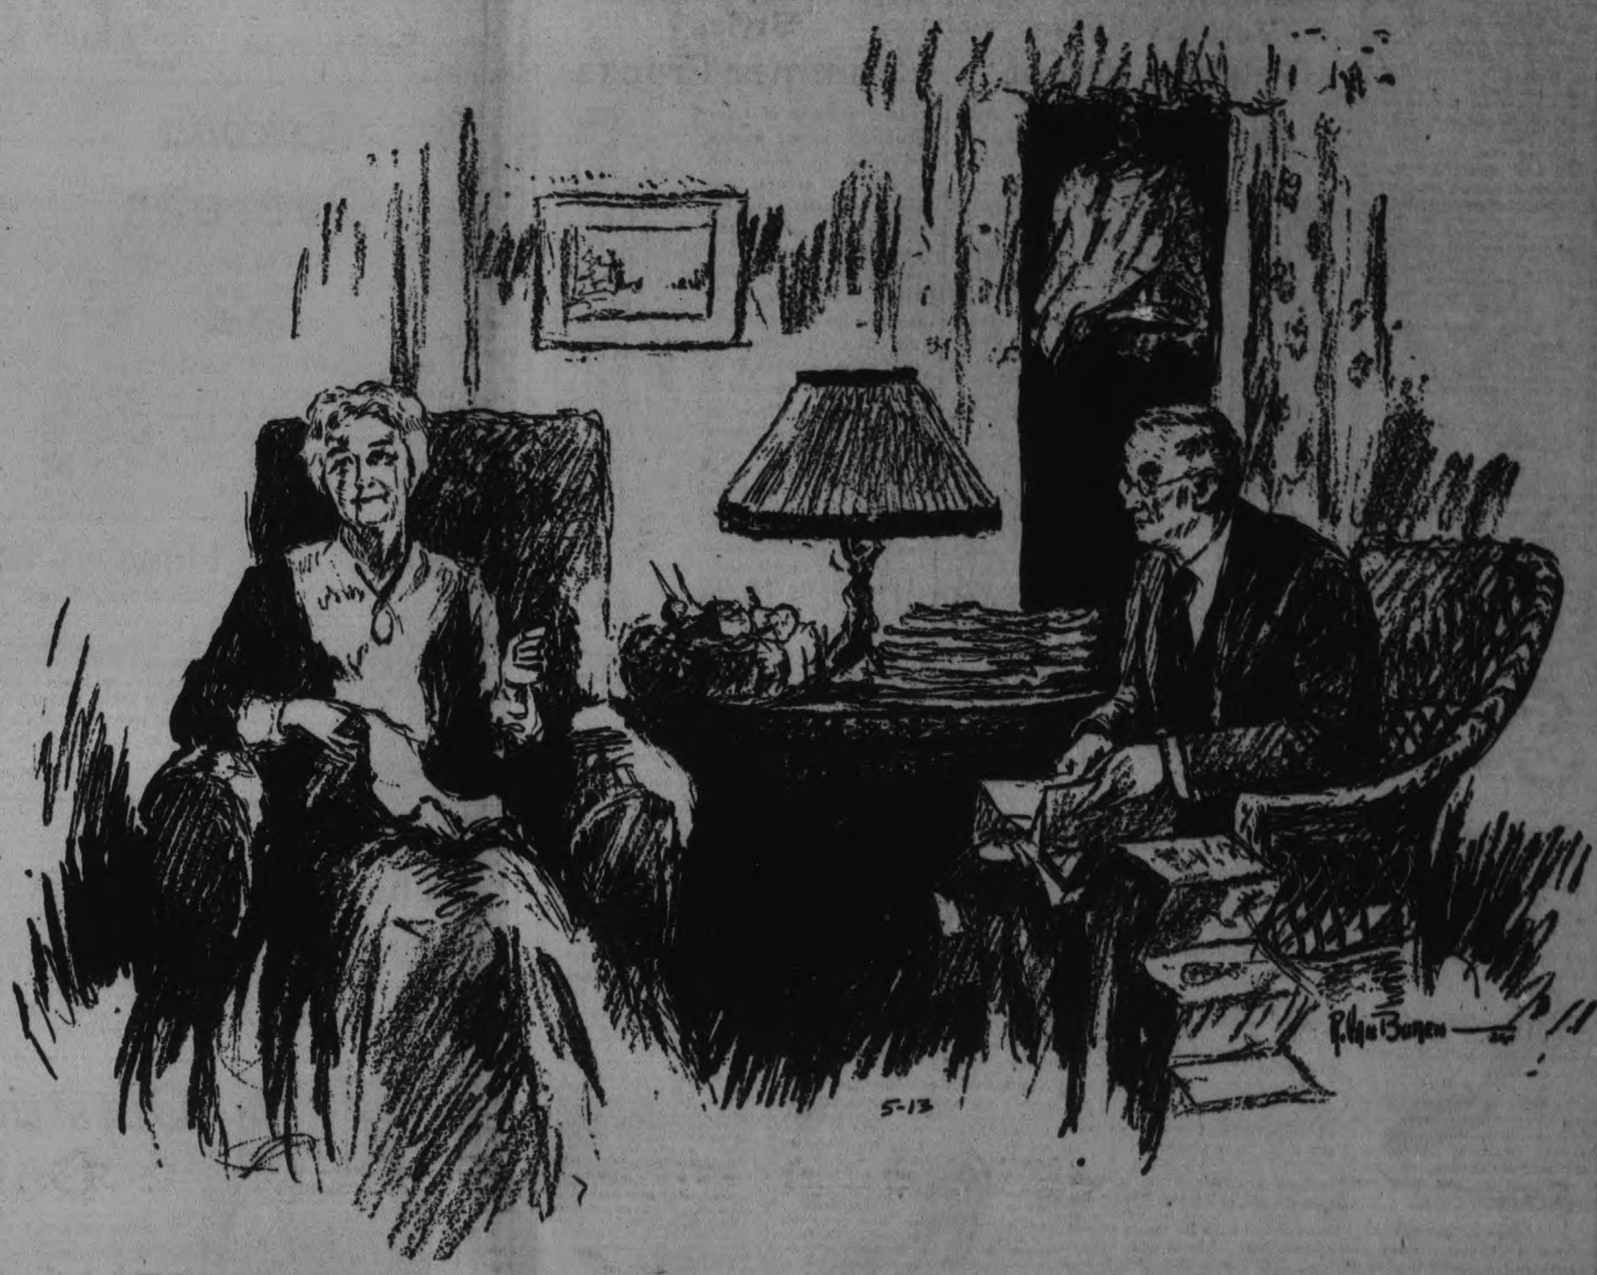
The World's Highest Paid Short Story Writer

Author of "Humoresque", "A President Is Born"



Ella and Murray, in their sixties and still young! Full of desire. Full of youth. Because there is something they want terribly—something still that they save for and plan for. Two old people still on tiptoe about life.

WHEN Ella was nineteen and employed in a lawyer's office on the forty-fifth story of a New York skyscraper that overlooked the harbor, the Statue of Liberty and the vast and surging roadway called the Atlantic Ocean that led to the Old World, she had nine hundred dollars in the bank and an inordinate ambition.

Ella wanted to go to Europe. Every day, as she had her lunch, two drug-store sandwiches and a container of hot coffee brought in by the office-boy for economy's sake and for the opportunity it gave her to remain at her desk which overlooked the harbor, Ella's thoughts and dreams danced out along the very waves themselves. Europe! The bottom drawer of her desk was filled with folders from tourist agencies and books called "So This Is Paris!" "Guide Book to Florence", "Seeing Europe in Eighty Days", "How I Saw the Orient on Five Hundred Dollars".

Her obsession created a little area of isolation around Ella. The other girls in the office who went out to luncheon in the nearby cafeterias and tea-rooms enjoyed much persiflage at her expense.

Ella was "cuckoo".

"Ella, how's your Mediterranean?"

Ella did not mind. Her nest-egg wanted only three hundred dollars toward the budget she had set for herself and the year of travel toward which her whole life was directed.

Ella let them laugh.

It was not easy for a girl who had neither parents nor home and had to pay lodging, food and clothing out of a scant salary, but Ella had proved the adage that when a human being wants a thing badly enough he can endure almost anything to achieve it. Ella wanted badly enough.

AND then, you know how it is. One day in the elevator, Ella was introduced to a young typewriter salesman from the floor above. He was a clean, vigorous young fellow, with nice brown eyes and smooth hair and white teeth. Their attraction to one another was mutual and immediate and strangely enough, it was the first love-episode in the lives of both. Two months later, they were married.

It was not that Ella had put aside the idea of that trip to Europe. On the contrary, Murray had long entertained the same dream. The Murray Hiltons decided to pool their little interests and wait another year, until their funds would enable the two of them to indulge in that trip to Europe.

And then, you know how it is. Ella was not able to continue her work in the lawyer's office as they had planned, because, at the end of ten months, their first baby was born. If Ella experienced any pangs of renunciation, they were more than counterbalanced by the astonishing joy of this new revelation. It was as if she and Murray could never learn to take for granted, as so many young couples around them seemed to, the phenomenon of this child that had befallen them. Their little flat seemed to encompass the whole universe. Even the struggle for existence, a considerable one on Murray's slim salary, was not unmixed with the ecstacy of creation.

Of course, Europe was out of the question now. But not permanently so. It was only a dream to be temporarily laid aside.

IT was the insistence of this dream that had caused Ella to choose their little apartment in a homely New York district that had the saving grace of overlooking the harbor. It was an ugly little place that however could not remain so when permeated with the gay chintzes, the bright artificial flowers and the odor of happiness introduced by the Hiltons. Within the next three years, there was another girl-child and a pair of boy-twins. Meanwhile, manipulate as he would and despite a small raise in salary, the struggle continued for Murray. It was hard to make both ends meet. It was hard not to encroach upon that precious nine hundred dollars that was entered in Ella's bank book.

It was the one subject, however, upon which Ella was adamant. Some day, those nine hundred dollars were going to make the dream come true. Morning, during those brief periods of respite when her children were temporarily cared for, and the house in order, Ella still indulged in her favorite sport. Standing at the window which overlooked the harbor, and watching the waves run out to meet the horizon.

EUROPE lay beyond that watery merging of sky and water. The Old World. The cradle of mankind. Florence lay beyond that horizon where Benvenuto Cellini and Michael Angelo and Leonardo De Vinci of the travel books had lived and loved. Paris lay sparkling somewhere out there and the sapphire beauty of the Riviera, about which the guide books waxed lyrical, and Venice, the Queen of the Adriatic.

No, Ella did not renounce her dreams.

It might be said, however, that for the time being Ella's dreams renounced her.

Measles, croup, an attack of menengitis which threatened to leave one of the twins lame for life, filled the next few years with anxieties and turbulence that left little time for reflection, either for Ella or Murray.

When their twins were eight years old, and the other youngsters doing fairly well in school, Murray, out of a clear sky, was laid low with a long attack of plural pneumonia which made it necessary for him to spend the greater part of the winter at Lake Placid, recuperating.

During those troubled months, Ella procured homework from a milliner and managed to keep body and soul of her family together by doing piece-work on hats. Needless to say, what with the menengitis, the plural pneumonia and the increased cost of living, which somehow was not in keeping with Murray's static salary, the nine hundred-dollar nest-egg had long since been exhausted.

DO not think for a moment that Ella begrudged it. That precious money, dedicated to a precious dream, had been expended in an even worthier cause. It had insured one of her children against a lifetime of lameness; it had helped buy back Murray's health.

It was not until her little family was successfully grown and had families of their own, that Ella and Murray dared to renew their old dream.

Once more, with her children gone now from the nest, did Ella, well along in her forties, stand at the window for that vicarious ecstacy of watching that enchanted road that rolled out to the Old World.

It meant beginning with a clean slate, now that their responsibilities to their children were ended and the whole four of them were embarked on their own struggles and destinies.

Murray, a portly fifty by now, was still at his vocation of salesman for the typewriter firm.

His salary did not suffice as it once had, even with the children gone, because the standards of living had advanced.

But by manipulation it was possible for the Hiltons to save enough out of their modest budget to begin afresh the accumulation of that nest-egg for Europe.

And mind you, it kept them young. At forty-five, there was still something eager and lifted and expectant to Ella's plump little face. There was something that Ella wanted terribly. It kept her full of desire. It kept her full of youth.

Even Murray, after nine hours of the enervating work of talking typewriters, could come home with the expected thrill of an exciting evening among guide books, steamship pamphlets and travel-lore that had to do with ivory, apes and peacocks.

Eight years after the marriage of their last and youngest child, the Murray Hiltons had one thousand three hundred and fifty dollars in the bank. One hundred fifty dollars short of the budget they had set for themselves for that trip to Europe.

Then, you know how it is.

NEVER any too successful in his business enterprises, the twin whose nervous system had early been inundated by the spinal menengitis, fell ill, and, without any too great resistance, died on the third day of his illness, leaving his pretty young wife with three small children and about to have another. What with the shock and a constitution none too strong herself, there ensued long struggles for this little lady when her baby was finally born. It meant, of course, taking the stricken group of three children, the new infant and the slowly-convalescing mother into the little flat that overlooked the harbor. It meant once more the imperative need of the nest-egg; it meant once more the temporary renunciation of the dream.

Once more, the little group they took into their home is on its feet, gone out into the world, and Ella and Murray are beginning again the accumulation of the nest-egg.

It is astonishing how young it keeps them. The horizon toward which the waves that Ella can see from her window are constantly rushing, is one that is lit with hope.

Ella and Murray are still on tiptoe about Life, they have started their nest-egg for that trip to Europe.

THE MIRROR OF THE MODE

By Mary Marshall.

The longer skirt for street wear is here shown in a frock of middy blue cloth worn with lingerie collar.

There is one big difference between the clothes worn by the women who really are fashionable and who make a point of following closely in the trail blazed by Paris—and those worn by innumerable girls and women who like clothes and must needs follow fashion at a greater distance. It is the difference you see between the woman at one of the really exclusive summer resorts and the women you see at the popular, crowded resorts.

This significant outstanding difference is one of skirt lengths. Women at the crowded, popular resorts seem to think that it is smart and fashionable to show their knees—at least when they sit down—and the women at the more exclusive resorts know that it isn't. Women of the first sort still think the longer skirt is dowdy and "old-looking," and women of the latter sort—most of them—feel that the very short skirt is passee.

It is out of the question to give a rule in inches from the ground for the fashionable skirt length, because this measurement must depend on the height of the individual. Tall women should, of course, have their skirts further from the ground than short women to produce the same effect. Besides, certain types of frock, certain fabrics require greater length than others. The important thing to remember, I think, is that knees are no longer in fashion They are indicated, not displayed, and this means when you are seated as well as when you stand.

Evening frocks are as a rule considerably longer than day dresses and sports clothes may be shorter than street frocks, although a prominent maker of sports apparel in Paris has insisted for several seasons that the skirt worn for golf should always be long enough to hide the ugly bending of the knees.

FAXORITE RECIPE

Recipe for
LEMON CREAM PIE
contributed by Gerald Potts, Marmora.

Roll out crust about ¼-in thick, mould into deep pie-dish and raise edges of crust all around. Bake in quick oven.

For filling, heat 1½ cups of water to which has been added 1 cup of sugar and the rind of one lemon. Let it come to the boiling point. In a separate dish, mix 1 cup of water, 1 large tablespoonful cornstarch and juice of 2 lemons. Stir out all lumps. When water is boiling, stir in the above slowly so that no lumps may result. When it is cooked it will stick to the spoon. Pour out into the baked shell and let cool to lukewarm. Beat the white of two well chilled eggs, until they are stiff. Add ¼ cup sugar to meringue and spread over pie. Bake in slow oven until meringue is browned slightly.

THE WHATNOT

A Place for Little Bits of Everything of Local Interest

EVEN if you don't like modernistic furniture—even if you quite decidedly dislike it—I think you will have to grant that some housewives with modernistic ideas have some very good ideas about window hangings. They usually use perfectly plain net of some sort, depending on the tint and the arrangement of the drapery of the fabric with the play of the light shining through to produce the desired design. In a south-end home where I called the other day I saw one set in simple diagonal draping that gives the effect of crossing lines.

In the same home I picked up another idea that seems worth passing on, while talking about curtains. A simple set of window side drapes is of heavy pongee with two-inch hems at the bottom, just touching the window sill. Through the hem had been run and fastened a sort of leaded tape that made the draperies hang quite heavily.

• • •

When heavy fabrics are used for drapery they have a tendency to hang out a little, and this can easily be remedied by the use of this tape to which are attached small lead balls, or fishline sinkers, to give it weight.

• • •

I was grumbling, a few days ago, about the difficulty of keeping my desk free from dust, and remarked that wiping it with cheese cloth often lays on more dust than was originally there. One of the party gave a tip that is worth passing on (I haven't had time to try it out yet, but it sounds good). Knitted material, she said, should be used for cleaning cloths, as they give off less lint and ravel and are more absorbent. Old lisle or cotton stockings can be slit down the back seam, folded over and stitched, two together, so that the cloth is four ply. Then the duster should be boiled thoroughly.

• • •

I was surprised this year to learn how many Peterborough gardens have their quota of mint. There seems to have been a regular revival of mint dishes this year; I have enjoyed them in so many places where I have been visiting. Mint jelly is delicious, and it is very easy to make. You make ordinary apple or crabapple jelly—which is the easiest of all jellies to "jell"—and before putting it into the glasses add some finely-chopped mint leaves. This is not the clear green mint jelly of the sort you buy, but it is the old-fashioned English mint jelly which is considered such an appropriate accompaniment to afternoon tea.

• • •

I remember during the war visiting on an old estate down in Devonshire where open sandwiches, spread with clotted cream and a neat little round of mint jelly on top, were served.

• • •

Then there is something cooling and refreshing about the smell of fresh mint, and a bunch of mint in the centre of the breakfast or luncheon table imparts a fresh clean smell to the room that seems to help jaded appetites. You might not approve a bouquet of mint leaves for the dinner table centre-piece, but it is most appropriate for the less formal meals of the day.

• • •

To Mrs. H. G. we are indebted for an idea that will keep lines off our foreheads for years. In the drawer of my desk I have a dozen little boxes containing rubber bands, pins, clips, stamps, stubs of pencils (which I shall never use, but never throw away) and other impedimenta of my profession and sex. The trouble is the boxes are always shifting around, and spilling, and getting mixed up every time I shut or open the drawer with a bang. Now along comes Mrs. H. G. with a perfectly scrumptious idea that will make my working day one long sweet song.

• • •

It's equally good, too, for dresser drawers, where it is desired to use boxes for hose, lingerie, etc., and for men who like boxes for ties, handkerchiefs and socks. Just place the boxes where you want them, and push thumb tacks through the bottom of them and into the wood of the drawer. Couldn't you slap yourself for not thinking of it before?

• • •

I tried pasting my boxes in, one time, but then after a while I wanted to change them around—and I had an awful time soaking the remains of the stuck-tight boxes off the bottom of the drawer.

• • •

Good-looking, and the last word in smartness, is the coolie coat of which I am this week offering diagram pattern and instructions for making. It can be made of challie, or crepe de chine, or of satin, and you can wear it for a beach coat, for a summer evening coat, for a negligee. The coupon is printed on this page.

The Art of Attraction

No. 21.

The deeper one goes into an analysis of the springs of human affection between the sexes the more one discovers the absolutely right fundamental instincts at their roots. Man was created as the protector and guardian of woman and she was created as his helpmate and companion. To protect is the major instinct in any man, and even the weak, small creature who marries a large, overbearing lady has followed this path. He has discovered, at some moment that probably never reasserts itself again, that he has the ability to help and protect her and the consciousness gives him a feeling of superiority that sends him through life tied to her side, wondering if the time will ever come when she will need him once more in the same way. The woman who can plant this mental decision in a man's mind has gone a long way toward capturing him for life. Physical size and a dominant manner will never displace the germ implanted by one moment of weakness and clinging to the strong oak which most men imagine themselves to be.

TRAVEL-LOG.

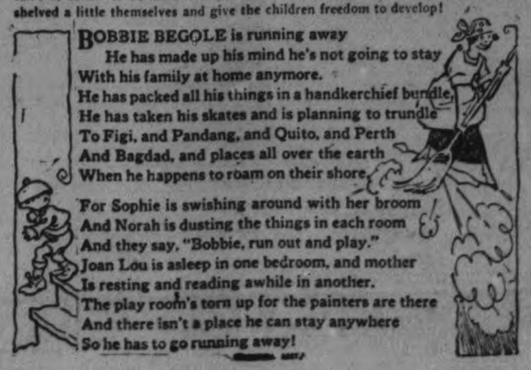
NEVER FAR TO SWITZERLAND.

Fancy making a trip to Europe and not seeing Switzerland! I am continually advising the folk who tell me they are going to spend the summer in England, or are going to Paris, that Switzerland ought to see them, at least for a few days. There is no reason why everyone who goes to Europe should not see the Alps. Of course, in one sense, Switzerland has no ports, but in another sense, every port in Europe is a port for Switzerland. You can reach it from Antwerp, Bordeaux, Cherbourg, Havre, Rotterdam, Bremen, Hamburg, Naples, Genoa, Marseilles, and even from London and the northlands. London is nearer to Geneva than Cleveland is to Boston. You have supper in Paris, and the next morning eat breakfast in Switzerland. You can spend your summer in England, if you must, but that need not prevent you from having a delightful week-end in Switzerland. If you want to go to Italy, you can go through Switzerland; if you want to go to Germany, you can go through Switzerland. If you land at a German or Italian port, you can go to France through Switzerland. Far more than to ancient Rome, all roads lead to Switzerland.

Running Away

By SHIRLEY RODMAN WILLIAMS

UNFORTUNATELY city life is arranged largely for the convenience of the adult. Apartments and flats are hardly planned with a thought for the children and there is room for very little in them which can be conveniently used and handled by little people. Then on top of that fact so many grown-ups want happy, healthy children, but they can't bear to see toys, books and playthings scattered around. They would put the child on a shelf to be taken down when they want him and then expect that child to develop normally and happily It can't be done. If we must live in crowded cities then let the grown-ups get shelved a little themselves and give the children freedom to develop!



BOBBIE BEGOLE is running away
He has made up his mind he's not going to stay
With his family at home anymore.
He has packed all his things in a handkerchief bundle,
He has taken his skates and is planning to trundle
To Figi, and Pandang, and Quito, and Perth
And Bagdad, and places all over the earth
When he happens to roam on their shore.

For Sophie is swishing around with her broom
And Norah is dusting the things in each room
And they say, "Bobbie, run out and play."
Joan Lou is asleep in one bedroom, and mother
Is resting and reading awhile in another.
The play room's torn up for the painters are there
And there isn't a place he can stay anywhere
So he has to go running away!

MARION'S MAIL.

"Dear Marion:

I have a problem that I would like to bring to you, but I feel that you must be awfully bored by receiving so many letters. If mine is just one too many, please forgive me, and don't bother about it.

If you loved a man dearly, Marion and you feel he loves you, would you marry him even though he gambles, drinks, dissipates and has no thought for the future? That is my problem, and I shall be awfully glad if you can give me some advice through your so interesting column.

Sincerely,
ZOE."

I am delighted, my dear Zoe, to receive so many letters, and they are really very interesting. I was never so pleased in my life as when my Saturday's mail brought me twenty-seven letters from readers, among them yours. In reply to your question, I would not. There probably have been men who "settled down" after marriage and became everything different from what they were before. So there have been white blackbirds and snowballs in August. But not many. The proof of love is service. If he loved you, Zoe, this chap would be willing to give up his loose habits and save money for a home. He wants to gamble, drink, run around nights, spend his money and throw responsibility to the winds—and have you too! Well, he can't. An intelligent girl sees a man reform first, if he needs it, and marries him afterward. Men sometimes reform for sweethearts; rarely for wives.

• • •

"Dear Marion:

I enjoy reading your columns every day, and while I don't agree with everything you write, I must admit that you have a way with you. No matter how logical your arguments against the "double standard" may be, I can't agree that girls should smoke, for instance. I think it is a filthy habit; certainly it never appealed to me. If a girl isn't decorous she loses a lot of her charm—and dear knows she needs all she can possibly cultivate these days!

I knit the bob socks you sent me directions for, and I think they are lovely. I don't agree, though, with the girls who are wearing them without stockings; do you? With skirts above their knees, and no stockings, some girls might as well be walking the streets in bathing suits—and if they did they would be arrested.

Yours truly,
BABSEY."

Thanks, Babsey, for your kind letter, and for the pretty card you enclosed. If everyone agreed on everything it would be a very uninteresting world, wouldn't it? I'm always glad to have a letter telling me the other side of a question I write about. About the bob socks, I don't think they are intended to be worn without stockings, but I know that they are—especially in the old country and on the continent. Several girls in Peterborough, too, have been brave enough to appear in that guise. You know, of course, that I am very liberal-minded about smoking, short skirts, and things like that. My code is that no really nice girl will do anything that is not nice—and we don't need to worry about any other kind. How's that?

Marion

If eggs to be boiled are cracked, add a little vinegar, or a spoonful of salt, to the water (or rub salt on the cracked shell before putting in water) and the whites will not come out. Boiling eggs in salt water also makes them peel easier if they are immediately dipped in cold water. Cracked eggs can also be boiled successfully if wrapped in waxed or oiled paper tied with string before placing in water.

Butter, oil or pure glycerine rubbed all over very fresh eggs will keep them fresh for some time.

Important—these hot days!

BETWEEN TWO LOVES.

By Duford Jenne.

"Ruth, I don't believe it!" Gladys said quickly, startled and shocked by her friend's words.

"But it's true, Gladys, and I thought I ought to tell you. If Elmore doesn't love you enough to take care of your mother, I don't think he is worthy of you; for we all know of the love between you and your mother. Yes, I was in the office, and Elmore was chatting with Blake; and I heard him say distinctly: 'I don't know what to do with Gladys' mother.' And the fact that you have been engaged for three years shows something, too. He has been making a fair salary right along—what is he doing with it?"

After Ruth had gone, Gladys sat alone in her room and pondered the situation, and as she thought, her mood darkened. Something was wrong. It had been a long engagement, and when, out of her longing to have Elmore with her, she had suggested in indirect ways that she wished they could have a home together, he had evaded her suggestion. It had never occurred to her that her mother might be the obstacle.

"Not even Elmore is dearer to me than you, mother dear, and between you and him, I can make a quick choice," Gladys thought to herself. "But I don't—I don't want to give him up!" her heart told her almost with a cry.

The rest of the afternoon the problem raced back and forth in her mind. It seemed so logical, the explanation of Elmore's action on the basis of what Ruth had heard. Yet Gladys had never dreamed that Elmore had ever thought of separating them. They had been so happy together over the many years since her father died.

"If mother knew that such a thing as this was happening, it would break her heart," Gladys warned herself, "and I must not let a hint of it reach her. I will talk with Elmore, though."

That evening when her fair-haired, smiling lover held her in his arms just before leaving after his visit, she ventured to touch upon the subject that was troubling her.

"Dear, is there any reason—any real reason why we can't have a home together now? I hate to ask you this way," she said gently, "but I want you to be frank with me."

His gray eyes grew suddenly sober, and his manner changed. "In good time, sweetheart, in good time. It's the waiting that bothers, I know, but we'll work it out. Now, you leave it to me."

She stood in the doorway long after he had vanished into the fragrant dusk. He was keeping something from her—that was evident; and the swift change in him when she sought to find out the real reason for the delay—that was significant also. There could be just one reason—he did not want her mother in their home. That was the reason that explained everything in his attitude.

Troubled in mind and in heart, she did not know what to do. But by the end of the next day, she had reached her decision; and alone in her room she wrote Elmore a brief note telling him what she had heard and informing him that she could not bear to think of leaving her mother or living apart from her after their long years of companionship. Then, after effort, she added the sentence that broke the engagement between them.

As she slipped down the stairs, her mother came into the hall.

"Gladys, Elmore telephoned that he was coming over," her mother said smiling, her gentle, motherly face brightened with pleasure.

Gladys stopped short. "Mother, please tell him not to come. I really don't want to see him."

"Why, child, is—is there something wrong?" her mother asked with sudden concern.

"Nothing, much, mother mine. You just 'phone him," Gladys said hastily, slipping out. "I'm going to the mailbox."

When she returned, she stole into her room, her heart too full to risk even meeting her mother. As she sat beside the window, she heard Elmore's voice and her mother's talking in the garden.

"She is worried, my boy, over something," her mother's sweet voice was saying.

"I don't blame her. I guess we might as well let her into the secret. The house is about finished, anyway—your rooms are O. K., and Gladys and I can get along. How'd you like the rooms?" Elmore's cheery voice asked.

"Oh, so much. It will seem like heaven to be with you and Gladys——"

"And we will be sure glad to have you! What a family we will make!" he broke in gaily. "Now I'll hunt up Gladys. She ought to have come by this time."

Gladys was athrill with her discovery. She knew now. He had been building a house for them. Her mother was in the secret; and it was to be a surprise. But when he came in, and gathered her in his arms, she made him tell the story over again; and then she asked: "But didn't you tell Blake that you didn't know what to do with mother?"

"Ah! I see—I see what put the shadows in your brown eyes, Honey," he said, slowly. "Listen. Blake is a house designer, and I said I wasn't sure know to give your mother some privacy and yet have her one of us; but Blake told me. You see?"

Gladys pulled his blonde head down to hers and kissed him. "Oh, my dear—I do—I do!" And with the words that came from the deeps of her heart the shadows of doubt vanished. Instead of choosing between two loves, she could keep both.

A Tip or Two

A LARGE SAMPLE.

If you are undecided as to the new paper for your room, try a large sample of your selection in the room before deciding. Reflected light from an adjoining wall, roof or lawn may change the color entirely and you will be dissatisfied with the results when the paper is hung.

HOW TO PRESERVE OLD PAPERS NEATLY.

A neat and orderly way to keep old newspapers and magazines so they are ready for your particular junk man is to have boxes a little larger than the average folded newspaper. Keep two strings crossed at right-angles in the box. Lay the accumulated papers in on the strings and when the pile is large enough the strings may be tied. The piles of newspapers will never be disorderly if this method is employed.

RAYBESTOS AND COGS IN TIE FOR HONORS

COGNAWAGAS PLAY BELOW USUAL FORM

10-6 Victory For Rays Makes Third Game Necessary.

MEET AGAIN TO-DAY.

Winner To Meet Hastings in Home and Home Games.

Raybestos tied up their playoff series with Cognawagas last night, with a 10 to 6 score, making a third game necessary this afternoon to decide a winner to meet Hastings for the E.P.L. championship. The victor of to-day's game plays in Hastings this evening. The second contest is billed for Exhibition Park to-morrow evening.

Last night's engagement was not up to the mark. Cogs, it was seen were off their stride in the first frame. With Vannest far below form and his infield suffering from a bad case of nerves, the Rays got a run and a whole lot of encouragement. Vannest went to the left garden in the second, and Billingsley took up the burden. When he finally retired the side the Rays had eight more runs.

The lead looked good, and in the fourth, Maudsley who had held the Cogs safe, went out to the garden, and Masterson took the mound. Corbett's fly was dropped by Corrin, and the pitcher walked Vannest and Rooke to load the sacks. Back came Maudsley to the box and his infield crowded in. Before the Rays awakened to the seriousness of their style of defense, the Cogs had whistled two singles through the infielders which with an error, went for five runs.

The Rays helped themselves to another run in the fourth, on Corrin's single, Moore's double and Masterson's infield out and Cogs did their final scoring in the fifth on Wilson's single a pass to Corbett and Billingsley's hit. Both pitchers finished the game without being scored on.

OUTLAWS WIN PLAY-OFF PLACE

Beat St. Andrew's 29-15 in Third Attempt To Reach Decision.

POOR EXHIBITION.

(Examiner Staff Correspondence)

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 15—Three times there have been attempts made to decide who would be the winners of the second game of the semi finals of the local softball league. Twice the games were called on account of darkness, but last night there was no doubt left in anyone's mind as to who would meet the Clerks on Thursday night. The game was only seven innings, but the Outlaws took in the Church men in that length of time to the tune of twenty nine to fifteen. The game was one of the poorest exhibitions of soft ball that has been playde during the last part of the season. Each team was one man short and this left a wide gap in the field since each decided to use only two men there maintain a complete infield.

St. Andrews batted first and rang up four runs, while Outlaws managed to get only one. But the tune was changed and the Outlaws began counting by eights and sevens till it was unnecessary for them to take their last turn at the bat. Massie for St. Andrews was the first to get a home run and in the sixth frame, Irwin got another which was the only run scored by St. Andrews that innings. Horkins for the Otulaws upheld the honors when he got a homer in the sixth. There were occasions when three baggers looked like homers, but the runner came in on an error each time.

There has been an unsuccessful amount of interest shown in the soft ball this season and the number of fans present last night was perhaps smallest for the past series. It is expected that the Thursday night game will draw a large crowd and on Monday night, everyone who ever even heard of softball is expected to be present. This is to be a benefit game for players who have been injured during the season's play. It will be the second and probably the last of the finals and ,therefore of the season.

The line ups:—

St. Andrews—J. Storie p., W. Blue c., C. Irwin 1b., P. Bland 2b., C. McArthur 3b., C. Massie ss., D. Grills rf., A. Little lf.

Outlaws—D. Maybee p., H. Lambert c., C. Haig 1b., E. Bush, 2b., T. B. Horkins 3b., S. Flint ss., B. Ibey rf., O. Sarginson lf.

Score by innnings:—

St. Andrews .. 413 201 4—14 24 5

KNIGHTS WIN 9-8 DECISION FROM THE STOREMEN

VIEWS ON SPORT

Be on hand at the Kiwanis-game in James Stevenson Park to-night. Game will be called at 5:15 sharp.

A new schedule has been announced for the City Softball League, which winds up the regular games for the season. As a new ruling the executive have decided that any club that does not field a team on the date that they are scheduled to play will default the game.

* * * * * *

The game that was played in Confederation Park last night was a scheduled softball game, although many of the spectators thought they were witnessing a gridiron battle, judging from the rugby tactics used by some of the players.

* * * * * *

To-night is the night of nights, as far as the Juvenile League goes, when the Kiwanis and Oshawa meet in the second game of the play-offs at James Stevenson Park. The youngsters are a bit touchy over their defeat on Saturday, and are out to fight the visitors to the bitter end. Woods will be on the mound, and given any kind of support by his team mates, the Kiwanis have every chance of equalling the series.

* * * * * *

The Cogs were far below their usual form last night, and lost the second game of the E.P.L. play-off series by a 10-6 count. Vannest was off his stride and his support was suffering from a bad case of nerves. Last night's victory for the Raybestos necessitates a third game, which will be played this afternoon, the winner to play in Hastings to-night and here again to-morrow night.

* * * * * *

Playing wonder ball throughout the whole season, the Royals are out to repeat their past performances when they meet the Kingston Victorias in their return game in the Junior O.B.A.A. play-offs here to-morrow night at James Stevenson Park. Kitchen is slated to do the hurling, and his team mates can be relied upon to do their utmost in the way of supporting their moundsman.

AUSTRALIAN TEAM CAPTURES HONORS

Defeat Canadian Davis Cup Forces in Exhibition Games.

MONTREAL, Que., August 15 (Canadian Press). — The visiting Australian Davis Cup tennis team romped off with all the honors in the exhibition matches with the Canadian Davis Cup forces at the Mount Royal Tennis Club yesterday afternoon. Jack Crawford took the opening singles exhibition from Gilbert Nunns 6-4, 4-6, 7-5, 6-4; Harry Hapman defeated Dr. Art Ham, 6-1, 3-6 10-8 in the second singles match and just when Willard Crocker and Jack Wright were pointing to a victory in the doubles, Patterson and Hawkes, the Australian pair, evened the score at two sets all and the match was called on account of darkness. Canada won the first set, 6-3, and the third by the same score, and the Australians took the second set, 6-1, and the fourth, 7-5. The Crawford-Nunns match and the doubles were scheduled for five sets, and the Hopman-Ham set-to for three.

Rather a poor crowd was present to watch the first day's play of the exhibition, but those who sat through an afternoon of sweltering heat were richly rewarded by five hours of sparkling tennis, climaxed by a brilliant doubles duel between the aces of the two squads that unfortunately had to be concluded in a somewhat unsatisfactory draw.

Crocker and Wright were in unbeatable form in the first set of the doubles. Before the visitors got quite settled, they had raced through with a 6-3 victory that was more easily won than the score would indicate. The visitors took a few games to settle down and Wright and Crocker hardly needed their opponents' errors to count points, so perfectly did they score on clean placement shots. The Canadian pair swept through the last three games of the set and although the Australians put up a bitter fight in the ninth game, the set victory went to Canada after a deuce struggle.

Patterson and Hawkes rallied to sweep through the second set with the loss of but a single game, but at the start of the third, Canada took the upper hand again and seemed well on the road to victory. After getting the count to 4-1 in the third set, Crocker and Wright eased off for the next two games and then took two straight games to put them one up.

Canada Rallies.

Hawkes started the fourth set by winning his own service and then Canada rallied to take the next three games. But here their supremacy ended. Wright became alarmingly erratic and the excellent combination of the Canadians was broken up completely. Patterson and Hawkes, sensing the turn, put everything they had into the game, scoring clean placements and forcing their opponents into errors repeatedly to finally tie the set score at the tenth game and eventually win, 7-5. The failing light then made it impossible to continue, and the match was called.

Nunns and Crawford staged a dingdong battle in the opening exhibition of the afternoon, and there was little to choose between the pair. Both adhered doggedly to a base-line game and while this system of play naturally resulted in a rather colorless display at times, the fine rallies staged by the pair saved the match completely from monotony. Nunns lost on errors, for the Australian was steadier throughout and had the extra reserve to come through each time the Toronto player made a bid for victory.

Dr. Ham and Harry Hopman staged a see-saw battle that was surprising for the swift turns of fortune it witnessed. Hopman literally smashed his way to victory in the first set, driving through Ham for a 6-1 win and seemingly able to take the match pretty much as he pleased.

The second set, however, told a decidedly different story. Ham had sized up his opponent's play perfectly in the opening set, and in the second contented himself with playing a steady, careful game, waiting for his opponent to make the errors that would give him his points. Hopman dropped the second set, 3-6.

The third set saw the best tennis of the singles matches and went to 18 games before the Australian emerged the winner. Several times the pair broke through each other's services only to drop the advantage on next game. Hopman took Ham's service in the 17th game and then swept through with a love game to capture the match. His last point was a clean placement and the second last a scorching ace that had Ham completely beaten.

LEADERS WIN DOUBLE GAMES

Giants Defeat Cubs 10-2 and Cardinals Win From Braves 6-1.

NATIONAL LEADERS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15 (Canadian Press).—The Giants overpowered the Cubs by main force in the opening game of the series at Chicago yesterday, when Root, Jones, Carlson, Holley and Weinart were pounded for 15 hits as the clan McGraw romped off with the decision by 10 to 2. The New Yorkers failed to improve their standing in the pennant race, as the Cardinals defeated the Braves. The St. Louis' lead over the Giants is two and one-half games.

Grover Cleveland Alexander's return to the mound yesterday after a period of illness was marked by a 6 to 1 victory for the Cardinals over the Boston Braves. The triumph allowed the St. Louis club to cling to its narrow lead of two and a half games in the National League race.

While Alexander allowed seven hits, he held the upper hand throughout the contest. In the meantime the Red Birds were rapping three hurlers for ten safeties. The Pirates made it two straight over the Robins at Pittsburgh, winning by 4 to 2. Doug. McWeeny started and fell into the official blame for the defeat, his sixth in succession, four of which were scored by the Pirates. Carmen Hill would have had a shutout but for Traynor's wild throw in the first when Del Bissonette tripled with two on to score two unearned runs after the side should have been retired. Hill gave only six hits.

Philadelphia evened up the series at one all with Cincinnati, defeating the Reds 6 to 4. Two Phillie runs were scored when Southern got credit for a single when his bat connected with the ball while trying to dodge a pitch. The hit scored two runners.

Veteran Boxer Will Return To Ring

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 15 (Canadian Press).—"Ed. Kid" Lewis, English middleweight, will return to Boston after an absence of many years next Tuesday night, when he clashes with Arthur Flynn, the Lawrence school boy, in the ten-round feature bout at Braves' Field.

Lewis, during his long boxing career, has held five British championships, from featherweight to light heavyweight. He once defeated Jack Britton, then welterweight champion of the world. Lewis returned to this country from England, where he scored knockouts over Frank Moody, British middleweight, and nine other European boxers.

STAR PLAYER IS ELIMINATED

Warren Corkran Beaten By His Compatriot, A. Brodbeck of Mount Vernon.

AT MONTREAL.

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 15. —(Canadian Press.)—Victory for J. H. Mountifield, of Edmonton, over Norman M. Scott, Royal Montreal, on the fifth extra hole and the elimination of B. Warren Corkran, a strong United States' threat for the title by his compatriot, A. Brodbeck, of Mount Vernon, N.Y., were outstanding performances in the first round match play of the Canadian amateur golf championship at Summerlea yesterday.

Outside of these two contests and an all-Montreal struggle in which J. Watson Yuile rallied after being two down at the 16th and defeated his club mate, J. A. Fuller on the 37th, the scores were decisive with those favored to advance in the championship moving to the second round as expected, but in several cases by margins that were a bit breath-taking.

Of the sixteen remaining in the tourney Ontario retains the numerical advantage at least, with seven stars drawn in the second round play. Quebec had six of its golfers eliminated in the first round, but there are four from clubs of this province who survived to-day's contests. The United States qualified seven players Monday, but lost three in to-day's eliminations. Western Canada's representation was pruned to one, Jimmy Mountifield being the lone color-bearer, though the Edmonton lad appears a formidable challenger.

Approximate medal scores yesterday were well down, the course record just missing a cut when H. Borthwick, of Welland, missed a short putt on the 36th hole which would have given him a 69 for his second 18, one under par and the course mark. While the approximate scores were good in many cases the majority of the matches lacked thrills as the element of a close battle was missing from many of the contests, the eventual winners taking comfortable margins early in the morning rounds and holding them in the majority of cases.

Three matches provided stubborn battles, the Scott-Mountifield match, the Corkran-Brodbeck match and the Yuile-Fuller contest. Fred Hoblitzel, of Lambton, Toronto, found himself up against a stiff obstacle in Maurice Hodgson, of Royal Montreal. The Dixie golfer held Hoblitzel all square on the first 18 holes and would have been one up at the halfway mark had not Dame Fortune been with the Lambton star on the home hole when his ball found the creek, hit a stone and ricochetted out and up on the green. However, Hodgson could not keep pace with Hoblitzel's golf in the afternoon and went out of the picture 5 and 3.

Mountifield and Scott waged a terrific struggle in which the tide of victory swayed one way and then the other, with dramatic suddenness. The climax came with the play on the extra holes in which both contestants became nervous and a battle, which should have ended with an easy victory for Scott on the second extra hole, went three more before Mountifield, who had his chance at the fourth extra hole and muffed it, finally earned promotion to the second round.

The pair had concluded the first 18 holes all square and maintained the stubborn fight as they battled over the first nine of the second round, with Mountifield making the turn one up. On the final nine the tide swayed further until, coming to the first tee, Scott was one up. But Scott topped and his ball went into a ditch, Mountified winning the hole and forcing the extra holes for a decision. The first extra hole was halved in par 5's. On the second Mountifield drove into the rough. He came out well, but Scott's second was to within 12 feet of the pin while Mountifield, after a chip up and an approach putt was lying four and facing elimination, as Scott had two putts in which to cover the 12 feet between his ball and the cup and win. He played too safely, took three puts and the hole was halved. At the third extra hole, both were on in two, with Mountifield's ball on the edge, of the green and stymied by Scott's ball. The Edmonton lad chipped over but overran the hole two feet.

Scott's putt overran the hole, his ball knocking Mountifield's away. After some discussion over rules the balls were placed side by side, one was lifted and each putted for a half. It was at the fourth extra hole that Mountifield found the green from the tee. Scott was off to the left in the rough and chipped to the opposite side of the green. He missed his long putt. Mountifield seemed certain of a safe three and victory. But he showed signs of the nervousness which had upset Scott on the 36th and struggled with three putts on green for a half. Both played the 41st poorly, Scott put his second over the green and Mountifield went to the left into a trap. He came out well and was down for a five. Scott pitched across the green, putted too far and missed on the short return, losing the hole and the match.

Once those two got into the heat of the struggle and were joined by a large gallery the golf became a little loose, there was too much strain, but after the 41 holes they battled in a magnificent fight. Scott, a sturdy match player, found a worthy foe in the tall, slim westerner, a golf stylist whose form has drawn much favorable comment since he started in tourney play here last Saturday. Incidentally, Scott's elimination by Mountfield broke up what was becoming a regular combination. The two were paired in the Interprovincoal match at Dixie Saturday. They were paired in the qaulifying round for the championship at Summerlea Monday and the luck of the draw brought them together again yesterday.

YANKS RETAIN LEAGUE LEAD

American Leaders Both Lose Yesterday's Games in Pennant Race.

RUTH GETS 44TH.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15 (Canadian Press).—The Yankees collapsed before the fine pitching of Grady Adkins in the first game of the Chicago series here yesterday, 5 to 2, but might have chosen a worse spot in which to lose. The Athletics again fell before Elam Van Gilder and Detroit, enabling the champions to retain their lead of four and a half games over the Mackmen.

Babe Ruth wasted his forty-fourth home run, but stepped into a lead of 15 games, 19 days and 8 homers over his old record pace after going through seven contests without a circuit blow. He now needs 17 homers in 41 games to break his record.

The game was a pitching duel until the eighth inning between Adkins and Fred Heimach, New York lefthander from St. Paul. The home pitcher weakened in the last two rounds.

"Sad Sam" Jones held the St. Louis Brown to four hits, Washington taking the first of the series 3 to 0 at Washington. Stewart was touched for 12 hits but fast fielding behind him, including three double plays, held the scoring down.

The Athletics lost to the Detroit Tigers by a score of 4 to 1 yesterday, thus losing a chance to cut into the four and a half game lead of the New York Yankees who were defeated by Chicago.

Howard Ehmke, who started for the Mackmen, was wild and ineffective.

Singles by Langford, Hodapp and Summa, together with Joe Sewell's double, gave Cleveland two runs in the first inning and enabled it to beat the Red Sox 2 to 1 at Boston in the second game of their series.

Uhle held Boston to five hits, and the Sox's only run came in the first inning as the result of singles by Rothrock and Rogell and a wild pitch.

BABE VINCENT PITCHES WELL

Holds Toronto Planters Down While Pitching For Belleville Beavers.

Babe Vincent, Peterborough's famous softball pitcher, again made a good showing with the Beavers of Belleville when they played the Planters ladies' team of Toronto in Belleville on Saturday. While Babe did not pitch the whole game, there were no breaks for the Toronto softballers while she did play.

As the Belleville Intelligencer reports: "Babe Vincent started on the mound for the Beavers, and while she took things easy, the Planters could do nothing with her delivery. Strike-outs were few, Miss Vincent getting most of them."

TECO LACK FINAL PUNCH

Clubmen Overtake Early Lead of Eaton Boys in Fifth Inning.

HURLING POOR.

The Knights of Columbus although out of the running trimmed the Teco men by the close score of 9-8 last night in softball at Confederation Park. Shaking the jinx that has been hovering over them during the summer they got the jump on the Eaton boys in the fifth and clung to it to clinch the game. The storemen meanwhile after a flying start fell back into their slump with which they have been endowed with during the last few games.

Scates started on the mound for Teco and played nice ball for six innings when his arm began to bother him and he lost control, forcing in a run, Dormer replaced him but could not find the range for a while and as the bases were full and he walked the first man he pitched to it, forcing in the second run, making a brace of complimentaries in one innings. Darling pitched the entire game for K. of C. and while not sensational was effective, playing a steady game.

Both teams started off with a big opener, the K. of C. scoring two runs and Max Board, Teco first baseman hig a clean homer with two on, so scoring three runs for Eaton and Co., in the first. The scoring of Sanders in the second and of White in the fourth gave the Teco a three handicap and it looked bad for the Knights. But in the fifth Teco went to pieces and K. of C. enjoyed a slugging match the nine men having a trip to the plate scoring four runs Logan, Murphy, Mat Clancy and Darlington crossing the fourth sack. In the sixth Clancy and Darling were presented with a couple of tallys on behalf of the Teco team, while in the eighth, Logan travelled the circuit on errors making the ninth counter for the Knights. Teco was held scoreless until the last half of the eighth when Sexsmith hit a double and White reached first on Darling's error and Dormer polled out a long one in left field that went for a homer to bring the score up to eight a deficit of one run but they lacked the scoring punch to bring in the winning tally.

Mat. Clancy was so anxious to knock a home run that on his third strike the willow left his hand and sailed over the ropes while the ball rested comfortably in White's hands and Clancy was out. Murphy for the K. of C. also was ambitious for a homer and leaned on one so hard that half of the club remained in his hands while the rest of it buried itself at the pitcher's feet, however he reached first safely and travelled to third when he was put out coming home.

Murphy at second played an air tight game for the K. of C. while LeBarr at first did his usual marathons to get the long ones that came anywhere near first or somewhere in right field. He chased them all and got most of them. Bennett in left field for the same crew shattered many hopes when they started on a long journey around the sacks because of what looked like a hit, instead Bennett pulled them from the air for a putout. Mike Clancy at third played an airtight game for the winners.

Maher in centre field for the losers played hard and turned in practically an errorless game. Board at first was going good and was beaten out by close decisions. White behind the plate was on his toes and Edgar at short only had one error.

Teco simply lacked the punch and seemed to be like men in a trance on the field for most of the game. They lacked the old pep which they showed at the first of the season. It was a tough game to lose when they were on the fine edge of disaster to be beaten by a team already out of the running, while it was a great game for the K. of C. to win.

The game was called at the end of the eighth innings because of darkness.

The lineups:—

Teco —White c., Dormer lf. p., Board 1b., Edgar ss., Maher cf., Bradshaw 3b, Scates p. rf., Sexsmith 2b., Sanders lf. cf.

K. of C.—Logan c., Murphy 2b., Connors ss., Mike Clancy 3b., LeBarr 1b., Lynch cf., Ben. Bennett lf., Mat Clancy rf., Darling p.

Score by innings:

K. of C. ..... 2 0 0 0 4 2 0 1—9
Teco ..... 3 1 0 1 0 0 0 3—8

Umpires—Haskell at the plate and Calladine on the bases.

THE ST. LAWRENCE SHIPWAY

An Address by the Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C.

I propose to address you upon a great and urgent undertaking which confronts the people of the North American Continent; that is, the construction of the shipway from the Great Lakes to the Sea—a project larger in its undertaking and potentialities than the Panama Canal.

The Canadian, National Advisory Committee's recommendations for the development of St. Lawrence Power indicated a sense of loyalty to Canadian interests, and a caution in safeguarding, Canadian rights.

Only two main features present themselves in the report, which are:—

Firstly: Development of Canadian sections by Canadian interests, through public or private ownership.

Secondly: Absorption of the power thus developed by Canadian users before the international development is undertaken.

The Committee's report to the Government is briefly, Canadian development of the sections within Canadian territory first, and these recommendations, the Government apparently feels are acceptable. This plan too, is not much different from the idea of the Conservative Convention's proposal of an all-Canadian development, as the only section recommended by the Committee, to be constructed under International agreement, is the short distance where the St. Lawrence flows between the Canadian and United States shores.

It cannot be seriously questioned that the provinces possess the right to develop power from the waters flowing within their boundaries. Such being the case, Quebec naturally wishes her power development undertaken through private interests, as the Quebec people have never been sympathetic to public ownership schemes. Any attempt to enter upon the scheme as a publicly owned undertaking, paid for from the Treasury of Canada, and from the taxation of Canadian business, would create immediate hostility in Quebec. The Quebec Government's plan of development, is for private interests to develop the power, construct the canals for navigation purposes, along the lines required by the Dominion Government for shipping, and then to hand over the canals to the Crown without cost to be used in the proposed shipway scheme. To protect the public interest, the Government will control the form and manner of construction, and will generally safeguard, not only Provincial rights, but also the Dominion requirements.

That private capital will be used instead of borrowing and adding many hundreds of millions to Canada's National debt, has unquestionably met the approval of the leaders of financial and business affairs in Canada.

Ontario has now such huge investment in the publicly owned Hydro Electric Developments, which are under the Ontario Government control, that it is likely that the Ontario Commission will be anxious to construct and develop the Ontario section independently of any United States assistance.

Senator McDougald, the Chairman of the Montreal Harbor Board and a noted authority upon shipping, recently made a speech in the Canadian Senate which was remarkable for its carefully reasoned figures, and sensational in its effects.

He declared that 4,000,000 potential horsepower of electric energy running to waste, existed upon the Canadian side of the St. Lawrence, while upon the United State's shore, there was 1,000,000 horsepower.

In view of the fact that Senatore McDougald is a member of the St. Lawrence Development Advisory Committee, appointed by the Federal Government, and the other important positions which he occupies, his views carry the greatest authority and undoubtedly command a great deal of respect.

He gave as his considered opinion, that the deepening of the St. Lawrence Waterways would not injuriously affect the movement of shipping at the Port of Montreal, but on the contrary would steadily increase the volume of shipping, reaching that port.

The Government of the Province of Ontario and Quebec through their respective Prime Ministers, at the Inter-Provincial conference held at Ottawa last summer, asserted very emphatically their claims to the ownership of the power generated from the flowing waters within the confines of their respective provinces.

The Dominion Government through the Honorable Ernest LaPointe, Minister of Justice discussed the matter, but he did not admit provincial ownership of these waters. Prime Minister Taschereau and Prime Minister Ferguson clearly indicated that they were united in their claims of Provincial ownership and intended to contest any claim that the Canadian Government might make to the ownership of the potential power.

As a consequence the two Prime Ministers obtained the legal opinions of two eminent counsel, Aime Geoffrion, Esq., K.C., and W. N. Tilley, Esq., K.C., who stated, in effect, their opinion that the provinces did own the power generated from the waters, providing that the development of such power did not interfere with the right of navigation upon the waters.

The Dominion Government then submitted to the Supreme Court of Canada a series of questions, the answer to which will disclose the extent of Dominion and Provincial rights to the power generated from the St. Lawrence River, lying wholly within Canadian territory.

I think it may be assumed, that generally speaking, the opinion of such outstanding counsel as Messrs. Geoffrion and Mr. Tilley, might be accepted as being of much weight. From my study of authorities, I feel, that their opinions are sound.

If they are, then only one result follows: The provinces have the right to develop their own power, if provision is made that no interference with navigation takes place.

The Beauharnois Power Company's bill which recently passed the Legislative Assembly of Quebec indicates that Prime Minister Taschereau has no doubts, for this Company was given additional authority to its franchise to develop power in the Cedar Rapids area, subject to the control of the Quebec Government. In return the Company will construct and turn over to the Crown a section of canal, to connect Lake St. Francis and Lake St. Louis, which could be used as part of the St. Lawrence Deep Waterways project.

One cannot avoid the conclusion that this or a similar plan may meet the objections of those who fear an agreement with the United States may lead to our losing much of our surplus power, to the advantage of United States' industrial and commercial interests.

Building the canal in sections in Canada and developing the power as needed would remove, too, the objection that the spending of approximately five hundred million dollars upon the whole work and awaiting a power market, would run up costs to such a figure as to make the cost of power prohibitive. By this method the Canadian sections would cost the Public Treasury nothing at all.

The St. Lawrence Development as an international undertaking is the United States way. Mr. Isaac F. Marcosson, an eminent American Journalist, in the Easter Saturday Evening Post, states that the scheme is backed by twenty-two States of the union and affects nearly half of the United States' population in some way.

One has only to compare the power rates in hundreds of United States' Cities to find that their rates are double and even treble what we pay. At least forty million people in the United States, chiefly in the industrial sections are suffering from a shortage of power. This shortage is a serious handicap upon the United States industrial and commercial development.

On the other hand, Canada has untold riches in power. This may be made as an attractive inducement as her free farm lands formerly were, to attract capital for the development of Canada.

The real situation is, that the Honorable Mr. Hoover is attempting to rush the scheme into acceptance by Canada, to ride into the White House upon it next November, with a perpetual gift by Canada of at least 1,500,000 horsepower to the United States.

Nor has the United States' Government taken one friendly step toward preventing the steal of our power and the injury to our shipping by the Chicago Drainage Canal.

The time is ripe for the Canadians to keep for Canadians her rich heritage. Nearly all our dealings with the United States, in the end have been, to say the least, unpleasant. I need not mention any more than the New Brunswick and Maine Boundary dispute, and the Alaska-British Columbia Boundary Arbitration, to show how over-reaching United States' Governments have been.

Keeping our power in Canada will force United States' capital to develop Canadian industry, rather than develop industry in the United States with Canada's power.

Quebec opinion is not sympathetic to public ownership. It prefers the competition of private ownership, under Government control. The Beauharnois Power Company's franchise is one instance of this, and the Montreal Light, Heat and Power Company's development is another.

Ontario as to power development and distribution is generally, sympathetic and friendly to public ownership along the lines of the Hydro Electric Power Commission. The Commission owns power undertakings of over $200,000,000, and has an annual revenue from its capital investments of about $35,000,000.

There is one million horse power for Ontario, and one million horse power for the United States on the international section, while all the rest is in Quebec, and there is no reason why Ontario can not buy its power from developments in Quebec, at $15.00 which is cheaper than she can develop.

The Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission is now purchasing up to 320,000 horse power, of Gatineau energy at $15.00 per horse power and will transmit it from Ottawa to Toronto and serve intervening points. There is 1,000,000 horse power available at the Gatineau, so why heavy expenditures for other early developments such as the International section of St. Lawrence should be made by the Canadian people is something most people cannot understand. Even such power as might be developed on the Trent Canal system has been abandoned because of the cheap power immediately available in Ontario.

A Joint Commission was constituted in 1924 by Canada and the United States to report on this subject. The Commission appointed three eminent engineers on each side to go into the matter. The three Canadian engineers made a report a year ago, the details of which are just published, the complete improvement of the St. Lawrence for electric power and a 25-foot waterway would cost $582,000,000. This was their estimate. Never in the history of the world has a big work of construction been completed within the original estimate. The Panama Canal was estimated at $100,000,000; it cost $450,000,000. The Chicago Drainage Canal estimate was $16,000,000; the cost was $92,000,000. The Welland Canal, our own work, was estimated to cost $55,000,000; it is costing $115,000,000. The Manchester Ship Canal cost more than double the estimate.

It may be taken for a certainty that the St. Lawrence development, estimated at $582,000,000, will cost $800,000,000 to one thousand millions.

Hydro Electric enterprises in Canada represent a greater investment than any single manufacturing industry, the total installation being approximately 5,000,000 horse power representing an investment of over $900,000,000 and the estimated possible installation through Canada is over 43,000,000 horsepower or about nine times our present installation.

The Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission's last report shows it's average daily sales of electric energy to:

Toronto	169.044 H.P.
Hamilton	28,453 H.P.
London	20,380 H.P.
Peterborough	4,904 H.P.

From these figures one can see how great a development is possible as we expand industrially.

With a straight drop of 165 feet to the gorge below—a width at the crest of 4000 feet—a water flow of about 70 million gallons per minute—Niagara is admittedly the greatest fall of water in the world.

Goat Island, about 1300 feet in width, divides the water at the very edge of the Falls. On the American side runs a channel 1000 feet in width, over which falls about 6% of the total flow. On the Canadian side the channel spreads to a width of 3000 feet, and here 94% of the stream hurtles over the Horseshoe Falls.

The Niagara Power Service long-distance transmission lines are now insulated for 110,000 volts. With this voltage, the system has a capacity to transmit 500,000 horsepower—much more than is now available.

From the beginning, the transmission system has grown apace with progress in electrical engineering. The company today has in operation more than 1300 miles of high voltage circuits. This vast system covers 17 counties in New York State, reaching 2,000,000 people in more than 500 cities, towns, villages and lighting district.

It has been estimated that two and one half million horse power of the 6 millions horse power available at Niagara could be developed at very low costs, without affecting the scenic beauty of the Falls, and then leave remaining sufficient water to flush the ice over the Falls and through Niagara River to Lake Ontario. Treaty limitation at present prevents this development, but why the question of this development is not being studied and efforts made to remove these artificial limitations, is something for consideration. More than that this power would be available for distribution in the very centre of Ontario's most highly developed industrial area.

The methof of procedure suggested by Canadian Advisory Committee is as follows:—

The Committee is cognizant of the fact that the plan of procedure herein outlined necessarily involves consideration of the problems of the Province of Ontario from the standpoint of power supply during the interval between the development of the national section and of the international. We believe the situation justifies consideration of the present problem from the broad national standpoint of both the provinces concerned, and that in the national interests such arrangements should be made as will enable Ontario to secure her power requirements for eastern territory from the purely Canadian section of the river pending the development of the international reaches. We are of the opinion that, in the light of the good understanding presently obtaining between the two provinces, this would not be difficult of arrangement, and that power could be thus secured at rates which will compare most favourably with present cost of Ontario power.

In consideration of the economic aspect, we have given some thought to the question of possible export of power. As to that we would say that we are in complete accord with the feeling throughout Canada that export of power should not be permitted.

Applying the great forces of nature in the generation of power we save the depletion of coal reserves, and reduce expenditure of $1,000,000 a year for imported coal. We are, by refusing the export of power to the United States, compelling, to some extent, the factories to build on this side of the line. Power rates are frequently three times higher in the United States than in Canada.

Canada is rich in power, the United States is not. The hour has struck for Canadians to preserve their richest heritage and insist upon our own power developments wholly within Canadian territory before any International arrangements are made. By this method we may develop our resources without using our energy to develop the wealth of the great nation to the South of us.

Power is the life of the nation. Without it industrial life is dormant, with it, we can develop teeming cities, of great proportions, and, if not outstrip our Southern neighbor, we can at least enter the race with the handicap not against us.

Representatives of countries from all over the world have reached Toronto and are in training in preparation for the third Wrigly marathon. Shown ABOVE are swimmers from four different nations. (1) Milly Hudson, accompanied by her dietitian, Jan Barlow, snapped as they entered a Toronto hotel. Miss Hudson is the famous 16-year-old English typist, who came within three miles of completing the channel. (2) Ernst Vierkoetter, the German star, and winner of last year's swim, confident that he will again carry off the honors. (3) A third country represented is Poland, in the person of Jan Materek, a swimmer of renown. (4) One of America's most promising entrants is Bryon Summers, who was swimming strongly last year, until he had to be removed with cramps.

"FOR WIVES ONLY" A TREAT

Marie Prevost's New Star Vehicle Given an Ovation

One of the most charming comedies presented here in many a month is "For Wives Only," starring Marie Prevost and featuring Victor Varconi, who made such a hit in Cecil B. De Mille's production, "The Volga Boatman," is now playing at the Regent Theatre. It fully deserved the plaudits it evoked and it may be recommended as one of the cleanest and most enjoyable photoplays produced thus far this season.

Miss Prevost is delightful and quite artistic as the wife of a physician of Vienna who, compelled to leave town on a busines strip, leaves his bride in the care of three of his best friends. They at once abuse their trust but never offensively, so that subsequent happenings provoke laughter rather than hostility. Miss Prevost plays with her amorous admirers as a cat does with a mouse and never loses control of herself. There are numerous comedy scenes, all of which keep the audience in good humor to the close.

Mr. Varconi, as the husband, is manly and thoroughly convincing. He has magnetism and evinces stellar talents of the highest order. In the supporting cast are such artists as Arthur Hoyt who provides many laughs; Charles Gerrard, Claude Gillingwater, William Courtright, Josephine Crowell and Dorothy Cummings contribute by their artistry to make "For Wives Only" a rare cinematic delight, and one that is worth going far to see.

YOUNG PEOPLE HOLD EXCURSION

Bay of Quinte Conference Trip To Port Dalhousie Great Success.

MANY ATTEND.

Eight hundred young people of the Bay of Quinte Conference gathered at Cobourg on the morning of Wednesday, August 8th, for their annual excursion, going this year to Port Dalhousie by the S. S. Northumberland, of the C.N.R. lines.

The heavy rain of the night had continued until five o'clock but did not seem to effect the "excursion" for automobiles, loaded to capacity, came from Belleville, Trenton, Napanee, Peterborough, Port Hope, and from the districts west, east and north to join with Cobourg friends and those who had come from Toronto, for the day's outing. Before the boat left the wharf the fog horn had ceased its long dismal screaming for the fog had lifted and bright sunshine assured good weather. Everyone was happy.

The first hour on board was "getting acquainted" time. The officers of the Young People's Societies, under the direction of G. H. Holton, Belleville, president of the Y. P. Conference and Rev. Mr. Tanton, Cobourg, members of the Excursion committee, and J. R. Empringham, asistant manager of the Canadian National Electric Railways and Steamers, made an effective reception committee.

Among the guests were Dr. R. P. Mackay, Secretary Emeritus of the Board of Foreign Missions, Dr. and Mrs. Murdock Mackenzie, the Rev. George and Mrs. Ross and Mrs. Andrew Thomson of the Honan mission, the Rev. W. J. and Mrs. Mortimore, Dr. and Mrs. W. E. Smith and Dr. and Mrs. C. W. Service of the West China mission, and the Rev. George Williams of Formosa. These had come from Toronto on Tuesday and were entertained overnight by Cobourg and Port Hope friends. With such a group of missionaries it was natural to see Dr. P. C. Stephenson, secretary of the Young People's Education and Mrs. Stephenson, while the excursion would not have been complete without the Rev. George Little, editor of The Pathfinder.

With all these missionaries and workers and eight hundred of the finest young people ever gathered together on the blue waters of old Ontario and with a sail of five hours in the commodious steamer, the committee seized the opportunity of organising meetings on two decks and giving everyone the opportunity of hearing the missionaries. The appreciation of these meetings was expressed by large groups and attentive listening. The missionaries were thus specially introduced. Mr. Little lost no opportunity of presenting The Pathfinder as indispensable to a really live Young People's Society. Copies were freely distributed. Dr. Stephenson, armed with a supply of the United Record and Missionary Review, distributed them as a valuable souvenir of the trip and a follow-up of the addresses of the missionaries. It was noticeable that many old firends welcomed Dr. W. E. Smith, the first missionary representative sent out by the Young People.

The excursion included an extension trip to Niagara Falls and fully ninety per cent. of the company boarded the C. N. R. electric cars which were awaiting the arrival of the boat.

Those who remained in the park at Port Dalhousie had the opportunity of attending an entertainment given by Tuscarora Indians. The addresses, the singing and the demonstrations of their customs given by these first Canadians were unmistakable evidences of missionary effort. The gift canoe, made without a nail, which had been presented to a visiting chief from the United States, was used in an exciting canoe race. The Indians of the United States and Canada are now free to cross to and from both countries without being subject to immigration restrictions.

An unconscious tribute was paid to the committee of management by the remark of one of the missionaries, "This is really a splendidly organized excursion, not a hitch anywhere." Thanks are due to Mr. Empringham for the management of detail that made the day so enjoyable.

As the young people crowded on the City of Dalhousie for the homeward trip, all agreed that the day had been perfect. The enjoyable hours on the boat, the meetings, the good things of the picnic lunches which were served with the missionaries, the enjoyable sing song led by the Rev. John Griffith, the hours spent at the falls and, to cap all, the home trip by moonlight made the Bay of Quinte Conference Young People's excursion of 1928 one long to be remembered.

Of the young people themselves Dr. Mackay said, "I never saw a crowd of young people so well behaved."

To such young people will be entrusted the work of the United Church of Canada in the days to come.

Confetti Glued On Car Windshield Forces Newlyweds To Seek Assistance

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 15 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—Something new in the line of send-off to newlyweds came to light in town yesterday afternoon when a newly-married couple appeared at a local service station in need of assistance. The groom did not wish to give his name, and the bride, of course, was not asked, but the car carried an American license. The wedding had taken place yesterday afternoon "a few miles down in the country," said the bridegroom. His bride's smile carried conviction of the truth of his statement.

The trouble was that the friends at the wedding had not been content merely to throw the usual confetti, but had glued it all over the car, including the windshield. This made it extremely difficult for the driver to see the road. Arriving in town he approached the Empire Service Station and asked to have it removed. Plain hot water was the only thing available that would do the trick, and this was not discovered till after several other agents had been tried.

During the cleaning up process, the bride waited patiently in the car while the bridegroom removed odd bits of rope which might be used as tell-tales. Everyone was in good humor, and did all they possibly could to speed Mr. and Mrs. Whoever-they-were on their way.

Drop in Money Rates Brings Rise In Stocks

NEW YORK, Aug. 15 (Canadian Press).—Easier credit conditions and favorable trade news provided the background for a sharp advance in prices in to-day's stock market. Buying was rather selective in character, but embraced many of the popular industrials, the rise in which was accelerated by active short covering. Call Monday renewed at seven per cent as against 7½ yesterday and then dropped to 6½ per cent and 6 per cent. There was no change in time money and commercial paper rates.

Bullish sentiment was created by the increase in freight car loading, the optimistic tenor of the weekly steel trade reviews, and in the increase from $5 to $6 in the annual dividend on Kennecott Copper.

General Motors, which has been sluggish for the past fortnight, suddenly advanced nearly six points to 182½. Radio, which had been selling 15 to 20 points below General Motors for the greater part of last month, crossed General Motors in price to-day by soaring ten points to 182½. American Can was another active feature, climbing more than six points to 98½. Wright Aeronautical, Midland Steel Products Preferred, Montgomery Ward, National Tea, Allied Chemical, Johns Manville, Case Threshing and Atlantic Refining all sold four to six points above yesterday's final quotations.

Gains Predominate On Mining Exchange

TORONTO, Aug. 15 (Canadian Press)—A slight general improvement was experienced at the morning session of the Standard Mining Exchange to-day and although gains and losses were both registered, the gains predominated. Barry Hollinger was ¾ higher, selling at 37, Howey Gold one at 99, and Kootenay Florence 2½ at 24. Noranda remained firm for majority trading but made a leap of 70 to sell at 49.50. Sherritt Gordon, with an increase of 15 sold at 6.50. Sudbury Basin gain four at 6.65 and Teck Hughes gained ten at 6.50. Sudbury Basin gained four at 6.85, and Teck Hughes gained ten at 9.00. McIntyre, after opening at 20.50, gradually sank to 20.15, sustaining a loss of 35. Amulet was five points lower, selling at 3.65. Hollinger Consolidated suffered another loss, closing at noon to-day at 10.00, fifteen points lower than yesterday's close. Western issues were not called on to any extent and prices were unchanged.

Better Weather Causes Wheat Prices To Drop

CHICAGO, Aug. 15 (Canadian Press).—Reports of better weather in Canada led to lower prices here for wheat to-day during the early dealings. A forecast of large prospective world supplies of wheat tended also to weaken values. Opening at 1⅛ cent decline to ¼ cent advance, Chicago wheat soon underwent a decided general setback. Corn was irregular, starting at ⅝ cent off to ¼ cent up, and subsequently showing a material drop for September, with the new crop months firm. Oats were easy.

Opening prices were:

Wheat, September 113¼, December 118¼. Corn, September, 88½, December, 74. Oats, September 36¾; December 40.

Nickel Again Features Climbing Two Points

TORONTO, Aug. 15 (Canadian Press).—International Nickel was the only issue on the list which proved of any interest at the morning session of the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day. Opening at 97, it climbed to 99¼, at which figure it closed at noon to-day with a net gain of 2⅜ over yesterday's close. Trading on the other stocks was slow and inactive, with prices remaining mostly firm. Alberta Pacific Grain Preferred and Canada Dredge each advanced half a point at 100 and 43½ respectively. Most of the industrial stock prices were unchanged from yesterday's close. Except for a few isolated spots the issues on the curb section remained firm.

Metal Trade Active In Vacation Months

"Hardware and Metal," Toronto, comments on hardware and metal market movements as follows in issue of August 11th:

From all over the Dominion reports on trade conditions show that the retail world is enjoying considerably more activity than is usual during the vacation months. This year the hardware trade has not declined in sales volume during the past month as much as in former years, and the movement of summer lines has been quite active. The demand for merchandise used in the city, such as screens, electric fans, and other items for home comfort, has been brisk. In the past two or three weeks dealers catering to the rural communities haxe experienced a heavy sale of harvest tools and other requirements of the farm at this season. The expectation of dealers so situated is that fall trade will be quite extensive.

Conditions throughout the rural sections point to another wide distribution of money this fall and hardware dealers are preparing to handle a heavy buying movement among farmers. Many improvements were added to farms after last year's crop and with another good yield this year, another such movement should be experienced. The rural field is one to which the hardware trade is looking for much buying in the next year. Power lines are adding many hardware items which the farmer can use and the advancing times are creating a desire among farmers to have the latest equipment, much of which can be supplied by the hardware merchant.

A change of some importance this week is that of one cent per gallon advance on gasoline, coal oil and bensine. This follows on several advances in crude oil in the United States markets. During the past twelve months the motor fuel market has maintained a steady tone in Canada, and no change has been made in prevailing prices in eastern markets in that time. Crop reports from cotton fields have not been promising in recent weeks, and the raw cotton market has advanced. Naturally this has affected to some extent the prices on cotton goods, and sash cord has advanced two cents per pound this week.

Collections are reported as satisfactory in most communities.

Ticker Talk

By H. O.
(Unofficial Opinions on the Markets

MONTREAL, Aug. 15.—The action of fifty representative stocks both rail and industrial showed a slight decline yesterday despite the impression that was made by the strength displayed by a few isolated stocks.

The market is still dominated by conditions that have been brought about by the banking interests and no change may be expected until the public is either impelled to liquidate its speculative holdings or encourage to re-enter the market on buying side.

As there is no likelihood at present of any encouragement being given by conservative brokerage houses to clients it would seem that professional traders will continue to bear the responsibility of supporting the market and giving it a semblance of strength. The move in Chrysler and Steel is not impressive and is attributed to factors that emphasize the fact that pool operations have not been abandoned.

Further irregularity seems certain today in view of the probability of continued high money. Trading yesterday was noticeably choked by the high renewal rate, a fact which may encourage profession short selling today. However, the market has absorbed such offerings well and in all probability an extended short interest has been built up. With the credit situation a dominant factor we are likely to be in a trading area where stocks which show pronounced strength can be picked up on weakness.

Canadian Pacific Railway Directors Met

A dividend of 2% on the preferred stock for the half year ended June 30, and a two and a half per cent. dividend on common stock for the quarter ended June 30, were declared at the regular director's meeting of the Canadian Pacific Railway held at the Windsor Station offices yesterday afternoon, these both being payable on October 1st, to stockholders of record on August 31st. Only routine matters otherwise occupied the attention of the directors.

Directors of the Canadian Pacific Railway present at the meeting were: E. W. Beatty chairman; Grant Hall, Sir Herbert Holt, J. K. L. Ross, Col. Frank S. Meighen, C.M.G., Hon. Frederick N. Beique, E. C. S. Senator Colonel Henry Cockshutt, Ross M. McMaster, W. A. Black, and W. N. Willey, K.C.

The property of the Pend Oreille Lead and Zinc Company, which covers 1,000 acres of mineralized land at Metaline Falls, immediately to the south of the British Columbia boundary, is now reported to be developing in a much more satisfactory manner than hitherto.

A better feeling consequently has been developed in regard to its future amonst traders in the Street, which would not be surprised to see an appreciation in the value of the stock in the near future.

It is expected that shortly some official announcement will be made relative to the actual developments at the property, an Eastern engineer having been on the ground for the past fortnight making an exhaustive examination of the work that has been accomplished.

Mining Briefs

A Special Service to The Examiner

TORONTO, Aug. 15.—A discovery of massive chalcopyrite is reported to have been made recently in the southern part of Dasserat Township in the Lake Fortune mining area on the property of the Calumet Mines, which it is understood is being developed under the direction of Julius Cohen, E.M. It is stated where encountered this ore is 18 inches wide and has been stripped for a total length of 20 feet with no variation either in width or grade.

Assays at the Crown Reserve Mines at the 780 foot level are reported unofficially to be running over $30 per ton across eight feet width.

Wright-Hargreaves has cut a high-grade vein on the 1550-foot level. The vein is 12 feet wide and is giving high values. Number 2 shaft is still in high grade ore below 1900 feet.

It is reported from a reliable source that Murphy Mines have received their power and are sinking again.

Over A. E. Moyezy's wire comes the news that Tough-Oakes-Burnside has cut a vein in the shaft just below the 1275-foot level is not yet through it. Visible gold and pyrites are seen.

Development work at Acadia Gold Mines during the past month has progressed favorably, and it is stated that mill additions will soon be necessary. Operations at the present mill started late last March and regular shipments of gold and bullion are being made to the Royal Mint. Acadia

Stone Plowshares Found Here Once

A despatch from Sault Ste. Marie tells of the discovery on a farm there recently of two stone plowshares, believed to be of prehistoric origin. The two blades, which are of granite, are thought to be the only stone blades ever found in the upper peninsula of Michigan. In Peterborough during the past two years, two similar plowshares were unearthed during excavations of old foundations.

RAYS WIN OUT IN CITY SERIES THIS AFTERNOON

Beat Cogs 4-3 This Afternoon in Final Game of Play-offs.

HEAVY HITTING WINS.

Losers Play Errorless Ball, But Fail To Hit With Men On.

Scotty Maudsley, the iron man of the East Peterborough League, came across with a win for the Raybestos this afternoon, and beat the Cognawagas in the final game of the city section four runs to three.

The game was a real pitchers' battle with the Cogs failing to hit in the pinches. They lost a golden opportunity in the sixth when, with three on and only one out Maudsley struck out Delahaye and Cripps lifted to left field.

Vannest started for the Cogs and was hit hard in second and fourth. Wilson relieved him and held the winners down to one run. Cogs gave their pitchers better support, making no errors, but were outhit ten to seven.

The Cogs scored their three runs in the third on two hits.

First Innings.

Raybestos won the toss and took the field. Wilson popped one back of Barrie, but he made a nice catch of it. Corbett rolled one to Scully and Barrie retired the side when he caught Vannest's fly. No runs, hits or errors.

Crary nabbed Hillier's drive and Rogers hit the first one to Vannest. Crary got Maudsley's drive and threw him out at first. Vannest pitched five balls. No runs, hits or errors

Second Innings.

Corrin ran in to get Rook's fly for the first out for the Cogs. Corrin caukht Billingsley's fly. Crary hit to short. No runs, hits or errors.

For the Raybestos Scully drove one into left for the first hit of the game, making two bases when Billingsley fell. Billingsley caught Barrie's fly after nearly losing it. Corrin singled to right, scoring Scully for the first run. Moore singled through short. Masterson singled and Crary attempted to get Corrin at third, filling the bases. Nichols hit to Billingsley, who caught the ball and threw to Wilson to catch Moore at second for a double play. Three hits, one run, no errors.

Baker for Cogs lined one to Corbett, but Rooke dropped the throw. Delahay singled, advancing Baker to third. Cripps lifted one to Nicholls. Wilson lined one to Scully and Scully made a perfect throw home, but Rogers dropped the ball, Baker scoring. Corbett singled and Delahaye scored. Masterson made a nice catch of Vannest's fly, but Wilson scored on the throw. Rooke struck out. Three runs, two hits, two errors.

Wilson grabbed Hillier's drive and threw him out at first. Rogers hit into left. Maudsley singled to right. Scully singled to fill the bases. Barrie singled to Crary, who caught Rogers at the plate. Corrin singled to Vannest. No runs, three hits, no errors.

Fourth Innings.

Billingsley singled into centre. Nicholls dropped Crary's drive and all were safe. Corrin caught Baker's fly; Hillier caught Delahaye's fly, and Maudsley caught Cripps' fly. No runs, one hit, one error.

Moore singled for the second time. Masterson hit to Crary, who threw out Moore at second. Nicholls sacrificed to Wilson. Hillier hit a two-bagger, and Masterson and Nicholls scored to tie the game. Wilson went in to pitch, and Vannest played short. Rogers doubled, and Hillier scored. Maudsley was walked. Crary got Scully's drive, which advanced Maudsley and Rogers. Crary again made the play to Barrie at first. Three runs, four hits, no errors.

Fifth Innings.

For the Cogs, Wilson struck out, Maudsley nabbed Corbett's hit, and Masterson caught Vannest's fly. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Corrin rolled one to Rooke, Moore lifted one to first base, and Baker caught Masterson fly. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Sixth Innings.

Rooke was safe at first when he beat out Hillier's throw. Billingsley was also safe at first when he beat Hillier's throw to first. Both were very close decisions. Crary struck out. Baker singled to fill the bases. Delahaye struck out. Cripps lifted one to Masterson for the third out, Maudsley getting out of a nice hole. No runs, three hits, no errors.

Nichols, first up for Raybestos, struck out. Hillier hit to Wilson and was caught at first. Rogers struck out. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Seventh Innings.

Wilson singled into centre. Corbett lifted one to Barrie. Vannest lifted one right into Moore's mitt. Wilson stole second. Rooke struck out to end the game, and give Raybestos the championship. No runs, one hit, no errors.

THE MARKETS

was brought to the producing stage by private capital only. Over one-quarter of a million dollars was spent during the past few months in development work, including drifting and diamond drilling, and in additional equipment for the mill.

Acadia has one of the deepest shafts in Eastern Canada. Returns from milling operations average about $20.00 per ton. Plans for further expansion are under way. Its property consists of approximately 2,000 acres of land and its ore is free milling. Ore bodies are stated to have been tested to a depth of over 2,000 feet and traced on the surface for a length of over 5,000 feet. Application to list Acadia on the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange will be made shortly.

Work on the Gold Hill shaft is now down 900 feet and timbered. It is expected that the 1,000 foot level will be reached and station cut by September 15. Officials are quite confident that crosscutting at this depth will find that the No. 1 and No. 2 veins have come together, as upper indications pointed to them doing so. If this is the case this property should have a new lease of life, as it will give them a body of ore that can be profitably worked.

The working of the mill at the March Gold Mines is now in full swing and shipments are being made regularly. Two bricks were shipped on Tuesday of last week, the first one poured on Saturday and the second one on Tuesday. Mr. Bernard Hyman, of Buffalo paid a flying visit to the mines over the week-end and expressed himself as being very well pleased with the way in which things were developing.

Salmo Consolidated Mines Limited

Development at Salmo Consolidated Mines Limited in British Columbia is reported being pushed with all speed. A crosscut tunnel which is being driven from the present adit tunnel across a series of veins, is now developing galena which is coming in through gangue material. This is an important development, as, if the gangue can be proved into ore, it means that the whole width of the ore bearing formation can be worked over a distance of less tha none thousand feet. These vein systems are said to have been traced over a length of 600 feet. The adit tunnel is being driven along these veins and has shown channel assays increasing as depth is attained to $11.35 per ton.

The shaft at the portal of the tunnel has shown channel assays increasing in depth of $5.66 to $35.59 per ton. The mine manager reports that these values are increasing. A mill site has also been staked on Sheep Creek to cover the water rights, which give approximately five thousand horse-power.

The work has been carried on under the instructions of Amor F. Keene of New York.

What Will Lake Shore Earn This Year?

While Lake Shore has declined 22 per cent from the high in January, it is still selling over 21 times its par value, and even with dividends at the rate of 80 per cent per annum, the yield is below 4 per cent. The mine, however, stepped up production materially in the second quarter, and this week reports have been received of exceptionally nign grade ore opened up on the south of the main ore zone over a width of six feet. The big jump in production is accounted for in part by raising daily treatment to about 900 tons, but also to a substantial step-up in millheads. The second shaft, now in operation to great depth is what Lake Shore needed badly to handle ore commensurate with the big developments that have taken place. The company's small capital ($2,000,000) makes its earnings possibilities startling. The company is expected to show 100 per cent on its stock, for the year ended June 30, last, and the present rate of production indicates that the new year just entered will break all previous records by a wide margin.

Canadian Canners Liquid Assets Growing

Interest in the Street in Canadian Canners centres around the question of whether the directors intend to increase at an early date the dividend rate on the second preferred stock, which would entitle the no-par common to rank for initial dividend consideration. Net working capital has been built up from $3,461,094 in 1926 to $4,271,383 in 1927 and opinion seems to be that after it has been further increased, possibly to $6,000,000, the dividend on the second preferred will be steadily increased in keeping with the company's earning power. According to present indications the present year will be a progressive one for the company, the crop situation to date having been satisfactory and reports calling for a generally large yield.

Calumet

TORONTO, Aug. 15.—A discovery of massive chalcopyrite has recently been made in the southern part of Dasserat Township in the Lake Fortune mining area on the property of Calumet Mines, which we understand is being developed under the direction of the well-known engineer, Mr. Julius Cohen, E.M. It is stated where encountered this ore is 18 inches wide and has been stripped for a total length of 20 feet with no variation either in width or grade.

Keeley

Production for the second quarter of 1928 shows some improvement over the first quarter. Production in the second quarter was 181,013 ounces of silver and 33,422 lbs. of cobalt against the previous three months' production of 152,498 ounces of silver and 16,877 lbs. of cobalt. This increase may be attributed to several small high grade shoots of ore having been encountered

Vipond

The quarterly report of Vipond Consolidated for the three months ending July 31 shows a very considerable increase in production over the preceding three months, the figures being $187,000 from 32,455 tons of ore milled, against $155,600 for the previous three months from 30,745 tons. The chief factor in this increase is said to be the unexpectedly high values in one of the stopes at this property, June and July mill heads were stated to have run around $10, which is better grade than has been the case for the past coupel of years. The management hope to be able to continue at this rate of production for some considerable time, and in the meantime new ground taken from the Porcupine Crown and Thompson Krist is being developed. It is also learn that cash assets at July 21st stand at approximately $400,000.

Lake Shore

According to reports received from Kirkland Lake, this company has purchased additional crushing equipment. This will enable them to practically double the present capacity of their mill, which is now running about 1,000 tons daily.

Gold Hill

Advices from Boston Creek state rapid progress is being made in shaft-sinking. The report indicated that the 880 foot level had been reached and work was proceeding. By September 15th, it is hoped to reach the 1,000 foot level, where a station will be cut and a crosscut opened to the vein. It is possible that the No. 1 and No. 2 veins will be found to run together at the 1,000 foot level. Should this be the case, the company have a fair chance of getting an ore shoot of commercial grade. It is believed their finances are sufficient to enable them to carry on the present campaign for several months.

Pioneer

Pioneer Mining Corporation's official report for the three months ended July 31 is as follows:

At the property of Cooper Gold Mines (Michipicoten) the shaft on the Jubilee break was completed to an inclined depth of 548 feet. Crosscutting to the ore body indicated by diamond drilling was commenced on the third and fourth levels, and at the end of July this crosscut had advanced some 35 feet. It is anticipated the ore body will be reached at approximately 100 feet from the shaft.

FLIGHT TO SWEDEN UNDER WAY

Aviators Take Off To-day

Complete First Leg of Journey Safely, Landing at Cochrane.

WELL EQUIPPED.

Collapsible Boat, Hiking Outfit, Weapons and Radio Carried By Big Plane.

ROCKFORD, Ill., Aug. 16—(Canadian Press). — Bert Hasselt and Parker Cramer took off at 6:40 a.m. Central Standard Time to-day, on the first leg of a proposed flight to Stockholmn, Sweden.

The pilots made a perfect hop off from the Rockford airport, circling over the field until the big plane had made an altitude of about 1,000 feet, when it was nosed north east ward toward Cochrane, Ontario, where Hasselt planned to make his first stop and spend the night.

The pilots were scheduled to reach Cochrane in about eight hours, stopping over there to refuel and tune up the plane for the second hop to Greenland to-morrow.

Both Hasell and Cramer expressed confidence as they climbed into the "Greater Rockford" and waved good bye.

A large crowd had gathered when the big plane was rolled from its hanger. Weather conditions for the flight across Canada were considered ideal and the crew was certain it would make Cochrane on schedule time which would be about four o'clock Eastern Standard Time to-day.

The hop from Cochrane to Greenland is about 1,600 miles, much of it over water. From Greenland the flyers plan another hop to Ireland and then the final jump to Stockholm, their goal.

The big plane was stocked with ample food supplies and other provisions for the northern flight. Besides food, the pilots carried a collapsible rubber boat, an axe, a rifle, a hiking outfit and first aid kits.

The plane, fully loaded, weighs about 7,000 pounds, it can carry three persons. A radio was included among the plane's equipment and the pilots planned to keep in communication with radio stations throughout their flight.

The hop to Cochrane would take the fliers over about 800 miles of the route. From Cochrane to Mount Evans is roughly 1,600 miles and from Mount Evans to their Iceland base the mileage is about 884. Their last hop to Stockholm covers about 1,340 miles, much of it over the sea.

Seen Near Milwaukee.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 16. — (Canadian Press.)—A plane believed to be that of Bert Haisell was seen over Plum Island, 200 miles from here, flying high and fast at 9.15 a.m., according to advices to the Milwaukee Journal.

Arrived at Cochrane

COCHRANE, Aug. 16.—(Canadian Press).—The fliers arrived here safely.

Signal Sent Out

MADISON, Wis., Aug. 16.—(Canadian Press). — The Experimental Wireless Station, 9EK, here at noon received a message from the "Greater Rockford" plane indicating by pre-arranged symbol letters that the plane was near Pardee, Ontario, on its flight from Rockford to Cochrane. There was no additional information.

THE WEATHER

There is little moderation in the heat that has prevailed for some days. Yesterday's highest point was 88 degrees in the shade. To-day, at noon, it was the same figure. While the early portion of this summer was comparatively cool, August is making amends for past deficiencies.—W.P.

MEMORIAL TABLET UNVEILED FOR FLIGHT AT GREENELY ISLAND

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 16.—(Canadian Press.)— Yesterday at Greenely Island was unveiled a memorial tablet to mark the spot where the first successful east to west crossing of the Atlantic ocean by a heavier-than-air craft ended.

The ceremony, attended by the lighthouse keeper and his family who were hosts to Baron Von Huenfeld, Major (now Colonel) J. C. Fitzmaurice, and Captain Herman Koehl during their enforced stay at the little island, and also attended by the inhabitants of the little fishing villages in the vicinity, was addressed by His Grace Monsignor Leventoux, Bishop of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and by Ven. Archdeacon Scott, Quebec City.

In the meantime the monoplane Bremen, in which the crossing was made, is in Quebec City, where it has been viewed by large numbers of people. It is destined to end its days in an United States' museum.

WAR MEMORIAL IS BEING MOVED

Brown Monument To Be Placed On New Base North of Present Site.

RELATIVES CONSENT.

Herbert Sherwood, who was given the contract of moving the Brown Memorial from its present site in Confederation Square commenced work this morning. The memorial which was dedicated to Captain Edward Brown, who died in the Battle of Batoche will be moved to the north east corner of the park and will be set in the V between the George street sidewalk and the new walk to be constructed across the park. It will be put on a new granite base and the appearance will be improved as much as human skill is able to do.

The present site of the memorial will be sodded and a drinking fountain will be installed in place of the memorial. Before moving the memorial the City Council received the consent of the relatives of the deceased soldier. The memorial would have hidden the new memorial being erected and this is why it was considered advisable to move it.

TEN MILLION U. S. TOURISTS

Toronto Official Expects Increase of 40 Per Cent. Over Last Year.

MEANS GREAT DEAL.

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 16 (Special to The Examiner).—Over 10,000,000 American tourists will visit Ontario this year and spend an estimated amount of $60,000,000, according to indications and information received by the Provincial Department of Highways.

"We expect an increase of around forty per cent," a Government official stated to-day. "There are more cars coming in than ever before. Trade in the east is picking up rapidly. Last year the number of American cars around Kingston totalled around twenty-five per cent. This year it has increased to fifty per cent."

The tourist trade means a lot to the Province. They will pay close to four and one-half million dollars in gasoline tax.

They will use over 600 tons of butter, 90,000 gross of eggs, two million gallons of milk, 250,000 bags of potatoes, sixty thousand pounds of meat and some four million loaves of bread.

The total food consumption by visitors to Ontario in 1928 will be over one per cent. of the total food consumption in Ontario, or more than the amount consumed by the entire population of the province for eleven meals. There will be more than two and one-half million visitors from other countries to Ontario, exclusive of the United States. The estimated total revenue is around $100,000,00.

KINGSTON, Ont., Aug. 16 (Canadian Press).—Wilbert Richard Williams, 45, appeared in Police Court here to-day, charged with the murder of his wife, whose body was found in the home yesterday with her skull battered in by a hammer. Williams, through his counsel, waived preliminary hearing and consented to be committed for trial without any evidence being taken.

The prisoner was unperturbed, entering the court-room smoking cigarettes.

Hon. Phillippe Roy Re commended As Minister Pl enipotentiary To Paris

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 16 (Canadian Press).—Hon. Phillippe Roy has been recommended by the Dominion Government to His Majesty the King for appointment as Canadian Minister plenipotentiary to Paris, Premier W. L. Mackenzie King announced last night. Mr. Roy has been Canadian Commissioner in Paris for the past eighteen years. No action to appoint a Canadian minister to Tokio has yet been taken, the Prime Minister stated.

It is expected the formal commission for the appointment of Mr. Roy will be issued by His Majesty in time for the opening of the Legation in Paris during the first week of October. Premier King will officiate at the opening; and the procedure for the issue of a commission by His Majesty to Mr. Roy as Canadian Minister follows that adopted in the appointment of Hon. Vincent Massey as Canadian Minister at Washington.

Mr. Roy was born on December 21, 1863, at St. Francois, Que., and was called to the Senate on March 8, 1906. He was appointed to Paris on May 1, 1911, being one of the last appointments made under the administration of the late Sir Wilfred Laurier. Mr. Roy was also appointed agent general for the Province of Quebec at Paris on January 15, 1912.

BORDER LIQUOR SHIPMENTS ARE DISCUSSED AT OTTAWA

Sir Henry Drayton Confers With Hon. W. D. Euler.

CASES ADJOURNED.

Prosecution Counsel Expresses Suspicion at Absence of Export Company Official.

OTTAWA, Ont., August 16 (Canadian Press). — The legal points arising from the recent seizures by the Ontario authorities of liquor stored in warehouses along the Windsor border were discussed at a lengthy conference to-day between Sir Henry Drayton, chairman of the Ontario liquor Commission, and the Hon. W. D. Euler, Minister of Revenue. The discussion was largely on the respective jurisdiction of the Province and the Dominion and co-operation between the two to prevent the return of liquor into the Province from the docks for illicit sale. It was intimated no definite decisions were reached.

CASES ADJOURNED.

WINDSOR, Ont., August 16 (Canadian Press). — Outspoken suspicion as to the reason behind the disappearance of Walker Hardie, secretary-treasurer of the Erie Transit Company, were voiced in Windsor Police Court to-day by Gordon Shaver, K. C., special prosecution counsel, when the first of the long series of charges came up for hearing. Hardie's absence in New York on what Stanley Springsteen, Erie Transport counsel, declared was family business, was typical of the liquor interests' attitude, declared Mr. Shaver. After argument over Springsteen's request for adjournment, Magistrate David Brodie adjourned the hearing of some cases until Monday and others to Tuesday. Mr. Springsteen assured the Court Hardie would be in Court when the charges were proceeded with. The charges read to-day were of having possession of liquor not obtained under permit.

FLANDERS POPPIES GROW WELL IN CITY.

An interesting exhibit in the window of the Jordan Brothers' floral store on George Street is the vase holding a number of Flanders poppies. These rich red and orange blooms were grown in the garden of J. H. Ferguson from seed of the genuine Flanders poppy obtained from Mr. Curran, secretary of the "Beautify Toronto" committee.

KING'S YACHT IN COLLISION

Royal Vessel Unable To Take Part in Cowes Regatta.

KING IN SCOTLAND.

COWES, England, Aug. 16.—(Canadian Press.)—The King's yacht Britannia collided with her escort, the minesweeper Selkirk, in Cowes Roads to-day and was unable to compete in the Royal Victoria Yacht Club's regatta. The King heard of the accident at Aberdeen, Scotland, as he was en route to Balmoral Castle.

British Bus Line Starts Sleeper Service; Cuts London-Liverpool Rate On Railroads

LONDON, Aug. 16.—The first motorbus service in Europe to provide sleeping accommodations for patrons started here last night when a big bus left Woburn Place, a tree-shaded square near the British Museum, at 11 o'clock with twelve passengers bound for Liverpool, where they arrive at 8 o'clock.

A small crowd laughed and cheered the sleeping bus on its way, while cameramen's flashlights flared in suitable recognition of the fact that after a lapse of some years England's Mr. Pickwicks are returning from the railroads to the highways in their travels about the country.

The new sleeping coach is not as picturesque, perhaps, as the old-fashioned coach and four. But it's much speedier and more efficient. Instead of being in danger of becoming obsolescent by railroad competition, it is seriously threatening the prosperity of the railroads. The fare on the sleeping coach from London to Liverpool was announced as 25 shillings, only three pence more than a third class fare on the railways, without sleeping accommodations. For comfort it is comparable to a first class passage which costs 51 shillings.

Moreover, the sleeping coach service will furnish a light breakfast and will have passengers' shoes newly shined when they alight at their destination.

The first sleeping coach to operate has shiplike lines with "cabins" along an interior passage. Each cabin has an upper and a lower berth and is fitted with a push button for summoning the steward. Berths are curtained off and each has a reading lamp and an ash tray. The first sleeping coach to operate is "dry," no liquors being served, as is usual on trains in England.

Coincident with the announcement of this extension of British bus service into sleeping car competition, the London Northeastern Railway announced yesterday that it would soon reduce fares throughout the North of England where new lines of motorbuses are springing up like mushrooms almost every week.

WILL MEET DUNNING IN PARIS TO ATTEND LEAGUE MEETING

Will Sign Multilateral Treaty in French Capital On Aug. 27th.

FORMER PLANS CANCELLED.

Represent Canada With Hon. C. A. Dunning at League of Nations Meeting.

OTTAWA, Ont., August 16.—(By the Canadian Press).Premier W. L. Mackenzie King announced yesterday evening that he will sail from New York on the Ile de France early Saturday morning to sign the multilateral treaty in Paris on August 27. The Prime Minister leaves Ottawa on Friday morning, and will be accompanied by Dr. O. D. Skelton, undersecretary for external affairs.

The invitation to the intending signatories to the treaty to meet in Paris was issued by the Government of France; and it is understood here that Premier King will cross the Atlantic on the same boat with Hon. Frank Kellog, United States secretary of State, who will execute the treaty on behalf of his Government.

The original intention of the Prime Minister was to sail in the Empress of Australia from Quebec on Wednesday next. This plan had to be cancelled, however, and sailing arrangements made for Saturday so that Premier King may reach Paris in time to execute the treaty for Canada. The setting of August 27 as the date for signing the multilateral treaty also curtailed the Prime Minister's summer speaking tour in the western provinces.

Hon. C. A. Dunning, Minister of Railways, will sail on the Empress of Australia from Quebec on Wednesday and will meet Premier King in Paris. The Prime Minister and Mr. Dunning will proceed to Geneva to represent the Dominion at the meeting of the League of Nations.

Early in October Premier King will open the Canadian Legation in Paris and will afterwards spend about a week in England. The Prime Minister will return to Canada about October 15.

SHORT CIRCUIT IGNITES RUBBER

Taxi Stalls On Road To Chemong When Wires Are Grounded.

PLENTY OF SMOKE.

The smell of burning rubber, with smoke issuing from the floor of a sedan owned by Fontaines and driven by a man named Middleton, gave the occupants who were travelling to Chemong in it yesterday noon, a real thrill.

The engine stalled, and the car came to dead stop while smoke curled up from the floor boards. The driver pulled up the floor, seized a pair of pinchers and took off the metal covering of the battery.

Wires leading from the battery to the ignition and lights on the car had come into contact with the metal top and had grounded to the frame through the top, which caused a short circuit, resulting in a real 'hot box' as far as the battery was concerned.

The contact to the top was broken and everything was made ship-shape once more and the sedan travelled to its destination without any more thrills to the occupants.

FAMOUS AVIATOR DIES FROM HURTS

Major Del Prete, Who Crossed Atlantic, Succumbs To Injuries.

RIO DE JANIERO, Aug. 16.—(Canadian Press.)— Major Carlo P. Del Prete, Italian airman, who recently made a brilliant flight between Italy and Brazil, died this morning from injuries which he suffered in a plane crash on August 7. Yesterday he underwent an operation for the amputation of his right leg.

IN CLASS BY HIMSELF; WINDSOR MAN COMMUTES

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 16 (Canadian Press).—Apeller Koval of Windsor, Ontario, stands in a class all by himself as far as the law barring aliens of Canada from commuting to Detroit for work is concerned, in the opinion of John L. Kurbrick, District Immigration Director.

Judge Charles C. Simons, in Federal Court yesterday, issued an injunction restraining the immigration authorities from interfering with Koval's movements to and from Windsor.

District Commissioner Kurbrick, however, hold that it applied only to Koval and that other Border Cities alien residents desiring similar immunity from the immigration regulations must take like court action.

BOY DROWNED IN MILL CANAL

Body of Little Lad Taken From Canal at Lyn To-day.

WAS ON HOLIDAY.

BROCKVILLE, Aug. 16 (Canadian Press).—After Elwood Hamilton, ten-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Hamilton, had been missing for several hours from the home of his grandfather, J. C. Hamilton, Lyn, his body was recovered last evening from the canal leading to the flour mill of G. C. Cumming at that place.

The family had motored to Lyn for the purpose of holidaying with J. C. Hamilton and intended to return to-day to their home. Yesterday afternoon the boy accompanied his father to the village and started back to his grandfather's home carrying a chocolate bar for his little sister. No more was seen of him until his body was raked out of the canal last evening by his father. It is believed that the boy made use of the concrete of the canal as a short cut home, fell in, and was drowned.

KIWANIS CLUBS ENJOY PICNIC

Peterborough Ladies Win Prizes in Sports—Club Wins Attendance Cup.

THREE CLUBS MEET.

The Inter-Club Kiwanis picnic held yesterday at Cobourg was a big success with representatives attending from the Picton, Belleville and Peterborough clubs. In all there were about one hundred and fifty Kiwanians and their friends there to enjoy the get-together and to strengthen the inter-club relationships. Peterborough won a signal honor at the gathering by bringing home the silver cup for having the most members present.

The ladies of the Peterborough club also did themselves and their club, as well as their city credit when they won the ladies' horseshoe contest. The team was composed of Mrs. J. Dewart, Mrs. T. Mark, Mrs. H. Huffman and Mrs. C. D. Cook.

Belleville carried away the softball cup. The Quinte town had a snappy crew on the field.

Mrs. J. Dewart won second prize for long distance rolling pin throw.

The following Kiwanians motored from Peterborough: Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Cook, Mr. and Mrs. V. Morphet, Mr. and Mrs. George Liddel, Mr. and Mrs. W. Freel, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Huffman, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Boyle, Mr. and Mrs. J. Geraghty, Mr. and Mrs. J. John, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dawson, Mr. and Mrs. J. Comstock, John I. Allen, Walter Kidd, J. Ernest Smith, W. J. Dewart, Rev. J. D. Paterson, John W. McNabb, I. P. McNabb.

Andy Gaul, Lieutenant Governor of the district, and Mrs. Gaul were also present.

Gasoline Ignites In Boat

Priest, Two Women and Two Children Drown in Lake Maligne.

ONE MAN SAVED.

Father of Children Tries To Carry Them Ashore, But Has To Drop Them.

NORTH BAY, Ont., August 16 (Canadian Press). — In one of the worst drowning tragedies of the year, in Northern Ontario, five persons lost their lives in Lake Lavigne, near Verier, last night when their gasoline launch caught fire and an explosion forced them to leap into the water. The sixth occupant of the boat succeeded in escaping.

The dead are: Rev. Father Dubuc, Verner, 31, Mrs. Albert Lafrenier, 28, and her two boys Claude, two, and Mark, one month, and Miss Leonie Sylvester 26 all of Sturgeon Falls. Albert Lafrenier, husband of Mrs. Lafrenier, managed to reach shore safely.

The bodies of all except Miss Sylvester have been recovered.

From meagre details available, it appeared the party had accepted an invitation to sail in the priest's launch, and when about a mile out on the lake the gasoline on the bottom of the boat ignited. Watchers on shore say a sheet of flames followed by much smoke, and a moment later the boat's occupants were struggling in the water.

Lafrenier, clutching his two children, started to swim to shore, but found the burden too great, and was forced to relinquish his hold barely managing to reach shore himself, where he collapsed. Boats were quickly launched, but no trace was found of any of the victims immediately.

CATTLE GOING TO CAROLINA

Buyer From Southern States Likes Canadian Holsteins.

NOT ENOUGH AVAILABLE.

Cattle shipping to North Carolina is Peterborough's latest industry. A. MacNab, Peterborough agent for the Canadian National Railways, told The Examiner this noon that a buyer is in the district who is buying pure bred Holstein cows in order to ship them to North Carolina.

For a number of years he has purchased cattle in Wisconsin but states that Canadian cattle are far the best. The only trouble that he finds with them is that there are not enough available for shipping purposes.

The cattle that are being shipped are milch cows and are not for slaughtering. A car being loaded at the C.N.R. stockyards will be shipped sometime to-morrow.

NEW POWER LINE IS NEARLY READY

Power Will Be Delivered From Gatineau By October 1.

Power over the new Gatineau line, which runs through the County of Peterborough, is expected to be delivered by October 1st. The line has been under construction for two years but this season the workmen get it completed before fall. The power will be developed by the International Paper Company from the company's new plant at Gatineau River, and will be delivered to the Hydro-Electric Power Commission. Contrary to expectations, this power will be of no use to Eastern and Central Ontario, as it is 25 cycle frequency, whereas 60 cycle power is used here.

At Gatineau is one of the largest storage reservoirs in the world, with three Hydro stations built to a total installation of 562,000 horsepower, of which 436,000 are now installed or about to be installed.

Bridgenorth Wins Softball Honors

TEAMS FROM DISTRICT TAKE PART IN ANNUAL TOURNEY

Trophies Donated By Bridgenorth United Church For Three Events.

AT CHEMONG PARK.

The annual softball tournament held at Bridgenorth was as successful this year as ever. Teams from Selwyn, Bridgenorth, Lindsay, Lakefield, Peterborough and Chemong Park all entered in the events. Interest was upheld throughout as the teams were playing for cups donated by the Bridgenorth United Church, for the teams that were listed as inexperienced and for the more experienced teams, while a ball and bat was the prize for the youngsters.

The cups were won by Bridgenorth team under the managership of McWilliams, who qualified for the playoff by eliminating the Lindsay team on the long end of an 8-1 score and won the cup by beating Fred Jopling's team 7-0. This was the cup for the senior or the more experienced teams.

Buckhorn, who had sent an entry list by mail, did not show up in person, and so there were only two teams in the junior section, the Lakefield Sement Works beating the Selwyn team to the score of 9-6.

In the boys' section the Rinky Dinks of Chemong Park were eliminated in the preliminaries by the Bridgenorth boys' team to the tune of 14-11, while the Bridgenorth boys won the ball and bat which was their trophy, by defeating Selwyn 19-3.

The field under the broiling sun presented a scene of great activity, with three softball games in progress at the same time. A senior game on the first diamond, a junior game on the second diamond and a boys' game on the third diamond. There was also a cup for a girls' team which is held now by Gilmour Memorial Church team, but as there were no entries for this class, the games were not played.

First Game.

The first game to be played was the boys' game between the Rinky Dinks of Chemong Park and the Selwyn team. Tuck, pitching for the Chemong Park team, was an easy mark for the Selwyn team, and they scored in every frame, getting six in the final frame to win the game. All was not as it sounds, as the Chemong Park entry, nearly upset all expectations when they scored five runs in the fourth.

The line-up:

Selwyn—Galvin, cf; Fitzgerald, p; Tully, 2b; McConkey, 1b; McIlmoyle, ss; Nixon 3b; Elliott, 3b; W. McIlmoyle, c, lf; Davis, lf; Nicols, rf.

Chemong—Tuck, p; Welsh, c; Hood, 1b; Dawson, 2b; White, 3b; Jones, ss; Wyllie, lf; Cheu, rf.

Score by innings:

Selwyn .. .. 13136—14
Chemong .. .. 20353—11

Boys' Play-Off Game.

Bridgenorth had an easy time with Selwyn, who never had any trouble handling the boys from farther north. The Selwyn lads were tired after finishing one game and jumping into the play-off at once.

The line-ups:

Selwyn—J. McConkey, c; D. McConkey, 1b; Fitzgerald, p; H. McIlmoyle, ss; Tully, 2b; Nixon, 3b; Elliott, lf; Nicols, rf; Mahood, cf.

Score by innings:

Bridgenorth . .. . 037403x—19
Selwyn.. .. .. 0002100— 3

Junior Games.

Lakefield Cement Works and Selwyn were the only teams in this class. The Cementers held the Selwyn lads scoreless until the fifth, when they broke and two runs crossed the plate, while in the sixth Selwyn scored a rally which looked like a win, but they lacked the punch. In the last frame they again threatened with the bases filled, but the Cement

COSTES ENDS TRIALS FOR OCEAN FLIGHT

Says He Is Ready and Will Start Soon As Wind Changes.

PARIS, Aug. 16.— Captain Dieudonne Costes is all ready for his attempt to fly the Atlantic. Yesterday at Le Bourget he made the final trials of his Breguet biplane, testing the consumption of gasoline.

It was the arman's first visit with his plane to Le Bourget from the home airdrome in Villacoublay and immediately a rumor spread that he was ready to fly this morning. But though Captain Costes is the hardiest of all French airmen, he is the last man to take a useless risk.

To newspaper men who asked him confidentially if they could leave Paris for a two days' holiday and still be back in time to see the start the airman answered laughingly:

"Go right ahead. You are safe for two days, but watch the wind. When that changes, I'm off."

With just half its load of gasoline the plane rose easily in 400 yards, shedding as it rose a special wheel carriage designed for its tail. Then for two hours Captain Costes circled the airdrome, landing with his big load without difficulty. In every test which he has made Captain Costes has found his new plane admirable.

"It is absolutely in perfect shape," he declared when he landed. "but I am not going until I am given a perfectly clear weather prospect. I can fly through a fog for eight hours if necessary, but not without losing time and I don't want to do anything less than arrive at New York."

WET HAY CAUSE OF FIRE IN BARN

Proprietor of Ramona Lodge, Loon Lake, Suffers Heavy Loss.

MANY TOURISTS.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

APSLEY, August 16. — Mr. Galbraith, proprietor of Ramona Lodge and camps on Loon Lake, had the misfortune to lose his barn, hay, and a quantity of hens by fire on Monday night. The fire was evidently caused by spontaneous combustion, the hay being quite damp when drawn in some days ago. The blaze created a spectacular effect, and was witnessed by the many tourists who are holidaying at the lake.

Lakes Popular.

Jack's and Loon Lakes seem to be gaining in popularity every day—and the accommodation is overtaxed, some parties having to be turned away for lack of cottages, and camping sites are at a premium.

Personals.

Mr. H. A. Johnston, of Rochester, arrived at his cottage, Birch Lodge, on Loon Lake on Monday for a month's stay.

Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Wallwork and family are spending a week at Fairy Glen Falls, the guests of Rev. C. A. G. Spence.

Mr. and Mrs. James Earnshaw, of Port Arthur, are visiting relatives in Apsley.

RIVER POPULAR AT PRESENT TIME

Whole Stretch Through Campbellford Used By Swimmers.

(Examiner Staff Correspondence)

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 16. — something new in the form of local color has been produced in quantity during the present hot spell. At almost every available space along the canal walls this afternoon, at least one, but usually a group of bright colored bathing suits were to be seen. The "Black Bridge" was the favourite bathing place if numbers were to be taken as any indication. Along the canal above the upper lock several parties parked their cars alongside the road, removed clothing under shelter of the brush, donned their bathing suits and splashed in the warm water till they were sufficiently refreshed.

There is no real bathing beach in the stretch of river through the town and no facilities for bathers other than a life-saving chain along the cement wall a few inches above the water's edge. Children and older persons as well who are desirous of taking a cool plunge must actually take a plunge. Wading out on even a rocky beach is almost an unheard of thing along this section of the river.

COBOURG LOSES FIVE MATCHES

Campbellford Has Wide Margin Over Visitors in League Tourney.

(Examiner Staff Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 16.— The Cobourg tennis team were the guests of the local tennis club yesterday, the occasion being a Central Ontario Lawn Tennis Association tournament. The honours remain at home since the local players defeated the visitors in five of the seven events. This time it was the male members of the club who proved the weak point. Both the men's doubles went to Cobourg. All the other events were held at home. This is the last time these two teams are scheduled to meet this season, but Campbellford still has two matches to play with Belleville. The first of these will be played here this Saturday afternoon.

Ladies' doubles, Mrs. D. W. Douglas and Miss Eleanor Ferris won from Miss Phyllis Alloway and Miss V. Chilton, 6-4, 6-2. Men's doubles, Dr. Johnston and J. H. Bell lost to A. R. Willmot and E. Butler (Cobourg) 6-2, 0-6, 4-6. Wilbert Kingston and B. H. Beatty lost to A. Cochrane and Dr. Drewry, (Cobourg), 2-6, 9-11. Miss Jessie Weston and Dr. H. B. Longmore won from Miss Hayden and J. Hayden, 6-4, 6-1, in the mixed doubles. Miss Josephine Longmore won the ladies' singles from Miss M. Hayden, 6-2, 8-6. Both the men's singles were won by Campbellford when Harry Free defeated G. MacDonald, 6-2, 6-2; and Clifford Weston won from M. Chilton 6-0, 6-1.

After the playing was completed, tea and sandwiches were served in the club house while some of the more industrious members and visitors indulged in friendly games.

PREPARES TO MODERNIZE CHINA

Nationalists Settle Factional Dispute and Adopt Broad Program For Re-organizing Nation.

NANKING, China, Aug. 16.—Political bickerings that endangered the newly-restored comparative peace of China were placated over the week-end and ironed out at the closing session of the Fifth Plenary Conference of the Central Executive Committee of the Kuomintang (Nationist Party).

The parley was interrupted frequently in the brief session because of differences of opinion regarding political organizations within the administration, but it peacefully settled all superficial difficulties and the delegates will meet this morning to terminate formally the National Government gathering. While the most significant affairs concerned domestic realignments, chiefly along lines of reform within the financial administration presented by Minister T. V. Soong and proposals for the demobilization of China's huge armies, foreign policy occupied much of the conversations and important pronouncements are expected shortly.

Compromise on Branch Councils

The primary obstacle, that nearly wrecked the Government's unity in the course of the session, concerns domestic political affairs and is difficult to explain briefly. These centred around the question whether to continue the existence of what is known as the branch political councils, these being bodies theoretically subordinate to the Nanking National Government, but which a certain body of Chinese opinion felt usurped too much of the National or Federal Government's authority. These councils are subordinate to the Central Political Council at Nanking, but had acted more or less autonomously, incensing leaders who demanded their abolition. A compromise was reached whereby the political councils continue temporarily, but must be abolished before the end of the year.

Financial rehabilitation of the nation, another of the outstanding problems on agenda, is more generally regarded as a victory for Dr. Soong, whose financial program was adopted without change, giving his Ministry control of all the nation's revenues, authorizing his organization's Budget Committee authority to act an all national expenditures and delineation of the provincial and national finances.

Grain Crop In Fine Shape

Report Shows Fine Yield Promised in Central Alberta District.

OPTIMISTIC OUTLOOK.

Slight Damage Reported From Storms, Insects and Diseases.

EDMONTON, Alta., Aug. 16.—(Canadian Press.)— Ample August heat accompanied by frequent showers has proved ideal for the filling of the grain crops of Central Alberta and under favorable conditions grain is ripening rapidly and very even on the average with promise of a fine yield, according to reports from correspondents for the Edmonton Journal's fourth crop report.

The fact that one-half of the points report no crop damage and prospects bright to date provides ground for the optimistic outlook reported. The remainder report hail damage but in only 20 per cent. of the district was it more than slight, heavy storms being confined to restricted areas in most instances. Other crop damage was practically nil, slight damage being reported from insects and disease in isolated districts only.

No frost damage has been reported and early wheat is now past the danger stage.

A score of points reported cutting of early wheat last week while as many more saw binders going into the fields this week. In a great many districts harvesting will be general by Aug. 20. Many districts will be a week to ten days ahead of last year.

Correspondents estimate wheat yields at from 20 to 40 bushels per acre, the estimates given averaging 30 bushels per acre, which figure maintains early estimates given for the July report.

Coarse grains on the whole are reported in excellent condition with oats and barley ripening in some areas and a few early fields cut. In new districts only did grain fail to overcome the early period of drought which tended to uneven growth in June. Green feed is generally reported very good and some of the best hay crops in years are noted.

CHILDREN HAVE EXCITING TIME

Junior Regatta at Chemong Attracts Long List of Entries.

COMPETITION KEEN.

The Children's Regatta held at Chemong Park yesterday afternoon under the auspices of the Chemong Cottagers' Association was a very successful and enjoyable event. There was a large attendance of cottagers, many of the juniors appearing in bathing suits, owing to the extreme heat of the day. The weather was ideal for the occasion, and every event was contested with great spirit and vigor by the young boys and girls taking part. Several of the events had so many entries that they were run off in heats, while one especial and popular entry was the diving contest, in which nineteen took part. The eager-eyed, enthusiastic boys and girls exhibited great interest in the varied program, which included rowing, paddling and swimming races, with a special single canoe race for Chemong Park residents only, for the J. K. Hughes silver cup. Another silver cup was awarded for the sailing event.

An energetic committee had arrangements well in hand, headed by J. E. Patte as chairman, with J. K. Hughes, W. J. Thompson, Roy Dixon, Dr. A. W. McPherson and J. S. Knapman of Stoney Lake as judges, G. H. Roper as starter, Dr. Harold Long as announcer, and Alex. Darling as clerk.

RAINS DAMAGE EARLY GRAIN

Barley and Oats Made Hard To Cut By Persistent Wet Weather.

RASPBERRIES GOOD.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ENNISMORE, August 16. — The continuous rains have done considerable damage to fall wheat, alsike and hay. Some of the fall wheat has sprouted. The barley and oats are quite difficult to cut owing to the ground being soft and the grain being so flat. At the present time the weather is splendid for harvesting. A few have threshed alsike and report it to be in poor condition.

The raspberries have been an extra good crop this year, but in places there was so much water that it was impossible to get into the woods to pick them.

Paris Declines To Consider "Unequal Treaties" in Settlement For 1927 Outbreak.

ON NANKING QUESTION.

PARIS, Aug. 16.—French negotiations now under way with the Chinese Nationalist Government for settlement of the Nanking incident follow the general lines of the British settlement, it was learned at the Quai D'Orsay.

The French attitude, contrary to that adopted by the United States for immediate revision of the so-called unequal treaties, is that France remains ready to discuss that question as soon as it can find a responsible government, capable of speaking for China, with which to deal. For the present the French do not feel they can include the question of the treaties in the negotiations which are being framed by the French Consul - General at Shanghai.

Reports reaching Paris indicate that the Japanese are somewhat disturbed over the Washington decision and it has been stated in despatches from Tokio that, despite Secretary Kellogg's announcement that he does not intend to discuss matters not relating to the anti-war treaty with foreign diplomats while in Paris, the Japanese Government has instructed Baron Uchida, now en route to Paris, to proceed to exchange views on the Chinese situation with Mr. Kellogg, M. Briand, and Sir Austen Chamberlain, with a view to establishing a united front of foreign powers in dealing with China.

THE CHEMONG ROAD.

Complaints at the slow rate at which paving operations on the Chemong road are proceeding are not difficult to understand.

Those who live along this highway and others who have to use it frequently are willing to put up with the inconvenience of having the road blocked this year, but they feel that one summer should be enough, and they are beginning to fear that the little progress being made at present will leave some of the work to be completed in 1929.

It is recognized that the building of good roads necessarily cause inconvenience, but there is a feeling that it should be possible to push this particular piece of road-building at greater speed than has so far been shown, and to complete the work this year so that the inconvenience will not have to be carried over the winter.

Failure to complete a section of the Peterborough-Port Hope highway last year caused a very disagreeable situation this spring when scores of cars were mired, and it is to be hoped there will not be similar trouble on the Chemong road through the present operations being unfinished.

GETTING AWAY WITH IT.

Quebec's new policy of cancelling drivers' licenses in all cases where the speed limit is exceeded is probably the most drastic attempt to deal with speeders that has yet been adopted.

It is generally regarded as too severe, and yet there is some justification for officials, after years of attempted persuasion and education, deciding upon something more effective.

Here in Ontario, in spite of all the propaganda that has been used, our traffic laws are flouted by many people.

The law requiring horse-drawn vehicles to carry lights after dark, for instance, is more honored in the breach than in the observance.

The regulation in regard to glaring headlights is in the same category, and recent investigations in Toronto have shown a surprisingly large percentage of cars with defective brakes.

If these and other laws designed in the interest of public safety continue to be disregarded the time may come when our own Department of Highways will have to follow the example of Quebec and deal with offenders in a way that will show that the law means something.

The policy of many people seems to be that anything they can get away with is quite justified.

NOT SO SOFT AFTER ALL.

The theory that the youth of to-day is made of softer and less durable material than their ancestors is quite popular with many people, but is knocked into a cocked hat by the Olympic Games and other athletic events of the present summer.

Men are swimming faster to-day than yesterday's generation thought possible, they are jumping higher, pole vaulting higher, covering more distance in the broad jump, running the sprints at lightning speed, and eating up the distance in longer running events at a rate that a decade or two would have been thought impossible.

The English Channel has been conquered repeatedly by both men and women swimmers, a whole flock of runners and walkers crossed the United States on foot in remarkable time, and other outstanding performances give the lie to the statement that modern youth is degenerating.

The signs upon which such a theory is based are evidently only superficial—certainly they are not supported by the story told in the world of sport where the young men—and young women, too, for that matter—of this "soft age" go blithely on setting up new records of achievement.

ORGANIZATION IN INDUSTRY AND COMMERCE.

The Department of Labor has just issued the seventh report on organization industry, commerce and the professions for the year 1928, a volume which conveys some idea of the extent to which organization has developed among those concerned with industrial and commercial activities in the Dominion. The report also contains much information in regard to associations whose members are engaged in professional, technical and scientific pursuits. The organizations are divided into the following groups:

I.—Manufacturing.
II.—Building and construction.
III.—Mining.
IV.—Transportation and communication.
V.—Printing and publishing.
VI.—Laundering, cleaning, repairing.
VII.—Personal service and amusement.
VIII.—General manufacturers and employers.
IX.—Financial.
X.—Agriculture.
XI.—Dairying.
XII.—Horse, live stock, sheep breeders, etc.
XIII.—Wholesale merchants.
XIV.—Retail merchants.
XV.—Real estate dealers.
XVI.—Professional.
XVII.—Technical and scientific.
XVIII.—Insurance.
XIX.—Funeral service.

The report states that the first eight divisions contain the names of 394 main and branch associations, 45,744 members of which are persons or firms who are identified with industries in which many workers are employed. Some of the employers included in these groups have agreements with the corresponding organizations of work people covering the conditions of employment in their respective establishments. In the remaining eleven groups the employment of labor is in some cases only incidental, and with the exception of the retail merchants' section there is no corresponding body of organized employees.

While in the main the associations whose names appear in the report are purely Canadian, a number are connected with organizations whose headquarters are in the United States. The names of associations printed in the report number 691 main organizations and 716 branch associations, making in all 1,407 associations, which is 1,048 less than the number recorded in 1927, the decrease being accounted for by the elimination of the co-operative societies' group, which in 1927 contained the names of 1,155 associations, and for which the department is preparing a separate report, which will appear shortly. The total combined membership of the 1,407 organizations whose names appear in the present report is 868,820, which in some cases apply to companies, but in the main represent individuals.

$1.50 PER BUSHEL.

(The Border Cities Star)

Fifteen years ago a man sat in an office in a Western Canadian city and told a group of wheat growers that the day was coming when they would receive $1.50 per bushel for Number One Northern Wheat. At that time the farmers laughed at this city man, who dared have such an optimistic dream of the future. Fifteen years ago the growers were getting between 60 and 80 cents a bushel for their wheat. To them it seemed impossible that the price of the grain would ever reach even $1.00 per bushel.

But the city man was adamant. He pointed out to the farmer that what was needed was some suitable way of marketing their grain. At the time the whole crop was bought by private buyers acting for the individual grain companies. The farmers had to sell at harvest time. They had to take whatever the companies chose to give. There was no recourse.

The city man did not offer any definite proposal. From time to time he put forth ideas and suggestions. Each of these was received with more or less derision. The growers said he was a dreamer, a man who could see the future through all too roseate glasses.

To-day the city man sits in his office and smiles. The Western Wheat Pools have just issued cheques for $34,000,000 to the Pool members on the prairies. It was the fourth crop being marketed by the Pools. Those cheques represented an interim payment of 25 cents per bushel for Number One Northern. They brought the price per bushel already received for the 1927 crop up to $1.40 and there is still a payment to come.

The 1924 crop netted $1.66 per bushel; the 1925 crop brought $1.45 per bushel; the 1926 crop sold for $1.42 per bushel. Over the three years the average price was $1.51 per bushel. The final payment on the 1927 crop will bring the price of it up to around $1.50 or more per bushel.

No wonder the city man, who sat in his office fifteen years ago and prophesied $1.50 wheat, smiled.

MR. TUNNEY TAKES A WIFE.

When Mr. John Harrison Dempsey became the husband and devoted slave of Miss Estelle Taylor, movie star, the old-time pugilistic world held its breath. This was so different from the matrimonial ventures of the old bruisers who ruled the prize ring in the robust days when prize-fighters were prize-fighters, and when the wife of one of them could sit just below his corner and, when things were going badly, yell: "Hit 'im in the slats, Bob; hit 'im in the slats." But what under skies and stars are the hard-boiled to say, now that Mr. Gene Tunney, ex-pugilist and pundit, has gone and selected himself a wife from an old millionaire family that is registered in the Social Register? What on earth has the game come to, that this last disaster has befallen it?

An extraordinary pugilist and chap in this same Tunney. Born, like Al Smith, in little Old New York, reared on its sidewalks, a man who fought in the war with the marines, and who chopped all the bruiser fighters into obscurity and himself into wealth, he seems to have modelled his life after the precepts of Dr. Frank Crane or Dr. Bruce Barton. At first a skeptical public, wearied by the exhortations and prohibitions of the professional perfectionists, found Mr. Tunney too flawless for consumption. A saccharine-gorged palate revolted. If Mr. Tunney had only been arrested a couple of times for reckless driving, or had been detected in a romance with a cabaret dancer, or had been caught with a pint of liquor on his hip, the fight followers would have linked him with the rest of mankind and certified his title to public esteem.

But Mr. Tunney did or was caught in none of these things. Instead, he refused to give a testimonial to a popular cigarette, never patronized a bootlegger, never even engaged in a wordy conflict with a traffic officer, and, worst blow of all, began lecturing on Shakespeare. That was the last blow. Mr. Tunney was tried at the bar of the fight-loving public and convicted of superior virtue—his popularity waned every time he defeated some new, imperfect representative of weak mortality.

And now comes the end. Mr. Tunney is to go walking—walking, mark you—in Germany with Mr. Thornton Wilder, author of that remarkable book, "The Bridge of San Luis Rey," and then he is to come home to marry the heiress of an old American family. After that, we suppose, a financial career, more wealth, more social influence, literature, great affluence.

Our hat is off to Mr. Gene Tunney. Men, many men, have risen from poverty to wealth, and earned the world's plaudits. But to rise from poverty, to rise above the environment of the prize-ring, to win a million dollars with good stout fists and a healthy body, and to keep a healthy and clean mind the while, loving the highest and the best, winning a girl that, by all accounts, is certainly worth the winning in more ways than one, constitutes a unique, extraordinary, and superlative achievement. In all its long and chequered career the prize ring has not seen Mr. Tunney's likes and it will not soon look upon his likes again.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Unfortunately, neither the Premier nor the leader of the Opposition is saying anything about the Trent Canal during their present tours.

The number of games scheduled here this week indicates that baseball is a long way from being killed by the opposition of softball.

It is wise to drive slowly in Quebec Province if you want to drive at all.

Hon. Mr. Dunning's advice to new citizens is founded on personal experience. The Minister of Railways and Canals came here as an immigrant himself, and has made good through his own ability and willingness to work.

Newspaper editors should be in a position to help the Legislature's Fisheries Committee. At least they hear all about the big ones that got away.

The Question Box

M. Q.—After whom was Mount Robson, a peak 12,972 feet high in the Canadian Rockies, named?

A.—The origin of the name Mount Robson is doubtful and there are many different stories concerning its origin. However, we believe that it was named after Hon. John Robson, who was prime minister of British Columbia from 1889 to 1892.

P. B. Q.—Is Marie, the Dowager Empress of Russia, still alive? If so, where is she now residing?

A.—She is still alive and is residing at Hvidoere, her country seat near Copenhagen, Denmark.

M. E. B. Q.—I am very anxious to get a little poem, and perhaps you can tell me where to find it. It was in my school book, and runs like this: "Master we are seven; sisters and brothers, little maid, how many may you be?" etc.

A.—The poem you are looking for is "We are Seven," by William Wordsworth (1770-1850), who was Poet Laureate of Great Britain for 1843 to 1850. It is to be found in any good edition of that great poet's works and in many collections of popular poetry.

A Thought

NO TRUMPET NEEDED.

There is no need of a trumpet for any honest, brave, and useful act, neither it is necessary to rely on posterity to perpetuate the memory of your good deeds.

When we are fair with our friends, square with our enemies, and very useful in the world, enough people will know about us and enough will remember us.

GOD'S MINUTE.

Forgive, and ye shall be forgiven.—Luke 6:37.

With grateful hearts, our Father, we humbly bow around this family altar. We are Thy children. We confess our sins and acknowledge Thy loving kindness and tender mercies. Forgive us our sins and create in us forgiving hearts. Make us as willing to forgive as we are to be forgiven. Enlarge upon us Thy loving kindness and encircle us with Thy unwearied compassion.

Broaden our sympathies, and save us from selfishness. Open our ears to the cry of our next door neighbor and to the call of the man of Macedonia. Multiply our opportunities for doing good and consecrate our energies to Thy service. Warm our hearts to respond to the needs of our fellow-man, and make us messengers of strength and comfort to the discouraged and broken-hearted. Fill us with Thy Spirit, energize us with Thy love, and use us to Thy glory. Continue to beautify our lives with Thy blessings, strengthen us in the hour of our temptation and sustain us when we pass through the valley of deep darkness. And now, Father, we thank Thee for everything that makes us better children of Thine; for everything that makes us more beloved of Thee, and more useful in the world; for our home, our family and the Church. But above all, we thank Thee for Thy Son, our Saviour, in Whose name we pray. Amen.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

TORONTO, August 16. — A slightly steadier market, but with prices again off on the lower grades of cattle, which have flooded the yards during the past week, was the report of the dealers at the Live Stock Exchange yesterday morning. Over 1,500 cattle were left unsold from Tuesday, this having the tendency to kill any rising in prices which might have occurred in view of the receipts yesterday, which totalled only 402 cattle.

Choice butcher cows were steady, with medium a quarter lower on the week's trading. Another quarter was expected off this before the close. Most of the better grade cattle has been snapped up, and that which remains is of poorer quality, mostly nondescript heifers and light cattle.

The top price on lambs was reduced to 15 cents, due to the heavy receipts yesterday. Otherwise the market was steady and unchanged. The hog market showed no change. Veal calves were steady at 14c to 15½c for the best. A clean-up is not expected due to the large number of poor grade cattle which traders refuse to buy at this time of the year.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 16 (Canadian Press).—The foreign demand for Canadian grain showed a decided improvement here yesterday and local exporters reported a fair volume of business in wheat, barley and oats for October and November delivery to the United Kingdom and Continental ports.

The feature of the domestic trade was the strength that developed in Canadian Western oats and values were marked up two to three cents per bushel. This was attributed to the advance in cash wheat prices at Winnipeg. The demand was moderate.

A fairly active business was done in Spring and Winter wheat grades of flour, and values were firm.

The local and United States demand for all lines of millfeed was good and a moderate amount of business was done at steady prices.

The trade in standard grades of rolled oats was dull.

The undertone to the egg market was firm under a continued good demand from all sources. The receipts were 1693 cases.

An easier feeling prevailed in the cheese market and prices were again reduced fractionally. The inquiry was fair. Receipts were 4,234 boxes.

Despite an improvement in the demand the undertone to the butter market was again easy and values were reduced ½ to ¼c per lb. Receipts were 90 packages.

The demand for imported beans was fair and prices were unchanged. Car lots of white hand-picked were sold at $3.90 per bushel, and smaller quantities at $4.10.

DE LAVAL ISSUES ANNIVERSARY BOOK

Handsome Volume Tells of Progress of Company Since 1878.

"Fifty years of Service to the Dairy Industry" commemorating the fiftieth anniversary of the De Laval Separator Company, is the title of a nicely prepared anniversary book issued by the above-named company. Not only is it a credit to that firm but in its pages may be found a most informing history of the cream separator, and of the inventor, Dr. Carl Gustaf Patrik De Laval (1845-1913).

Carl Gustaf Patrik De Laval, whose Swedish forbears were of French ancestry, was born in the province of Dalecarlia, Sweden, May 9, 1845 and died, after a lifetime of distinguished accomplishments, at Stockholm, on February 2, 1913. De Laval was one of the most prolific and versatile of the world's great geniuses, the first continuous centrifugal cream separator having been but one of his many notable achievements in a various field of scientific endeavor and practical usefulness.

He had already made a number of inventions before he solved the problem of applying centrifugal force to milk separation. His first separator was of the power belt-driven type. A few years later he conceived the first practical hand driven machine, building three different types of such a machine.

He was also the first to apply the steam turbine to the driving of a cream separator.

Among his other dairy inventions were the lactocrite, for testing the percentage of butter fat in milk, which led to the development by Dr. Babcock of the simpler test that has done so much for dairying; the centrifugal churn for continuously churning the cream as delivered from the separator; and the centrifugal emulsor. In 1894 he took out his first patent on a mechanical cow milker and he continued to work on such a device at various later periods.

Dr. DeLaval's most important invention, aside from the separator, was the steam turbine that bears his name, while numerous others had to do with ships, steam boilers, magnetic ore separation and a wide range of subjects. Many honors were bestowed upon him, both by his own and other countries and he was still hard at work on old and new experiments when death terminated his eventful career.

Professors and other masters of dairy husbandry in leading universities of the United States, creamery companies and dairy councils have expressed their approval of the De Laval service and their letters have been embodied in the Anniversary book.

Progress of Inventions.

The development of dairying inventions is described in paragraphs of footnote form, but quite as interesting as if in lengthy paragraphs. For instance it tells that the first De Laval continuous discharge centrifugal cream separator was superior to any other method of skimming, for it saved labor, and made possible the separation of milk while still fresh, separated the butter-fat more thoroughly and required less space. It was invented in 1878 and had a separating capacity of 300 pounds of milk an hour with a hollow bowl. More than four million separators have been made since that date.

Until the invention of the centrifugal separator, the Cooley deep-setting system was in general use, it being the best method of gravity cream separation. Milk was placed in shotgun cans which were placed in cold water. The cream would rise in about twenty-four hours, yet if this system had been in use last year, $35,000,000 worth of butter-fat would have been left in the skim milk in the United States alone. The shallow pan method of separating was also in general use in 1878, but it was slow and wasteful.

The history of the dash churn is reviewed in the book; the first above-ground silo, invented in 1880, now has a half-million ancestors; the square box churn came into prominence in 1884 and in the same year, the De Laval company introduced the first device for reconstructing milk or cream from the component parts of milk. It was called the centrifugal Emulsor.

There is a wealth of other information pertaining to the development of the dairy industry provided in the Anniversary book.

SCIENCE KNOWS NO FRONTIERS

Sir James Irvine Describes To Chemists at Chicago British Research.

IN ADVANCE OF CIVILIZATION

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—Science has progressed in advance of civilization, declared Sir James C. Irvine, acting Chancellor of St. Andrew's University, Scotland, in an address before the American Chemical Society Institute at Northwestern University.

"Chemistry is a philosophy," Sir James declared, "working in man's mind, leading him to search for fundamental truth and in the end to power in world affairs. Science knows no frontiers."

"In England in the middle of the seventeenth century," he said, "the chemical factory was represented by little more than a dye-house, the powder mills, breweries, tanneries and iron smelting furnaces scattered over the provinces. Food, clothing and shelter of the simplest kind supplied the elementary needs of life for the average Briton through an existence which appears to our eyes unspeakably drab and monotonous.

"Life was at once hard and hazardous, being precarious through other causes than war. With sanitation unknown and with soap a luxury, personal cleanliness suffered in proportion as the density of the population increased, and in consequence the menace of plague was never far removed."

Robert Boyle formed a fraternity of youths scientifically inclined, who called themselves "The Invisible College."

"They had on thought of science and world progress," explained Sir James, "but with their microscopes and telescopes they devoted themselves to putting Bacon's philosophic system to the test. It is an inspiring thought that, amidst the clash of arms, while the King fell, while, in turn, the Commonwealth fell, this group of experimenters was quietly at work."

Group Founded Royal Society.

Eventually this fraternity became the "Royal Society," which is still the leading scientific body in Great Britain.

"From the first," continued Sir James, "these pioneers were experimenters. Their investigations varied from the dissection of dogs to the proof that the miraculous properties ascribed to the deer's horn were naught but vile superstition.

At every turn the reader of this section of scientific history is impressed by the fact that these men were thinking in advance of their times. Why, even the artificial silk industry was foreshadowed by observations made by Hooke.

"Boyle and his followers gave us the first definite ideas of the nature of gases and of the cause of combustion, but more than a century was to elapse before the real significance of these discoveries became apparent.

"Although still mainly agricultural and commercial, England was rapidly progressing as an industrial country, and the whole standard of living had improved almost beyond recognition. Compared with a century before, the distribution of wealth was more uniform, and the essentials of clean, healthy living were much more widely spread.

"Men had become experimenters, no longer content with haphazard trial and error, but using this system we now call the scientific method. The science of the Royal Society was fast becoming the hand-maiden of commerce.

Field of Chemist Expanded.

"At the end of the eighteenth century came a rush of discoveries. The chemist, hitherto confined almost exclusively to solids and liquids, was suddenly confronted with a whole new field of exploration.

"The equivalent change of today lies in man's conquest of the air as a medium for flight after countless centuries in which his movements were confined to land and water."

Dr. Gustave Gloff, research director of the Universal Oil Products Company of Chicago, told the chemists that motorists could save 3,000,000,000 gallons in gasoline and more than $400,000,000 this year if automobile manufacturers would make their cars with higher compression.

"Motor fuel is a much superior product over that of the past," he declared. "But the full value of present-day gasoline cannot be obtained because the automotive engineers are not building high enough compression motors."

On the subject of "Hydrogenation," Dr. A. S. Richardson, of the Proctor and Gamble Company, explained that cheap vegetable oils can be made into hard fats by shooting hydrogen through them.

FARMER CUTS THROAT.

Nelson Richmond, 66, Found in Barn Badly Gashed.

KINGSTON, Ont., August 16 (Canadian Press). — Nelson Richmond, 66, Richmond Township farmer, was found late yesterday in his barn with his throat badly gashed. He was brought to the hospital here where his condition is serious. Richmond apparently used a jack-knife to cut himself.

"The only American born Siamese twins," as they are billed in vaudeville and in midway side shows, Mary and Margaret Gibb, age 17, were in hospital, it is said, preparing to undergo an operation to separate them, a surgical undertaking which psysicians declined to perform. Margaret wishes to be free to marry. At the age of three an attempt to separate them was to be made, but physicians examining the twins decided against it.

PETERBOROUGH MEN ENJOY OCEAN TRIP

J. J. Turner and J. J. Howden Return From Voyage to Old Country.

Clipping some eight hours from the former passenger steamer record between Liverpool and Montreal, the new Canadian Pacific liner arrived in the Canadian port recently, and aboard were two Peterborough citizens, returning from a most enjoyable visit to the British Isles. Ex-mayor J. J. Turner, to whom ocean travel is not a new experience, had as his fellow-traveller, J. J. Howden, enjoying his first visit to the British Isles, who, interviewed by The Examiner stated that the trip was of immense value from an educational standpoint, presenting an opportunity of judging the fertility of the land, the crops and methods of farming as compared with farming in Canada. He and Mr. Turner both spoke enthusiastically of their holiday travels.

The trip was planned so that it would be possible to land in Glasgow, allowing a view of the shipping and shipbuilding, and to this pleasure was added an opportunity of seeing His Royal Highness, the Prince of Wales, when he lunched with the Municipal Government of Glasgow, in their beautiful City Hall, and again on the same day when His Royal Highness attended the huge Pageant staged on the grounds of a large estate, in aid of a new dental hospital.

As Mr. Howden's forbears came from Ireland over one hundred years ago, they sailed to Belfast, and on to Enniskillen, to look up relatives, view old homesteads, and look up records connected with the family history. Research of this kind presents difficulties, but many surprises and new friends were made, which made this portion of the trip enjoyable.

Returning to Glasgow, a very happy day was spent in Burns' country, which always offers attractions, no matter how many times one has seen it before. On through the Trossachs to Edinburgh, where they had the privilege with hundreds of others each day, generally looking over the City with its many historic buildings and monuments, but chiefly the splendid memorial in honor of Scottish Regiments in every department during the Great War, with the Regimental Colors and a Book of Remembrance for each division. This memorial is outstanding of its kind, and offers a mecca of travel from the ends of the earth.

Dundee, the jute market of the world, was visited, as also Aberdeen. The journey from Edinburgh to London, about 400 miles by the "Flying Scotsman" in eight hours without stop, was a revelation in railway travel, and gave an opportunity of judging the comfort of trans-continental trains, and also offered a chance of viewing the farms and crops, together with the cattle pasturing on the land.

About ten days were spent in London, in which a bird's eye view was obtained of the extent of the parks, the quantity of the street traffic and the splendid control by those in authority, which attracts delegations from other countries to learn how the traffic is handled in London.

London was full to overflowing with tourists, and unless reservations had been made, it was difficult to get hotel accommodation. Every day we saw organized groups going everywhere sightseeing, as London is the hub from which all tours start and finish.

Ex-Mayor Turner and Mr. Howden visited some of the large farms of 500 and 1000 acres, and were astonished to find such large acreage under cultivation, and this year crops are bountiful, the weather was ideal, which enabled the farmer to garner the hay, of which great quantities are grown. Other crops were well advanced and just to see the height of straw in an oat field, a stock was taken and found to stand full six inches above their heads.

A journey was made to North Wales to visit Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Price, formerly of St. George's Church, South Peterborough, and their visit co-incided with a visit to her parents of Miss Alice Price, Matron of the Isolation Hospital. Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Price reside at Prestatyn, North Wales, and ask to be remembered to their many friends in Peterborough and vicinity.

The City of Chester was visited to view the old Roman wall running around the city, as well as the ancient Cathedral. The City of Manchester was next, which brought the travellers close to the home of Chief of Police Newhall, and a call was made to enquire after the health of the family connection. It was during this visit they learned of the heavy taxes carried by some businesses, which are assessed sixteen shillings on the pound. Before leaving Peterborough, they had arranged return passage by the new C.P.O. Steamship, "Duchess of Bedford" sailing July 27th. from Liverpool, and they planned to arrive a day early to see the cathedral now building, the corner stone of which was laid in 1909, and while half of the edifice is built, it is estimated it will take 15 years to finish.

On Friday they embarked, and the "Duchess of Bedford" sailed at 4:30 a.m. with a full complement of passengers. The outward voyage was made in the S.S. "Metagama," which gave an opportunity of becoming acquainted with the First Officer, Mr. Richardson, who by the way is an old school chum of C. L. Brewer, of this city. Mr. Turner states Mr. Howden and himself were delighted to find Mr. Richardson had been transferred to the S.S. "Duchess of Bedford," as he was a courteous, efficient officer going over, and increased his popularity by doing everything to make the voyage home pleasant.

Capt. Sibbons, the Purser, the Steward, in fact all studied the passengers' comfort, and amusement. The ship sailed at 4:30 a.m. Friday, and the travellers reached Peterborough at 6 o'clock the following Friday.

Mr. Turner and Mr. Howden endeavor to sum up the trip as a great Empire education, and have no hesitation in recommending others to plan ahead, and make a trip to the Old Land, if at all possible.

Ernst Vierkoetter, the world's champion marathon swimmer, signing on the dotted line for the third Wrigley $50,000 marathon, to be held September 5 at the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto. The German aquatic marvel is shown with his trainer, Erich Baranchee. Ernst won the $25,000 prize in last year's swim. The women will race on August 29. It will be the biggest sporting event in history, to say nothing of being the swim de luxe of all time. Over 220,000, said to be the largest number of people to ever witness a sporting classic, saw last year's race, one of 21 miles for women and men both. This year it is 15 miles for the men, and 10 for the ladies. Vierkoetter says he fears only one man, George Young, the Canadian. In an exhibition race a few days ago George beat Ernst handily, but the German said he wasn't trying. Vierkoetter was 27 years old on August 14. Famous swimmers from all parts of the world have entered the race. The most famous of the women is Gertrude Ederle, first woman to swim the English Channel.

With five persons seriously injured following the wreck of a big cabin aeroplane at Muskoka Lake and with resources at Calydor sanatorium, Gravenhurst, taxed to care for them, medical assistance was rushed from St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto, by automobile. In the relief party were: (1) Dr. Leo Killoran; (2) Dr. D. W. Pratt; (3) Dr. George Wilson. These medical men worked through the night. As a result, it is expected, all the youthful victims will recover.

A two-year-old mystery of the North has been solved by the finding of the bodies of John Hornby, famous British explorer, and his two nephews in a lonely cabin on the north bank of the Thelon River in the barren land west of Hudson Bay. The party apparently died of starvation. Hornby had spent the last twenty years in the Arctic. His nephews, both under 20 years of age, accompanied him on his last expedition. The map shows the Thelon game sanctuary area. It is situated between Great Slave Lake and Chesterfield Inlet, west of Hudson Bay.

SPOILT MUSIC

A Splendid New Serial by Ruby M. Ayres

CHAPTER XLII

An Old Friend.

"I've made a terrible mess of my life, that's what it is!" Jennifer told herself hopelessly.

It seemed incredible that she could ever have made anyone hate her as Buddy hated her, and then her sense of repulsion changed to pity as she realized how passionately the girl must have loved Chesney.

Jennifer knew what it was to suffer because one loved too well.

Even now, as she sat in the rather dreary bedroom of the Bloomsbury Hotel she felt as if there were two forces at war in her heart, one that was straining every longing nerve to go to Nicholas Gaunt, and the other restraining that passionate impulse with iron will.

Life was so short. Why not take the crumbs of happiness which were flung in the way. "If I had gone to him and he had grown tired of me, I should have died," Jennifer said aloud.

She was answering the hunger of her heart trying to beat it down.

What was he doing now, she wondered miserably. Did he know she had gone? Perhaps he would try to find her—the thought drove her to her feet.

"I must go away where he cannot follow me. I dare not see him again," she told herself in despair.

If only Chesney had not failed her. This love would have been a sure harbour—her gratitude to him would have made a strong defence against Nicholas.

She took off her hat and brushed her hair.

The day stretched endlessly before her. She longed with all her soul for someone to whom she might go with complete confidence.

If only she had had a sister.

Jennifer remembered that her mother had always wished for a second daughter.

"Daughters are better than a son," Mrs. Fry had been fond of declaring. "I believe in the old saying, "My son's my own till he gets him a wife; my daughter's my daughter all her life."

It seemed only yesterday that she and her parents had lived their happy, humdrum lives together. Uneventful days and evenings, unbroken save when they occasionally went to a show at the Kilburn Empire, waiting half an hour beforehand at the door for the front row of the pit, or when Alfred Heaton came to supper, wearing his best suit, and with too much brilliantine on his hair. Alfred Heaton! Jennifer smiled as she thought of him. He was always so hot and shy and embarrassed. They had not met for some time now, and she wondered if he would be pleased to see her if she wrote to him.

More for something to do than for any other reason she sent him a note. A letter addressed to the Bank would always find him, she knew.

It was eloquent of her loneliness that she felt almost eager to dive back far enough into the past to reach the small niche in her life which Heaton had so unobtrusively occupied.

She asked him to lunch with her on Thursday, and mentioned that she would shortly be leaving England. In order not to embarrass him, she asked him to come to the hotel where she was staying. The dining-room was homely, like him, and would suit him, she knew.

Heaton answered by return of post, accepting the invitation, but adding that he could only be spared for an hour from the Bank, so would she please not keep him waiting.

That was typical of Alfred Heaton. He had never been a moment late for anything in his life.

They met on the stroke of one in the hotel lounge. It was a hot day, and Heaton wore a tight collar and a bowler hat with a curly brim, beneath which his face looked very round and red.

He said "Good afternoon!" as formally as if they had never met before, and stared at Jennifer's shingled hair.

She had left her hat upstairs because her head ached, and she wore a sleeveless frock of flimsy green material.

Over lunch, Heaton managed to talk a little.

"You've altered a great deal," was his first blunt remark.

Jennifer laughed.

"Have I? Do you think it is for the worse?"

"I don't like your hair," he told her. "You used to have such lovely hair." Then he blushed fiery red at his own temerity.

"I thought it would be nice to be in the fashion," Jennifer apologized meekly.

"My wife's hair is a yard long," Heaton said proudly.

"Oh! Are you married then?"

"Yes; I've been married fourteen months. And you?"

Jennifer shook her head.

"No. I am still Jennifer Fry."

He fidgeted with his fork.

"I thought perhaps you were married. I saw you about with a man once or twice a year or so ago."

"Did you?"

"Yes; a tall fellow with a car.

She made no answer, and after a moment he went on with great importance.

"I have a daughter, two months old!"

Jennifer's eyes grew misty. In all the world it seemed as if only she had nobody of her own.

"You must be very happy Alfred," she said warmly. "What is the baby's name?"

Heaton looked as if he wished the earth would open and swallow him up, and he got so red that out of sheer consideration Jennifer averted her eyes.

"I called her after you," he stammered at last. "My wife doesn't know, he explained painfully.

"It was kind of you to give her my name," Jennifer said. She felt touched. "I should love to come and see your wife and little girl, Alfred."

"Oh, you mustn't do that," he answered hurriedly—he looked positively scared. "It's not that I don't want you to come, Jennifer, but—well, you see, as I said just now, Maud is inclined to be jealous, and if she thought—if she had any idea that you and I—well you know what I mean."

Jennifer wanted to laugh, but she said very gently:

"Of course, I quite understand. She must be very fond of you, Alfred."

"Yes, I think she is," Heaton agreed, but he sighed and there was a great wistfulness in his eyes as he looked at Jennifer.

He was the most honest and loyal of souls, but he had always known that no one could ever quite take Jennifer's place in his heart.

"It's been very nice to see you again, Alfred," Jennifer said. "When I come back to England I will let you know."

"Yes, do let me know," Alfred answered, but he spoke half-heartedly. He did not want to see Jennifer any more. He made up his mind that if she ever again asked him to meet her, he would have a previous appointment. They said good-bye at the door of the hotel, and Jennifer watched Heaton pad away down the hot, airless street with a strange feeling of sadness. She would have been surprised and touched could she have read his thoughts, and she would not have known whether to laugh or cry had she heard him say to his Maud over their modest supper that evening:

"Have you ever thought of having your hair shingled, my dear?"

Maud stared. She was a plump, healthy-looking young woman, giving promise of bulk and a double chin in the future.

"Whatever's the matter with you?" she asked blankly. "Shingle my hair! Why, I thought you were so proud of it."

Heaton looked guilty.

"So I was—so I am," he protested in a panic. "I only thought—well, it's rather nice to be in the fashion, don't you think?"

Maud snorted.

"A lot you and I have to do with fashion," she retorted with sarcasm. "You're not well, that's what's the matter with you. I thought you must be queer when you suggested calling baby Jennifer! Such an outlandish name. What's it mean I should like to know? I let it pass at the time to please you, but I had my own ideas about it all the same. And now it comes to asking me to have my hair shingled!" She bridled in righteous indignation. "Thank God I haven't sunk as low as that yet."

Alfred hurriedly changed the subject.

LYRICS OF LIFE

DON'T STOP PLAYING.

Don't stop playing just about
The time the boy begins,
Don't include a merry shout
Among the mortal sins,
Don't get dignified and cold,
And even sharp of tongue,
Don't decide that you're too old,
With him to keep you young.

Don't stop playing, while a son
Is standing at the door
Wishing Dad would join his fun
And play a little more.
Lucky man, to have a lad,
A lad to show you how!
Just when life is getting glad,
Don't stop playing now!

UNCLE WIGGILY

By HOWARD R. GARIS

7-days Bedtime Story

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

UNCLE WIGGILY'S FLASHLIGHT

"Are you ready, my dear?" asked Uncle Wiggily of his wife one evening when the sun was still shining after the evening dinner, for there was Daylight Saving Time in Woodland as in other places.

"Yes, I'm all ready," answered the rabbit lady. "But be sure and take your flashlight with you!"

"Why so?" asked Mr. Longears.

"Because it will be dark when we come home," his wife said, "and I don't like hopping through the woods after dark."

"Maybe there'll be a moon," spoke Uncle Wiggily with a laugh as he looked to see if he had a clean handkerchief. For he and his wife were going to spend the evening with Mr. and Mrs. Twistytail, the pigs.

"Moon or no moon, please bring your flashlight," said Mrs. Longears and her husband promised he would, though it was daylight when they left their hollow stump bungalow.

Mr. and Mrs. Twistytail often invited the two rabbits over to spend the evening. Uncle Wiggily and Mr. Twistytail would play Scotch checkers in one corner of the sty and Mrs. Twistytail and Mrs. Longears would talk about the best way to put chocolate on a cake or how to peel potatoes without making them turn into onions.

So Uncle Wiggily and his good wife hopped through the woods and, when they were half way to the Twistytail pig sty, all of a sudden Uncle Wiggily saw, caught in some sticky gum on a pine tree, a large bug of a sort he had never seen before.

"Well, you seem to be in trouble, my friend," spoke the rabbit gentleman. "How did it happen and who are you?"

"I am a big lightning bug from Brazil in South America," was the insect's answer. "In Brazil we fireflies grow five times as large as the fireflies here. If I were not caught in this sticky pine gum I would show you how much light I give."

"Show me after I help you get loose from the gum," suggested the rabbit gentleman.

"Do you think you can loosen me?" sadly asked the Brazil firefly. "You see I flew up from South America because the summer here is now as warm as it is in my country all the year, so there is no danger of me catching cold. But I don't know much about your trees and I blundered into this sticky one and though I've tried and tried I can't get loose."

"I'll help you," said Uncle Wiggily. Now his wife happened to have with her some cold cream for her complexion and when this was rubbed on the firefly's legs they came loose from the sticky gum and he was free to flitter about.

"See how bright I am," called the Brazil lightning bug after he had thanked Uncle Wiggily. Though the sun had not been down long enough to make it very dark, yet the glow that flashed from beneath the insect's wings was as bright as ten of the lightning bugs you know.

"Wonderful!" exclaimed Mrs. Longears.

"Marvelous!" echoed Uncle Wiggily. Then he and his wife hopped on to the pig house where they spent a very pleasant evening, playing games, talking and wondering what the weather would be like next day.

"Now, Wiggy, get out your flashlight!" called Mrs. Longears to her husband as they started back through the woods. "There is no moon and it is very dark. I can't see where I'm going!"

Uncle Wiggily looked in this pocket and he looked in that pocket and he looked in the other pocket and at last he said:

Uncle Wiggily saw a large bug.

"My dear, I am very sorry, but I forgot to bring my flashlight."

"Oh dear! Then how am I to see to keep on the path in the dark woods?" sighed the rabbit lady. And it was hard work. The rabbits went slipping and stumbling and blundering into trees until, all of a sudden, when Mrs. Longears didn't know what to do and had bumped her nose, a voice said:

"I will light you home!" And along flew the big Brazil firefly who made the path through the woods so bright that it was almost like day. Then Mrs. Longears stumbled no more and she and her husband were soon safely in the bungalow. And they kept the big lightning bug over night and gave him a breakfast of honey next morning.

Sun and Wind Bring Out Ugly Spots. How to Remove Easily.

Here's a chance, Miss Freckleface, to try a remedy for freckles with the guarantee of a reliable concern that it will not cost you a penny unless it removes your freckles; while if it does give you a clear complexion the expense is trifling.

Simply get an ounce of Othine—double strength—from any drug or department store and a few applications should show you how easy it is to rid yourself of the homely freckles and get a beautiful complexion. Rarely is more than one ounce needed for the worst case.

Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine as this strength is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove your freckles.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY WE ARE PENNY WISE AND POUND FOOLISH.

(By Mehran K. Thomson, Ph.D.)

I know a man who drives a mile each day to the ice-house because it is twenty cents a hundred cheaperthan ice delivered. And he boasts of his frugality. Evidently he does not figure in the price of gasoline, the wear and tear on his car, the chances of scratching his fine sedan or of wetting the carpet by the melting ice, the time that it takes to go after the ice and the fact that frequently he forgets to go at all and the family is left without ice over Sunday or a holiday.

This man is penny wise and pound foolish and doesn't know it. The same is true of the head of a large concern who spends his valuable time cutting the envelopes of all his letters into sheets of paper to use as scribbling paper and thinks he is economizing. For a few cents he could buy all the scratch paper he is likely to use in a month.

There is no end to illustrations of how we are all penny wise and pound foolish in some matters. The reason is that we are short-sighted. We see only the immediate. The small saving looks big to us because it is concrete and definite. We lose sight of the greater losses we encounter because they are removed in time and space and because they are abstract.

Frequently it is a matter of habit. We take pride in being hard-working and frugal. We deceive ourselves.

We are penny wise and pound foolish for want of knowledge, self-deceptive habits of thrift, false notions of economy, lack of ability to think the matter through or to figure out in exact terms just where the saving, if any, comes in.

The person who is penny wise and pound foolish is the last one in the world to realize that he needs the services of an efficiency expert, for he is all the while congratulating himself on his wisdom and efficiency.

Perhaps what we lose in money by being penny wise and pound foolish is made up to us in the elation of self-deception.

HERE'S TO YOUR HEALTH

BY DR. FRANK McCOY

"The Fast Way to Health"

1928 McCOY HEALTH SERVICE - LOS ANGELES - CAL.

THE CAUSES OF ANEMIA

I find many patients who are obsessed with the idea that they are suffering from anemia. Sometimes doctors have told them this, but usually it is their own idea, which they have formed—probably from the fact that their general run-down condition has given them the impression that their blood must be weak.

Anemia comes from the Greek, and means "without blood." When this condition is present, there is either a deficiency in the amount of blood or a lessened number of red corpuscles. An anemic condition usually refers to the entire body, but it may only apply to a restricted area.

Pernicious anemia is quite rare—perhaps not oftener than once in a thousand cases. Secondary or simple anemia is much more frequently found. Practically all of the cases, who imagine they are suffering from anemia, are suffering from some perfectly definite disease which they imagine is anemia. This is particularly true of such diseases as: tuberculosis, cancer, chronic appendicitis, and other disorders where there is a large amount of pus accumulation in some part of the body.

Contrary to the generally accepted belief, anemic patients are not always thin and frail looking, but in many cases, they are fat and apparently over-fed. There is no reliable way of determining the degree of anemia except by a careful blood examination with the microscope.

The average person is certainly no more than 80% or 90% normal in every way, and those who think themselves ill enough to go to a doctor will usually show a hemoglobin or red blood test of somewhere between 80% and 90% of normal. This then is the average condition which doctors contend with, but of course the few who are in perfect health will show a hemoglobin test of 100%, with the red cells numbering over 5,000,000, and the leukocytes or white cells 7,500.

In some cases the white blood cells become so numerous that they produce a pale complexion, and this disease is termed leukemia. It is very closely related to anemia, and the cure for these two conditions is similar. A diminution of the blood's color, or the number of red corpuscles, cannot be called a sign of true anemia until the percentage of reduction is at least below 80% of the normal.

Secondary anemia is present in any disease where there is a formation of pus, as in appendicitis, liver abscesses, ulcers, etc., and when these pus pockets are removed by surgery, or through absorption and elimination, the white cell count becomes reduced to normal, and the red cells and hemoglobin are automatically increased.

In spite of all the nonsensical fiction that has been written about anemia, and claims that have been made that the cause is unknown, I assure you that this disease is not so mysterious; and although we have not isolated and named the poison which produces it, we nevertheless know that anemia is due to definite toxins, and that most patients can be cured through the simple plan of eliminating these disease poisons from the body. Through this method, we rid the body of all anemic toxins, even though we do not know them by definite names.

Questions and Answers.

Question: Roy W. asks: "In what manner do three drops of arsenic in a glass of water as a tonic, affect a relief from pimples, and clarify the skin in a sixteen year old boy?"

Answer: Arsenic has a definite effect upon stopping skin eruptions, but I do not recommend the form used in medicines. There is a slight amount of arsenic in carrots when used raw and unpeeled. Use a properly balanced diet and a liberal amount of raw carrots. You will then get the same effect as you would from taking the medicinal arsenic, and have no bad results.

Question: Mrs. J. asks: "May fruits be combined with protein foods?"

Answer: Any one kind of fruit may be used with any one kind of protein food."

Question: M.J.B. writes: "I am troubled with catarrh of the nose, also have acne. Is there any connection between the two diseases? Am also underweight.'

Answer: Catarrh of the nose and also acne may be caused by intestinal poisoning. A short fruit fast would be helpful at the beginning of the treatment of either of these disorders. Then use a diet free from fats, sugars, and starches. Do not "stuff" to gain weight, but use a proper amount of the right kinds of food, and avoid constipation.

Question: Ida asks: "Are sunbaths as good as the violet ray lamps? How can I really cure pleurisy?"

Answer: I consider sunbathing to be superior to treatments with the ultra-violet lamps, as the sun's rays doubtless contain other beneficial rays besides the ultra-violet. To cure pleurisy, you must first find the cause which may be due to tuberculosis, a tight diaphragm, or the irritation from excessive gas pressure.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

FRIDAY, AUGUST 17, 1928

This is not an important day in planetary direction, according to astrology, but a benefic aspect dominates.

Women are supposed to be strongly influenced for their own welfare while this sway prevails. It should be stimulating and helpful.

Love becomes of prime interest to many while this configuration continues and should bring happiness to both men and women who let the head as well as the heart dictate.

Older persons may be susceptible to romance today and they should watch their steps because Saturn frowns on aged alliance.

All who appear before the public should benefit from this rule which is especially fortunate for orators and actors.

Musicians should benefit today and there is a sign of promise for operas as well as those who appear on the lyric stage.

Again the seers foretell drastic changes in motion pictures which will bring fame to new stars and tribulations for old ones.

Whatever pertains to beauty should benefit under this sway which presages profit for painters and sculptors.

Women should push all their financial or political interests today which promises success for many who work with high purpose.

This direction of the stars is fortunate for all who deal in household necessities or luxuries.

Hotels are subject to a government of the stars that brings them increase of patronage and added scope of entertainment.

The seers foretell the multiplication of small shops in which women are interested.

Dancing is to be even more popular than it has been in the past and many American girls are to gain fame on the stage.

Persons whose birthdate it is should be careful in all business matters and especially in real estate deals. They may be over sanguine and should avoid changes in their associates.

Children born on this day are likely to be endowed with brains and common sense, but they may be too generous for their own best interests. These subjects of Leo usually see life in its largest relations and so plan careers that are important.

ume, barring 200,000 bushels of hard Winter wheat taken for shipment to Europe by way of the Gulf of Mexico.

Closing quotations on wheat were heavy, 1⅛ to 2⅛ net lower, with corn unchanged to 2⅛c off; oats ranging from ¼c decline to a shade advance, and provisions at 20 cents setback to a rise of 12 cents.

Downturns in the value of wheat began the moment the market opened. Canadian advices were at hand telling of higher temperatures and no serious frost, let alone any important damage. It quickly became evident that buying on account of fears of frost was no longer to be a factor, at least for the time being.

On the contrary, hedging sales against newly - harvested wheat widened out, and the market continued to give way most of the time afterward, with pit speculators as a rule pressing the bear side and stressing assertions that a reaction was due after six cents advance in two days.

A forecast from a British authority pointing to prospective large world supplies of wheat tended further to weaken values, and so likewise did reports of auspicious crop conditions in Spring wheat territory south of the Canadian border. This was especially the case with regard to despatches from a leading Chicago crop expert at Great Falls, Mont., who said the wheat harvest in that section would be general next week, with the crop well filled and the quality splendid. Meanwhile, too, it was officially estimated that the carry-over of old wheat in Canada on August 1 was 76,484,000 bushels compared with 50,765,000 bushels a year ago.

Prices for new crop future deliveries of corn were firm yesterday, influenced by less favorable field reports from Iowa, Illinois, Nebraska and South Dakota. September corn was weak, although country offerings of gold corn were practically nothing. Holders of September appeared to be persistently unloading. Oats sympathized with wheat weakness, September and December oats touching a new low price record for the crop.

Provisions reflected the fact that hog values yesterday were at a new high level for the year.

BUTTER AND EGGS.

TORONTO, Aug. 16.—Prices of eggs on the Toronto wholesale produce market continue firm, holding the price advances of the preceding day. Receipts are reported light, while the demand is consistently good. Quotations on butter also continue firm. Toronto wholesale dealers are paying one-quarter cent higher, or 39 cents a pound, for the best No. 1 creamery, solids, pasteurized.

Reports from other centres in Canada show that the egg market is firm to strong. Montreal reports the egg market to be quite strong, and especially strong for immediate consumptive requirements for the high grades. At Edmonton the market is steady with prices to country shippers for extras, 43 cents; firsts, 40 cents, and seconds, 34 cents. A rising market is reported also at Halifax owing to the light receipts and the fine demand. At Halifax dealers are paying shippers extras, 37 to 39c; firsts 33 to 35c; seconds, 25 to 26c, delivered. FALLS BENEATH MOWER WHEEL

Cavan Man Badly Shaken and Bruised While Cutting Peas.

ABLE TO CONTINUE WORK.

MILLBROOK, Aug. 16.—Martyn Pethick met with a painful accident on Tuesday afternoon while cutting a field of peas on the farm of his nephew, Cecil Hubbeard, Zion Line, west of the village. The mower struck a sod and Mr. Pethick was thrown to the ground and partially pinned under one of the wheels. One side was badly bruised, and he was generally shaken up, but after some time was able to resume work and continue cutting the field of grain. The effects of the accident were apparently more seriously felt the following day than when it actually occurred.

Second Game.

The second game was between Cooney's team and Fred Jopling's aggregation, a nip and tuck affair that was not decided until the last frame, when Cooney's had Jopling down three runs, and when Gemmell started the rally with a hunt, while Mann and Jopling reached first and second safely, putting Gemmel on third, while Clark's double drove the all in for the winning counters, as Dobson and Calladine had chalked up two tallies earlier in the frame. The time was five-thirty and half an hour was taken off for supper that was served cafeteria style by the ladies of Bridgenorth United church.

At six-thirty the final game for the senior cup took place.

Senior Play-off Game.

The last battle of the day was not as the score would indicate, a walkaway for the Bridgenorth team, but it was a real pitcher's duel between Carruthers and Forsythe. Forsythe had eight strike-outs to Carruther's three and was more effective. Bridgenorth ran wild in the fourth when they scored four runs. The line-ups: Carruthers, p.; Lebarr, 1b; Bakes, 1b; Calladine, 2b.; Gemmel, ss.; Mann, l.f.; Miller, r.f.; B. Jopling, r.f.; Dobson, c.f.; Haskell, c.; Forsythe, p.; Dobson, c.; Milan, 1b.

At the close of the games Rev. W. S. Edgar, pastor of Gilmour Memorial church, presented the senior cup to the winners, Bridgenorth, and M. A. McWilliams, the manager, replied. Dr. Gibson, of Lakefield, presented the junior cup to the Cement Company of Lakefield, and John Charlton replied, while the Rev. S. Totton, of Bridgenorth United church, presented the bat and ball to the Bridgenorth boys and Don Jopling answered for them.

The cups were presented by the trustees of Bridgenorth United church and are the property of them and to be held for ownership must be won three consecutive years. On the first of July the cups must be returned to P. T. Udy, of Bridgenorth for the annual tournament.

'Attacking' Planes 'Bomb' London By Night; Success Of Mock Raid Dismays Citizens

LONDON, August 16 (Canadian Press). — Vital sections of London would be smoking ruins to-day if the imaginary bombs dropped during a giant mock air attack by the "Eastland" forces throughout the night and early morning had been high explosive shells, the invading contingent claims. If the attacking forces meet the same success during the remainder of the week as they declare they achieved in their first onset, London will be completely wiped out, theoretically.

Londoners who were thrilled by the spectacular combats in mass formation were dismayed to learn to-day the extent of the potential damage caused by the attackers. Aided by favorable conditions, 100 enemy planes penetrated to the outskirts of London and many got into the heart of the city.

From Jamaica to the tables of the world

CENTURY-OLD methods produced a certain grade of ginger in Jamaica. But this grade wasn't good enough for "Canada Dry." And so, J. J. McLaughlin Limited went to Jamaica and offered prizes for ginger grown under modern methods of cultivation. The result was a new ginger—of a higher, finer quality.

That is the grade of ginger used in this fine old ginger ale. The other ingredients are of equal purity and high quality. They are blended and balanced in an exact proportion. Great care is taken to be sure that these proportions never vary. The uniform carbonation of "Canada Dry"—an important matter affecting flavor—is assured by a secret method.

The result is a ginger ale with a marvelous flavor . . . mellow . . . "dry" . . . thirst-quenching. A ginger ale, good by itself or to mix with other beverages. So distinctive is its flavor that you can tell it from all others, anywhere,

THE MIRROR OF THE MODE

By Mary Marshall.

A brown velveteer jacket bought ready made was here combined with white crepe de chine frock with brown embroidery on the blouse and a white hat with a brown band.

Do you like to buy your ensembles already go together, or do you prefer to do your own assembling? To the woman who likes to do this selective work for herself, ready assembled costumes are like "parlor suits" or boxes of mixed chocolates and bonbons. She has her own taste and preferences in all such matters. The woman who prefers to have the assembling done for her is perhaps a little indolent. She would rather not be bothered chasing about trying to get just the right skirt to go with the separate jacket and then the precise sort of overblouse to complete the picture. She would rather rely on the taste of the dressmaker or designer, and if there is a hat and a scarf all ready selected for the costume so much the better.

I understand that there is a very strong tendency at present among the younger women to do their own assembling. And this has meant during the last few weeks a great demand for separate velveteen sports jackets. If you are one of the fortunate ones who can buy ready-made garments to fit you then you will find most useful one of these velveteen jackets which are sold in most of the shops for a most reasonable price.

A smart ensemble might be made by wearing a brown velveteen jacket with a white crepe de chine frock with brown embroidered motive on the blouse, and a white felt hat with brown band. Brown and beige are spoken of as sure to be popular for autumn so you might also use the brown velveteen jacket with a beige hat banded with brown and a beige lightweight flannel frock with brown belt.

A green velveteen jacket would combine well with a frock of lighter green or white. A navy-blue jacket goes well with matching skirt, white blouse with red trimming and a hat of navy-blue or white.

TRAVEL-LOG.

A SWEDISH FLAT

The inside of a Swedish home may very properly be counted part of the scenery of the country, even if the home is a Stockholm apartment or flat. Here the third floor or top floor is the fashionable home away from the noise of the street. A stone stairway leads up and all is spotlessly clean. The drawing-room may be plainly furnished, but it will often have many blooming plants and singing birds, while the great porcelain stove will dominate the place and fill the mind with memories of the German story, "The Nuremberg Stove." The kitchen is as much the glory of the home as the parlor. How an American housewife would envy the possession of the dozen brightly polished copper pans and kettles which hang on the wall. I suppose the presence in the country of the great copper mines makes it easier to possess them. Alongside of these ancient utensils will be all the most modern cooking devices to meet all culinary demands. All the homes are fireproof and flues are standardized, for the fire laws of Stockholm are very strict. Much of the cleanliness is due to the Swedish maids, who retain their title as the best in the world. They do not hire by the day or the week but contract for the year.

A Tip or Two

To clean white kid shoes—make a lather of pure white soap and milk. Brush as much dirt as possible off the shoes before scrubbing with the later.

When making an omelette, immediately the beaten eggs are in the pan drop a teaspoonful of cold water in the centre and stir.

When you make pie crust make twice the quantity needed. Pie crust rolled in a damp napkin and put in the refrigerator will keep perfectly for several days.

Get the Flavor.

If you are afraid to put chopped onions in the potato salad on account of the unknown taste of a guest, rub the bowl with a cut onion and eliminate the actual pieces.

THE WHATNOT

A Place for Little Bits of Everything of Local Interest

HE boyish bob is gone—completely forgotten, so says an American paper—but is it in Peterborough? True, we don't see quite as many as last season, but there are still a few. The present decree of fashion is "be feminine," but this does not mean to have long hair, because short hair seems to be here to stay. We still have a few long-haired sisters, but they are exceptions. Long hair gives distinction because it is so rare, but it should be worn smooth and plain.

• • • • • • •

Short hair has style and dignity and individuality. It is certainly much more comfortable and hygienic than long hair, and it remained only for people to see that it could become really graceful and dignified before it was generally adopted. The short hair of to-day is not the same as that of last year, for hair fashion changes as well as other styles.

• • • • • • •

Bobbed hair was taken as a convenience when it arrived in America, but bobbed hair means death to Chinese girls, for it marks its possessor's revolt against all the ancient traditions of women's slavery, against the sale of girls, against the sale of brides in marriage, against the submission of daughters-in-law to mothers-in-law, customs 3,000 years old.

• • • • • • •

You women who sympathize with the suffragette movement in your own country will thrill to the bravery and heroism of these Chinese girls who are facing torture, disgrace and even death for bobbed hair and all that it stands for.

• • • • • • •

A New York authority says: "The newest hair-cut is a bit longer than earlier in the season, and while there is a slight tendency to wear the hair straight, the smartest cuts show the large finger-like waves, while to be absolutely correct, nature should have given you tiny, shell-like ears, back of which the hair should be tucked away from the face.

• • • • • • •

We see rather funny things on the street sometimes, don't we? But, honestly, when you see some people that have had their hair bobbed you feel like buying them a wig to cover it up. Some grey hair looks lovely when properly cared for, if bobbed, but when you see grey hair that has been bobbed and hasn't seen a beauty parlor for some time until it is two or three inches below the wearer's hat, you feel like going home and telling your mother or grandmother that you're glad she has kept her hair on for a while anyway.

• • • • • • •

Appearance counts a great deal in all things in life. We should try to look our very best no matter where we are or how we feel—sometimes it may be rather hard to dress for lunch or dinner after a tired day's work, but it certainly pays in the end. Make your son and daughter proud of your appearance if they happen to bring their friends in unexpectedly—they'll bring them again if they find you looking fresh and bright and giving a hearty welcome.

The newest party sandwich comes to the table on a serving platter looking like a large loaf cake covered with a delicious creamy icing. As the loaf is sliced, three-layer ribbon sandwiches with an outside border of cream cheese are passed to the guests to be eaten with a fork. Unlike many other sandwiches, the cheese loaf does not take a great amount of patience and labor to prepare. In fact, it takes the place of several kinds of sandwiches and can be prepared in much less time than it would take to make individual sandwiches.

• • • • • • •

Various combinations of sandwich fillings may be used for the cheese loaf sandwich. To prepare one kind, remove the crusts from a whole loaf of sandwich bread and cut the loaf lengthwise in four equal slices. Butter one side of each slice, place the unbuttered first slice of bread on the bottom, and spread it with one small can of boneless chicken, which has been moistened with mayonnaise. Place the second slice of bread over this. Spread the top of this slice with a mixture of three hard-cooked eggs and three canned pimentos, diced and moistened with mayonnaise. Place the third slice over this and spread it with diced celery and chopped sweet pickles, moistened with mayonnaise. Place the last slice of bread butter side down over the top.

Wrap the sandwich loaf in a damp cloth, place a bread board over it to press it, and allow to stand for fifteen minutes. Just before serving soften two cakes cream cheese with cream or milk and spread the cheese over the entire loaf as you would an icing. The top may be garnished with strips of pimento or with chopped Nuts. Slice the loaf in sandwiches about one-half inch thick.

• • • • • • •

Of course, a number of variations may be used in connection with the sandwich fillings. One excellent combination is diced canned tongue for the first layer, gherkins and olives for the second and shredded lettuce for the third filling. Each filling should, of course, be moistened with mayonnaise.

One small can of crabmeat or salmon shredded and moistened with Worcestershire sauce makes a very good filling for a third kind of cheese loaf. Use diced olives and pimento for the second filling and shredded lettuce for the third.

Often when you haven't enough milk tickets or want more milk than usual, it is necessary to leave a note for the milkman. This is usually placed in the empty milk bottle, and to protect it from rain or the cunning wind, a tumbler inverted over the top will keep it safe as far as the wind or rain is concerned. For removing bottle tops, a nut pick or a steel knitting needle is often useful

• • • • • • •

Just when you are hurrying your very hardest, in trying to finish canning something before lunch, is when the cork of a bottle is bound it is going inside instead of coming out It is almost impossible to get it out sometimes even after fishing for it for quite a long time. A little ammonia put in the bottle—enough to make the cork float—and set away for a few days will either eat the cork or it will destroy it enough to permit its removal.

• • • • • • •

The holiday spirit seems to be everywhere—even among the little boyish-bobbed three-year-old girls. Last Sunday morning one of the type mentioned called on one of her friendly neighbors, and on being asked if she wasn't going to Sunday School, she replied, "Oh, no, I'm on my holidays."

NEWPO TATOES.

Nowadays new potatoes come in almost any time at all. It is wise to sort them and use those of uniform size in cooking. Otherwise, you will have the trouble of the small potatoes falling to pieces while waiting for the larger ones to be done. Sort them into groups before paring.

MARION'S MAIL.

"Dear Marion:

I enjoy your page so much that I feel I have to do something in return for all the good things you give me every day, and so I am sending you my favorite recipe for spiced cherries. I hope you like it.

I think The Examiner is just splendid now. I like the Women's Page best, of course; the short story, the recipes, the society news, but your column best of all. You have a splendid comic strip page, and the special articles are good, too. My little boy is just crazy over "Seckatary Hawkins." I have been taking The Examiner for nearly ten years, and the improvement in the last little while is just wonderful. I'd rather have it now than any of the papers from the bigger cities.

Yours very truly,
Jenny Wren."

It is awfully sweet of you, Jenny Wren, to say so nice things, and thanks very much for the recipe which I am glad to have. It is just great to find my readers helping out in this way. I'm glad to know that your little boy likes the Seckatary Hawkins' Club page. It's so interesting I'm sorry I couldn't get it for MY page. I think it's great for the boys and girls to have a club like that—and their letters are so interesting, too. Write soon again.

• • •

"Dear Marion:

What colors are best for a girl with brown hair and eyes? I am 18, weigh 107, and am 4 feet 10 inches tall. How can I grow taller and thinner?

Fatty."

If your complexion is clear, wear shades of warm brown from deep creams and tans to russet and henna. You would also look well in white, pink, peach, coral, lacquer-red and burgundy. You cannot make yourself taller unless you grow so naturally. You can thin yourself down without denying yourself everything you want to eat, by going without sodas, ice creams, desserts, candy, cake, pastry and all sweets for a couple of months. But don't cheat. Take a regular course at the Y.W.C.A. gym next season, and in the meantime play tennis, swim, and take other outdoor exercise. Write and tell me how you get along.

• • •

"Dear Marion:

I am getting well on in years, but reading your column is making me feel young again. I used to be in love with the——'s column, but I really think your's is inspired.

So many people think there is nothing to write about but love affairs, and so much of the "advice" they give, is insipid. I really don't know how people can be so foolish. That's one thing I like about the "Whatnot." Even if one can't agree with everything you write, one can at least enjoy reading it. And there's something there, too, for we oldsters. How old are you? Are you married?

I'll feel happier if I KNOW.

Very sincerely yours,

My dear Nancy: Do you think it's nice of you to ask those questions? If I told, wouldn't it spoil the game? I'm very glad you like our page, and I'm very grateful, really, to all those who, like you, are helping me make it a success. Write again, if you can write without asking embarrassing questions! And send me one of those good recipes you must have tucked away somewhere.

BOILED LEG OF LAMB

(Mrs. E. M. writes: A long time ago I saw a request in your column for a nice way to cook lamb, and I always intended sending you my recipe, but just as often forgot. I was reminded of it when I saw the very same recipe in a magazine this week. Here it is:)

Five or six pounds leg of lamb; 2 cloves garlic; 1 large onion; 1 teaspoon salt; 1 teaspoon thyme; 1 teaspoon marjoram; 1 tablespoon Worcester sauce; a few celery leaves or stalks.

Method: Cover the lamb with five quarts boiling water, add seasonings and simmer for one and a half to two hours, or until very tender. Allow to cool in the seasoned liquor.

SENIORS OUT OF C.O.B.L. PENNANT RACE

PETES ARE ELIMINATED FROM RACE

Season is Now Over as Postponed Games Have Been Cancelled.

LOSE BY 8-3 COUNT

Oshawa's Extra Base Hits Pile Up a Big Lead at the Go-In.

(By F. D. C.)

The Petes' last chance to figure in the Central Ontario League playoffs vanished in the twilight of a hot August afternoon at Oshawa yesterday when the Motorists grabbed the game that was necessary to eliminate the third-placers, the final count being 8 to 3.

The victory cinched second place for Walter Schultz's team and as the League executive decided after the game that the postponed game would be cancelled as having no bearing on the final result yesterday's tussle brings the Petes' season to a close.

There will be no game here Saturday as advertised and the Petes and Oshawa will not have to make trips to Deloro while Belleville and the Motorists will start the playoff series on Wednesday next in Belleville.

Hardill was back with the Petes yesterday and was given the pitching assignment.

Second guessing shows that this was a managerial mistake for Hardill's control was not of the best and while he was not hit often he was hit hard and aided by shaky outfielding and a bad toss by Ash the Motorists salted the game away in the first three innings by scoring seven runs.

Heckman finished the game and held the winners in check, the only run made off him being rendered possible by an error by Jake Hall. The veteran pitched steadily and effectively and had he started the battle the Petes would have had a royal chance of winning out despite the fact that Duke Dainty had them well in hand in all but a couple of frames. The weather beaten southpaw turned in one of his old time games and up to the ninth when they bunched three hits for two runs the Petes could do little against his delivery, their only run in the first eight sessions being the result of a triple by Ray Rose and a sacrifice by Shiner Johnston. Dainty was given good support by his teammates and with a big and early lead to work on he coasted through the "crucial fixture" in fine style.

The winners at that got most of the breaks. Dainty's fly to centre in the first frame which went for a triple and eventually meant two runs, should have been the third out. Ash's throw hitting a runner on his way to second prevented a double killing in the second inning and four runs followed. Oshawa's counter in the third was the result of an outfield error, and it required a miss by J. Hall in the eighth to give the Motorists their last marker. On the other hand the Petes' three runs were scored without the assistance of any misplays.

That's baseball, however, and while the Petes feel that they should be in the play-offs they are willing to congratulate Belleville and Oshawa on their season's record, wishing them a great play-off series and hoping that the winner will go right through to the Ontario championship.

It has been an in and out season for the Petes, who have played like champions in some games and like tail-enders in others. Against Belleville who romped away from the rest of the field they were at their best, winning four out of six games and Deloro were beaten four out of five. On the other hand the Petes have lost five straight to Kingston and four out of five to Oshawa.

The Sad Particulars.

The Petes got a good start but it meant nothing. Rose singled to right and was forced at second on Johnston's bunt to Dainty. McCallum missed Swanston's roller, Johnston going to third but Ash struck out and Hardill flied to Jones.

Oshawa got two. Wolfe was tossed out by Johnston and Jones lined to Mein. Matthews, however, walked, and when Bert Hall played Dainty's drive to centre poorly, Matthews scored and the batter reached third. Young tripled to left to score Dainty. Sutton fanned.

In the second after J. Hall had rolled to McCallum, Mein singled through second only to be doubled on Wilgar's tap to McCallum.

Oshawa scored four runs in their half on one hit. McCallum walked. Quinn hit sharply to Ash for what should have been a double play but the first sacker's throw to second hit McCallum and everybody was safe. Wolfe was walked purposely, to fill the bases, but Jones upset the strategy by tripling to left, scoring three, Hall being badly out of position on this one. Jones scored the fourth run of the frame while Johnston was tossing out Matthews. Dainty flied to B. Hall.

In the third B. Hall popped to McCallum. Rose walked, Johnston flied to Young and Swanston fouled to Quinn.

Young singled over third to start Oshawa's half but was forced at second on Sutton's tap to Ash. Sutton was forced by McCallum, Mein to Rose. B. Hall dropped Quinn's long fly to right centre after a run and McCallum scored. Mein tossed out Kellar.

For the Petes in the fourth Ash popped to Young, Hardill fanned and J. Hall was tossed out by Dainty.

With Heckman pitching for the Petes Wolfe lined to B. Hall and Jones rolled to Johnston. Matthews singled through short but Dainty flied to Wilgar.

In the fifth Mein flied to Wolfe and Wilgar to Sutton. B. Hall lifted one to Jones.

For Oshawa Young lined to Ash. Sutton was tossed out by Rose and McCallum flied to B. Hall.

The Petes got their first counter in the sixth. Rose tripled over second and scored on Johnston's sacrifice fly to Wolfe. Swanston was called out on strikes and Ash grounded to Kellar.

Heckman singled to left to open the seventh. J. Hall flied to Matthews and Mein and Wilgar struck out.

Matthews flied to B. Hall. Dainty was thrown out by Mein. Young singled over second and stole but Sutton rolled to Rose.

In the eighth B. Hall and Rose fanned and Johnston grounded to Kellar.

Oshawa got their only run off Heckman in their half. Whitely, batting for McCallum, flied to B. Hall. Quinn struck out. Kellar singled to left and went to second when the ball leaked by Jack Hall. Wolfe scratched a hit over second. Jones' single to right scored Kellar. Matthews struck out.

The Petes got two in the ninth. Swanston singled to right and Ash through second. Heckman flied out to Sutton and J. Hall to Dainty but Mein doubled over first scoring Swanston and Ash. Wilgar was called out on strikes.

KIWANIS WIN FROM VISITORS BY 5-4 COUNT

Both Pitchers Given Good Support in Gruelling Contest.

NEAT HURLING

Oshawa Blows Up in Ninth Inning to Allow Winning Runs.

In a gruelling pitchers' duel that taxed both twirlers to their utmost, and was featured by timely hitting and mastely fielding until the eighth innings, Jack Deannard's Kiwanis Juveniles last night defeated the South Oshawa crew by the score of 5 to 4.

Some spectacular and timely catches were made, probably the most difficult being staged by Huggins when he made a running catch of Reeves' long fly in the first of the ninth to retire the side. Hurst, the Oshawa left fielder, made a pretty catch of Foley's long foul hit over third base, retaining the ball which he gathered in as he was falling.

Pitchers Good.

Both pitchers showed fine style and were at their best in the pinches. Knox, for the losers, struck out ten batters and only walked one—but was deprived of an opportunity of finishing up when Gingeriski was benched, as he had to take his place behind the bat. Reeves who replaced him was very wild passing the first two batters, while Knox in his new position completed the disaster by allowing two runners to score on passed balls. Woods for Kiwanis showed a nice brand of twirling, retiring ten batters by the strike-out route, but walked five, passing the Oshawa first sacker four times in succession. He was replaced by Jones in the ninth frame when he showed signs of becoming wild.

Hall for the losers was a most valuable player, securing three hits with five trips to the plate, scoring a run in the ninth and sending Knox across with the tying run when he slammed a nice hit to right field.

First Innings.

Oshawa — Hurst struck out. Hall placed a long fly in Foley's mitt for the second out and Matthews whiffed.

Kiwanis — Whaley struck out. Dalon's high fly went for a hit and he stole second on the first ball thrown by Knox. Weir slapped a timely hit over third, which was good for three bases, to score Dallon, Starr struck out. MCoCullough rolled to Knox and was thrown out.

Second Innings.

Oshawa — Gingeriski was thrown out by Weir. James was passed and stole second. Amsbury struck out. Brad tapped a nice hit over shortstop to score James, but was himself put out when he hesitated in an attempt to steal second, being tagged by Weir, who took Starr's nice throw.

Kiwanis — Saunders was out on a slow grounder. Hurst gathered in Foley's foul fly for the second out. Huggins beat out a bunt. Woods rolled to James.

Third Innings.

Oshawa — Leyden whiffed. Knox made an easy out. Woods to McCullough and Hurst struck out.

Kiwanis — Whatley fanned. Dallon flied to Brad. Weir grounded to Brad, who made a nice throw to first, but James didn't have his foot on the sack and the runner was declared safe. Starr's single through short put Weir on third. McCullough popped to James.

Fourth Innings.

Oshawa — Hall placed a clean, long drive over second base, but was forced out at second when Woods took Matthews' grounder and threw to Weir. Gingeriski flied to Weir, James walked, putting wo on, and Amsbury was hit loading the bases. Brad's fly to Huggins ended the frame, and pulled Woods out of a tight corner.

Kiwanis — Saunders fanned, Foley was out, Matthews to James. Huggins struck out.

Fifth Innings.

Oshawa — Leyden was thrown out by Whatley. Knox and Hurst fanned.

Kiwanis — Woods singled between first and second. Whatley sacrificed. Dallon flied to Leyden. Weir struck out.

Sixth Innings.

Hall reached first on a clean single. Matthews grounded to Whatley, who caught Hall at second. Gingeriski hit through short. James was passed to put three on Amsbury struck out and Whatley saved the day by whipping a fast throw to first after collecting Brad's grounder.

Kiwanis — Starr rolled to Matthews. McCullough fanned. Saunders was thrown out by Matthews.

Seventh Innings.

Oshawa — Leyden was out on a bunt, Wood to McCullough. Knox flied to Dallon. Hall grounded to Weir, who fumbled, but succeeded in catching the runner at first.

Kiwanis — Foley smacked a hot drive to Leyden, who handled it nicely. Huggins flied to Amsbury. Woods struck out.

Eighth Innings.

Matthews was hit. Gingeriski flied to Foley. James walked Reeves, who had replaced Amsbury in centre field, was passed also put three on. Brad fouled to Saunders. Leyden grounded to Weir, who threw him out at first.

Kiwanis — Whatley and Dallon struck out. Weir walked and stole second, but precipitated an argument when he reached third base safely by the stealing process, Starr, the home run king of the crew, slammed the longest drive of the game over the right fielder's head to score Weir, and went to third on a passed ball. McCullough fouled to Gingeriski.

Ninth Innings.

Oshawa — Knox walked. Hurst fanned. Hall's long fly to right field was good for two bases and sent Knox across with the tying counter. Matthews' triple over first scored Hall. Jones now replaced Woods on the mound. Gingeriski struck out. Matthews scored on passed ball. James walked and Huggins ended the frame when he made the best play of the game by catching Reeves' long fly.

Kiwanis — Dunkerly, batting for Saunders, was passed and stole second and third. Foley walked. Gingeriski was benched, Knox now catching and Reeves pitching. Sproats, batting for Huggins, was passed. Dunkerly scored on a passed ball, Foley going to third. Jones was walked and Foley came home on a passed ball, tying the score. Whatley popped to Brad, who muffed the fly. This error sent Sproats across with the winning run but the crowd flocked on to the diamond because the runner had injured Knox, the Oshawa backstop, by colliding and the game was over.

GIANTS BEATEN BY CUB RALLY

Lose Valuable Game As Leading Cardinals Defeat Braves.

ROBINS BEAT PIRATES.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—The Cubs put on a three-run rally against Joe Genewich and Jim Faulkner in the ninth inning at Chicago to shade the Giants by 6 to 5, evening the series at on victory for each team. The defeat cost the Giants a game in the pennant race, as the Cardinals defeated the Braves and increased their margin over New York to three and one-half games.

Norman McMillan's single, with Stephenson and Grimm on base, tied the score for the Cubs in the ninth and brought Faulkner to the rescue of Genewich. Fred Blake greeted the new pitcher with a single, and after McMillan was caught at the plate on Beck's infield roller, Fred Maguire produced the hit which sent Blake home with the winning run.

"Wee Willie" Sherdel held the Braves to seven hits in the second game or the series, and the St. Louis Cardinals increased their National League leadership to three and a half games with a 7-to-3 victory at home.

Three Boston hurlers aided the advance with a dozen hits, including a home run for Bottomley with two on base. This moved "Sunny Jim" to within one of Jack Wilson of the Cubs, making his total twenty-six.

Robins Defeat Pirates

RAYS WIN FIRST GAME

Defeat Hastings 7-6 in First of Home and Home Games.

PLAY HERE TO-NIGHT

Winning their second game in the same day and their third since Tuesnight the Raybestos beat Hastings last evening by the score of seven runs to six thus taking the first of the play-offs. Since Monday night the Rays have been forced to play four games and are scheduled to meet Hastings again to-night at the Exhibition Park.

In the afternoon the Rays put the Cogs out of the series in one of the Cogs not to be outdone turned the closest games of the season but out to a man in Hastings last night and showed their fine sportsmanship and cheered for the team that had put them out a few hours before.

Masterson took the mound for the Raybestos and Ibey was given the assignment for the home team. Ibey had everything his way for the first two innings when only six men faced him while on the other hand a bad error around second base and a three base hit by Cowell gave Hastings a two run lead.

In the third the Raybestos seemed to find their batting eye and the Hastings outfield fell down badly with the Rays scoring two in the third and four in the fourth. Their final run came in the last frame. Hastings on the other hand had one in the fifth, one in the sixth and two in the seventh when only a double play started by Masterson, saved the score from being tied up.

Cowell in four times to bat secured two triples but it is a question whether he would have made two baggers on the hits at the Exhibition Park as the outfield in Hastings was very rough and stony. Stevenson proved the batting ace for the home team with three hits and two runs in three times to bat; while H. Nicholls for the Rays batted 1.000.

Poor outfield playing and wild throwing in the infield proved a great part of Hastings' defeat while the Rays on the other hand bunched their twelve hits for the seven runs.

The Game

GAINS FOULED IN THIRD ROUND

Toronto Boxer Wins Godfrey's Crown When Champion Hits Low.

LITTLE ACTION.

TORONTO, August 16. — The colored heavyweight championship of the world changed hands at the Maple Leaf Stadium last night, Larry Gains, of this city the Canadian titleholder succeeding to the throne held for some time by George Godfrey, of Philadelphia, one of the largest men in the game to-day, in the third round scheduled ten-round encounter, but the manner of transfer was not altogether satisfactory, Gains winning on a foul when a right hat started low landed on his protection cup and he fell to the floor in agony. The sound of the blow was heard all over the park and practically everyone knew what had happened but it was not for more than five minutes that Referee Sinclair announced that Gains had won and automatically had gained the crown that was at stake.

Gains Takes Early Lead.

Up until the time of the foul Gains had a slight lead on points, although there had been comparatively little action. In the first round the pair pranced around each other with Gains shooting in a left jab that landed fairly frequently, but beyond giving him an edge on the round it did little more. Godfrey, who outweighed Gains by 46½ pounds, the weights being 238 to 192½, carried the extra poundage well and was exceptionally fast on his feet for such a huge bulk. Several times the pair came to clinches, but there was no heavy hitting and murmurs of discontent from the crowd could be heard at the lack of real action and heavy hitting. In the second round Gains was somewhat more aggressive and his volley of left jabs forced Godfrey to break ground. As the round progressed Godfrey became more active and by means of rushes and his extra weight drove Gains back to the ropes, but neither sustained any damage and the crowd's disapproval became more noticeable.

At the start of the third round the referee spoke to both principals and as a result there was a much more determined effort by both to show what they possessed in the way of heavy artillery. Godfrey started whaling away with both hands and a couple of his efforts landed. The power of his rushes and his weight forced Gains back. The local man was in his own corner and just as he was about to start a counter attack Godfrey let loose a punch from well down, and before it could travel far enough to be above the belt Gains had closed in and had been hit fouly. The blow was altogether an unintentional one. At the time Godfrey appeared to be peeved at the expressions of disapproval and gave the impression that he was going to try and make the bout a short one, which he did, but not in the way he intended. The slowness and the lack of action previous to the foul and this unsatisfactory ending did not make a hit with the spectators, but both men showed considerable respect for one another and were taking no chances. Godfrey did not show much except an effort to make his extra poundage tell on his lighter opponent.

READING GAINS BY DOUBLE WIN

Defeats Toronto Twice To Climb Into Second Place, Three Games Back.

BALTIMORE DROPS.

READING, Pa., Aug. 16.—Toronto saw its lead cut to three games yesterday when Reading took the third and fourth straight from the Leafs, by 8 to 7 and 4 to 2. Two aces of the Toronto staff, Johnny Prudhomme and Rip Collins were the losers, as Toronto took its fifth and sixth straight loss on the chin.

Prudhomme lost a wild decision to the Keys in the initial contest, losing out after his team mates had given him a 4 to 2 lead. 'Dutch" Legett's two home-runs, hit on successive appearances at the plate, and with one man on base each time, won the game for the Keys, but Johnny Moore gave Reading the winning margin with his four-ply blow in the eighth.

Rip Collins was hit hard in the second game, Keystones going out into an early lead and holding the Leafs safely. Johnny Moore hit another home run in this game, while Joe Rabbitt hit for the circuit for the Canucks.

Toronto pounded Johnny Welch off the hill in the second inning of the first half of the bargain matinee, but Nick Harrison went in for the Keys, and though hit soundly at times breezed through for the win.

BALTIMORE BEATEN.

BALTIMORE, Md., Aug. 16.—Aided by four home runs and plenty of errors the Buffalo Bisons took both ends of a double-header from Baltimore yesterday 7 to 3 and 9 to 6. Johnson's mates gave him a three-run lead in the first game, but the big Oriole right-hander was unable to hold it and the Bisons went ahead in the fourth and stayed there.

In the seven-inning night-cap a three-run first inning gave Chambers a one-run lead but he cracked in the sixth and was nicked for four hits and made a couple of costly misplays. Allen pitched the final inning of both games. Banton and Clark produced home runs for Baltimore, while Barrett, Elliott, Fisher and Moore collected four base blows for Buffalo.

Orioles Buy Hollingsworth.

The purchase of Jack Hollingsworth, Buffalo right-hand pitcher was announced by Jack Dunn, manager of the Orioles, the transaction to take place immediately.

ROYALS DROP TWO.

JERSEY CITY, N.J., Aug. 16.—Jersey City continued its winning ways at the expense of Montreal Royals here yesterday afternoon, taking both games of a double-header from the visitors by scores of 3 to 2 and 4 to 3, for their fourth and fifth consecutive triumphs. Lefty Shoffner bested Herb Thormahlen, former Skeeter, in a left-handed duel in the first game, and allowed only one hit, a triple by Urbanski in the sixth, until the eighth, when the Royals bunched two scratch blows. Thormahlen was hit at opportune times in the first and fifth innings. In the latter frame, Head hit in two runs.

Bill Henderson was returned a winner in the second tilt, originally scheduled for seven innings. The clubs went into the eighth deadlocked at two-all. Both clubs tallied a run in their inning, but the Pests broke the tie in the ninth, winning the game.

ROCHESTER WINS.

NEWARK, Aug. 16. — Rochester Red Wings were victorious in a weird game here yesterday against Newark, by a score of 10 to 7. The Bears lost due to wretched pitching and worse fielding in the first part of the game. The Bruins failed to hit Keen until the eighth when he weakened and Hal Smith stopped the rally. In this round with two on Lutzke hit a homer. Monahan also connected for the circuit in the sixth.

YANKEES LOSE SECOND GAME

Defeated by Sox 8-4, While Athletics Lose to Detroit.

HOMERS FEATURE

NEW YORK, August 16.—(Canadian Press).—The White Sox handed the Yankees a second straight defeat here yesterday by 8 to 4, and prevented the champions from taking advantage of the Philadelphia's second consecutive loss to Detroit. The Yanks remain four and one-half games ahead of the Mackmen.

Urban Faber, thirty-nine year old pitching veteran, was the particular star of the Chicago victory. Although the ancient spit-baller permitted Babe Ruh to hit his forty-fifth home run, he himself contributed a homer and a single to the White Sox cause, driving in two runs, and held the champions to eight well-spaced hits.

Ruth's drive put him eighteen games, nineteen days and nine homers ahead of his 1927 record. Crouse and Dugan joined the Babe and Faber in hitting homers.

George Pipgras, trying for his twentieth victory of the season, was knocked out in the third.. Henry Johnson and Wilcy Moore, who followed, were unsteady.

A rally in the fifth inning which netted two runs enabled Washington to take the second game of the series from St. Louis four to three. Braxton for the Senators and Gray for the Browns were hit freely but they tightened with men on bases.

The Philadelphia Athletics yesterday missed another chance to cut down the New York Yankees' lead to three and a half games by dropping their second straight to Detroit at Philadelphia by a score of six to three.

Sam Gibson and Jack Quinn batted through a scoreless tie until the seventh inning when Orwell doubled Miller home with the first run of the game. In the eighth, however, the Mackmen contributed two errors, which with three hits, gave the Tigers four runs and enough to Red Wings clubbed in two more runs in the ninth and though the Athletics rallied in their last turn at bat they fell three runs short of tying the score.

Joe Shaute, Cleveland southpaw, kept Boston's eight hits well scattered and had an easy time winning from the Red Sox at Boston 7 to 0. Johnny Hodapp knocked in three of the Indians' runs. Griffin was knocked out of the box in the fourth inning. The outstanding fielding play was Summa's catch of Taitt's long drive into the right field corner after which he crashed against the fence, suffering injuries which led to his retirement later.

PILES GO QUICK

Without Salves or Cutting

Thousands who have piles have not learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with internal medicine. Neither cutting nor any amount of treatment with ointments and suppositories will remove the cause.

Bad circulation causes piles. There is a complete stagnation of blood in the lower bowel and a weakening of the parts. Dr. J. S. Leonhardt found the remedy and called his prescription HEM-ROID. He tried it in 1,000 cases with the marvellous record of success in 96 per cent., and now it is sold by druggists everywhere under a rigid money-back guarantee.

Don't waste any more time with outside applications. Get a package of HEM-ROID from McDermid & Jury, Bond's Drug Store to-day. It has given safe and lasting relief to thousands and will do the same for you, or costs you nothing.

TORONTO MEN LEAD TO MATCH

Retain High Markmanship to be Among First in Different Competitions.

WINNERS ANNOUNCED

CONNAUGHT RIFLE RANGES, South March, Ont., Aug. 16.—(Canadian Press.) — A blazing sun and shimmering mirage combined to make shooting conditions difficult for competitors at the Dominoin of Canada Rifle Association 1928 prize meet today, but the high standard of marksmanship was nevertheless maintained.

As on the previous two days of the shoot the scoring of Toronto entrants was the feature of yesterday's competition; four riflemen from the Queen City placed in the first twenty of the City of Ottawa match and at least five more were among the twenty leaders of the MacDonald Brier event.

Sgt. W. Worsick, of the Winnipeg Light Infantry was the winner of the City of Ottawa competition, scoring a very fine card of 99. He shot a 50 possible at the 300 yard range, and one short of a possible at 900 yards. Under the conditions this was excellent scoring. There were two 98's, CHM. A. C. Lucas, of the Queen's Own Rifles, Toronto, and Pte. P. R. Powers, Carleton Light Infantry, Woodstock.

First place in the MacDonald Brier event was tied for by Captain J. T. Steele, 1st Wellington Rifles, Guelph, and Sgt. A. S. Emery, 48th Highlanders, Toronto. Sgt. Emery's card was made up 48-50 and he will take the first prize money, as Captain Steele's card was divided 49-49. There will be a shoot-off for the silver medal which is awarded to the first place entrant in this match.

The Coates match, a regimental team competition was won by the Queen's Own Rifles of Toronto, with the score of 379. The 48th Highlanders, Toronto and the Princess Louise (Argyle and Sutherland) Highlanders of Hamilton, tied a single point behind the leaders. Which of the latter teams will be placed second will depend on the analysis of the individual score cards.

The shooting in the Coats brought out high individual scores, one possible of 50 being registered at the 500 yard distance by Pte. P. M. Norton of the P. L. (A & S) Highlanders. The winning team was made up of the following marksmen who scored:

CHM Norman J. McLeod, 49-49—98.
Lieut. Storrar, 46-49—95.
CHM A. C. Lucas, 46-48—94.
Rifleman E. Cook, 49, 43—92.

VIENNESE STREET MADE FOR PICTURE "FOR WIVES ONLY"

An Excellent Cast Provided

A typical Viennese street, faithful in every detail, was constructed on the Metropolitan "lot" for use in Marie Prevost's new starring vehicle, "For Wives Only," now playing at the Regent Theatre. Victor Varconi plays opposite the star.

The street is an adjunct of the famous Ring-Strasse, the beautifully laid-out boulevard that circles the Austrian capital. The latter thoroughfare is familiar to every continental traveler and is one of Europe's resplendent parade grounds of fashion. In the cool of the evening, during the prosperous days that preceded the World War, the Ring - Strasse drew its nightly throng of carriages drawn by prancing steeds.

Along the glittering boulevard they drove these favorites of fortune, after the theatres had let out for a breath of air before retiring. Since the war conditions have changed perceptibly. Poverty has taken its toll and the shining conveyances no longer move in peaceful array, with the trooping merry-makers, along the famed Strasse.

"For Wives Only" is adapted from the continental stage success "The Critical Year" by Rudolph Lothar and Hans Bachwitz. The screen adaptation was made by Anthony Coldeway with F. McGrew Willis in the role of supervising editor. An excellent supporting cast headed by Victor Varconi has been chosen.

INVENTIONS GUARD SKIN FROM BURNS

Tell Bathers How Easily They Can Get Sunburn.

How long can you lie on the beach without being painfully sunburned? Many a bather has experimented to his sorrow, to find that his skin is surprisingly sensitive to the penetrating ultra-violet rays of sunlight.

But now Dr. Robert C. Burt of Pasadena, Calif., has invented a new instrument which, in a few minutes indoors, will tell exactly how easily you sunburn—without the chance of blistered shoulders and sleepless nights. The apparatus, described in the September issue of Popular Science Monthly employs a quarts tube mercury vapor lamp similar to those used in producing ultra-violet light in the treatment of disease. Artificial sun rays from the lamp are focused on a small area of the bare skin, and the rate at which this skin burns shows how sensitive you are. From this you can tell how long you can safely expose arms and legs out of doors.

Another instrument perfected by Dr. Burt employs, a photo-electric cell to measure the intensity of ultra-violet light from the sun at any moment. This intensity varies from day to day. Dr. Edison Pettit of the Carnegie Institution, Washington, says that it has varied more than fifty percent in the last four years, due to changes in the sun itself, and to variations in the earth's atmosphere.

Of this new measuring instrument, Dr. Burt says: "It is so portable and easy to use that the day may come when up-to-date bathing beaches will have observatories to give out the intensity of sunburn light in the

Wheat Sags At Liverpool Drop At Chicago Follows

CHICAGO, Aug. 16. — (Canadian Press.)— Unexpected downturns in wheat quotations at Liverpool did much to give an early setback today to wheat values here. Higher temperatures in Canada furnished also an impetus to the selling side of the wheat market. Opening 5-8c. to 1 1-8c. off, Chicago wheat later recovered somewhat. Corn and oats were likewise easier, with corn starting 3-8c. to 1¼c. down, but subsequently developing strength in the September delivery. Provisions showed gains.

Opening prices were: Wheat, September 110¼. December 115 5-8. Corn December 85 1-8, December 73 1-8. Oats, September 36⅛, December 39 7-8.

Cheaper Money Brings General Upward Trend

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—(Canadian Press).—A distinctly easier undertone in the money market, coupled with a large quota of favorable trade news, furnished the stimulus for another board advance in prices in to-day's stock market. A revival of activity and strength in the railroad shares, a dozen of which advanced two to four points, was one of the features of the day's trading. Call money renewed at six percent, dropped to 5½ and thence to five the lowest rate in about a month.

Prospects of an unusually heavy crop movement this fall accelerated the buying of the railroad shares. Texas and Pacific and Gulf Mobile and Northern were bid up four points and Rock Island and Southern Railways 3½ points each. Gains of two points or more were recorded by New York Central, Reading, Erie, Southern Pacific, Union Pacific, and Canadian Pacific. A wide open break of more than ten points in Manhattan Electric supply, which broke to a new low at 43¼ failed to halt the rise in the other specialties.

Toronto Session To-day Is Dullest Of Season

TORONTO, Aug. 16.—(Canadian Press).—With a very dull atmosphere prevailing over the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day, trading was at its lowest, although the majority of the prices were firm. International Nickel was the redeeming feature, making a net gain of 2½ to sell at 101¾. Shredded Wheat gained a point to close at noon today at 60½ and Massey Harris preferred advanced one to sell at 110. Brewers featured the curb section, where prices experienced a slight rise. British American Oil gained another ¼ to-day selling at 37¼.

Noranda's Rise Features Mine Trading To-day

TORONTO Aug. 16.—(Canadian Press). —Noranda largely featured this morning's trading at Standard Mining Exchange to-day, making a sensational rise to 54.60 for a net gain of 3.25. At noon Amulet was ten higher at 3.80, Bidgood four at 59, Hollinger Consolidate 25 at 10.50, and Kirkland Lake six at 1.47, Lake Shore and McIntyre each advanced ten points to sell at 25.25. Nipissing, Though inactive, was forty points higher at 3.45. Teck Hughes climbed 36 to 9.40. A few losses were shown in the Western issues, Hudson Bay registering a loss of ten at 17.35 and Malartic two at .134.

Mining Briefs

A Special Service to The Examiner

TORONTO, Aug. 16—Although no official information has been given out on the subject it is learned that the Amulet development work has brought to light an additional ore body of great promise. This took place on the original ore discovery on the property, but comparatively little work was done at that point originally owing to the development of other ore bodies which seemed to warrant special attention. The company some time ago started a very thorough campaign of investigation of the numerous indications and going back to the original find rich ore was discovered at a depth of 90 feet.

When the company's annual report is published next month it is generally understood estimate of ore reserves up to the end of July will be placed at $10,000,000. It is expected that this will be regarded as very satisfactory as development work since then has produced excellent results.

Information received from a reliable source that Bidgood have encountered a new vein four foot wide running $62.00 in gold in raise on 600 foot level.

The Financial News Bureau is reliably informed that a vein on the surface south of shaft at Murphy Mines has been uncovered. The vein is 16 feet wide. No assays are yet available.

Mrs. Andy Taylor received news from The Pas that her husband, the mining prospector lost in Northern Manitoba was found on the 13th in good health. The telegram was signed "Search Parties."

A meeting of McMillan Gold Mines was held in Sudbury and the shareholders authorized an increase in the capital stock from 2,000,000 to 3,000,000 shares of a par value of $1. It is understood that a portion of the increased capitalization will shortly be offered for sale, proceeds of which, together with the amount at present in treasury, will be sufficient to carry on development work as well erect a mill of approximately 300 tons capacity.

McMillan property, situated west of Sudbury, is the only one in the district being worked as a straight gold proposition. Work is being pushed on the third and fifth levels, and approxiately 1,200 feet of drifting has been done on the vein at these two levels. Assays are said to continue as high as $20 to the ton.

Abana's Fifth Ore Body Enhances Physical Assets

Abana has 5 ore bodies now. The last discovery being located by diamond drill just below the 300 foot level, west of the dyke. This body was encountered while the drill was being sunk with a view to locating the downward extension of No. 1 ore body at 1,000 feet depth. No. 1 has been opened up at 300 feet for a distance of 450 feet and has been located by drill at 600 feet. No. 5 is 30 feet wide, and is a copper-zinc body of indicated good value.

With the new discovery of orebody No. 5 there is now a total indicated width of 80 feet of ore below the 300 feet level, considering orebodies Nos. 1 and 5, with possibilities of greater widths being encountered at depth. The surface ore outcrops at Abana Mines is 16 feet wide, and averages $16.08 per ton. At the 300 foot level the width is about 30 feet and averages about $27.00 per ton, with a substantial increase in precious metal content. These figures, together with the discovery of orebody No. 5 show how rapidly Abana Mines is growing in importance as depth is reached.

Last March at the annual meeting the indicated ore reserve in No. 1 orebody to the 300 foot level was given as approximately eight million dollars, and the ore at a value of $26.00 per ton. This indicated ore reserve has been practically doubled by drilling No. 1 orebody to the 600 foot level. No. 5 orebody, which apparently is nearly twice as thick as No. 1 orebody, will add treendously to the known ore reserve, and furthermore, orebody No. 2 east of the dyke has been drifted on for 250 feet at the foot level and averages about 33 feet in width, and is of a good commercial grade.

Since last March Abana Mines has been adding to its indicated reserves at a rate of approximately two million dollars per month, which is a record when taken into consideration that a small steam plant provided all the power for underground mining work, diamond drilling, pumping water, etc. It is expected that the new electrically driven mining plant will be in operation early in September.

Ticker Talk

(Unofficial Opinions on the Markets

MONTREAL, Aug. 16.—The hot weather is no doubt affecting trading on the local board due to the absence from the Street of a number of big operators. Yesterday's market was a typical mid-summer one, there being very little incentive to either buy or sell stocks. It would appear as if the present lethargy will prevail until the beginning of the fall.

A good deal of buying of an investment character was reported to have made its appearance in the Street the past few days. This would seem to indicate that these prospective purchasers are convinced that the market has about reached bottom. Traders of this type do not look to get in at the lowest possible levels, just as they do not expect to get out at the very top.

They are quite content to allow the other fellow to have a few points, which possibly accounts for the measure of success that annually attends their commitments. One such was prepared to put $75,000 into a few selected issues, and these he was prepared to buy outright. For at the moment, there is little chance of doing business on a margin basis, brokers being unwilling the direction until funds become ling to extend their operations in easier.

In quarters that usually are capable of predicting what is likely to happen in the money market, the opinion is being voiced that money will become increasingly plentiful along about the middle of October. At the present time, surplus funds are being utilised mainly in taking care of commercial demands or are being conserved in prospect of the coming crop movement.

It is generally recognized that most industrial enterprises his year have experienced a most profitable period so that their claims are not likely to be urgent the coming autumn. When the farmers have received payment for the large measure of their crops that they will market within the next few months, a great deal of new money is almost certain to be placed in circulation. From this source, the bond and stock markets, hich lasterly have lain comparatively inanimate, will be stirred to new life.

One broker remarked to the writer that stocks may be too high at the moment, but present quotations will look low in comparison with what they will be in the next few years. The reason chronic bear never fare ill in the long run is because the tendency of values in a growing country, such as Canada, is bound to be upward. Reactions and depressions are bound to occur from time to time but as in the past, they will be only temporary.

According to advice received from Kirkland Lake, Tough Oakes encountered a rich vein said to be four feet wide in the shaft on the 1800 and 1900 foot horizons. Free gold is now said to be showing.

Geesip River Mines

Good progress is being made with the trail, and it is hoped that it will be possible to take packhorses to the upper camp by the 20th of this month.

News From the Mines

Through Selloway, Mills & Company

TORONTO, Aug. 15.—The strength and activity in this issue yesterday may be attributed to authentic information that the crosscut on the 250 foot level has been extended a distance of 16 feet through the vein and has not reached the foot wall as yet. As the vein on the 125 foot level was found to be 10½ feet wide, the work now underway seems to indicate conclusively that the mine is broadening out as lower horizons are reached. Although assays have not been taken yet, considerable free gold has been taken out at the 250 foot level.

At the first level, 50 tons of ore were taken out that gave an average of $42 to the ton, and from the look of the present vein material at the lower level it is anticipated that this will run even better.

The shaft at the present time is down to a depth of 275 feet, and at this depth quarts stringers were cutting in. It is the intention of the management to carry on drifting for a short time on both the 125 and 250 foot horizons before continuing the sharft to the 375 foot level, where a crosscut will again be run to meet the vein.

McMILLAN GOLD MINES

A meeting of this company was held in Sudbury yesterday and the shareholders authorized an increase in the capital stock from 2,000,000 to 3,000,000 shares of a par value of $1. It is understood that a portion of the increased capitalization will shortly be offered for sale, proceeds of which, together with the amount at present in the treasury, will be sufficient to carry on development work as well as erect a mill of approximately 300 tons capacity.

This property, situated west of Sudbury, is the only one in the district being pushed on the third and fifth levels, and approximately 1,200 feet of drifting has been done on the vein at these two levels. Assays are said to continue as high as $20 to the ton.

KOOTENAY FLORENCE

According to Vancouver despatches the ore body in the Josephine formation has been encountered. At the end of the 2,150 foot tunnel the engineers began drifting northwards and located an extended body of mineralisation, and while the extent of the face has not been definitely determined, it is claimed that the vein is what was anticipated by the geologists. This accounts for the sharp rise in the shares of Kootenay Florence and the large turnover of 58,000 shares on the Vancouver Exchange yesterday.

PETERBOROUGH FIELD DAY

The Boy Scouts of Peterborough rallied at Chemong Park on Saturday afternoon for the purpose of holding a field day. This was the first field day held by the combined troops of Peterborough, and such success was attained, that it is to be made an annual event.

The Scouts were divided into four patrols—the Beavers, Foxs, Hawks and Owls. These patrols were under the leadership of Scoutmasters Corbett and Wolff. The different events of the day included both land and aquatic sports. One of the most interesting games was a treasure hunt in which the Beavers came out best with the Owls a close second. A very exciting softball game was held which required two extra innings before a winner was declared. The Scouts then assembled at the Chemong beach, where several events took place in the water. This was followed by supper, which was served in the park.

During the close of the evening a few more games were played, after which the prizes were awarded to the winners of the various events. Three lusty cheers were then given for Mr. Sullivan who had invited to hold the field day, for Mr. John who had supplied the prizes, and for all those who helped to make the day a success.

The scouts then returned home in cars provided through the kindness of Messrs. J. J. Turner, J. E. Sullivan, J. J. John, D. McKinnon, F. Taylor, and C. Corbett.

Canada was the first British colony to form a confederation.

Already the lines have been extended as far north as Bethesda and construction work is being pushed as rapidly as possible. Approximately 200 homes will be served under this Hydro extension, and it will mean 50 miles of lines. The power is to be supplied on a four-wire system of a voltage equivalent to 8,000 volts, so arranged that there are 4,100 to ground.

The farmers who contract for electric power will be aided by the Ontario Government on a 50-50 basis. The service charge to each individual consumer is $3.41 a month, together with a further charge of five cents per 42 kilowatts with two cents for each additional unit.

Prospector Tells Tales of Terror

Exhausted But Wins At Last

Andy Taylor Tells of Untold Hardship in Northern Wilderness.

RAINED HEAVILY.

Was On Verge of Taking His Own Life On Last Day.

(By "Andy" Taylor—Copyright).

THE PAS, Man., Aug. 17 (Special to The Examiner).—"Andy" Taylor, South Porcupine prospector, lost in Northern Manitoba for 48 days, has related the following graphic account of how he spent a portion of his remarkable sojourn in the wilderness. He starts with the day when all seemed lost.

I had walked many miles that day through pouring rain. As night approached I realized that to go further was impossible. My clothes were soaked. The wind was too cold and raw to stop, it seemed to me, and I was perishing of cold. To go on was impossible. I was utterly exhausted. Staggering up and down, beating my arms for warmth, I tried desperately to think of a plan to weather the terrible night. I felt the water in the lake. It seemed warm in comparison with the wet cold. I slid into the black water and found it pleasant for a few seconds. Then I got cold. I swam around and felt warm again. Whenever I stopped I became numb. I knew that I never could last until morning. I dragged myself from the water into a grove of spruce. Some of the dirt close to the trunks was dry. I dug a hole between the roots big enough to lie in, and over a foot deep. I gathered the dry dirt around other tree trunks and piled it beside the hole. Although the moss was wet I got a great deal of it and some spruce boughs. Removing my clothes, I wrung them out and put them back on.

When I had everything ready I lay down in the hole and packed the dry dirt all over and around me. Over the dirt I packed moss and piled boughs high over me. Before long the body warmth began to return. The dry dirt next to me gave it a chance. In two hours I was fairly warm.

By morning my clothes were fairly dry. That discovery saved my life, not only that night but on many later occasions.

After I had been at the old camp a week, living on potatoes, seeds and berries, I decided to go on eastward. Four days' scorching heat had killed all the berries in the vicinity. I took some potatoes with me. I have always been a strong swimmer, and found it less effort than walking. I used the raft for my clothes and made the other side in surprisingly good condition. I never remember being tired from swimming. I took bearings and headed east in a straight line, hoping to find a main water route or large lake. At no time was I in the grip of fear. Even when I decided to shorten my days of hell on earth, it was not fear that caused the decision. It just seemed the only thing left to do. Some people may blame me, but that matters nothing to me.

Boots Worn Out.

I had been forty days without hearing a human mechanical sound. My boots were worn out. The moccasins I had made from the uppers were too short and every step was like a knife thrust. My clothes were in tatters. Then it turned cold and began to rain. I cannot attempt to describe my agony, although I remember every separate minute of it. It poured for fifteen hours. I could make from twenty to one hundred feet at a time.

Sometimes I could not get all the way up on my feet. Only by travelling was I able to keep the circulation moving. For hours I crawled or turned from side to side. Every move a hell of agony. At last I crawled up a high rocky ridge. Somehow I felt that the other side of it meant rescue and life. How could I reach the top. It must be a shore line of a lake. I concentrated every effort in that climb.

The rocks were wet and slippery, and time after time I would slip and lose ground. A little rest, then more dragging, with my elbows and knees cut and bleeding. Twice I fell heavily, striking my jaw. It took every effort of mind to keep from going under with those blows. With a last lunge I reached the summit, ready to shout with joy at the sight of a waterway.

Cold Burnt Country.

That is when hope dwindled to the tiniest speck. Before me stretched a barren country, burnt and blackened, with no sign of life or river.

I was unable to travel further. It was raining cold, and night was coming on. Not a berry or a bud in that desolate waste. That is when I decided to play fair with my pain-racked

Weather Too Chilly For Unique Parties

LONDON, August. 17.—In an effort to popularize in England the French flair for parties of the sort calling for little clothing, young artists and society folk are trying to encourage 'Adam and Eve" parties after the fashion so prevalent on the Continent this summer. Thus far, the "Adam and Eve'" idea has failed to take, not because of undue modesty, it is said, but simply because it has been just too blessed cold on the very night set for the tryouts.

'POOREST RICH BOY' TO GET HUGE FORTUNE

$450,000 Left By Grandfather Won After Three Year Fight.

CHILD IS THREE.

But Money Mother Refused To Will Him is Denied.

PROVIDENCE, R.I., Aug 17.—After three years of litigation, during which more than a dozen judges and a score of attorneys have been involved, the financial difficulties of Normand Morrison Hodgkins, 3, have been solved.

Under a decree of the Rhode Island Supreme Court, the Hodgkins lad, styled the "poorest rich boy in America," receive a $450,000 trust fund, which was established under the will of his grandfather, William L. Beckwith of this city. Other members of the Beckwith family receive approximately $360,000.

Coupled with the court decision comes announcement by the boy's relatives of this city that they love him and that despite his adoption by Mrs. Anita Hodgkin of Oakland, Cal., he will be regarded as a full-fledged member of the Beckwith family.

Fortune of $700,000.

The boy is the son of Lorania C. Beckwith of this city. He was born in Los Angeles in February, 1925.

Miss Beckwith, daughter of the late William L. Beckwith, died a short time after the birth of the boy, and immediately there began a struggle for the fortune of more than $700,000, which had been created by the boy's grandfather and great-grandmother, Jane Beckwith.

Whether the boy, who was born out of wedlock, could claim the estate, was the main question to be determined. So far as the grandfather's trust estate was concerned, the Supreme Court of this state answered the question by ruling in the lad's favor.

William L. Backwith's will provided that upon the death of Lorina Beckwith, the trust fund should go to the children or descendants of Lorina, so the court held in "in the absence of provision to the contrary, the terms "children and other descendants" as used by him (William L. Beckwith) would include illegimate as well as legitimate children or descendants of his daughter."

Ruling Against Boy

Although the court upheld the claim of the boy's attorneys in the case involving the grandfather's trust estate, it ruled against him in the more recent action which involved the trust fund established by Jane Becwith and also the personal estate of Lorania Beckwith, the boy's mother.

Lorania Beckwith executed a will two years before her death and declined to change it when she was a patient in the Los Angeles Hospital. Three months before the birth of her son, physicians informed her that she might not recover, but despite the warning, she did not exhibit any wish to change her will and thus provide for the child.

Trust funds left to her by her grandmother and legacies left to her outright by her father totaled approximately $36,000 and by her will this fortune was divided between Anna A. Perkins of Boston, Mary B. Anthony, Jane L. Anthony, Ellen M. Anthony of Providence and other relatives.

It was generally believed that the boy would share in this estate and that the Supreme Court's decision in the case involving his granofather's estate would establish his rights, but a novel turn in the law worked to the advantage of the heirs designated in Lorania Beckwith's will.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—(Canadian Press.)— The popular notion of a life guard, bronzed, muscular, amphibian, received a rude shock when after inquiry, it was announced that 15 guards at this city's beaches could not swim a stroke.

FLOWER SHOW PROVES TO BE BIG SUCCESS

Gladiolus, Due to Favorable Season, Are of High Quality.

AWARDS ARE MADE.

Large Display May Be Seen in the Teco Store Window.

The response to the request for a good showing of flowers was certainly a creditable one and the finest window display yet made is beautifully staged in the Teco Store window. The gladiolus, due to a favorable season, are of particularly high quality all through, and every class is well represented. The judge, J. S. McGiffin, editor of the Horticulturist, and his assistant, J. H. Callander, had difficulty in placing the awards, so close was the quality. The flower lovers are becoming more adept at exhibiting their garden successes and the errors in classification were much less than in previous shows. An unfortunate happening marred the exhibit somewhat when the glass shelves containing the classes, 12, 13 and 14, with a few of class 10, gave way and became a jumbled heap of wreckage which could not be identified when again placed in position—one of these, class 13, for best single spike of any variety was so badly broken up that those who made entries in it are asked to bring in another spike which will be judged on Saturday morning. Also those who made entries in classes 10 and 14, are asked to call and identify their spikes, so the winners will be known.

Prize Winners

Following are the prize winners:—

Class 1, 6 blooms of roses—1st, F. Hall; 2nd, Mrs. Paul Loescher; 3rd, Mrs. Rogers.

Class 2, Bouquet Sweet Peas—1st, Mrs. Rogers; 2nd, Mrs. Garvin S. Shearer.

Class 3, Coll. sweet peas—1st, Mrs. Shearer; 2nd, Wm. Bull; 3rd, Mrs. A. Spencely.

Class 4, gladiolus, 6 varieties, 3 spikes of each—1st, Al. Spencely; 2nd, Norman Andrews; 3rd, S. T. Harris.

Class 5, gladiolus, 3 spikes— 1st, Al. Spencely; 2nd, W. Mantell; 3rd, S. T. Harris.

Class 6, gladiolus, best spike white —Norman Andrews —A finer spike had to be overlooked due to worm holes in the petals.

Class 10, best spike red—Winner unknown.

Class 11, best spike smoky— Al. Spencely.

No. 12, best spike blotched—W. Mantell.

No. 13, best spike red —Miss Thelma Meredith, second to be decided.

No. 14, best spike purple or violet —winner to be identified.

In the sweet pea class for bouquets the awards were made to fine quality, where the display was not quite what was called for. A beautiful basket of lavender peas was placed second, though it was scarcely a bouquet but a table decoration. Flowers were too crowded and not gracefully arranged.

In the class for red gladiolus, most of those entered could not be classed as red, and this section was rather below the standard usually shown in that color.

Displays of gladiolus not in competition were sent by Messrs. Prest, Carter, Hall and Harris. Two beautiful seedlings from Mr. Prest, also a Pfityer's Triumph were unfortunately placed too far back in the window for the general public to perhaps notice them. Mr. Carter also had two beautiful new ones in King George and Berty Snow.

The mail carrier in the morning got the dividends, but it has not been learned how much.

Soviet Raises British Submarine In Baltic Crew Will Be Buried With Appropriate Honors

LENINGRADE, Aug. 17.—(Canadian Press.—Nine years after having been sunk in the Baltic, the British submarine L-55 has been raised and the Soviet Government desires to bury the crew with appropriate honors.

"These were our enemies" said R. A. Muklevich, commander of the Soviet fleet, "but Red seamen bear them no malice. These British sailors died while doing their duty."

The battle in which the L-55 was sunk took place on June 4, 1919, he said. The submarine attacked two Russian destroyers but its torpedoes missed and it was sunk when it rose to the surface.

The raising of the vessel from the bottom of Kaporsky Bay was attended by great difficulty as it was not until last spring that the bay was entirely cleared of mines planted there during the war.

MINISTER WILL INSPECT CANAL

Hon. Charles Dunning Promises To Visit the Trent Next Summer.

CALLED TO EUROPE.

The Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., returned from Ottawa yesterday, and he told The Examiner that he had a very satisfactory interview with the Hon. Charles A. Dunning, the Minister of Railways and Canals, and he had promosed that he would go over the entire Trent Canal from one end to the other with his chief engineer next summer.

The Hon. Mr. Dunning stated that he had hoped to make this inspection tour this year, but being called to go to Europe this summer, had found he did not have time.

Mr. Duffus and Mr. Gordon have several times interviewed Mr. Dunning with the request that an examination be made of the Trent Waterway, with a view towards convincing the Minister that the Canal should be finished to Georgian Bay.

PARTIES FAIL TO FIND WOMAN

Hope of Finding Mrs. Clark Alive Is Abandoned By Relatives.

DRAG RIVER.

LINDSAY, Aug. 17.—All hope that Mrs. Ray Clark, the young married woman, who disappeared from her mother's home one mile south of Lindsay on Wednesday, would be found alive, has been abandoned by her relatives. Searching parties have combed the woods fringing the Scugog river in an effort to trace her movements, and yesterday a party was organized under the supervision of Provincial Officer Porter for the purpose of dragging the river.

Physicians who have been attending Mrs. Clark advised her relatives to keep a sharp watch on her movements. She eluded their vigilance, however, on Wednesday noon and left the house in her night attire and in her bare feet and disappeared as if the earth had swallowed her.

KIWANIS ARE ENTERTAINED WITH MUSICAL PROGRAMME

Trophy Won at Cobourg Is Exhibited at Weekly Luncheon.

CHILDREN'S OUTING.

Border Transit Company Will Take Children To Wallace's Point.

All the variety of WLS Chicago on a Saturday night broadcast went into the making of to-day's program at the Kiwanis Club luncheon through the instrumentality of Charlie Elliott, chairman of the music committee. There was no speaker, but into the hands of John I. Allen, who presided throughout the luncheon, the music committee placed a program of quartette, solo and string instrument numbers which "went over big" when presented, provoking much favorable comment upon a rare departure in luncheon programs.

The male quartette, comprising J. W. Bryan (visiting here from Woodstock), A. V. Lillow, Stanley Thompson and William Cunningham, was especially good with close harmony numbers, while Mrs. Hodgson, Miss Tretheway and Miss Coon, with guitars and banjo-ukeleles, contributed duet and trio numbers. But the final triumph came when the stringed instruments linked up with harmonicas played by Mr. Thompson. Herb. McCannon and Joe Wearing, and all joined with George Liddle at the piano. "Darling, Nellie Gray," "Listen to the Mocking Bird," and many other real old timers were presented in medley form with plenty of enthusiasm and organization and the applause, however hearty, failed to express the pleasure of the Kiwanians.

Following is the program, minus, of course, the encores, which were generously responded to:

Male Quartette—Close Harmony.
Medley—'Tavern in the Town.'
Solo—'There's a Land,' J. W. Bryan.
Duet — 'She Sang Aloha,' Mrs. Hodgson and Miss Tretheway.
Medley—'The Mocking Bird.'
Male Quartette—'Kentucky Babe.'
Medley—'My Wild Irish Rose.'

John Allen, presiding in relief of President Joe John, kept things going throughout, calling upon Bert Watson, booster of the day. He announced the booster prize winners to be Harry Boyle, C. S. Thompson, and Herb. Gilgour, and also allotted two minute speaking periods to Harry Dickin, chairman of the Reception Committee, who read several communications; Walter Oke, who passed on an invitation from All Saints'

PLAYGROUNDS HAVE ENJOYED GREAT SEASON

Annual Field Day Was Held at Nicholls Oval on Thursday.

PRIZES GIVEN

Supervision Closes To-morrow —Attendance Has Been Large.

Saturday, August the 18th will be a sad day for many of the kiddies of Peterborough when the supervised playgrounds of the city will be closed for the season after six weeks of very successful attendance and work. Two grounds especially have had very large attendances each day during the summer, Central school playgrounds and King Edward school playgrounds have had from 150 to 200 in attendance daily, while at King George grounds the numbers were small.

J. Abraham, the chief supervisor, told The Examiner that he was surprised that the attendance was so large during the hot weather, but it was very pleasing to see the kiddies turn out.

For the fifth year in succession there have been no accidents in Peterborough's playgrounds, which reflects credit on the careful supervision of those in charge.

Field Day Held.

Yesterday afternoon the first sign of the closing of the playground season was noticed when the annual field day was held at Nicholls Oval where all the schools met together for a day of fun and sports. There were two hundred children in attendance and soft drinks kept the youngsters cool in spite of the hot sun.

There were softball games and horseshoe pitching tournaments as well as a general re-union. Bus loads of children arrived singing heartily at the top of their lungs and all in the spirit for a good time which they had.

The championship badges were presented to the winners of the various leagues. There were boys' and girls' softball leagues, horseshoe pitching leagues and checker tournaments.

Central school grounds turned out the ball players and won both the boys' and girls' championship in softball. They received their badges at the Oval, yesterday. Mr. Abraham mentioned that many of the city's present baseball players once played in the playgrounds of the city—Scotty Maudsley and Frank Whitehouse were a couple of the examples.

The winners of the horseshoe competition and the checker tournament were the King Edward playground kiddies. These also were recognized at the annual field day.

During the summer there have been regular swimming classes held on Tuesdays and Fridays at Inverlea park where the supervisors took their young wards. Some of the girls received credit for attending the classes held at the Y.W.C.A.

During Chautauqua week a hundred children from the playgrounds were the guests of the Rotary and Kiwanis clubs to this feature when they supplied them with free admission to the big tent.

During the progress of the summer there have been some excellent specimens of needle work and raffia samples done by the playground girls and the younger boys in the various sections of the city. These no doubt, Mr. Abraham said, will be on exhibition at the Peterborough Fair.

When The Examiner visited Central School grounds there were a number of children playing softball with great enthusiasm, while others were keeping the slide warm, and the girls were busy with fancy work, and a boy and girl were sitting in the shade playing an interesting game of checkers.

All the youngsters showed the benefit of an outdoor summer and were brown as berries. The supervisors of the various grounds have received a heavy coat of tan, and as one member of the Board of Education said, that if the tan indicates a

SEASON'S BEST REGATTA HELD AT LANDING

Contest at McCracken's Proves To Be the Best of Season.

ENTRIES LARGE.

Events Were Very Keenly Contested—Large Crowd of Spectators.

LAKEFIELD, Aug. 17.—McCracken's Landing Regatta went over the top on Thursday, with the best regatta in its history. The crowd was very large in spite of the heat and was distributed on the shore in the shade, in launches and small craft on the lake and on the docks; the new, large floating dock built this year by the government east of the steamboat dock was more than ever appreciated at the regatta. This new dock supplies a long felt requirement at the Landing and has been a real boon.

The list of entries was exceptionally large and averaged nine to each race, and the heat appeared to act as an incentive to the youthful activity rather than to subdue it.

Messrs. W. F. Hall and F. B. Porter acted as starters; Messrs C. G. Porter and D. M. Hall shared the megaphone and did the announcing, and Messrs H. E. Ringel, C. G. Porter and D. M. Hall were the judges. Mr. Ringel is the chairman of the regatta committee and Mr. A. F. Choate, the secretary. Other members of the committee besides those who acted as judges and starters were Messrs. J. O. McCarthy, C. E. Strickland, J. M. R. Fairbairn and H. G. Choate.

The regatta opened in the morning with the Dinghy Sailing and the Sloop and 16-foot Dinghy event. The dinghy sailing was for 14 foot boats and was won by Reg. Dixon, who defeated the six rival competitors in a very close race. Bob Morris took second place. The sloop sailing included one or two 16-foot dinghies and was won by Tom Van Atta, after a keen competition; Jim Peardon took the second standing.

The canoe sailing was also scheduled for the morning but it was found to be impossible to run it off then, so it was put on as the last event of the afternoon's program and the five entries found the wind was almost a minus quantity and there were no time records made.

In these sailing events there were first prizes only, and these were handsome silver cups, suitably engraved, which are not challenge cups but become the property of the winner.

The pie plate race scored a big success, and bids fair to be a fixture on every regatta program; there were eleven entries and the race was run in heats amid shouts of laughter from both spectators and participants.

The seven in a skiff (paddled) algo was an exceedingly good race and very funny. Eight boats entered and the finish was very close.

Ten in the Tilting

The tilting competition brought out ten entries and was very keenly contested, the combat between Douglas Hall and Richard Stubbs was really never decided, resulting as it did in two draws, but Mr. Hall withdrew and left Mr. Stubbs, who is a veteran of many such tourneys, the victor.

The long swim, which is a feature of the regatta brought out about twenty entries, the course is from the dock at Emerald Isle to McCracken's dock. The water was calm and the day so warm that the swimming events were extremely popular. The interest of the spectators was particularly keen and the swimmers were eagerly watched as one by one they neared the shore.

One small maiden Marjorie Taylor, aged thirteen, was one of the features of the regatta in her sporting interest in every event She entered almost every race open to girls and at least one which girls seldom enter —the tilting. Using a pie plate in lieu of a cushion the young lady met her gallant opponent with a well aimed blow, which combined with a very chivalrous dislike for meeting a member of the fair sex in combat of this sort, sent the young man into the lake. The young man, needless to say was rewarded for his gallantry by being given another chance against a masculine adversary. Marjorie collect-

Protests Rockford Flight

Proposed Route May Some Day Be Used in European Flights.

NEEDS ORGANIZATION.

Aviation League President Says Attempt May Retard Aviation.

HAMILTON, Ont., Aug. 17 (Special to The Examiner).—"The Rockford fliers are courting disaster by attempting to traverse Northern Canada in a single-motored land machine," declared Major-General J. H. MacBrien, President of the Aviation League of Canada, in an interview today. "It is this sort of flight that tends to retard aviation rather than further it. If they get through it will be miraculous," he said.

General MacBrien was commenting on the reported statement of the Rockford's pilot and navigator at Cochrane yesterday to the effect that the flight might change the routes to Europe and that Canada's northern wilderness would be recognized as the safest trans-Atlantic course.

It is a most hasardous undertaking flying across a rough, uninhabited country covered with forests and dotted with lakes in a single-motored land plane.

"The course the Great Rockford is taking may some day become a used route to Europe," he continued, "but before that will come it must be organized. Ground organization must be accomplished before attempting such flight with any surety of safety and a much safer plan for them would be to have used a float machine.

"Any attempt to fly over rough unorganized territory with single-motored land machines is diceing with death. It is even worse than trans-Atlantic flights, for they are flying over untravelled wilderness, and if they are forced to land they will be faced with months of privation before help might reach them.

"Of course, it presents a possible route to Europe similar to that proposed across Northern Europe to the Far East, but these flights will be accomplished only with multiple-motored planes capable of flying over land or water," said General MacBrien, who is also managing director of the International Airways, Limited.

Pilot of Plane Exonerated of Blame

JURY UNABLE TO DETERMINE CAUSE OF CRASH

Only One Passenger of Trip Gives Evidence at Inquest.

TWO PERSONS KILLED

Coroner's Jury Investigating Plane Crash at Beaumaris.

GRAVENHURST, Ont., Aug. 17. — (Canadian Press.)—Apart from exonerating Captain Charles Haines, pilot of the ill-fated pleasure plane which crashed at Beaumaris, on Aug. 9, killing the pilot and Robert Erving, of Pittsburg and injuring five others, the verdict of the coroner's jury which investigated the tragedy yesterday cast no new light on the details of the accident. The jury was unable to determine the cause of the crash from the evidence before them.

The verdict is as follows: "Captain Charles Haines came to his death on August 9, 1928, at Calydon Sanitarium as the result of injuries received in an airplane crash about 12 o'clock, Aug. 9 at Beaumaris. No blame can be attached to the pilot, who made a heroic attempt to right the plane prior to the crash. The cause of the crash cannot be determined from the evidence produced."

Jimmie Reed, 17 years old, the only one of the passengers of the plane able to attend the inquest said his recollection of the flight was a bit hazy. The plane had made a perfect start he said and all the passengers

ZEPPELIN TRIP ACROSS OCEAN IS RETARDED

Start From Germany Not Now Expected Before First Week in September.

MOTORS PUT TO HARD TEST

Delivery of Fuel Delayed—Company Reaps Harvest From Sightseers.

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Aug. 17—Technical hindrance coupled with financial considerations have once more delayed the aerial debut of Germany's new Zeppelin.

Dr. Eckener, who left here yesterday for a fortnight in Switzerland to recuperate from an attack of gastritis, informed a correspondent that the airship would not fly before September 1. Captain Lehmann, his chief assistant, mentioned September 3 as the most probable date for the first "ship flight"; that is, a brief ascension over the waters of Lake Constance with only the crew on board. He added that the dirigible might start for Lakehurst one week later.

Round Trips Cut to Two

While the proposed number of round trip crossing this year between Germany and America has been reduced from three to two, it is insisted that the Zeppelin will positively traverse the Atlantic before the middle of next month. When the second passage will be undertaken is not fixed, but it probably will be before November 15.

Another change in the original program is that no flight from Lakehurst to other points in the United States will be made until after the second westward crossing. On the

Attempted To Take Life

Taylor Slashed Wrist With Watch-Chain Knife When Lost.

THOUGHT OF FRIENDS

Knew They Would be Searching for Him, Determined to Live.

THE PAS, Man., Aug. 17.—(Canadian Press).—Andy Taylor, rescued Tuesday after wandering for 48 days in the wilderness of Northern Manitoba, told from his bed in The Pas Hospital how he had tried to end his life and could not. Nearly dead from hunger, so exhausted he could only walk 100 feet at a time and drenched by a 15-hour rain, the prospector crawled to the top of a hill of rock and slashed his wrist with a tiny watch chain knife.

So far gone was his strength that he could not locate an artery. He wriggled to the edge of a rock and let his arm hang over the side to aid in draining the life-blood from his veins.

"I began to think of my wife and children back there in South Porcupine, and my pals outside whom I knew were still hunting for me, and Fred. Coleman, my partner. I knew Fred. would search until he found either me or my bones, so I pulled myself together, what was left of me, bound up my wrist and staggered back to Burntwood Lake. Fred found me on August 15. It's my lucky number," he said.

W.M.A. MEETS AT MILLBROOK

Ladies Greet Mrs. W. W. Jones, Pastor's Wife, as New President.

MISSIONARIES ATTEND

(Examiner Correspondence)

MILLBROOK, August 17.—Mrs. Offa Williamson entertained the Women's Missionary Auxiliary of the United Church for its mid-summer meeting, more than thirty of the members and friends gathering at her home on Wednesday afternoon when a very fine program was presented.

The meeting, which was presided over by the vice-president, Mrs. H. W. Johnston, was held on the wide lawn in front of the house, the older folk finding comfortable chairs on the verandah, and though the thermometer registered considerably higher than 'summer heat', there was no discomfort for the grounds being beautifully shaded, and the seats being arranged so that whatever breeze there was could be most thoroughly enjoyed.

Mrs. Rae read the scriptural passages which illustrated the topic, "How the New Testament Women Helped," and the devotional leaflet "Jesus' Standard of Greatness," was read by Miss Burnham. The Master's measure of greatness, 'the delight of doing good,' was the thought emphasized. Mrs. (Rev.) R. J. Stillwell, a former president of the Auxiliary, now of Douglas, South Georgia, led in the opening prayer.

At the election of officers last March, the usual custom was followed of leaving the office of president vacant until the new minister's wife had come to the circuit, Mrs. F. H. Howard, the wife of the former pastor, having filled the position capably, during the three years of her residence here.

Mrs. Johnston introduced Mrs. W. W. Jones, the new president, in a few well-chosen words, and the latter in accepting the office, spoke briefly of her sense of the responsibility which it involved, her reluctance to assume the highest position in the gift of the Auxiliary, and emphasised strongly the fact that she would look to the individual members, and the other officers, for faithful service and assistance during the months ahead. "In refusing to do work which is brought to one's door, one may often be assuming more responsibility than one shoulders in accepting the office."

Referring to the fact that the

ACCORD WITH LONDON BY PARIS ON NAVIES IS NOT IN TREATY

It Represents Merely an Agreement in Policy, It is Explained in Paris.

HAS NO BINDING EFFECT

Submitted to Other Powers as Suggestion for Geneva Conference Program.

PARIS, Aug. 17.—From comments in various capitals, notably Washington there appears to be some misconception of the real character of the naval agreement reached between London and Paris.

This agreement does not constitute a treaty. It represents an accord in policy between the two Foreign Offices arrived at through negotiations conducted by Philippe Berthelot, Permanent Under Secretary at the Quai d'Orsay, and Sir William Tyrell when he occupied a similar position in the British Foreign Office before becoming Ambassador to Paris. Such agreement is not signed as a treaty would be, but exists in the form of a memorandum agreed to by the two Foreign Ministers.

Submitted as Suggestion.

It has been submitted to the other naval powers as a suggestion of a program they might adopt in consideration of future naval limitation. If approved by the other powers, it would become the basis of the naval discussions at Geneva. If not approved by the others, it would represent the position the English and French diplomats would support during the negotiations.

It is thus apparent that the agreement needs the assent of other powers to form a definite basis of naval limitation. The final basis might be somewhat different and still win the adherence of England and France. The agreement represents, then, simply the position England and France now stand ready to advocate.

In the nature of things, one cannot say what ships now effected by the agreement will form part of some general arrangement. The heart of the proposal lies in two provisions, one for limiting cruisers below 10,000 tons and carrying more than 6-inch guns and the other for limiting submarines of more than 600 tons.

America's Assent Necessary.

Even if France and England were to carry the submarine part of the agreement into the form of a definite treaty, it is apparent that the cruiser limitation plan would not become binding on England until America accepted it. And it should be further borne in mind that it is not proposed to limit either cruisers or submarines on any tonnage or percentage basis, but only by statements by the various countries of their building programs five years in advance.

While, therefore, the London-Paris agreement represents a statement of accord in policy by the two Governments it does not constitute definite naval limitation. It is merely a suggestion for the form a definite naval treaty might take. While it does mean that England and France will be found together in advocating its terms, those terms do not become definitely binding on any power until accepted by the other naval powers.

HAY SPOILED BY WEATHER

Farmers Taking Advantage of Fine Weather to Harvest Crops.

AT ROSENEATH

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ROSENEATH August 17. — The farmers are taking advantage of the fine weather and are extra busy with their harvest. Many fields of hay were spoiled with the heavy rains and some grain has sprouted in the sheaves. Those who have threshed say the grain is in fairly good condition and the yield an average crop as in former years. Turnips, mangolds, and corn promise a large crop, while potatoes are yet uncertain. In low places there are signs of rot with very few to a hill.

AIRMEN ARE READY FOR BIG FLIGHT

Hassell and Cramer Land at Cochrane On First Hop.

LEAVE TO-DAY.

Second Leg of Journey Will Take Them To Greenland.

COCHRANE, Aug. 17—Everything was ready last night for the take-off of the monoplane Greater Rockford, on the next hop of its flight from Rockford, Ill., to Stockholm, Sweden. Bert Hassell and Parker Cramer, pilots of the plane, which completed the first hop of approximately 800 miles from Rockford this afternoon, have tentatively decided to start for Mount Evans, Greenland, a distance of 1,600 miles, at 4 o'clock this morning, if weather conditions are favorable.

The runway on which the plane landed three miles north of Cochrane at 2.29 yesterday afternoon, was in good condition last night for the take-off, but it was threatening to rain.

Tanks Filled

Hassell and Cramer were at the runway last night filling the tanks of the Greater Rockford with gasoline which was shipped from Rockford. There was some delay in getting the fuel cleared through the Canadian customs.

The airmen were the guests of the Board of Trade at a dinner this evening, but plans for the entertainment of the aviators were somewhat spoiled by the necessity for arranging clearance of their fuel supply through the Customs.

Perfect Take-off

In an interview with newspapermen shortly after their arrival, the aviators said that their take-off at Rockford, Ill., at 6.43 yesterday morning was perfect and they easily gained altitude and circled the field at a height of 1,000 feet before heading northward. They estimated that more than 10,000 people saw the start of the flight. A fleet of three Stinson monoplanes accompanied the Greater Rockford for the first 100 miles or so.

Ran Into Storms

The first 300 miles of the flight was favored by ideal weather, they said, but for the last 300 miles the plane flew through the edges of storms. When the plane landed at Cochrane, a thunderstorm was encountered but it did not interfere with their landing at the temporary runway about three miles north of here.

Given Warm Welcome

Virtually the whole population of Cochrane journeyed to the runway to greet the fliers. The Mayor and the Council, the Board of Trade and the town band all participated in the welcome. Hundreds of automobiles gathered at the runway, which was kept clear of crowds. For this latter precaution, the aviators expressed their thanks.

No trouble was experienced in locating Cochrane, the aviators said. The two lines of steel which form the junction point of Timiskaming & Northern Ontario Railway and the Canadian National Railways, made an excellent guide for them, they added.

The aviators said there was no doubt their flight, if successful, would establish that the northern aerial route is the safest trans-Atlantic course.

IN POLICE COURT

WARKWORTH, Aug. 17 (Staff Correspondence). — Yesterday afternoon, F. W. Garbutt appeared in police court, before Magistrate Floyd, here to answer to a charge of breach of the by-law regarding the erection of gasoline pumps on the main street. Garbutt pleaded not guilty and after hearing the evidence of both sides, Magistrate Floyd dismissed the case with costs. The proceedings lasted from two-thirty in the afternoon till six o'clock and there were some of the old timers of the district called to give evidence. Among these were ex-Warden John McCubbin. Cochrane of Cobourg prosecuted, and N. Alex. MacColl, Campbellford, appeared for the defense. Reeve Nelson of Percy was also a witness.

James A. Armstrong, the first witness called, proved the by-law. Constable Kelly gave evidence to the effect that notice had been served forbidding the erection of the pumps.

Upon hearing the evidence for the prosecution, MacCall moved that the case be dismissed on the ground that the by-law was not signed by two of the trustees and that this was required by the statutes. Also there was no proof that a certified copy had been transmitted to the clerk of the township of Percy.

In reply to the motion for dismissal, Cochrane contended that the signatures of all the trustees were on the back of the by-law and that this was sufficient. He also claimed that it was not necessary for the prosecution to prove that the by-law had been transmitted to the clerk of the township. The magistrate decided to hear the evidence of the defense.

Reeve Nelson and ex-Warden McCubbin proved that the highway where the pumps had been erected was county property. Reeve Nelson also showed that the road and bridge committee of the Counties Council had granted permission to Garbutt and the Cities Service Company for the erection of the pumps.

F. W. Garbutt, defendant, testified in his own behalf, and S. Dudley, Colborne, agent for the Cities Service Company, also gave evidence.

In summing up the case, MacColl contended that the jurisdiction over the highway was entirely the affair of the Counties Council and that it was ultra vires of the trustees of the village of Warkworth to pass such a by-law. Therefore there could be no offence committed. MacCall also read from the statutes, authorities, and reported cases at the close of his argument.

In reply, Cochrane submitted that a section of the Municipal Act gave the trustees authority to improve highways and do all things necessary for that purpose. This would include jurisdiction to pass such a by-law, he claimed.

After hearing the evidence and the summaries by the counsel for both sides, Magistrate Floyd dismissed the case with costs. He maintained that the information and the summons were not in conformity with the terms of the by-law.

EVIDENCE HEARD IN CLAPPER CASE

Was Charged With Reckless Driving On Havelock Street.

(Examiner Correspondence)

HAVELOCK, Aug. 17.—George B. Clapper, of Hastings who appeared in police court in Peterborough on Thursday last, charged with reckless driving and whose case was remanded, came up for trial on Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock before Magistrate O. A. Langley. The charge was laid as the result of an accident here on Wednesday afternoon, August 8th, when John Gibb was knocked down by Clapper, receiving severe injuries to his head and chest which necessitated his removal to Nicholl's Hospital, Peterborough for treatment.

Crown Attorney G. W. Hatton conducted the case for the Crown and Alex. Elliott for the defense.

Owing to the fact that three and a half hours were taken up with the hearing of evidence it was decided to argue the case in Peterborough next Tuesday forenoon at eleven o'clock.

Constable Called

County Constable Charles Dewey was the first witness called and he described the condition of the road in front of Mr. Gibb's house where the accident occurred. It was in good condition and wide enough for three cars to pass. He had not been an eye-witness but on arrival at the scene had measured from the blood marks on the road to where Clapper's car stood and it was a distance of a hundred and fifty feet. He arrested Clapper.

Harry Peters was the second witness. He was driving on the east side of the road going north. He had given Mr. Gibb a ride home from Trent River. He had remained on the east or right hand side of the road and Mr. Gibb alighted on the west side of the car. He did not see him struck as he had started his car immediately but had only gone about a cuple of car lengths when his attention was drawn by the noise of broken glass. He saw Clapper approaching on the west side before he let Gibb out and he appeared to be travelling at a moderate rate of speed. Mr. Clapper had done everything he could in the way of assistance to the injured man.

Was Near Accident.

E. Pomeroy was next called, and he saw Mr. Gibb getting out of Mr. Peters' car, but did not see the accident, but after he saw Gibb lying on the road about the right hand wheel track going south. He also said there was plenty of room for two cars to pass.

John Gibb, the injured man was brought down by motor from Peterborough for the trial. As Mr. Gibb is deaf his son took the oath and acted as interpreter using the deaf and dumb language. All he could remember was that he came home with Mr. Peters and thought he got out in front of his home. He regained consciousness the next day in the hospital.

Provincial Constable Harry Thompson testified that he had made measurements in front of the Gibbs home. The travelled portion of the road was 24 feet wide and from the sidewalk to travelled portion was 12 feet, which was also level. He had Constable Dewey, who is approximately the same height as the injured man, stand where the alleged accident occurred and he could see him from the waist up sitting in a car at the foot of the hill to the north of Gibb's house. A car going about twelve miles an hour, if the brakes were working properly, could be stopped in about six feet.

Brakes Good.

Gerald Dunsford, a taxi driver from Peterborough, said that he had brought Mr. Stewart to Havelock on the night of August 8th. He had been requested to make a test of Clapper's car, and had found the brakes to be in good shape considering the model of the car. He had also given it a severe testi n applying the brakes against the motor, and this would stall the motor.

George B. Clapper, the defendant, was next called. He saw the car approaching from the south, and saw the man get out of it and start to walk across to the west side of the road. He blew his horn and swung around to the east to avoid him. If Gibb had kept on going the accident would have been avoided, but he took two or three quick steps back. After the accident he had called a doctor immediately and notified the police, which he thought was his duty to do. The top glass in his windshield was broken, and owing to the glass dropping around his hands he had gone about a hundred feet before he stopped.

Mrs. Maud Emmory was the last witness and corroborated Mr. Clapper's evidence, stating that there would have been no accident had Mr. Gibb not stepped back.

FARM HOUSE IS DESTROYED

Preserving Kettle Boils Over On Coal Oil Stove.

DAMAGE $3,000.

BETHANY, Aug. 17.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The farm house woodshed and driving shed on the farm known as the Ed. Mitchell farm, six miles west of here, now owned by Benjamin Ladd were completely destroyed by fire which broke out early last evening due to preserve kettle boiling over on a coal oil stove. The fact that there was no telephone in the house made the summoning of help a slow process and only a rocking chair was saved from the house. The machinery in the driving shed was saved from the blaze which did not spread rapidly since there was very little breeze blowing at the time.

Mrs. Ladd had been preserving sime fruit on the coal oil stove and had gone to the door to see that her children were alright as they played in the yard. The fruit boiled over and the blaze occurred. Mr. Ladd being out in the fields, was not in time to give much assistance. Neighbors, seeing the fire, hurried to the scene and assisted in bringing the machinery to safety. The loss, which one person estimated at about $3,000.00 was fairly well covered by insurance.

Long years ago, when hostelry were all the vogue, and inns boasted of their "coach and four" the inns of little old New York were famous for their comfort and good cheer. The Victoria, today, is proud to follow that same tradition of true hospitality.

THERE'S a FAMOUS Tradition BEHIND the NEW VICTORIA!

It's a smart hotel, of course—you're proud to say, "I stopped at the Victoria!" It's convenient, certainly—you're in the very heart of the theatrical and business and shopping districts! other hand, two long European flights, one southward to Madeira and the other northward over Scandinavia that have been contemplated will in all likelihood be postponed until after the first voyage oversea. Hence, or four excursions over Germany on which German Government representatives and the press will be invited.

The fresh delay in the departure of the huge craft whose balloon compartments are all ready for filling with hydrogen and whose gondola has long been prepared for passengers and personnel, has three reasons.

First and foremost is the unusual and severe test given the five Maybach motors, when constructed with a strength of 400 hores power, now have been remodeled for 530 each. These motors have been run at full speed for as long as 280 hours. In the course of this gruelling test minor flaws have been disclosed for rectification, for which additional time is required.

Delay in Gas Delivery

Another cause of delay has been the failure of the Augsberg concern manufacturing the new gas fuel to be used for the first time by a Zeppelin engine to produce a sufficient quantity of fuel for transatlantic flights. There is now plenty available for the trials and adequate supplies for the main journey are to be on hand within a fortnight. Despite his faith in this so-called blaugas, Dr. Eckener will carry ten to fifteen tons of gasoline along to be on the safe side.

The third reason is that very considerable receipts are pouring in on the Zeppelin Company from curious thousands daily viewing the mighty dirigible at the equivalent of 12 cents per entry.

While the concern's perfectly natural desire to reap as much of this monetary harvest as possible is not mentioned officially, there is no doubt whatever that Dr. Eckener's associates, who are not finding it easy to reach every expense burdening their enterprise, are disinclined to dam too early in the game the profitable flood aggregating thus far many thousand marks.

WILSON—PEARSON.

LAKEFIELD, August 17.—The marriage took place quietly in Knox Church, Lakefield, on Wednesday afternoon of Miss Lorene Pearson of Smith and Mr. Aubrey Wilson, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. George Wilson of Buckhorn.

Rev. T. N. Wesley performed the ceremony and the bridal music was played by the organist of the church, Miss Etta Garbutt.

The church was decorated with flowers, ferns and greenery and looked very pretty making an appropiate setting for such a happy event.

The bride looked very winsome in a peach georgette frock trimmed with cut velvet. She wore a navy blue tailored coat with small hat to match and wore fox furs and carried the usual bridal bouquet of roses.

Following the ceremony the young people left for Toronto and Oshawa for a brief honeymoon. On their return they will reside in Young's Point.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson are popular young people in the community and they were recipients of good wishes and many gifts from a wide circle of friends.

A GOOD OPPORTUNITY.

The people of Peterborough and district should take advantage of the opportunity offered them to buy strips of tickets for the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition.

Through the purchase of these tickets admission to the grounds for 25c is available, and a dollar or two spent in this way is a decidedly profitable investment.

This year's Exhibition promises to surpass all previous efforts in variety and extent of exhibits, and in the quantity and merit of its entertainment features.

One visit will not be enough; people, in order to be sure of missing nothing, will want to visit the grounds often during the week.

It is therefore good business to buy strips of tickets at four for a dollar, thus saving 40 cents on each four tickets.

This opportunity is only offered for a limited time, and the tickets should be in brisk demand.

They are on sale not only in Peterborough, but at many points throughout the district.

REPORTING RECKLESS MOTORISTS.

Local police officials, referring to Hon. George S. Henry's proposed complaint bureau, declare that if people who witness cases of reckless and dangerous driving would report the offenders to the police the results would be more satisfactory than those that could be expected from the other policy.

According to the police, a warning is not nearly so effective as a summons, and undoubtedly that is true.

At the same time, it is one of the characteristics of the average individual to rather shun reporting to the police something that, while perhaps dangerous, is not regarded as criminal in nature.

It is because of that fact that the complaint bureau is mooted.

It is thought that people would not object to reporting reckless driving to a Government bureau in order that the offender might be warned, whereas they would draw the line at being responsible for the police court appearance of the reckless driver.

Reporting to the police would undoubtedly be the most effective policy, but if the public refuses to go that far the proposed complaint bureau looks like the most likely substitute.

CANADA'S NEW MINISTER.

While there may be a considerable current of public opinion unable to see the necessity of appointing Canadian ministers to other countries, the selection made in the case of the Paris appointment will undoubtedly meet with widespread approval.

Even those opposed to the policy will unhesitatingly admit that if any such appointment is justifiable the selection of Hon. Philippe Roy as Canadian Minister Plenipotentiary to France is probably the best that could be made.

Mr. Roy has represented this country as Canadian Commissioner for eighteen years in Paris, and his work there has been such as to bring the two countries closer together and to stimulate trade relations between Canada and France.

His long associations with French statesmen and leaders and his own personal qualities should make him an admirable Minister, and he should prove himself of great service to Canada in the new and most important post for which he has been recommended by the Dominion Government.

THE DRUNKEN DRIVER.

Many people will be glad to learn that Attorney-General Price has declared warfare on the drunken driver, whom he characterizes as "the most dangerous individual with whom we have to deal."

"We're out to get him," declares the Attorney-General, in pointing out that the administration of justice whether it is in the hands of the police or the Crown officers, "must be steeled against any laxity for drunken drivers."

Public opinion will back Col. Price in this stand, which should do away with the possibility of any more suspended sentences, such as was ordered by Magistrate Mikel, of Belleville, recently.

The law that says intoxicated drivers must go to jail is for the protection of the public, and the Attorney-General is right in demanding that it should be enforced.

It is up to the police as well as to traffic officers and other officials to see that there is no partiality shown in the carrying out of this regulation.

Offenders, no matter who they are, must be treated alike.

The man from the country with an old model car who happens to get drunk is no more of a menace to public safety than the better known citizen with an expensive machine who makes the same mistake, and both should be taught that the law must be obeyed.

The regulation against drunken drivers should be enforced with firmness and with no regard to the personality of the offender.

Their conduct is much too dangerous to be condoned, no matter what their business or profession may be.

A HOPEFUL EXPERIMENT.

With the 2,000 men, carefully selected from the million and a quarter of British unemployed, now on their voyage to aid in Western Canada's harvesting, and four times that number still to come, interest will centre on whether or not they make good in an entirely new environment. Most of them are from the mining areas, naturally, since that was the governing motive of the British Government in launching the plan, intended as it is to help the solution of a problem that cannot otherwise be successfully met. Admittedly, Great Britain has 200,000 miners for whom work in their own line cannot be found, and if that number can be placed on Canadian land to advantage, both the Mother Country and the Dominion will benefit correspondingly.

These adventurers are accustomed to hard work, indeed, one of them has been quoted as remarking, evidently in response to a warning of what lay ahead: "The work may be hard, but it cannot be harder than work in the pit." The crux of the experiment lies in how far they will be found capable of accommodating themselves to conditions, climatic and otherwise, of which they have had no experience. Doubtless, a difficulty exists here, but the prospect is hopeful that it will be successfully overcome. An impression prevails, even in Britain itself, and, possibly, stronger in Canada, that coal miners are of indifferent employment value, that they are not easily adaptable to the requirements of other occupations, and that they are themselves unwilling to expend the effort necessary for success. But this is not the view of observers in close contact with these workers.

Recently a report was issued, touching on this very point, by the British Industrial Transference Board, signed by Sir Warren Fisher, head of the Civil Service; Sir John Cadman, a member of the Council of Scientific and Industrial Research, and Sir David Shackleton, once a cotton operative, now prominent in Labor circles. It unhesitatingly affirms that the popularly accepted view of the qualities of the mine workers is based on ignorance, if not on mere prejudice. "We are satisfied," the report signatories say, "that regarded as a type, the British miner is an example to his fellows. Part of his inheritance, handed down from generation to generation, is an instinctive loyalty to his employers, so long as unimaginative handling is not permitted to alienate his sympathy."

The Transference Board recognizes that unemployment in the British mining industries is of a special character and not susceptible of solution by localised measures of relief. That is why it recommends a new policy, directed towards the permanent removal of as many workers as possible away from the depressed areas, but it sees also that such a policy can only be effective through a general co-operative effort. Success, the report says, depends first on the realisation by the unemployed themselves of the stark realities of the situation and upon their resolution to try a fresh start elsewhere. As the men coming to Canada are for the greater part young and unmarried, have been well instructed in regard to the difficulties that must be faced in a new country, and what is needed to make good, the present experimental transfer opens under favorable auspices. If it succeeds and an appreciable number of workers find permanent employment on the land, it will encourage development of a larger influx from the ranks of the British unemployed.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

IN GREAT-GRANDFATHER'S DAY.

Not one hundred and fifty years ago—three generations only—there was in formation a new nation, and there was in existence a simple civilization upon the basis of which an entirely different one has since been erected. How different the new is from the old has rarely been more clearly presented than by an article in the Atlantic Monthly for August, being a translation of an old diary kept by Francois, Marquis de Barbe-Marbois. The social order was complete, but in many respects seemed crude both to the observer who kept the diary and to us who read it.

In 1779 those people began the day with wine and cakes; at 10 in themorning they drank tea or coffee and ate fruit or cold meat; wine was drunk with every visitor and often before sitting down to a mid-day dinner that lasted two hours; at 5 there was more drinking, and a frugal supper topped off the gastronomics of the day. There were no napkins; the long ends of the tablecloth served that purpose. The women all sat together at table; they left at dessert and the men drank and told the usual kind of post-prandial stories. The women used no rouge or powder, and what stays they wore were loose. The State severely punished infractions of ordinance, but if a man paid the equivalent of fifty dollars he might beat his wife. They had ugly houses with no ante-rooms; opened the doors themselves; the judges went about their circuits afoot and the leading citizens did the family marketing. The museum building of the university was "hardly extraordinary," and the college president made a bad error in Latin while welcoming the diary-keeper and his friends. A very great man of the colony, revered in history, scorned, as did his neighbors, the use of a handkerchief for specific purposes. One could not mention knees, legs or garters to the ladies, but it was agreeable to suggest "bundling" to one of them. New York's innermost east side does not now observe the Sabbath in more orthodox fashion.

This social order was not discovered by the Marquis de Barbe-Marbois in Europe, Asia or Africa. He found it in Massachusetts and Connecticut less than one hundred and fifty years ago. Now the descendants of these simple folk, "who had no galleries, no public gardens, no palaces, no magnificent temples," but held sacred "anything to do with liberty," find in the immigrant colonies of these same cities, and even among the sons and daughters of immigrants, much the same kind of simple civilisation, and naturally regard it as very vulgar indeed. The Atlantic article suggests that if the present descendants of the forefathers of 1779 will be patient for another generation they will see among these immigrants as swift social progress as their own families have made.

Their will to be patient may be stimulated by the fact that the university whose president made the palpable mistake in Latin in 1779 was Harvard.—New York Times.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Just in case you have forgotten the date, the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition begins on September 10.

Heavily travelled dirt roads should be oiled, particularly when the Ontario Government can be counted upon for half of the cost involved.

The Question Box

J.W.B. Q.—What kind of people are the Dyaks?

A.—The Dyaks are natives of the Island of Borneo, in the East Indian Archipelago. They are a people of savage disposition, but of much ingenuity in the industrial arts. They are akin to the Malays, though taller in stature and more honest in character.

M.P. Q.—Will you kindly give an account in your column of the flight of Brown and Alcock across the Atlantic.

A.—The trans-Atlantic flight made by Lieut. Sir Arthur Whitten Brown, navigator and the late Capt. Sir John Alcock, pilot, from St. John's, Newfoundland, to Clifden, Ireland, a distance of approximately 1,960 miles, took place on June 14 to 15, 1919, the distance being covered in 16 hours and 12 minutes. This first non-stop flight across the Atlantic was made in a Vickers-Vimy biplane at an average speed of nearly 120 miles an hour. The flight began at 4.28 p.m. on June 14, and ended at 8.40 a.m. on June 15, 1919. Both aviators were knighted for their feat. Sir John Alcock died on December 19, 1919, at Rosen, France after an airplane crash on December 18.

* * *

Gracious Lord, we bring Thee anew this day the praise of our lips and the worship of our hearts. We bless Thee for the care of our bodies, for the guarding of our minds, and for the delight of our awakened spirits in Thyself. We confess we have not merited even the least of Thy mercies, and yet our lives are crowned each day with unnumbered tokens of Thine infinite love. Wilt Thou beget within us a new humility, a deepened sense of our dependence, and a fuller surrender to Thy will.

Give us the peace which springs from a constant sense of Christ's infinite sacrifice; give us the sanctity of a life which is the fruit of His indwelling; give us the power through Thy Holy Word, to love one another, and to have some part in bringing the light of the Gospel to those in darkness. In the midst of the confusion and stress of earth, may our souls rest in Thine own perfect calm, and may we be able to comfort those in trouble with the comfort wherewith we are comforted of God. We ask all in Jesus' name. Amen.

A Thought

THE COMMONPLACE

Why do we trifle with goodness and virtue till we wake to their value through the bitterness of their loss? There may be nothing strikingly dramatic about the rewards or consequences of daily, steadfast obedience to God, but they shine in "something of an angel light," where men look back to them from the shame and misery of the tragedy of disobedience. It is not wise to be restless in the day of unspectacular obedience. The value of doing right is constant, whether men appreciate it at the time or not. Locking a barn seems no longer commonplace when the horse is stolen, and the value of taking care of furnaces comes out tremendously in the light of a burning house.

THE "UNITED CHURCH OF CANADA" NOT PRESBYTERIAN

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir:

In the May issue of the "Quarterly Register", the organ of the world's Presbyterian Alliance, Dr. J. R. Fleming of Edinburgh criticises a new book—"Dr. Moffatt on Presbyterianism"—for its—"faults of omission"—and cites an example as follows:

"The United Church of Canada, which is just referred to in passing, might have been quoted as an example of Presbyterianism into something bigger than itself and yet not departing from its essential principles."

Dr. Fleming's statement, published world-wide, is so contrary to fact, so unfair to the Presbyterians in Canada and so unjust to the "essential principles" of Presbyterianism in all lands, that I trust you will kindly give space for correction.

The "United Church of Canada" has a right to her own principles, but they are not Presbyterian. She has four Presbyterian names, "Elder", "Session", "Presbytery", "Call", all of them stripped of their Presbyterian meaning, but she has not a distinctive Presbyterian principle.

One "essential principle" of Presbyterianism is democracy. The people are the Church. No man has any place or voice in the management of the Church in any of her higher Courts, in Presbytery, Synod or General Assembly, until he has been first chosen to office by the people; called as a minister or elected as an elder.

In the "United Church of Canada" this principle has no place. Not a member of the three Courts of that Church, "Presbytery", "Conference" or "General Council" need be of those first chosen to office by the people. All are officially appointed, irrespective of any choice, at any time, by the people. It is clerical and official autocracy; unlimited, complete; to which Presbyterians have ever refused to submit.

A second "essential principle" of Presbyterianism is the "parity of presbyters", the equality, in all the higher courts of the Church, of elders and ministers. One half the membership of Presbytery, Synod and General Assembly, must be ruling elders, chosen by the people.

In the "United Church of Canada" this principle has no place. The minister has rights in all the three Courts of that Church. Half their membership must be ministers; but the "elder," so called, has no right beyond his own congregation. The "non ministerial" half of these Courts, all officially appointed, need not include a single "elder", or any other first chosen to office by the people.

A third "essential principle" of Presbyterianism is that all in office, elders and minister, entrusted with the care of the Church, are pledged to that Church and its principles, to maintain and defend them.

In the "United Church of Canada" this principle has no place. Those in office are pledged to nothing in the Church, but have absolute power over it, to do with it what they will; "power—to alter, change—to unite with any other religious denomination, of any kind, on any terms they may choose.

A fourth Presbyterian principle is that the people keep the door of the Church through which must enter its ministry. No man is ordained in the ministry of that Church, unless for some special work, as, for example, a missionary until he receives a Call from a congregation of the people. In the "United Church of Canada" this principle has no place. Men are ordained to the ministry without any reference to a call from the people.

A fifth "essential principle" of Presbyterianism is that the people of a congregation have the right to choose their own minister. No power in the Presbyterian Church can intrude upon a congregation a minister whom they have not called and do not wish to call.

In the "United Church of Canada" this principle has no place. The people "may extend a call or invitation"—"but the right of appointment shall rest with the Settlement Committee....which shall report to the Conference for information only." Autocracy again! The rights of the people no more!

A sixth principle of Presbyterianism is its pledged acceptance of the great truths of Scripture as these are summed up for the English-speaking world in the Westminster Confession and Catechisms.

The "United Church of Canada" has cast aside these Westminster Standards and subscribes to no system of truth, not even to the "Doctrinal Statement" in its own "Basis of Union." It is thus an open door to every error which men may choose to teach; among them that error which takes from Christ His Crown of Deity, from sinners a Saviour, and from the world its hope, making Him only a man.

But Presbyterian principles still live, here as in all other lands. In 1925, three years ago, when attempt was made to blot out their Church by Act of Parliament, the loyal Presbyterians would not surrender their principles and rights at the ultra vires dictation of usurping ecclesiastical or civil power, but maintained those principles and rights, and continued their Church unchanged, and today that Presbyterian Church in Canada has a communicant membership of nearly one hundred and eighty thousand, grouped in some thirteen hundred congregations, forty-four Presbyteries, eight Synods and one General Assembly, and extends from Atlantic to Pacific, with an open door of welcome to Presbyterians from other lands who make Canada their home.

Dr. Flemming chose either horn of the dilemma; either make good his statement by naming the "essential principles" of Presbyterianism in the "United Church of Canada"—or, by failure to do so, acknowledge that statement in error.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Que., August 17 (Canadian Press). — The export trade in Canadian grain here yesterday was quiet, there being practically no demand from foreign buyers. In the local market a moderate amount of business was done in Canadian Western oats and prices were firm.

Prices for all grades of spring and winter wheat flour were firmly maintained under a fair demand from local buyers.

The demand from United States buyers for all lines of millfeed continued good and a large volume of business was done. The domestic trade was also active and the undertone to the market was firm.

Standard grades of rolled oats were quiet and unchanged.

A fair volume of business was done in butter, but the undertone to the market continued easy. The receipts were 762 packages.

Further weakness developed in the cheese situation and prices were again reduced. The demand was quiet. The receipts were 5,420 boxes.

The inquiry for all grades of eggs was again active and prices were steady. Receipts were 832 cases.

CARE COURTESY COMMON SENSE

7 Rules for Safety

1 Have your car in perfect mechanical shape—particularly Brakes, Steering Gear and Head lights.

2 Give your undivided attention to your driving. In passing traffic, be sure there is a place for you in the traffic line ahead.

3 When other motor vehicles try to pass you—let them pass.

4 In entering main streets or highways, or in approaching a railway crossing where a full view of the track is obstructed, stop and look.

5 Don't "loaf" where traffic is heavy.

6 Always signal before you slow down, stop or change your course.

7 Never back up before ascertaining that the road behind is clear.

Stop signs mean just what they say whether on City streets or on country roads leading into main thoroughfares.

Drivers of vehicles must come to a dead stop immediately before entering a "Through" street or highway and they should always proceed with caution.

At the same time, a driver who has done this has obeyed the law and is entitled to every consideration by drivers on the "Through" street or highway. Cross traffic must not be held up unnecessarily. Courtesy must be shown to those seeking to cross or enter main thoroughfares.

The "Stop" signs contribute to safety, but the intelligence and carefulness of drivers is needed also if accidents at intersections are to be avoided.

No Canvassing - No Selling - Just This

Simply add together the figures in the puzzle shown here, just as though each figure stood one above the other. All are single figures, running from 2 to 8—none are alike—with some figures upside down to make the puzzle a little more difficult. Send in your answer in accordance with rules below.

Men as well as women may enter and every one who sends in an answer, whether right or wrong, will be awarded a prize.

The Purpose of This Contest

The purpose of this contest is to introduce Canada's first "certified" and popular priced Silk-to-the-Top Stocking.

Months ago fashion decreed that the day of the cotton and lisle top silk stocking was over. Today they are as much out of fashion—and as embarrassing—as the long shirt and high laced shoe. Silk-to-the-Top Stockings have replaced them.

"Doublewear" Silk Stockings bring to those of moderate means the first "certified" silk-to-the-top stocking selling at the popular price of $1.50.

"Doublewear" Silk Stockings are made of Plaited Pure Thread Silk—the strongest two silk combination known for service weight silk stockings.

"Doublewear" Silk-to-the-Top Stockings are seamed up the back and fashioned, of course, to fit snugly at the ankles, take the shape of the leg perfectly and mould softly to the knee.

The heels are spliced and, with the toes and soles, are interwoven with a special material that makes them practically rustproof, retains their shape without the need of torturing heavy sole seams and gives double the wear to every pair.

"Doublewear" Silk-to-the-Top Stockings are fast dyed and pre-shrunk. The oftener they are washed the better they look and the longer they wear.

For double wear, wear "DOUBLEWEAR".

Read These Simple Rules Carefully

1. Anyone may enter this Contest except:
   (1) Employees of the Doublewear Hosiery Co.
   (2) Relatives of the judges.
2. As the purpose of this contest is to introduce "Doublewear" certified Silk-to-the-Top Stockings, no answers will be accepted unless accompanied by $3.00 for 2 pair. Cash should be registered. Make money orders and cheques payable to the Doublewear Hosiery Co. of Canada.
3. If no one submits the correct answer, first prize will be awarded to the contestant sending in the nearest correct answer. In the event of any ties, those tieing will be required to answer a simple tiebreaker to determine their final standing.
4. Contestants must write the name of their local Dry Goods Merchant on the entry form below. Failure to do so will count against them. Contest closes Nov. 30th, 1928, but
5. The Doublewear Hosiery Co. reserves the right to close it by Sept. 30th, 1928, if other plans under consideration make this necessary.
6. The Doublewear Hosiery Co. also reserves the right to reject any entry they deem undesirable to accept and to return all money received in connection with such entries.

CARELESS PARKING RUINS MANY TIRES

J. J. Duffus Warns Motorists Not to Run Into Curbs.

While angle parking may be a conserver of parking space, it also is responsible for much of the tire and rim trouble experienced by local motorists this season, is the considered opinion of J. J. Duffus, president, J. J. Duffus Limited, Peterborough, distributors for Seiberling All-Tread tires.

Mr. Duffus, who knows tires thoroughly, and who takes a keen pride in helping the car owner get the most out of his tires, gives warning to those who angle park to beware of bumping the curb as they stop if they wish to avoid broken tires and bent rims. Anyone interested enough to watch will see four out of five drivers coast up to the curb at a good clip and depend on the curb to stop the car instead of using their brakes to bring the car to almost a standstill before touching the curb. This practice is bound to be ruinous to tires, as repeated impacts will weaken and finally break the cords, and a blow-out results. It also throws the wheels out of alignment which eventually results in brushing the tread completely off the front tires. It may be weeks before such an injury develops into a blowout, and that makes it doubly difficult to trace it back to the real cause.

If you have experienced early tire failure, particularly on the right front wheel, look back and see if you have not been guilty of carelessness in angle parking you car before blaming the dealer for giving you a defective tire.

Ferocious Leeches Killing Suckers

KINGSTON, Aug. 17. — The death of suckers in some of the back lakes in this district is causing much worry. Tourists at Wolfe Island believe that the blood-sucker, with which the lakes abound this summer, fastens itself on the sucker and does not let go until the fish is dead. These ferocious leeches will attack pike, so it is claimed, but this species of fish has the stamina to throw them off. The bass has not been bothered.

CHAPTER XLIII

DISCOURAGEMENT

Jennifer stayed two days in the Bloomsbury Hotel before she could make up her mind to any definite action. She felt as if she were waiting for something to happen, although she hardly knew what, and it was only on the third morning, when the glorious weather changed suddenly to grey skies and drenching rain, that she knew she could stand it no longer. London was unbearable to her. She was afraid to go far lest she should meet someone who had made up her life during the past eighteen months. She carefully avoided Baker Street and any neighborhoods which she knew Gaunt frequented. She never looked at a newspaper. She felt that a very small thing would break down her determination and drive her back to the man who filled her thoughts, waking and sleeping. As the first step towards leaving England, she went along to her bank.

Since she left Mr. Gurney's employ, Jennifer had grown strangely careless and unbusinesslike over money matters. For instance, she had only once asked for her passbook, and then she had only glanced at it casually. The sum her uncle had left her had seemed colossal. She forgot how lavishly she had spent money at the Baker Street flat. If anyone had asked her, she would have said her only extravagance had been the purchase of a small pearl necklace. Jennifer had always loved pearls, and when one day Dolores came to her with her usual story of no money, and had asked Jennifer to buy her pearl necklace, Jennifer had consented, partly because the small pearly beads lying in their bed of white velvet had seemed irresistible.

She had paid Dolores seven hundred pounds for them.

"They're worth much more," Dolores had said with a sigh as she handed them over, "but you're my friend, and I know you'll take care of them and let me have them back again if I can ever raise the cash."

That was quite at the beginning of their friendship, and Jennifer had only worn the necklace half a dozen times.

Her only other piece of jewelry had been the single diamond ring which Chesney had given her and which she had returned to him before she left the Baker Street flat.

For the rest, her money had chiefly gone in travel, in frocks, and in what she had at first called "having a good time."

Strange how soon the life had palled upon her.

"It's just chucking money away, this life we lead," Dolores had said once in her downright fashion. "We pay pounds for a frock so that we can dress up in front of a lot of people who don't care a damn for us. We pay pounds for champagne which leaves us with a liver and a splitting headache. What's the matter with the world, Jennifer, and with all of us?"

Jennifer had answered that she neither knew nor cared.

"It's just a way to get through life," she added cynically.

"Well, it's a jolly expensive way of getting through," Dolores said, gloomily. "I make quite a lot of money, yet I never seem to have a shilling. You're different, you can afford to be extravagant with a private income. A nice fat one it must be too," she added enviously.

Jennifer had not enlightened her on the subject, but she thought of what Dolores had said as she hurried through the rain to the bank. Had she been extravagant? She supposed she had. The Baker Street rent had been enormous, and what furniture of her own she had bought had come from the most expensive West End shops.

When she travelled she had always done so in the most lavish way, and if ever she had felt a twinge of misgiving or compunction about it, the thought of Malcolm Chesney had always made things appear perfectly secure.

She could always marry him, or so she had believed, and now he had left her.

"I can get a job again when the money's gone, that's one good thing," Jennifer thought, as she pushed open the swing door of the bank.

The cashier knew her well and came forward. Jennifer interested him.

He knew Chesney too, and hoped they would marry. Jennifer went straight to her point.

"I am going abroad again, Mr. Rainger, and I want to know what my balance is please."

He kept her waiting for a few moments, then handed her a folded paper.

Jennifer opened it—£663. 18s. 0d. She stared at the figures blankly.

"Is that all I have left?" she gasped.

The cashier looked faintly amused. "That is the balance," he said politely. "I don't think you have had your pass-book lately, Miss Fry."

"No, no, I haven't," Jennifer stammered. She felt agitated. "I'll take it now, please."

Back in the silence of her bedroom at the hotel, she pored over its pages.

Forty guineas to a famous Court dressmaker. Yes, she remembered that frock well—she had worn it the night she met Nicholas Gaunt at the Bohemian Club.

Twenty-eight guineas for a cloth coat! She had that coat still, although Dolores had told her it did not suit her and had offered to buy it cheap. Sixteen pounds for shoes, seventy-five guineas for a fur stole. Such prices had seemed nothing at the time, but now they appalled her. A trip to Italy had cost over £200; a week in Paris with Dolores, when they had both bought frocks and Jennifer had paid for them all, had cost even more.

"I must have been mad," Jennifer told herself.

She had done all this out of capital, and now, beyond the pearl necklace which she felt in honour bound not to sell again, she had only six hundred and sixty-three pounds left. The small sum left by her father's life insurance, and badly invested before her mother's death by Alfred Heaton, had depreciated in value and only now brought in about forty pounds a year.

When she was with Mr. Gurney, Jennifer had looked upon that sum as a safe nest-egg, but after she moved to Baker Street it had seemed too insignificant to worry much about.

Like the careful merchant of the fairy story, who, when he was poor, always walked with his eyes on the ground in case anyone dropped a penny, and who, when he got rich, passed a banknote with his nose in the air, Jennifer had made the mistake of believing that her few thousands would last for ever or at least as long as she needed them. Now they were gone. She had lost both her money and her friends at one blow.

"I must work again," she told herself, and tried to feel optimistic.

But her first visit to an Agency dashed her hopes. The woman in charge, mistaking her at first for a client in search of a maid, grew insolent when she heard the real facts of the case.

You hardly look as if you are in need of employment," she said cynically, and her eyes wandered with eloquent meaning over Jennifer's expensive clothes."

"I have worked all my life until eighteen months ago," Jennifer answered. "I was for more than five years with a Mr. Gurney, a solicitor. He had offices in the City."

"And may I ask why you left him?"

"And this Mr. Gurney? He will give you a reference of course? We always expect a reference with anyone whose name is put on our books."

Jennifer flushed.

"Mr. Gurney is dead," she answered.

"Oh, I see!" The woman sniffed. She was an acid-looking person, with thin, tightly screwed-up hair and lips. "That is very unfortunate for you, is it not?"

Jennifer bore the insolence with what patience she could.

"Is there any likelihood of your being able to offer me a post?" she asked.

"At the moment we have nothing on our books," she was told curtly. "Nothing, at least that would suit you, but if you have an address, you shall hear from us if anything suitable comes along."

She kept her insolent eyes on Jennifer as she walked from the room. "Hateful woman! Hateful!" she told herself passionately. "How dare she look at me like that."

At two other agencies she met with no greater success, although in the waiting-room of one she met a shabby-looking bright-faced girl who started a conversation by saying bluntly:

"Don't tell me you're looking for a job?"

Jennifer smiled.

"I am indeed," she said. "And I'm finding it very difficult."

The girl chuckled.

"I should say so, in those clothes," she said uncompromisingly. "Lord, that frock must have cost a fortune."

Jennifer flushed.

"I haven't any money now, at any rate," she answered. There was something about the girl that invited confidence. "At least only a small capital sum which I don't want to spend."

The girl looked envious.

"Wish I had some capital," she said. "I'd make money fast enough if I had. I know of a stunning little business to be had cheap and a sure income with it."

"What business?" Jennifer asked.

"It's a tea-shop—in the City. One of those ducky little underground places. You know the sort, don't you? The woman's old whose got it—she wants to sell at any price. She's willing to let it go for 300 pounds, and it's dirt cheap.

"Is it?" Jennifer asked doubtfully.

"Of course it is? Those places make a pot of money. I only wish to goodness I'd got 300 pounds, I wouldn't be wasting fees on these sharks here."

She rose with a grimace as her name was called from an inner room.

"Miss Innes."

"There won't be anything doing. I know," she told Jennifer in an undertone.

In a few moments she was back again.

"Told you so. Offered me a job as 'Lady's Help' at fifteen bob a week. Three kids and only a 'Daily kept.' Not for me, thank you. Well, so long and good luck."

Jennifer rose hurriedly to her feet. "Wait a moment, I'm coming with you," she said.

UNCLE WIGGILY

UNCLE WIGGILY'S LUCKY LEAVES

"Come! Come!" crowed Mr. Rooster to Uncle Wiggily as the two stood in the hollow place beneath the barn floor near the nest in which the rabbit gentleman had broken some of the hen lady's eggs. "You had better put on that suit I have just washed clean for you and get back to your bungalow, Mr. Longears."

"Not that we want to get rid of you, Uncle Wiggily," politely cackled the hen lady. "But I am about to lay another egg to make up for one of those you accidentally broke when you were getting away from the hay wagon man, and you see—"

"My wife likes to be alone and quiet when she lays eggs," broke in Mr. Rooster. "And while we like you, Mr. Longears, I feel that you should now put on your pongee silk suit, which I have washed clean of egg stains and dried for you."

"But look here, my dear fellow!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily, "I simply can't get this suit on, you know! Not at all!"

"Why not?" cackled the hen lady. "You were wearing it when you plopped down through the hole in the barn floor and broke my eggs."

"Yes," admitted the rabbit gentleman, "I was. But the suit had not been washed then, and it fitted me. But now it has so shrunk in the washing and drying that I can't wear it. Look!"

Uncle Wiggily tried to pull on the trousers, but they were like golf knickers for shortness. While as for the vest it looked like a postage stamp. And the coat—well, that had shrunk to the size of the peeling off a little orange.

"I can't wear that suit home!" sadly said the bunny.

"No, I don't believe you can," crowed Mr. Rooster, scratching his red comb with one claw, sort of puzzled like.

"It was kind of you to wash my suit in the brook after I accidentally broke your wife's eggs," said the rabbit. "But you didn't know it would shrink, did you?"

"No, indeed, I didn't," answered Mr. Rooster.

"But I certainly am in a pretty pickle!" went on the bunny. "I certainly am in a pickle!"

"Ha! Speaking of pickles reminds me of something!" cackled the hen lady who now had her nest cleared of broken shells.

"What has a pickle to do with Uncle Wiggily's suit shrinking so he can't wear it home, if you please, my dear?" asked Mr. Rooster.

"Why," answered his wife, "a pickle is green. So are leaves. And if you were to go out and pull a lot of big green leaves off the grape vine and bring them in here, with some thorns from the locust tree, I could pin together a sort of blanket or robe of leaves for Uncle Wiggily to wear home. I suppose you have other suits in your bungalow," she added.

"Oh, plenty, thank you," said the rabbit. "All I want is something to wear until I can get home."

"I'll go pull you some leaves and thorns," offered Mr. Rooster.

It did not take the clever hen lady long to pin together, out of the big green leaves, a sort of bath robe for Uncle Wiggily. The rabbit gentleman thanked the hen and crowing gentleman and, taking his shrunken pongee suit under one paw (for he thought one of his little boys might wear it) Mr. Longears began to hop home.

He had not gone far before, just ahead of him, he suddenly saw the fox and wolf walking along together. It was too late to turn back. Uncle Wiggily almost froze in his tracks as he heard the wolf say:

"I smell a rabbit! Do you see Mr. Longears?" The fox looked straight at Uncle Wiggily without seeing him and answered:

"No, I only see a lot of green leaves fluttering in the wind."

"Too bad!" sighed the wolf. "I thought I smelled rabbit."

"So you did!" said Mr. Longears to himself as the bad chaps went their way not coming near him. "But my lucky leaves fooled you. I'm glad I was wearing this robe of green leaves. I'm lucky!"

So the bunny gentleman hopped along safely when the fox and wolf went away and soon he was in his hollow stump bungalow, much to the surprise of his wife.

LYRICS OF LIFE

THE DRIVERS

Remember those first summers when Something inside went wrong again
And we got out and we got under?
But men corrected every blunder
And now, whatever makes they are,
We always have the perfect car.
But, though improvements have been divers,
There's no improvement in the drivers.

I wish these engineering kings,
The Chryslers, Fords and Ketterings,
Would now devote a little thought to
The ones who navigate the auto.
I long for that forgotten past
When people couldn't drive too fast.
Although the cars were late arrivers,
They did, both passengers and drivers.

But now they try to beat the train
And decorate the sad terrain,
Or pass upon a narrow highway
And get in your way and in my way.
The children coming home from school
Are victims of some speeding fool.
Oh, kind accessory contrivers,
Can't you do something with the drivers

Put on a signal that will show
Which way the lady means to go,
And for these models low and sporty
A brake that sets when they hit forty.
And put some springs upon our feet
So we can jump across the street.
I ask you, for the few survivors.
To make some changes in the drivers.

Indigestion set in shortly after the man ate the two green vegetables, and he died before the harbor physician, who had been called, reached the barge.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

SATURDAY, AUGUST 18, 1928

Good and evil stars contend in today's horoscope, according to astrology which reads the signs in the skies.

Although it is not an auspicious rule under which to begin new ventures it is a promising sway for promoting any sort of enterprise.

Politics are subject to a rule making for tremendous activity and supreme effort that will assure numerous surprising results.

Women will achieve much in the national campaign, but with few exceptions will gain no rewards.

The seers point out that even in a new era ancient human prejudices persist and for this reason women must often contribute to the fame or success of men instead of obtaining prizes for themselves.

Uranus is in a place presaging much confused thought and many muddled impressions. The mind should be emptied of prejudices and outworn ideas, they declare.

This is not a lucky sway for aviators who may be disappointed in the carrying out of important plans.

Travel is subject to rather unfavorable conditions. Delays may be encountered under this rule.

Again diet is to become of prime interest and it will be discussed from new angles, since nutrition is to be scientifically watched.

Young folk are now subject to aspects making for better understanding of their aspirations and inclinations.

Reactionary influences will increase as the autumn advances it is prophesied, and the tempo of the fast sets will be greatly reduced.

New treatment to preserve the teeth is numbered among the coming triumphs of science. Dentistry is to become a greatly improved art the seers foretell.

Babies that come into the world this year have the best possible chance to become beautiful and brilliant astrologers announce.

Persons whose birthdate it is may meet with heavy losses in the coming year if they take any risks and they may be sorely tempted. These Leo people seldom take advice, however.

Children born on this day probably have quick wits and keen judgments. The subjects of this sign usually have strong bodies. Ruddy complexions and fine eyes. They are able to succeed in any career they choose.

A sudden turn in the market puts some store in a position to offer you goods of the highest repute and quality at a bargain price. Read the advertisements and save money.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, August 17 (Canadian Press) — Reports current that farmers in the spring wheat belt are planning to hold wheat back wherever possible tended noticeably yesterday to lift wheat prices here. It was also pointed out that the open interest in wheat on the Chicago Board of Trade has increased steadily since the first of July, and is now 112,000,000 bushels indicating persistent accumulation of wheat despite heavy liquidating sales at times.

Wheat yesterday finished strong, 1¼c to 1⅝c net higher, corn ⅛c to 1⅛c up, oats ⅛c to ⅛c off, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 25c.

Besides indications that many north western growers intend to store rather than sell their wheat when practicable, it was common trade talk yesterday that a large number of producers of spring wheat are buying future delivery contracts when they do sell the cash grain. More or less as a result of these developmets, previous speculative sellers of wheat here turned to the buying side of the market yesterday toward the last, and a brisk advance followed, contrasting sharply with an earlier downward trend.

Traders who were looking for lower prices in the wheat market made much of news that Kansas City stocks of wheat were estimated yesterday at 22,000,000 bushels, the largest total on record.

Furthermore, Liverpool wheat quotations were lower than due, and warmer temperatures in Canada counted as an additional incentive to sell, especially during the earlier dealings. Word was also at hand that harvest is becoming general south of the Canadian border, with the greater part of the crop ripe and quality as a rule good. Export demand was slow.

September corn rose rapidly in price yesterday after a dip at the opening. The fact that high premiums paid for corn available to be used at once do not bring in any portant supplies attracted much notused at once do not bring in any important supplies attracted much attice. New crop deliveries sympthized with action of September, but were less strong, weather conditions in the corn belt yesterday, being more favorable. Oats trade was sluggish, and nearby deliveries sold at a new low level for the season.

Provisions had an upward slant, chiefly because of hogs reaching a fresh high price record.

STERLING EXCHANGE

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 17 (Canadian Press).—Sterling exchange rates were quoted here yesterday as:

Demand—$4.84⅝ to $4.84⅞.
Cables—$4.85⅛ to $4.85 3-16.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

TORONTO, August 17 — Good prices for good cattle, with poorer prices for low grade animals was the trend of the market on the live stock exchange this week. There were few of the former and they were snapped up early in the week while the latter flooded the market and were hard to dispose of. Trade opened slow on Monday, the best heavy steers selling at $12.00 with poorer grades fetching $11.25 to $11.50. Choice butcher heifers were lower, bringing $10.50 to $10.75 with good from $9.50 to $10.00. A large number of "commons" were offered, but these could find little market, selling 50c to 75c lower than last week's prices.

Baby beeves and fat choice cows were both in active demand, the former bringing from $13.50 to $14.00 and the latter $8.50 to $9.00. Here again medium and poor quality animals predominated.

Choice light butcher bulls were down to $7.00 to $7.75, choice heavy bulls at $6.50 to $7.00, and bolognas unwanted at $5.25 to $6.00.

On Tuesday trade was decidedly slow, the receipts of 1,033 cattle being mostly of poor quality. These combined with the residue of the lower grades of Monday's receipts made the market very draggy and trade slow.

The situation was improved slightly on Wednesday by the small receipts, 397 cattle being received yesterday. On account of this a near clean-up was effected. Prices were either steady or slightly lower on the previous day's quotations. Any fresh cattle received sold at steady prices.

Yesterday's market was practically dormant, prices remaining about the same. There were 400 cattle left over from Wednesday, but few of these were sold.

Receipts.

W.M.A. MEETS AT MILLBROOK

Auxiliary is well organized, the membership being divided into groups under competent leaders, Mrs. Jones went on to say: "It is wonderful what united spirits and prayerful women can do. I realise my own weakness, but with your prayers and help, I am sure we will finish out the year better women, will do our best to reach our allocation, and will find that the blessing of God has crowned our efforts, and remained with us through all the days."

A solo, "I We Walk With Him," sung by Mrs. Johnston, was much enjoyed and was very appropriate to the service at this point, as was also the reading, "Mrs. Elwood's Holiday, and how it became a Holy Day," given by Miss Jean L. Burnham.

As guest of honor for the meeting were two missionaries Miss Viola Cardwell and Miss McEachern, both of whom have done very fine service for the Kingdom, the former as a nurse and the latter as a teacher in Korea.

Overworked by the insistent demands of their respective fields 'at the front,' a complete rest has been imperative for these two missionary laborers, hence through doctor's orders neither is allowed to make public addresses; but Miss Cardwell, who is the missionary chosen by the local Auxiliary as the subject of special prayer each day in the members' private devotions, spoke briefly expressing appreciation of the many letters sent her while on the Korean field, and also of the value she placed upon the interest and prayers of which she had been given practical proof in the busy years spent in the Master's service in the Far East.

An interesting summary of the recent Presbyterial W.M.S. Rally at Roseneath was given by Miss Estelle Hetherington, the three departments emphasized being: Strangers, Temperance, and Little Light Bearers.

The meeting was brought to a close with prayer by Mrs. J. H. George, and while the tea was being prepared Miss Cardwell showed a number of views she had brought from Korea, and the members took advantage of the opportunity of meeting and becoming acquainted with both the missionary workers who were guests of honor for the day.

Tables for tea were set on the lawns, and Mrs. Williamson was assisted by members of Group C in serving the many guests. The formal vote of thanks was moved by Mrs. J. A. Brown and Mrs. Irwin Hatherly, the latter extending an invitation to hold the September meeting at her home.

JURY UNABLE TO DETERMINE CAUSE OF CRASH

had sat perfectly still except Bob Erving who had raised himself in his seat to take some motion pictures.

"I believe fe banked twice," said Reed, then the next thing I knew the plane was spinning around, not violently, I knew there was something wrong and that he was not doing the spin for the fun of it."

The boy remembered catching a "flash" of trees and grass, and one of the passengers yelling "we are going to crash." He did not recall any great excitement among the passengers, and din't notice what was going on in the cabin because he was looking out of the window. He had leaned over and said to Bob Erving and Lucy Hill, "We are in a crash." Erving had nodded.

The plane had remained at a height of a thousand feet, until it started to spin, Reed was sure. He could not remember seeing any of the passengers after the crash and had no idea how Erving had died.

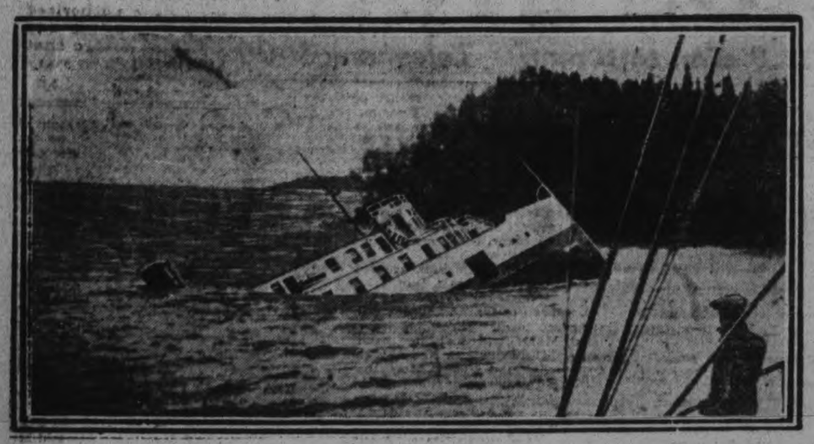
ISLE ROYAL CLAIMS ANOTHER



At Todd Harbor, on the north shore of Isle Royal, big lozenge-shaped United States island, forty-five miles south of Port Arthur, the position of the Canada Steamship Company's package freighter, Kamloops, wrecked in the blinding blizzard of December 6, has been found close to the spot where nine bodies of the crew of 22 were found on the shore. June 1 marks the date of the latest sacrifice to this ogre-island, fringed with a chain of rocky islets, sunken boats and reefs where ships almost too numerous to mention have crashed to their doom. Shown in the cut is the steamer America, which carried mail and passengers to Isle Royal from Duluth, twenty-nine minutes after she crashed on hidden rocks at the west end of Isle Royal on June 1. Fortunately the thirty-three passengers and the six members of the crew reached the shore in safety.

TOURISTS ARE BUYING FURS

Dealers Report They Are Doing a Good Business With Visitors.

COATS IN DEMAND.

Jewellery stores, but more particularly fur dealers, have this summer enjoyed an unusually large patronage from the tourist guests of Canada and from these stores in Peterborough, a large stock of retail goods has already departed by train, boat or motor car, whatever the purchaser's mode of travel on his or her vacation, may have been.

William Lech and Sons, Limited, and Barrie's Limited, two principal dealers in fur garments, when visited by The Examiner, declared that tourists from across the border are taking advantage of that clause in the United States Customs regulations which provides an exemption from duty of $100.000 worth of goods for every member in a party; and rat and seal coats have been in popular demand among the American visitors from the more northerly states. For instance, when there is a man, woman and child in a party, a $300 coat is purchased at a saving, so one person claimed, of almost one hundred per cent when compared with the price that would be paid for the same article in Detroit. Silver and red fox chokers have also been good sellers, according to the local dealers.

INJURIES SERIOUS.

KINGSTON, Ont., Aug. 17—(Canadian Press).—A man, believed to be Dr. U. G. Rosewater, of Cleveland, Ohio, was found seriously injured, lying in a ditch on the highway about a mile west of Napanee yesterday. His wrecked car was found a short distance further along the ditch into which it had rashed.

Rushed to the hospital the man was found to be suffering from fractured skull and internal injuries. He has not yet regained consciousness. The manner in which the accident occurred is a total mystery.

CARS COLLIDE.

Sedan and Touring Car Meet at George and Hunter Streets.

A large sedan car coming north on George Street at 2.45 to-day slowed down as if to stop, and a light touring car started to proceed west across George Street. The driver of the heavier car changed his mind and started to turn, colliding with the lighter car in the back, skidding it completely around. The sedan apparently was not damaged, and did not stop, but kept going at a fast clip over Hunter Street. The owner of the light car waited for only a second, and then also drove away with only a dinted fender.

BROCKVILLE, August 17 (Canadian Press). — Burglars last night forced entry to the vestry of St. Francis Xavier Roman Catholic Church here, but they disturbed little beyond carrying off a flashlight. The previous night St Mark's Roman Catholic Church, Prescott, was broken into and all of the money boxes, each containing a considerable sum, stolen. The thieves last night were unable to force the lock protecting the gold challice, being frightened away before the completion of their work.

TWO SMALL CHILDREN ARE KILLED

Automobiles Strike Two Kiddies On Toronto Streets.

DIE IN HOSPITAL.

One Little Boy Was Playing On Sidewalk Near His Home.

TORONTO, Aug. 11.—Two other deaths were added last night to the long list of motor car fatalities when Joseph Wasoruka, aged 10, of 74 Baldwin Street, succumbed in the General Hospital to injuries received when run over by an automobile at Dundas and Huron streets, and Walter Shanks, aged 3 years, 10 Elm street, died in St. Michael's Hospital of internal injuries.

Joseph was in front of a parking stand on the south side of Dundas street when suddenly he ran across to the north side. In doing so, police say, he ran in front of an eastbound auto driven by Roy Kinsman, 10 Borden street. The boy's skull was fractured and his left leg broken. He was unconscious when picked up by Fred Lewis, 70 Cheriton avenue. Lewis removed the injured boy to the hospital where he died about an hour later.

Playing on Sidewalk

Walter Shanks was playing on the sidewalk about 25 yards east of his home when he was struck down and run over by an automobile backing down of a lane at 15 Elm street. The wheels of the car passed over the little boy's body, crushing him so badly he died later in the hospital.

The automobile was driven by Mrs. Ethel Carlyle, 323 Manor road east. Mrs. Carlyle was detained at Dundas street west station while police investigated. Later no charge was made again her, and she was allowed to go home.

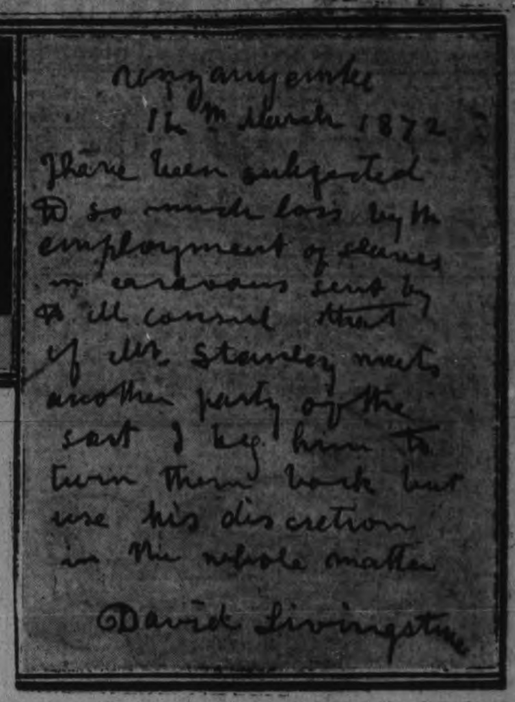
FOUR IN FIELD.

ABERDEEN, Scotland, Aug. 17. — (Canadian Press).—The Labor Party retained its seat in North Aberdeen at yesterday's by-election, necessitated by the death of Frank Rose, former Labor Minister, Captain Wedgewood Benn, a Laborite, winning the seat. Captain Wedgewood Benn polled 10,646 votes, to 4,696 by Delaura Sandeman, Conservative; 2,618 by Atkins Ferguson, Communist, and 2,337 by J. R. Rutherford, Liberal.

LIVINGSTONE LETTER



One of the most valuable collections of letters and political manuscripts, made by William Kirby, author of the first important political novel, "Le Chien D'Or," or "The Golden Dog," as it is better known, is in danger of being lost to Canada, unless the Government or some wealthy Canadian takes it over. The layout ABOVE shows a David Livingstone letter included in the collection, and a photograph of William Kirby, grandson of the author, who is aiding in arranging and cataloging the collection.

SEASON'S BEST

ed a crew for the pie plate race and also for the 'seven in a skiff'. She entered the long swim and finished too and while she received no prize she demonstrated the real spirit of sportsmanship which calls the race the real issue not the prize. This young lady will be heard from as "no surrender" is her slogan and she will go far as she grows in years and size.

The diving was a feature also and was difficult to judge as practically every contestant gave a good exhibition of straight diving which was a pretty spectacle as well as an evidence of skill. This exhibition was prefaced by an accident to Miss Marjorie Mulch who in diving missed a step and hit the dock before striking the water. She was carried to Wantosa Inn where she and her mother are guests but it is understood that she was not seriously injured.

Following the regatta the prizes were presented by Mrs. Ringel, the gracious wife of the chairman of the committee, the announcements being made by Mr. Charles Porter. Mrs. Ringel's manner adds a graceful touch to this pleasing ceremony which took place as usual from the verandah of Mr. Choate's store. The prizes consisted largely of silver cups engraved with the name and place of the regatta and the date and will be souvenirs of a very delightful event which had the charm of a neighborhood jollification and family party, combined with all the attributes of a first class regatta.

A handsome chest of note paper was presented to the press representative with the compliments of the committee who year by year make pleasant the task of the reporter and also reward her services very generously.

KIWANIS ARE ENTERTAINED

Bowling Club to twelve Kiwanians for games on Tuesday, and to Dr. Ray Scott, who read a communication from the Border Transit Company relative to the children's outing which that company and the club are sponsoring. John Allen voiced his understanding that the outing would take place to Wallace's Point next Friday.

Cup on View.

Harry Boyle, in addressing the club, pointed to a beautiful silver trophy which the local Kiwanis organization had won for having the largest representation at inter-club picnic at Cobourg on Wednesday. He also spoke of the invitation issued by the Toronto Kiwanis Club to all Kiwanians visiting in Toronto on Wednesday, August 29, or a week later, to attend the luncheons on those days. "Just 'phone the Kiwanis Office, Elgin 0812 or Adelaide 6421 for particulars," said Harry. "You will be accompanied to and from the luncheon by a Toronto member.

Make Reservations.

Harry Huffman had a most encouraging report relative to reservations being made by the local members who will attend the District Convention in Kingston, September 23, 24, and 25. Already nineteen ladies and twenty-one men have taken the necessary steps and it is hoped that within the next week or so, over fifty-five will be enrolled. Harry urges the members to get busy, as there is only a short time left in which to make the necessary arrangements.

Guests Present.

PLAYGROUNDS HAVE GREAT SEASON

successful summer the overseers have every indication of it.

Interested in the Work

Mr. Abraham is deeply interested in his work and says that he believes the playground is a better place to discover the real character of a boy and girl than at school where they are constantly under discipline. On the grounds they are free almost to do as they will and here their real character shows up as to how they will mould their future.

The chief supervisor also gave a great deal of credit to the Board of Education who have been deeply interested in this summer business and the co-operation which they have given has meant a lot in the success of the summer.

They often visit the play grounds and often are spectators to the games and the work without the least knowledge of their presence to the supervisors and are always very interested in the welfare of the grounds.

The supervisors for the various grounds for this year were: — J. Abraham, general supervisor and Miss Marjorie McDonald at the Central school grounds. Kenneth Goheen and Miss Musa Cox at the King Edward grounds and William Yelland and Lahring Parsons at the King George grounds.

Mr. Abraham has been six years supervisor and enjoys the work thoroughly, calling all the kiddies by their first names and is loved by all the children in the city.

INFLUENZA TAKES HEAVY DEATH TOLL

275 Natives Have Died in Last Two Weeks in Alberta.

53 AT FORT SIMPSON.

Northmen Say Natives Sit Moaning and Wailing in Their Cabins.

EDMONTON, Aug 17.—(Canadian Press). — Scoring the population along the banks of the MacKenzie River, the influenza epidemic which has been raging in the north for some time has taken a toll of 275 lives among the natives. Within two weeks, according to a report received in Edmonton. As far as is known only one white man had succumbed to the disease. Fifty-three are reported dead at Fort Simpson alone but the total number of deaths may not be known for a month.

The points along the MacKenzie that are reported to have been badly hit are: Fort Resolution, 50 dead; Fort Simpson, 51 Fort Rae 33; Fort Norman 28; Fort Goodhope, 26; and Fort McPherson, 21.

Northmen say that the natives are apathetic when attacked by the disease, sitting moaning and wailing in their camps and cabins, instead of making an effort to fight the sickness. They throw away drugs given them by medical men and missionaries because they do not affect immediate cure and wait patiently, either to die or to recover.

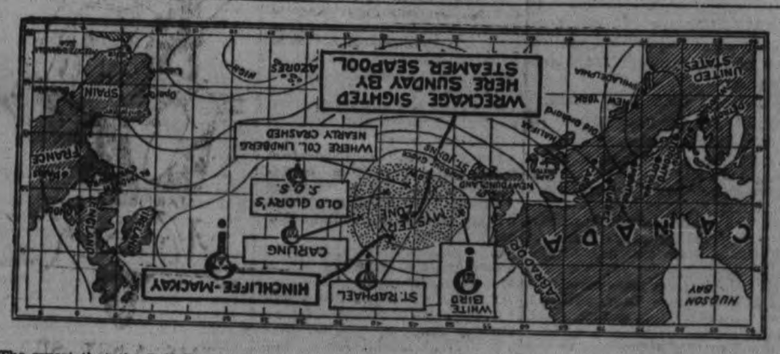
HAVE PLANES IN READINESS

Airplanes will be the positive factor if war breaks out in Arabia following the collapse of the conference between Sir Gilbert Clayton, British Emissary, and Ibn Saud, King of the Hedjaz and Sultan of Nejd. Saud has 200,000 men mobilized and Arabia will fly to arms, diplomats claim. LEFT is shown Sir Edward Ellington, British Air Vice-Marshal, who has prepared four bombing squadrons, one fighting squadron and seven armored trains for use in event of war. On the RIGHT is Sir Gilbert Clayton, who has been in consultation with the Air Vice-Marshal.



The report that the British steamer Seapool on Sunday night sighted the wreckage of an aeroplane 94 miles east of Belle Isle in latitude 51.36 north, longitude 44.41 west, aroused the hope that it may be the Hinchliffe-MacKay plane, Endeavor, which disappeared in the great North Atlantic void last March. If it is the Endeavor, aerial experts believed the bodies of Walter Hinchliffe and Hon. Elsie MacKay might still be found in the wreckage, as parts of the plane observed seemed fairly intact. Report says the rudder was about five feet above water, part of the damaged body and a large portion of the wing were awash. The color was hard to distinguish. The wreckage appeared to have been a long time in the water. The submerged portion seemed of large dimensions. If it is not the Hinchliffe-MacKay plane it may be any of the various other trans-Atlantic planes which have met with tragedy in the "mystery zone" indicated in the above map, including the Nungesser-Coli White Bird, the St. Raphael of Hamilton-Menchin and Princess Lowenstein-Wertheim, the Old Glory and the Sir John Carling. Also shown is the place where the "Lone Eagle" almost met with disaster.

MARATHON DANCE CAN BE BANNED

Toronto Can Pass a Bylaw to Prohibit Such Dances.

EASY PROCEDURE

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 17 (By the Canadian Press).—Toronto has the authority to prohibit dance marathons by the mere passing of a by-law, stated Acting City Solicitor Angus.

Under the Municipal Act, the city is empowered to pass by-laws to regulate health, safety, morality and the welfare of its inhabitants, and Mr. Angus quoted from the clause:

"I should think under this clause we should prohibit the dance marathons," said Mr. Angus. "They are not in the interest of health nor the general welfare of the community.

THE MIRROR OF THE MODE

By Mary Marshall.

The separate skirt of pleated black silk crepe or crepe satin is something that any woman may include in her wardrobe to very good advantage. It should be mounted on a slip top—not simply arranged on a belt at the waistline.

I would also suggest that the slip top to which the black pleated skirt is attached should be made to come up fairly high at the neck and back, and not made straight across the top with shoulder straps. The higher sort of slip top provides protection for the top of the overblouse and prevents the discoloration across the upper part of the back that may be caused when it comes in direct contact with the skin.

So much for the practical points to consider. Up to the minute and decidedly smart is the ensemble made by a combination of the pleated black skirt and a long tunic overblouse made of printed silk in which some black is included. The material for the overblouse may be black and white—or it may combine shades of green with black or red with black. It may be of printed georgette or some one of the substantial printed silks.

To make the most of the wardrobe I would suggest having two or even three figured overblouses to wear with your black skirt. Fine pleating done all the way round on the skirt is attractive but perhaps not so practical as a skirt left plain at the back. If you have rather wide pleats there will be the advantage that these may be put in and pressed in place at home when they lose their original distinctness. However, it is possible to have the fine pleating reset at the professional pleater's for less than the cost of the original pleating.

For mixing bread, cake and pastry, a marble slab from an old-fashioned bureau or washstand, or piece of plate glass, is better than a wooden board.

THE WHATNOT

A Place for Little Bits of Everything of Local Interest

I WONDER how many of us really realize just how much we can accomplish in the way of dressing up our homes without making a great expenditure. Take the matter of curtains. A woman I know just told me of some improvements she had made in her husband's den. It is a very dark room with a window set high in the wall. On account of it being so dark she had left it without a curtain for some time but this did not make the room light enough and it was necessary to have the light burning whenever the den was in use. Curtains were made of a bright chintz and a very full fluffy valance was used as well. The resulting effect was of double value as the room was improved in appearance and the curtains seemed to give an illusion of light as well.

• • •

This same woman told me of her difficulties with drapes fading. She had decided that she must get new ones and discard the old ones as they were badly streaked. A friend suggested the use of one of the 'white' dyes that are so cheap and easy to use with the additional use of the desired color. The result was so satisfactory that she tried it on still other curtains and now she has 'new' dresses on her windows.

• • •

One kitchen I saw had its windows dressed in oilcloth. The window above the sink had always been a problem as the water kept the gingham drapes spotted most of the time. Now with the pretty figured oilcloth in blue and white the kitchen is a joy to its mistress.

• • •

So many houses have a view of the kitchen to greet the visitor at the front door, especially if there are children who leave the door open just when it should be closed. A good idea was seen in a home in our city—curtains being hung in the doorway. This keeps the kitchen screened, as, no matter how often the children run through, the curtains always fall together again.

• • •

A few hints on buying material for windows may save a lot of trouble. Always make allowance for matching the pattern in a pair of curtains. Some material has a decided figure that must correspond at the inside edges. Extra goods should be turned up or a tuck taken where it will not show so that after washing there will be something to let out in case of shrinkage.

• • •

We have been so accustomed to the lighter shades for evening that the tulle frock displayed by a west end girl home from a visit to the States would be rather a shock to us. It is a light navy blue and when we exclaimed over the shade of it we were told that dark navy and light and dark shades of brown were to be had as well.

• • •

I'm sure those of us who like to spend our spare time reading would appreciate the book steps that one Peterborough woman has placed at either end of her sofa. They are decorated in the lacquer finish in green with silvered edges but any desired shade might be used.

• • •

A coolie coat would be most acceptable as a gift to a girl going away to school. It might be made of figured pongee with a plain band of the same material or it would be lovely in a plain material with a Chinese design embroidered on the two fronts. A diagram and instructions for making this garment may be had by simply filling in the coupon on this page and mailing it to 'Marion.' There is no charge for this help.

• • •

A young lady who resides in the north of the city has made a purchase that will be a great comfort to her. A suit of wool which is mothproof is something we all might have, she says, as her s is made by a Canadian firm and is reasonable in price.

• • •

I mentioned the other day that the off shades of white were very popular. Another of these frocks attracted my attention down town. It was a tailored dress with buttons the same shade ranged in fours. A suede belt of a more pronounced beige and a sunburst of side-front pleats completed the chic.

• • •

The above-mentioned dress was worn by a tourist, but to my notion would not be as suitable as that worn by her companion. It had a permanently pleated skirt of Celanese Morocain in a sapphire blue with a jumper of lighter blue Celanese Locknit having appliquees of the Morocain.

• • •

On my way to the office the other morning I dropped in at a friend's and found her getting breakfast for a late rising guest. The alcove table was covered with a runner done in a floral design with a doilie to match. Her choice of color was a natural one for the material, in linen, with the design in green and gay colors for the flowers. The edge was hemstitched but she told me she had seen one done with a filet edging.

• • •

Have you ever taken eggs to scramble on a picnic and found when you went to unpack them that they had already scrambled? The next time you use eggs try breaking the required number into a glass fruit jar, shake in a little pepper and salt, screw on the top and there you are, all ready to put the mixture in the pan.

• • •

A beach costume seen at one of the lakes north of Peterborough consisted of a suit of light blue wool jersey and a coat of dark blue oilcloth lined with toweling. On the right front of the coat was a windmill design done in the toweling and down the left front edge were diamonds of oilcloth. The coat was lined with toweling as well. An oilcloth hat with a perky little bow in front completed the costume.

• • •

Speaking of the beach reminds me of a bathing suit that was new in design to me. It was of wool jersey in shades of brown. Plain and striped jersey in beige, light and dark brown combined in an odd triangular design.

FAVORITE RECIPE

GOOSEBERRY PASTE
(Contributed by Mrs. M. L., Hastings.)

Take some full-grown red gooseberries, just on the turn for ripening, cut them in halves and take out the seeds. Have ready a pint of currant juice, and boil your gooseberries in it until they are tender. Put a pound and a half of double-refined sugar into your pan with as much water as will dissolve it, and boil to a sugar again. Then put all together, and make it scalding hot but do not let it boil. Pour it into your plates or glasses. Then put them into a stove, and turn at times until they are thoroughly dry.

A Tip or Two

Another easy method of separating the yolks from the whites of eggs is to break them into a funnel over a glass or cup; the whites pass through and the yolks remain in the funnel.

GRATED CHEESE

YOUTH WILL BE SERVED.

By Marie Marsh.

"Gosh!" said Mrs. Gleason, pushing her small feet painfully into smaller dancing slippers. "Excuse me, Tom, for saying 'gosh,' but honestly I'd rather scrub floors than to go to that dance."

Tom Gleason looked sympathetically from his post before the chiffonier, where he was struggling with the studs of his evening shirt. "I suppose we've got to go."

"Oh, I suppose so," said the young wife, now carefully brushing the collar of Tom's evening coat as it lay on the bed. "Housework and the twins are nothing to compare with what I have to undergo for that 'younger set.' I promised to chaperon them. Grace Hayes will meet us at the clubhouse and will be back for the night. Your brother, I suppose, will be there and he'll want the other spare room. I thought once we'd pull off a match with them—"

"Them," echoed Tom sneeringly. "They're just like the rest of the younger set. Crazy for excitement—they'll never settle down and have real happiness the way we did. Young people are different nowadays." Tom was all of five years older than his brother James.

So the Gleasons, clad in their best, went to the dance at the country club, leaving the slumbering twins in the custodianship of the maid of all work, who also slumbered in her room.

An hour later Jim Gleason tried the front door of the Gleason suburban home, found it locked and made an unceremonious entrance through a partly open front window. He found a pair of slippers and a smoking jacket of his brother's in a downstairs hall closet. A foraging expedition in the kitchen resulted in some crullers of his sister-in-law's baking and some apples. He filled his pipe with his brother's tobacco, poked the embers, threw on a fresh log and sat down to enjoy all the comforts of a home that was not his own.

At 10.30 he heard a knock at the front door and opened it to see Grace Hayes, in day clothes with an overnight bag in her hand.

"I thought you'd be at the dance," she said.

No," drawled James. 'I can't stand the pace. I said I might come, this and a wife, believe me I'd stay at home! But then we're different."

Grace looked wistfully into the fire. "I know," she said. "Girls are different now. They are more serious."

There was a long and rather painful pause. Then James Gleason bent toward Grace, who was sitting up straight in her chair. "Grace, won't you marry me?"

"No," Grace said, still very wistful. "I think I would marry you if I married any one, Jimmy, but I'm afraid of marriage. It seems to change people so. I'm afraid that once I was married I'd be like your sister-in-law. And you might change about and be as mad about dancing and excitement as Tom."

Then one or two of the twins walled out from the floor above, and Grace, with James in her wake, fled to the nursery. They were busy executing requests for drinks of water when Tom and Mabel let themselves in the front door below.

"Well, we're back again to home, sweet home," said Tom.

James and Grace went noiselessly down to the landing where they could see them. Then Tom leaned toward Mabel and took her hand in his. "There's nothing like it, is there, little wife?" he said. "More than ever I can't understand the point of view of the younger set. There's my brother, Jim, could marry any day he wanted to."

"And there's Grace," continued Mabel. "She's independent herself. She wouldn't have to wait for a man to support her."

"I guess they are different. They don't know the meaning of home. Here we went over to that dance on purpose to get them together, and they didn't even come. I suppose something more exciting kept them both."

There would have been more of this but it was only for an excuse to spend the night here. How these married people want to gad about as they do I can't see. With a home like this—have a cruller and an apple," he interrupted, pointing to the outlay on the table. "Gee, if I had a little house like this and a wife, believe me I'd stay at home! But then we're different."

Grace looked wistfully into the fire. "I know," she said. "Girls are different now. They are more serious."

There was a long and rather painful pause. Then James Gleason bent toward Grace, who was sitting up straight in her chair. "Grace, won't you marry me?"

"No," Grace said, still very wistful. "I think I would marry you if I married any one, Jimmy, but I'm afraid of marriage. It seems to change people so. I'm afraid that once I was married I'd be like your sister-in-law. And you might change about and be as mad about dancing and excitement as Tom."

Then one or two of the twins walled out from the floor above, and Grace, with James in her wake, fled to the nursery. They were busy executing requests for drinks of water when Tom and Mabel let themselves in the front door below.

"Well, we're back again to home, sweet home," said Tom.

James and Grace went noiselessly down to the landing where they could see them. Then Tom leaned toward Mabel and took her hand in his. "There's nothing like it, is there, little wife?" he said. "More than ever I can't understand the point of view of the younger set. There's my brother, Jim, could marry any day he wanted to."

"And there's Grace," continued Mabel. "She's independent herself. She wouldn't have to wait for a man to support her."

"I guess they are different. They don't know the meaning of home. Here we went over to that dance on purpose to get them together, and they didn't even come. I suppose something more exciting kept them both."

There would have been more of this sort of thing between the Gleasons if Grace had not missed a step on the stairway. She gave a very little scream and clung to Jim. The Gleasons hurried to the hall and snapped on the electric light that showed Grace being upheld with unnecessary tenacity by Jim.

"We didn't mean to overhear you," said Grace.

"We heard all we needed," Jim laughed. "We heard enough to know that you and Tom are home folks after all. Somehow I think that what we heard is going to make a big difference in our lives."

Perhaps they whispered something or perhaps they said it aloud or perhaps they understood each other just by an exchange of glances. No one of the quartet just remembered how it happened later. But there on the landing Grace told Mabel and Jim told his brother Tom, and there were general congratulations and a few tears, and Tom and Jim shook hands and Mabel kissed Grace and then kissed her husband and kissed Jim, and it was not until later that they remembered that ten minutes earlier Grace had quite definitely told Jim that she had no intention of marrying anyone.

MARION'S MAIL.

"Dear Marion:

Are the helps that you offer, patterns, or are they just sewing instructions? I can cut from pattern, but I don't know how to follow printed instructions without a pattern.

Mary."

The helps are not patterns, Mary, as I pointed out a few days ago, but they give clear and simple instructions for cutting the pattern. The Coolie Coat, for instance, which is offered this week, has a picture of the coat completed, and a diagram giving measurements for cutting the material and how to lay it out. By following this diagram and the printed instructions you can easily cut a paper pattern from which to make the coat.

"Dear Marion:

I am told that all married men go out with other women. I cannot believe it. Marion, is it true? I am 18, and engaged. Is it too young? I don't intend to marry until I'm 20, and never, if it is true that all married men go out with other women. Would you advise me to go with a man four months younger than I? When a girl goes to church with a man, should she put money in the collection?

Yours sincerely,
Bubbles."

You remind me, Bubbles, of the United States tourist just arrived in Scotland who was writing home. While he was thus employed the hotel chambermaid came in to bring towels, and he promptly wrote, "This is a queer country. The housemaids have red hair."

It may be true that a larger proportion of married men go out with other women than there are Scotch chambermaids with red hair. But I will stake my reputation as an honest adviser that all married men do not go out with other women. Observing some of their wives, I have often marvelled at the fidelity of men. But there it is. Some are by nature faithful; others are as hard to hold as quicksilver. The same is true of women; only women as a whole are more faithful than men. There are two reasons; they are more generally content with home, children, and the duties and services of married life than me are. And they have fewer temptations. It is all according to the nature and type of the individual.

Eighteen is pretty young to be engaged, but not necessarily too young. That, too, depends upon you. Some girls at that age are both settled in taste and lucky enough to find what they want. Others in their teens are too undeveloped to know their own minds and hearts.

Four months' difference in the ages of yourself and your sweetheart could make no possible difference.

The church collection plate represents the church's support and charity work which is supposed to be contributed to by all members who can afford it. If you wish to give what you can, it has nothing whatever to do with your boy friend's contribution.

"Dear Marion:

I went out to a dance at ——— the other night, and a strange young man asked me for a dance. Is that correct? Should I have danced with him?

Witless."

It all depends. These public dances are now very informal. Probably it would be better to have a mutual acquaintance introduce you, just to be correct.

Marion

RAYBESTOS WIN E. P. L. CHAMPIONSHIP

VICTORS TAKE EARLY LEAD TO WIN 4-2 COUNT

Armstrong Holds Visitors to Six Well Scattered Hits.

PLAY GOOD BALL

Have Won Four Out of Five Games Played in Four Days.

Leg-weary and hard-pressed by the dangerous Hastings team, Raybestos were given good pitching by Art Armstrong last night, and finished in front by 4 to 2 to win the East Peterborough League championship. The victory gave the Rays four wins out of five games played in four days, a mighty fine showing for the boys who will carry on in the O.B.A.A. Intermediate race. Armstrong held the visitors to six scattered hits, and acting under instructions kept the ball away from Cowell, the heavy hitting catcher for Hastings, a bit of strategy that probably stopped some runs. As the Rays scored three runs in the first they had something in reserve throughout the contest.

Ibey, who hurled against the Rays on Wednesday, returned to the mound but he got away to a bad start when the etnire batting order faced him. He recovered, however, and held the locals to a hit and a run for the remainder of the contest.

The entire Hastings team played far above the form displayed in their games here with Lockworks and were always dangerous. Hillier did some nice work for the Rays, taking six chances without a miss, and starting a pretty double play in the seventh.

Hastings got a run in the first on Scully's fumble of Baker's grounder, a stolen base and Harrington's single to left. Six batsmen faced Armstrong, two of them being fanned.

Rays scored three. Hillier's drive went through Stevenson, and Rogers and Scully hit to fill the bases. Barry was dead-headed to force in Hillier. Corrin tapped to the pitcher, who threw Rogers out at the plate. Moore's long single scored Scully and Barry. Corrin was thrown out at third, O. Nicholls singled and Armstrong struck out.

In the second, C. Zufelt walked and was forced at second. Scriver lined out to C. Zufelt, Baker got a neat single across second and Scully threw out Stevenson.

Hillier flew out to A. Zufelt, Hillier was tossed out by Ibey and Harrington took Scully's fly.

Harrington opened the third by popping to Barry. Cowell was passed. Forbes grounded to the pitcher, who also took a fly from Ibey.

The fourth produced nothing for the visitors, but Rays tallied with two gone. Hillier was safe when Zufelt dropped a throw. Rogers was passed and Scully singled into left to score Hillier.

The visitors put two runners on in the fifth with one gone, only to succumb to the fast fielding of the Rays, and the homesters were in turn held in check after getting a runner to third with two out.

The sixth brought Hillier into prominence with two neat fielding efforts to get two runners. Scriver fanned to make it three in a row.

Ibey fanned Armstrong, threw out Hillier and struck out Rogers to draw a hand from the crowd.

The seventh was exciting. Baker singled into right and Stevenson grounded to Hillier for a double killing that meant a lot to the Rays, as Harrington came through with a double. He stole second and Cowell walked, his fourth pass of the game. Forbert singled to score Harrington. Ibey had an opportunity to gain fame right here, but after a long battle in the semi-darkness Armstrong got the third strike through.

Junior Champions Defeated By Kingston 7 - 6

FAST FEMININE FRY

Train 'em young, is the recognized stuff nowadays, and in no sport is this more important than swimming. The Olympic games at Amsterdam have, moreover, again proven the superiority of youth in events calling for speed; therefore it is now, almost among the kindergarten kiddies that we should be looking for material which will pilot Canada to victory when the next Olympiad rolls around.

Conspicuous among the younger generation of swimmers is little Joyce Tedman, the 13 year pride of Branksome Hall, a Toronto ladies' college. Joyce, having won everything in sight at school was taken into the famous Parkdale Dolphinets, and by virtue of her 31 1-5 seconds time for the 50 yard event, was placed on the senior relay team. Seeking new laurels she competed in a Montreal meet and carried off the 50 and 100 yard events, and on the way home startled spectators at an exhibition meet in Ottawa in which she participated.

At present Joyce is holidaying at Bowen Island, B.C., and practising faithfully, with an eye on records she will break this coming winter. Watch her a few years hence. She will be at the top of the list.

YANKS RETAIN LEAGUE LEAD

Defeat Sox 11-1 While Athletics Win From Detroit.

CLEVELAND WINS 10-8

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—(Canadian Press).—Showing some of their early season skill, the Yankees easily defeated the White Sox by 11 to 1 yesterday in the last game the Chicago team will play in New York this season. Gehrig and Meusel claimed the spotlight by the vigor with which they brandished their war clubs.

Lou hit three doubles, drove in five runs and scored three. Lanky Robert pounded out a double and two singles to send four Yankees home. Gehrig's feat placed him ahead of Ruth in runs batted in.

The victory failed to change the standing of the clubs, as the Athletics hammered Detroit and remained just four and one half games behind the champions.

Cleveland overcame a 7 to 2 Boston lead to win, 10 to 8. A four run rally in the ninth finally turned the tables on the Red Sox. An error by Regan on J. Sewell's grounder with two out in the ninth let the visitors score the tying run. Four hits off Ruffing, who pitched one inning and assumed the burden of defeat, let in the others. Morgan drove a home run over the left field wall off Danny MacFayden's delivery in the eighth.

The Athletics overwhelmed the Detroit Tigers by a score of 19 to and earned an even split for the series but did not gain on the New York Yanks.

The Athletics put yesterday's fray on ice with a nine run attack in the second inning that routed Vic Sorrell. Haskell Billings, who went to Sorrell's relief was walloped for a total of eight runs in the next three innings.

Jimmy Fox, who hit two doubles in the second inning, also hit a home run and figured in the scoring of seven tallies. Al Simmons, Hargrave and McManus also hit for the circuit.

A first inning assault on Gaston started the Browns on their way to a victory in the third game of the series with the Senators at Washington, 7 to 2.

The Senators used four pitchers. Curly Ogden pitched well behind the lead his teammates gave him. The game was called in the eighth because of rain which fell during most of the contest.

SOFTBALL TEAMS TO REPLAY GAMES

Menie-Glen Ross Fixture Called on Account of Darkness.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BURNBRAE, August 17.—With Menie leading 8 to 4 midway through the seventh inning, Tuesday night's game with Glen Ross was called on account of darkness. As no satisfactory agreement could be reached the game will be replayed. Menie have asked Glen Ross to meet them for the final game on the local grounds on Friday evening and failing this will claim the cup by default. It is likely that Glen Ross will play the game as the two teams are on the best of terms and any trouble will be caused by outsiders. Local fans are looking forward with interest to Friday's game as the one on Tuseday evening was a rare battle while it lasted.

ROYALS TIED WITH VISITORS FOR HONORS

Two Errors of Judgment Proved Costly for the Homesters.

HURLERS' DUEL

Will Meet in Third Game at Belleville Next Week.

Though they out-hit their opposition ten to six, and blanked them in seven of the nine innings, Royals, Junior City Champions, were guilty of two very serious mistakes in dealing with the hard-fighting Kingston Victorias at James Stevenson Park on Thursday. The first error in judgment was in leaving Kitchen on the mound when he allowed the stations to become cluttered with runners in the sixth and seventh frames resulting in seven runs after the truly fine performance of blanking his opposition in the first five innings. The other factor in the 7-6 defeat sustained by the local outfit, was in having Doug. Hatton attempt to stretch a double into a triple after he had driven in a runner in the seventh. He was caught cold, as a result of which the next batter's single was wasted when it would have resulted in Hatton's tieing run.

Be that as it may, the lads who represent the best Junior talent in the Limestone city went home with the victory, re-established on even terms with the team that defeated them in their home town last Saturday and which they will meet in a third game to settle the second round argument, some time next week, in Belleville.

Pitchers Prominent

Thursday's game provided plenty of opportunity for the rival pitchers, the Royals sending their ace of the city league series, Kitchen, to the hill-top, while opposing him was the southpaw Donnelly, who presented the local artists with their first real diet of fork hand twirling of the season. Both heavers became real factors in the argument early, dividing the honors about evenly for the greater part of the struggle. In the first two sessions they held all sluggers at bay, and Kitchen kept up the good work for the first five while Donnelly loosened up enough to allow the Petes two in the third, two in the fourth and one in the fifth. After that, there was no more tallying on him until the nineth when he was touched for three hits, one a double by Hatton, which resulted in a single tally.

A tripie by L. Hollingsworth in the fourth and a double by Gordon in the third were the only extra base drives of the game.

Holmes, who pitched the Royals to victory last Saturday had another triumphant audience with the Vics. yesterday. In the sixth, Kitchen suddenly lost his errectiveness, and two walks, a hit and two errors gave the visitors their first four counters of the game. Then came the seventh and more loaded bases so that the Kingston outfit was leading by 7-5 with two out and a runner on, when Holmes was rushed in. He struck the next batter out and in the eighth whiffed two more while forcing the third to hit out. He registered his fourth strikeout in the nifth man to face him (the first batter in the ninth) and after walking the next batter, had the pleasure of seeing his teammates cut the runner off at third. The last batter had attempted a sacrifice and was caught along with he of the free ticket.

It was no disgrace to Kitchen, he had worked well, and to Holmes should have gone credit for another victory.

The rival teams provided plenty of variety, each having four errors, so scattered as to make things uncertain, while in hitting, the homesters had ten hits to their rivals' six. Six more Royal batters faced Donnely than looked over the slants of Kitchen and Holmes. The game by innings:—

First Inning

Kingston went to bat first and threatened after Vince had been thrown out, Kitchen to Gordon, and Quinn had whiffed. Gibson had patience to watch four balls go past and was advanced by Pennock's drive to right field. But L. Hollingsworth made a beautiful return to catch Gibson going into third.—0 runs, 1 hit, 0 errors.

Royals, running into southpaw twirling, were held safe in their half, Hope being thrown out at first by Connolly; H. Hollingsworth popping one to Quinn and Beavis fading by the strike-out route.—0 runs, 0 hits, 0 errors.

Second Inning

Kitchen hung up two more strikeouts when he whiffed Connolly, caused Amey to hit to Red Hollingsworth who made an easy throw to Gordon, and drifted the necessary three past Woods.—0 runs, 0 hits, 0 errors.

L. Hollingsworth singled through short for the Petes' first hit of the game after Hatton, first man up, had struck out. However, as he was taking a lead off first, Amey snapped it to Pennock at first, who, in turn threw to Quinn at second, they closed in on Hollingsworth. Quinn threw to Pennock, the first baseman shot it to Gibson, who, coming over from short, made the put-out. Jones struck out to end the session.—0 runs, 1 hit, 0 errors.

Third Inning

Upton hit to Gordon for an easy out. Donnelly singled, his drive hitting the whitewash of the foul line just back of third. Vince singled through short but was caught at second when Beavis made a quick throw from the outfield. Hope made a nice catch of Quinn's long fly to left field.—0 runs, 2 hits, 0 errors.

The Royals looked good when Hartley walked, to be driven in with the first counter of the game when Gordon crashed a long one to centre field for a double. Kitchen hit to right and was caught stealing second. Hope was safe on Woods' error and Gordon scored. H. Hollingsworth flied out to Vince and Beavis was thrown out, Donnelly to Pennock.—2 runs, 2 hits, 1 error.

Fourth Inning

Gibson went out, Kitchen to Gordon. Pennock whiffed and Red. Hollingsworth made a nice pick-up to throw Connolly out at first.—0 runs, 0 hits, 0 errors.

Hatton popped a fly to Pennock, but L. Hollingsworth came through with the nicest hit of the game, a long three bagger to right field. Jones drew a free picket and Hartley sent up a sacrifice fly which Woods dropped, Hollingsworth and Jones crossing the plate. Gordon flied out to Connolly. Kitchen hit through second and was forced at second when Gibson, taking Hope's grounder on the run, chose to touch second base for the third out.—2 runs, 2 hits, 1 error.

Fifth Inning

Amey was thrown out at first by Kitchen, and Zimmerman, replacing Woods, struck out. Upton did scarcely better, his drive to Hartley being nicely handled for a put-out at first.—0 runs, 0 hits, 0 errors.

H. Hollingsworth popped one to Quinn and Beavis got a life when Connolly made a poor throw to first. Hatton went out, Quinn to Pennock and L. Hollingsworth scattered a hit to the first baseman with whom he collided and who was hurt. He stayed in the game, however. Beavis was in on the play and lucky it was for the best Jones could contribute was a long fly to Zimmerman in left field.—1 run, 1 hit, 1 error.

Sixth Inning

The ballgon went up to an immense altitude in the sixth with no less than eight of the Vics. taking a turn with the willow, of which four of them eventually scored. Donnelly started the parade by drawing a free ticket and Vince followed him by the same token. Then Quinn landed on a nice one through third and the two runners scored. Gibson provied a breathing spell by taking a long time to strike out but Jones threw wide to first in an effort to catch Pennock and H. Hollingsworth kept him company with a fumble of Connolly's hit, Pennock scoring. Amey went out, Kitchen to Gordon and Zimmerman hit to Hartley who got it across fast for the put out.—4 runs, 1 hit, 3 errors.

Hartley flied out to Connolly, Gordon was thrown out at first by Gibson. Kitchen's single was wasted when Hope hit to C. Connolly, to be thrown out—0 runs, 1 hit, 0 errors.

Seventh Inning

Even that stormy sixth failed to convince the Royals' management and he allowed Kitchen a chance for redemption. Upton, first up, singled to left field. Donnelly considerately struck out and Vince' long fly to right field was neatly collected by L. Hollingsworth. Upton came in and Quinn and Gibson did the wait act getting free tickets. Kitchen was relieved when the next batter sent a fly to left field which Hope couldn't field very handily, the two runners scoring and the batter ending up on second. In came Holmes, who gladdened the hearts of the still hopeful fans by striking out Connoll.—3 runs, 1 hit, 1 error.

H. Hollingsworth flied out to Quinn. Beavis walked. Hatton hit toward Pennock, who, running up the line to meet the ball, scopped it and tagged the runner. L. Hollingsworth was thrown out, Gibson to Pennock.0 runs, 0 hits 0 errors.

Eighth Inning

Holmes continued his good pitching in the eighth, letting the visitors down in quick fashion. Amey hit to Jones and was out, and Zimmerman and Upton struck out.—0 hits, 0 runs, 0 errors.

Jones filed out to Gibson, Hartley struck out and Gordon got a life on Amey's poor throw to first. He walked but Hope was thrown out by the pitcher.0 runs, 0 hits, 1 error.

Ninth Inning

Donnelly struck out. Vince walked and when Quinn tried to sacrifice, he was thrown out at first and Gordon, working fast, snapped it over to Jones who tagged Vince.—0 runs, 0 hits, 0 errors.

H. Hollingsworth singled to right field and Beavis struck out. Hatton doubled to deep centre, driving in Hollingsworth but he tried to stretch the double and was put out by Gibson, assisted by Connolly. L. Hollingsworth singled to left field and Jones flied to Gibson.—1 run, 3 hits, 0 errors.

Ross Somerville In Semi-Finals

SUMMERLEA CLUB, Montreal, Aug. 17.—(Canadian Press)—In one of the most bitterly fought games ever contested in the Canadian Amateur championships, Ross Somerville, London, Ont., yesterday beat Carroll Stuart, Ottawa, on the 38th and advanced to semi-final bracket in which he is drawn against F. J. Hoblitzel, Toronto. Jimmy Mountifield, Edmonton, and W. K. Lanman, of Columbus, Ohio are in the upper semi-final.

Somerville seldom has been tested as he was by the energetic Stuart yesterday. It was nip and tuck with Somerville going one down at the 35th squaring the match at the 36th and winning at the 38th after a dogged fight. Both were cheered loudly by a wildly excited gallery.

VIEWS ON SPORTS

Harrison and Lockworks are slated to clash to-night in softball fixture at Confederation Park.

The Raybestos set a record for themselves when they defeated Hastings 4-2 in the second game of the home and home series last night to win the East Peterborough league championship, having won four out of five games played in four days this week.

The victors line-up on the whole were all tuckered out after their strenuous program but Armstrong held the visitors to six well scattered hits that enabled the Brakeliners to cop the victory. Scoring three runs in the first they had something to fall back upon in case of a Hastings rally.

TECO LOSE TO C. G. E.

USE THREE HURLERS

Tired and helpless the Teco crew turned in a ragged game of ball last night at Confederation Park, when they lost to the C.G.E. to the merry tune of 19—0. Scates started on the mound for the Eaton company but he had little control and in the third frame he had a bad spell, when nine of the Electrics crossed the plate. Edgar replaced him for one inning and then Miller hurled the next frame while Edgar returned to finish the game. The three pitchers and the shift in the lineups did not make much difference.

The game was a listless affair and also scoreless as far as the Storemen were concerned. Out of the running and with a number of their best players missing they showed the effects of the hard week they had turned in, and many of the players had not recovered from the long trip and game to Toronto the day before where they played the head office team of the T. Eaton Company, Limited.

Not a Teco man passed the second sack and only six men reached first, with only two passing to second. The third was a merry innings for the C.G.E., to the despair of the Teco crew when twelve men faced Scates, scoring twelve runs, while Jones turned in two counters in one innings the first time this has been done this year. In this innings the factory crew were becoming a little careless and Reggie Dyer, after hitting a perfect double threw away a chance to score when he tried to steal third, and there were many who stole bases on rare chances and got away with it as Teco seemed to have lost heart.

Freddie Jones turned in a perfect card for the C.G.E., not an error and scored three times out of four trips to the plate. In the four trips up he bunted safely twice, knocked a single, and was walked.

Crary also was a noted player, having three put-outs and four assists with no errors. Richmond pitched lovely ball and had a stonewall defence behind him, the whole team only making three errors.

Reggie Dyer, behind the plate, knicked off all the foul tips, and pepped the play up for quite a while. Saunders, in left field, played a good game, in spite of a couple of sore hands that bothered him quite a bit during the game.

Max Board was in there all the time for Teco, while "Whitie," behind the plate, turned in a good game with the exception of missing the few foul tips that he could not seem to hold on to.

After the disastrous third innings there was quite a shift in the Teco line-up—Edgar moved from third to the mound, Maher mover from centre garden to shortstop where a played a lovely game; Saunders took centre field, and Scates moved into left field. The next innings, Miller and Edgar interchanged and changed back again after the next frame. Even this shift did not make the expected difference in the morale of the Eaton and Company representatives.

The teams lined up as follows:

C.G.E.—Jones, lf; Calladine, ss; Routley, 2b; Crary, 3b; Powell, rf; Wilson, lf; M. Wilson, 1b; Dyer, c; Richmond, p; Darling, p.

Teco.—White, c; Board, 1b; Maher, cf; Edgar, 3b, p, ss; Miller, 3b, p; Sexsmith, 2b; Scates, p, lf; Saunders, cf, lf; Lynch, rf.

FIRST OF FINALS GOES TO CLERKS

Outlaws Lose First Game of Town League Finals By Two Runs.

(Staff Correspondence).

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 17.—It was not necessary for the Clerks to take their last turn at bat last night. When the seventh inning arrived they held the Outlaws to only one hit and no runs, and the two-run lead they had already established was sufficient for them. The game throughout was the best brand of soft ball that has been played this season here. There was a feeling among the fans that the Clerks might be a little ragged on account of not having played for so long, but there was no sign of this except in the third innings, when they blew up and allowed the Outlaws to bring in three runs. This was the only innings that the Outlaw team scored. The Clerks' score was made up of two in the first, one in the second and two more in the fifth.

In the first innings, Maybee bunted and got to second when Sarginson hit a single. But the team did not score. The Clerks started right out to hit Maybee as soon as they came to bat. But after the second frame their luck was not so good. In the second, Huck McArthur drove a homer to left field and won the cheers of the crowd and the applause of the motor horns. Denike went out on a foul along the third base line. In the third, the Clerks went to pieces, and while they were pegging wild, the Outlaws were piling up three runs. Haig tied the score for the Outlaws and none of the Clerks managed to get to first.

In the fourth, the three Outlaws that batted were caught out on flies, one in the outfield and the others outfield hits. Haig tried to get to second but had a narrow squeak and had to return to first. He slid and removed some of the "bark" from his elbow. The Clerks only got one hit. The Outlaws did not hit at all in the fifth, while three of the Clerks managed to connect, and Bernard Blute's run put the Clerks in the lead. In the sixth, Haig was the only Outlaw to hit and he was left on third base when the side was retired. In the seventh, Horkins hit a three-bagger, but did not manage to get in. The Clerks did not take their last turn at bat.

The record crowd last night was ample evidence of the popularity of softball here, and if the sale of tickets for the Monday night game can be taken as an indication, there will be a still larger crowd in attendance that night.

The teams:

Outlaws—D. Maybee, p; H. Lambert, c; T. B. Horkins, 1b; F. Ingram, 2b; C. Haig, 3b; E. Bush, ss; B. Ibey, cf; O. Sarginson, rf; R. Johnston, lf; J. McAvoy (2b), sub.

Clerks—B. Blute, p; H. McArthur, c; H. Denike, 1b; D. Runions, 2b; J. Gay, 3b; M. Cooke, ss; L. Blake, cf; M. Wager, rf; T. Blute, lf.

TRY MAGNESIA FOR INDIGESTION

People who suffer from indigestion usually have tried pepsin, charcoal, drugs and various digestive aids and got little more than slight temporary relief—sometimes not even that.

But before giving up to chronic dyspepsia just try the effect of a little Bisurated Magnesia—not the ordinary commercial carbonate, citrate or milk, but pure Bisurated Magnesia which you can obtain from practically any druggist in either powder or tablet form.

Take a teaspoonful of the powder or four tablets with a little water after your next meal, and see what a difference this makes. It will instantly neutralize the dangerous, harmful acid in the stomach which now causes your food to ferment, and sour, making gas, wind, flatulence, heartburn and that bloated or heavy, lumpy feeling that seems to follow after everything you eat. You can enjoy your meals without a fear of indigestion.

"Bob" Pearce of the Sydney Rowing Club of Australia, won the Olympic single sculls championship by defeating Kenneth Myers, Philadelphia locomotive fireman, by five lengths. Pearce's time was 7 minutes, 11 seconds, against 7 minutes, 20 1-8 seconds made by Myers. The Australian appeared to be more exhausted than Myers at the finish, but recovered quickly.

DRUNKEN DRIVERS MUST BE JAILED

Attorney General Says They Must Not Get Off With Reckless Driving.

TORONTO, August 17.—Any person in this province found driving a motor car while intoxicated must be charged with that offence, for which the penalty is a jail term, and not with reckless driving, under which a fine may be imposed. The attitude of the Attorney-General's Department is that there can be no laxity for drunken drivers. There is no doubt that unpopularity of the Ontario Temperance Act militated against strict enforcement of the law with respect to the intoxicated motorist, but even that circumstance can no longer be invoked. Public opinion, strongly in support of the Liquor oControl Act, is reckoned by the department as equally behind the curbing of drivers disposed to mix alcohol with gasoline. Indeed, this is definitely indicated by records of the department. Although the Criminal Code amendment providing jail penalty dates from 1921, it is estimated that when the present Government came into office, about 70 per cent. of such cases were prosecuted under the head of reckless driving, whereas at the present time, 70 per cent. of the total come to court as alleged infraction of the Crimianl Code, and are dealt with accordingly.

The matter has become increasingly important, of course, with development of motor traffic, which has increased about four times over since the amendment to the Code was made in 1921. The amendment was passed at Ottawa, on application of the Attorney-General of Ontario, providing that anyone driving a car while intoxicated, would be subject to a jail penalty without option of a fine. The minimum penalty is seven days for the first offence and the maximum 30 days; for the second offence, not less than one month and not exceeding three months; for subsequent offences not less than three months and not exceeding one year.

Col. Price feels that any laxity with respect to intoxicated drivers might easily lead to serious results, and consequently is standing behind the officials throughout the province in enforcement of the law, fairly but relentlessly.

"It apparently was felt, at the time of the amendment in 1921," the Attorney-General points out in a statement issued yesterday, "that the fines which were being registered for reckless driving and prosecutions for criminal negligence and manslaughter were not sufficient to cope with the increasing accidents caused by drunken drivers. This was exceptionally good legislation, and if it had been availed of to the fullest extent would have had a very marked effect. Unfortunately, the general impression of the public was against the Ontario Temperance Act; they felt that this was only part of the enforcement of that Act; and in consequence there was a general atmosphere in the whole province against repressive measures. The police officers and magistrates found it increasingly difficult to have informations laid under the Criminal Code.

"Since the coming into force of the Liquor Control Act, the police throughout the province have been laying charges under the Criminal Code. Public opinion has responded very much better to the enforcement of jail sentences for drunken drivers than it did under the Ontario Temperance Act. It has taken, however, some considerable time to educate the public that this is a necessity, that it is not a repressive measure and that it should have unanimous public support.

Jail Sentence Obligatory.

"Penalties against drunken drivers, making it obligatory to have a jail sentence, is not a new type of legislation. If a post office employe steals letters, or takes money out of them, even although it may be a very small amount, the minimum sentence is three years. It was found by experience that it was essential to pass such laws to protect the public. This law giving jail sentences to drunken drivers, without any option of a fine, is for the protection of the general public, owing to the largely increased influx of foreign cars.

"It is absolutely essential that this law ben enforced every time it is law be enforced every time it is perly enforced, police officers should exercise very great care in making arrests; they must be certain in their minds that a man is intoxicated and unable to control his car and is becoming a nuisance on the public highway. If they have made sure of these points, then when the case comes before the magistrate he should have no difficulty in making a conviction. In order, however, to carry public confidence, this law, which is a drastic one must be enforced fairly but relentlessly.

Want Exceptions Made.

"When I was Provincial Treasurer, I found that most people were agreed on economy—that is, economy in the abstract—but when it touched any particular phase of their own business, where they were benefitting by Government expenditure, or wanted grants for the municipality, then they insisted on these being an exception, and deputations came to see the Government to make sure that the money was spent. In other words, they were prepared to see everyone else ox gored but their own. In some respects public attitude on giving jail sentences on drunken drivers is the same; they are prepared to see everyone else go to jail but themselves or their friends; they seem to think that when it comes their turn there should be an exception. This makes it very difficult for police officers, magistrates and others whose duty it is to enforce the law without fear or favor.

"Knowing all the circumstances, and the pressure which exists to keep out of jail an otherwise respectable citizen who has made a mistake, I think the administration of justice generally is to be congratulated. A point, however, has been reached when the whole administration of justice, whether it is in the hands of the Crown officers, must be steeled against any laxity for drunken drivers. I do not want this to be interpreted as an admission that there are more to-day in proportion to the number of cars driven, and the population, than we had in 1921 or 1923, but whatever the merits of that view it is quite certain that there is a duty cast on those who are protecting the public to see that this very salutary piece of legislation is properly enforced. In this they will have the full support of the Attorney-General's Department."

JOHNSON SIGNS RECORD CONTRACT

Canadian Tenor Will Sing For Victor Company of Canada.

The Victor Talking Machine Company of Canada, Limited, announces to-day from its head office at Montreal, that Edward Johnson, Canada's greatest tenor, has contracted to record, specially for Canadian music-lovers, a series of selections from his operatic and concert repertory.

The announcement is of great importance to music-lovers as now for the first time all of those who are far from the musical centres will be able to enjoy the superb warm lyric voice of Edward Johnson.

The career of Edward Johnson, the brilliant tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Company, and who has been received with wild acclaim with that organization, is one of romantic interest. Edward Johnson was born in Guelph, Ontario, and when still in knickers he became a chorister in the city's Episcopal Church.

Mr. Johnson then sang in college, and by this time came to the realization that he could sing, and that he would amount to something in the musical world if he could find it possible to cultivate his voice. And so young Johnson came to New York to study and at the same time to earn money. Because of the beauty of his natural lyric voice, a type of voice which is difficult to find, he soon obtained a position in a noted choir, and received real money for his singing.

More money was necessary for advanced study and he finally obtained a leading role in a light opera which was setting Broadway aflame. Having a definite goal in mind, and being a sensible young man, young Johnson conserved his funds, and when he thought he had enough he departed for Florence, Italy, and began studying under the famous Lombardo.

Mr. Johnson spent several years of intense study with Lombardo, and by earnest and diligent plodding, always retaining his definite goal in mind, he soon made his debut in the Verdi Theatre, Padona, Italy, creating a tremendous success which brought him a much coveted engagement with the La Scala Opera Company in Milan.

Since then Mr. Johnson has sung in every famous opera house in the world, and has appeared as soloist with the greatest of symphony orchestras, always being received with sincere enthusiasm. Last year he created a tremendous hit in "The King's Henchman" at the Metropolitan Opera House. As a concert singer he is supreme. To-day he stands as Canada's greatest tenor.

It is also interesting to note that Johnson has not forgotten his native land and birthplace. Only recently, Edward Johnson offered to donate $25,000 to the city of Guelph for the study and appreciation of music in the public schools of that city. The training he proposed would include voice culture, instrumental and orchestra music. To fully accomplish his object, this world famous Canadian tenor suggested the creation of a department of music in the schools of Guelph.

"EASY PICKINGS" MYSTIFIES TOWN.

Anna Q. Nilsson Featured in Thrilling Picture Play at Regent.

Local film patrons who want to be thrilled should see the entertainment presented at the Regent Theatre.

The picture, First National's "Easy Pickings," with Anna Q. Nilsson in the featured role, is a spooky mystery that has more varied and assorted thrills per reel of film than anything it has been our pleasure to review for these many years!

"Easy Pickings" is a picture with a crook conspiracy plot and a nerve-tingling mystery treatment. William A. Burton and Paul Cruger wrote it especially for the screen while developing their stage play of the same title.

Kenneth Harlan heads the supporting cast, and between Miss Nilsson and himself a really appealing love story is woven. The thrills are contributed partly by the two "villains," Philo McCollough and Jerry Miley, and by Charles Sellon, in an important character role. Billy Bevan, two-reel comedy star; Zack Williams and Gertrude Howard, colored comedians, enhance the spectator's hysterical state by introducing laughs between thrills.

The plot is well constructed, and after so many surprises have occurred that no more are expected, the most unexpected one comes at the end! However, we will not spoil it by a single disclosure—just see it yourself. If you're not pleased and thrilled, you're hard to reach.

AGED WOMAN IS INJURED

Watford Lady Falls on Her Head as Hay-Mow Breaks.

OCTOGENARIAN

WATFORD, August 17.—When preparing the hay mow for the season's crop Miss Ellen Laws, 82-year-old scotch-Canadian woman farmer, who lives on the second line of Warwick township, four miles west of Watford, fell as the mow gave way, lighting on her head. She was badly shaken up and bruised but was assisted to the house by her 86-year-old sister, Miss Jeanie and is resting comfortably.

The two octogenarians were born in Glasgow, but have lived on the same 100 acres farm for three quarters of a century, not only managing it but actually doing most of the farm work themselves. Miss Ellen, herself built the cow shed, tool house and dairy which connects with the main barns and they are more convenient than most man-planned buildings.

Her brother, William, who is over 80 and lives on Simcoe street, Watford says "Ellen now is altogether too ambitious; there's naw need for it. Just the other day she sent in for 100 feet of wire to mend the fence at the back pasture and", ruefully, "I had to take it out to her, too. It would fair astonish you to see the way that girl can heave a fence post into position. Of course she uses a jack she just got the fence fixed and was preparing the mow for the hay when the side of it caved in. She wouldn't have a doctor either, says she has no use for them. She'll be up in a few days," he added hopefully, "but she's badly bruised."

STATEMENT GIVEN ON HORNBY CASE

Mounted Police Tell of Traces Found of Well-Known Explorer.

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 16 (Special to The Examiner).—Another mystery of the barren lands of the Far North has been solved with the finding of the remains of John Hornby, explorer and his two companions, who died of starvation in a lonely cabin on the north bank of the Lon River, West of Hudson Bay, Commissioner Cortland Starnes of the R.C.M.P. here stated this morning that Staff Sergeant Joyce's full report has been given to the steamer "Nasco Pie" of the Hudson Bay Company, which is not expected in the East before many months yet.

A statement was issued by the headquarters here following the receipts of Joyce's wireless message yesterday:

"The explorer was so familiar with the country that anxiety was not felt when he had not appeared in Spring of 1927. Later in the year, however, all Mounted Police posts in that region were notified and officers were instructed to keep a look-out for the party.

"Inquiries elicited the information that he had been seen by Indians in 1926. In March, 1926, a trapper came into Edmonton who also stated that he had seen the party in the fall of 1926. In July of this year a report was received from Esquimaux that the bodies of three men had been seen on an ice floe in Chesterfield Inlet. This was later discounted.

"In the summer of 1927, however, trappers brought the last authentic word of the unfortunate party. In an abandoned camp near the Casba River a note was found dated in 1926 and signed by Hornby as follows:

"Travelling slowly, flies bad; shot a fat buck caribou. Hope to see you down the Hanbury this winter.' The Hanbury is a river which empties into the Thelon River about 200 miles west in the Chesterfield Inlet.

"The party apparently did not survive the winter. The bodies were found about sixty miles below the junction of the two rivers," the communique says.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY WE HAVE A HUNCH

By Mehran K. Thomson, Ph.D.
(Author, The Springs of Human Action)

Now and then we come to a decision without knowing why or how. We say we had a hunch.

This hunch is technically known as intuition. One definition of intuition is, the grasp of truth directly and immediately without the usual means of sensory experience. Ordinarily we know things by coming in contact with them through the eye or ear or tongue or nose or any or several of the nine senses. But intuition is supposed to give us knowledge without phis process.

The psychologists do not believe in intuition in this sense. They say that originally all experience and knowledge come through the gateway of the senses. They call this intuition or hunch a feeling. Hence it is more accurate to say that we do not know why we should do such and such a thing but we have a feeling that we should.

Feeling, then, is a vague, unlocalised impression that is sometimes very strong but never vivid and definite. We cannot put our fingers on it and say just what it is. That is the nature of all feeling. The moment a feeling becomes definite enough we call it a sensation or a memory or image or some other mental factor.

The hunch is not so mysterious as it may seem. It is a vague feeling that may later become more definite and vivid. It is based on partial knowledge vaguely recalled.

Nor is the hunch always as reliable as most people imagine. It is about as accurate as a vague, half recalled impression is capable of being andthat is all.

We have a hunch because at times that is all we can have. We lack the knowledge and have to depend upon a vague feeling and trust to luck that the impression is true to the facts.

New High Records Are Reached By Many Issues

NEW YORK, Aug. 17 (Canadian Press).—Resumption of an upward price movement in to-day's Stock Market lifted nearly a score of issues to new high records, but the recovery was checked by advance in call money rates. Early gains of one to nine points were substantially received, many of them being cut in half in the midway selling movement. Trading, which had been extremely active in the rally, turned dull on the decline.

Call money, renewed at 5 per cent., advanced to five and a half and thence to 6 as banks called $40,000,000 in loans. Time money and commercial paper rates held fairly steady.

While the sharp decreases in brokers' loans and re discounts had a dull effect on the speculative sentiment, official intimations that the low call money rates yesterday were "artificial," stimulated liquidation on the part of cautious traders.

New prices for the year, or longer, were registered by American Canadian, R. S. Macy, Tide Water Oil, Grand Union Preferred, Sears Roebuck and Texas and Pacific. International Harvester ran up nine points, but dropped back nearly five on profit-taking.

International Nickel Has Increased Dividend

NEW YORK, Aug. 17 (Canadian Press).—The directors of the International Nickel Company to-day increased the annual dividend rate on the common stock from $2 to $3 shares with quarterly disbursements of 75 cents a share, payable September 29 to shareholders of record Sept. 10.

Stockholders will be offered common stock at $60 a share on the basis of one new share for each ten shares held and one share of new common for each 2½ shares of preferred stock sold. The company announced that the anticipating growing demand for nickel products, it had been decided to supplement Creighton ore output by opening its Frood properties.

Trading Was Slow Few Leaders Active

TORONTO, Aug. 17 (Canadian Press).—With the exception of few of the leaders trading at the morning session of the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day was extremely slow. International Nickel occupied the prominent position, and although trading was not experienced to any great extent, the price demonstrated some unusual fluctuations. After reaching 103¾, it slipped down to 99½, but rallied to close at noon to-day with ¼ gain over yesterday's close, selling at 101½. Massey-Harris was active but the price remained firm, closing with a gain of ¾ to sell at 43. Gypsum and Alabastine was up one at 61, Cockshutt Plough up one at 25, and Steel of Canada climbed to 177½, registering an increase of 2 3-8. The majority of losses were of fractional values.

Mining Briefs

A Special Service to The Examiner

TORONTO, Aug. 17.—Ore receipts at Trail Smelter for the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company of Canada, Limited, from August 1st to 7th inclusive, show 10,890 tons, and from other mines 3,249 tons, with a total of 385,681 tons from the 1st of January, 1928, to date. Of this 314,557 tons comes from the company's mines, and 71,124 from other mines.

Although no developments are reported from the South Keora Mines, The Financial News Bureau learned that the directors are endeavoring to put through a deal for the Porcupine property and are looking forward to its further developments.

The Minister of Mines, Mr. Finlayson, and the directors of the Jackson-Manion left last night for the mine. The latest reports indicate that results from the 250-foot level are far better than anticipated.

The current strength displayed in Noranda is said to be the forerunner of important news which will be given out by the directors of the company some time within the next two weeks. It is understood from semi-official sources that the drilling results from the 975 to the 1,500 horizons have shown, so far, a continuation of the "H" ore body to depth. The values are said to be equally as good if not better than the phenomenal copper-gold values obtained on the 975 of over $50 to the ton.

With Noranda showing its present buying power and featuring on the board this morning, it is expected in the street to hit the $60 mark.

Some important announcements are expected within the next few days on Flintoba Mines, located in the Flin Flon area. Officials of this company are now in the field and expect to acquire surrounding properties, which will not only increase their acreage, but give them important holdings following the well-defined mineralized zone on their own property.

Shaft sinking at the Gold Hill has reached a depth of around 890 feet and, at the present rate will be established at the 1,000 foot horizon within the next four or five weeks. Following the completion of the shaft to that depth some lateral work is to be carried out and the shaft will then be continued to the 1,200 foot objective.

The Con. Royal Mines are waiting for a report from Mr. E. W. Todd, who has been working for the last two weeks on the mine. Mr. Harrison states that the underground survey has been completed and on recommendations of Mr. Todd work on the 1115 foot level will be put under way as soon as possible.

Will Nipissing make good in a big way in its prospecting enterprises in Rankin Inlet and Chesterfield Inlet countries to the west of Hudson's Bay and 1,200 miles north of Cobalt? The two parties sent out by the company have reached the ground well in advance of parties sent by other interests and should have the pick of the ground, which is reported to be rich in gold, silver and copper.

For years this company has been talked of as containing vast stores of mineral wealth, but heretofore its inaccessibility had barred it as practicable for mining. The building of the Hudson Bay Railway, however, which will be completed in 1930, brings this territory within easy reach. That is why leading mining interests were anxious to get in on it ahead of time. In view of the very sanguine reports not only regarding actual deposits but the geology of the country, which is similar to that of Potcupine, Kirkland Lake and the Ontario copper fields, possibilities are certainly promising.

What will directors of Amulet have to place before shareholders next month? It will take another year before a great deal can be definitely known from underground work regarding the many ore bodies indicated by drills. As a reasonably accurate idea can be given from the great deal of drilling done of ore values and dimensions, it is assumed that the estimate will be a substantial one.

It is likely that when the company gets the first two levels opened up on a substantial scale to tap the various ore bodies, it will be ready for production. It is probable that a definite announcement will be made regarding concentrator construction at the coming meeting. Recent developments at the mine near the shaft and well to the north of the shaft have been as good as anything yet found on the property.

The south shaft at the Wright-Hargraves has reached the first objective of 2,000 feet and at the time of writing the station is being cut. The north shaft has reached a depth of about 1,950 feet and both will soon be conditioned to the 2000 foot horizon. With the completion of the stations, a crosscut will be started to connect the shafts at the lower level. Following this, the exploration of that horizon will be commenced.

Millheads continue about the same, around $9 a ton with possibly a slight increase.

Many details regarding Sherritt-Gordon are dealt with in the government report. Two ore bodies are mentioned as having an aggregate length of 10,400 feet—approximately two miles in length. The two shafts now being put down are shown to be about one and a half miles apart along the same ore zone.

Encouraging value have been obtained and work at the Gem Lake property in Central Manitoba is being speeded up considerbly. More men have been taken in, a headframe is being erected and work from this date forward will be increased.

(Unofficial Opinions on the Markets

MONTREAL, Aug. 17—The lowering of call money in New York to 5½% as against a renewal figure of 7½% brought in an avalanche of buying as well as short covering, this resulting in a very substantial advance in a large number of securities. The strength in Wall street only found moderate reflection in the local list.

International Nickel yesterday crossed the 100-mark in New York but only sold up to 100 locally. It is understood that the directors of the company are meeting on Friday of this week and a very constructive announcement will be forthcoming. This information, no doubt, must have caused a great deal of uneasiness among the bear ranks and resulted in a covering movement which gathered considerable momentum as the session progressed. As has already been stated "IK" should continue in the market limelight for same time.

Canada Dry Ginger Ale more than covered the entire annual $3 dividend requirement in the first half of 1928. Net for that period was equivalent to $2.15 a share on the capital stock. In past years the company has made a slightly better showing in the first six months than in the final half. However, seasonal fluctuations are becoming less pronounced; it is probable that net for the full year will be at least $6 a share. The company is in strong financial position. Dividend policy has always been liberal, and stockholders appear justified in expecting either an increase in the regular rate or payment of an extra before the end of 1928.

Increasing competition among chain store companies is causing speculation as to the probable effect on earnings of older established companies. Reports from Loblaw Grocetarias show that each week the business is showing a handsome increase over last year. For the week of August 14th, sales were $291,000, as compared with $241.00 for the corresponding week of last year. While a portion of the increase may be accounted for by the larger number of stores in operation, it would seem that the buying public is patronizing in increasing numbers the chain stores.

Traders are picking the oils as a likely group to show the earlier effects of the situation when money eases. Imperial and B. A. Oil are thought to be in a very satisfactory situation marketwise, while Canadian Oil is known to be held by an extremely strong group to whom market matters little at the moment, but who have very definite plans for expansion, presumably involving issuance of rights, when the time is ripe.

A considerable demand has developed for Abitibi f . . New York recently the consensus of opinion in Wall Street would appear to be that the dividend on the common is not, at the moment, in danger. This view is also held by a number of well-posted people in Montreal. Hence shrewd market traders are taking the opportunity of accumulating the issue around present low levels. The break in the security from a high of around 85 to a low ed body and end its misery. I used the little knife on my watch chain. It seemed to be the only thing left to do. I am not ashamed of it. Some folks will understand. I am glad now that I was too clumsy to find the right spot.

A long rest, the thought of my family, and the knowledge that Fred Coleman would never stop searching, made me pull myself together. I stopped the flow of blood and made up my mind to fight it out. I hope those who may blame me for the act may never have to face such a decision. Under the circumstances I wonder what they would do.

Solloway, Mills & Company

Noranda

TORONTO, Aug. 17. — The strength displayed in Noranda in the last few days is said to be the forerunner of sensational news which is to be given out by the directors of the company some time within the next two weeks. It is understood from semi-official sources that the drilling results from the 975 to the 1,500 horizons have shown, so far, a continuation of the "H" ore-body to depth. The values are said to be equally as good if not better than the phenomenal copper-gold values obtained on the 975 of over $50 to the ton.
